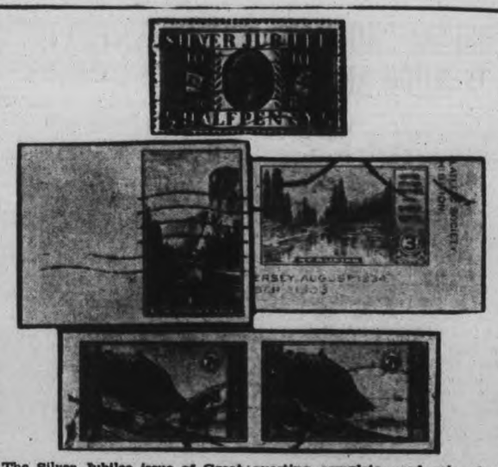
STAMP CORNER

By M. A. BESSEY



The Silver Jubilee issue of Great Britain appeared in Canada several days ago. One value of it is illustrated above. There are four values in the set, halfpenny, one penny, one and a half penny and two and a half penny — the colors being green, red, brown and blue, respectively. The stamps are printed by photogravure and although attractive, cannot be compared with the design and colors of the Jubilee stamps of the crown colonies.

The Jubilee stamps of Canada are not appearing in any quantities up to the present time and we believe should turn out to be the best of all recent commemorative issues of Canada.

The 3c value is, of course, more plentiful than the others. The 2c and 5c come next—the 1c being scarcest of the low values. Neither the 10c nor the 13c are plentiful, with the latter being somewhat the scarcest.

Gather Used Stamps

Colectors in offices or business houses where a large amount of mail is being received will find it well worth their while to gather together the used stamps of all denominations. If the quantities you secure are larger than you require for exchange purposes, and you have no one to whom you may dispose of them, the editor may be able to help you out in this respect if you write and state what you have and can secure.

A complete collection of postally used copies of the Jubilee issues of the entire Empire, will be far harder to obtain than will the complete series, unused. Collectors having exchange correspondents in any of the Colonies should not delay in requesting complete used sets of all that can be supplied.

Special Jubilee Albums have been prepared by various English concerns, which will take the complete series. Judging from the various advertisments describing them, they should offer a most attractive method of mounting and displaying the special issues. The prices range from five shillings, sixpence to ten shillings or more. They may be obtained from most any of the prominent English stamp dealers.

Chain Letters

Much has appeared in the press during the past few weeks regarding the chain letter racket, and now it is even so bad that it has managed to work into the stamp collecting fraternity. Seldom a day goes by, but that anywhere from two to six chain letters make their appearance in my mail-box. The requests range from ten cents to $1.00 in cash, and from a mint three cent commemorative stamp to a block of four or a single thirteen cent Jubilee. Others request from fifty cents to $5.00 catalogue value in any kind of mint or used stamps.

The U.S. Farley Imperforates appear to be the most popular item in the stamp line in the States, despite all of the adverse criticism they received. Collectors having either mint or used copies of the original 1c and 3c imperforates have to collect them all over again, as it will be noted that the outer margins of the first issues bear an inscription, while those of the second are plain.

Several U.S. dealers report that the stamp business is better than ever, and if other lines of business were as good, things would be booming in the States again.

JACKALS RAID 'QUAKE AREA

Shots from the rifles of sentries, answers by shrill snarls of pain as the furtive beats were struck and the wailing cries to "Allah" by half-demented natives, were the only sounds that broke the deathly silence which hangs over the city.

All structures of the city might well have been of paper, crushed down by a mighty gust of wind sweeping down through the Bolan Pass.

Cities Are Wrecked

The appalling vista of wreckage stretches more than 100 miles including the cities of Kandahar, Mastung, Kalat and Shikapur, and countless smaller villages and towns.

Shovel squads worked in relays throughout the night to extricate the dead and injured. Moans from the latter, pinned beneath wreckage of their homes, still could be heard.

A relief train from Karachi was expected to-day, bringing sorely-needed physicians, nurses, supplies and repair crews.

A temporary relief camp already had been established at a race course and on the grounds of the Residency, where pitiful scenes were enacted as dazed parents wandered about, stark-eyed, hunting for their missing children.

The most violent of the three shocks in the early morning hours yesterday lasted a full minute, shaking the houses to pieces.

Quetta's normal population of 60,000 had been swelled by people from the Lowlands who had come to escape the intense heat.

44 of Garrison Dead

Forty-four members of the garrison of the British Royal Air Force died as the barracks fell. A score more were reported missing and the victims included at least three European children.

Many who died had run into the streets from their homes only to be engulfed by the collapsing structures on all sides.

Countless thousands were left homeless, destitute and panic-stricken after the earth tremors crumpled the flimsily constructed houses. Scores of British and Indian troops dropped in the streets from sheer exhaustion after long hours of digging into debris giving First Aid to the injured and organizing relief activities.

The main military barracks escaped the most serious earth shocks and as a result the soldiers bore the brunt of the relief work, since most of Quetta's policemen had perished during the quakes.

Had Narrow Escape.

Sir Norman Carter, agent of the Governor-General, and his entourage, narrowly escaped serious injury during the disaster. As soon as the first rumble was heard, Carter rushed his staff out into the open. Hardly had they left the building than it collapsed about them. Only the door-frames remained standing.

The Province of Baluchistan, with its population of 866,000 persons apparently suffered the worst damage.

Meagre reports said the Babu and Moti districts, most thickly populated parts of Quetta, were destroyed. These sections were inhabited by Sindhis and various migratory sections of the population.

Unconfirmed reports reaching Karachi said the main bazaar on the Bruce road to Quetta was afire. A severe storm had followed the quake. The important frontier post of Chaman, 60 miles north-west of Quetta, was reported wiped out, as was the town of Kalat.

former C.N.R. engineer and Eliza Clarke, the deceased was born at Madoc. He entered the service of the Canadian National twenty-seven years ago, and for several years was employed in the freight yards here.

On Passenger Train

He was later promoted as train man, and was a familiar figure on the Peterborough-Port Hope-Toronto passenger train. With the advent of the depression period he was returned to duty in the freight yards here, and two years ago was transferred to Trenton.

His wife, formerly Jennie Wilson, who is stated to be in ill health, is living with her parents Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson on Sherbrooke street. Two daughters Maxine and Audrey also survive, besides four brothers and four sisters, as follows: Herbert Elliott, Lindsay; William Elliott, Cleveland; David Elliott, master mechanic C.N.R. at Capreol; John Elliott, inspector of air brake car C.N.R. at Allandale; Mrs. E. Sanderson, California; Mrs. Keith Milne, Chicago; Mrs. E. Taylor, Water street, Peterborough; and Mrs. E. McBain, Winnipeg.

Pending completion of funeral arrangements, it is believed that interment will probably take place in Peterborough on Monday.

"Turner's House," home of the famous painter, in Chelsea, England, was sold recently at auction.

A National Message

By REV. W. PASCOE BOARD, LL.D., F.R.G.S., F.R.A.S.

The assumption of authority to settle the doctrines which shall be held and taught by the Church of God. We are not so much concerned at the moment with what the doctrines are. Not even as to whether they are true or false. What we are concerned with is the claim o: authority to settle the doctrines which shall be held and taught by the church at large. There is more liberty of thought and freedom of judgment than there used to be. Yet it is sure that from the most ritualistic of the churches to the most free of the organizations there is the disposition to decide what is the true doctrine, and what doctrine shall be taught, and to excommunicate all who differ. Those who stand for real freedom are usually expelled from the various organizations, or are penalized, perhaps we might say and are penalized, into the bargain. Now as to the principle involved. By Moses and the Prophets, by our Lord and His Evangelists, by the Apostles and the Revelator, God has fixed the doctrine, and fixed it to the end of the dispensation. No power on earth may gainsay or change in any degree that doctrine so set forth. This brings us back to the fact that the final authority in doctrine always is the written word of God; which is unchangeable and sure.

All of us in all the churches have had a part in the claim to judge of the true doctrine. In so doing, and to the extent we have so done, from the highest to the lowest, we have assumed that authority which God has reserved absolutely in His own hand. This does not say that we may not enquire what the true doctrine is. On the contrary, it lays the responsibility on us to assure ourselves what that true doctrine is which has been set forth from God. But we may in no wise assume authority made by the mind and voice of the Eternal. —Reprinted from The National Message.

New Arguments

It may be necessary for the United Church to discard many "ill-informed arguments" in combatting alcohol and rely upon "more effective because more verifiable statements," the report continued.

"In educating young children we would create a strong prejudice against liquor, but disappointment will follow later on if the prejudice has been fortified by half-truths, exaggeration and misrepresentation presented in the name of scientific education."

The report was presented by Professor J. M. Shaw of Queen's University.

Despite the sharp rebuke Retiring President Rev. George C. McQuade directed to charges and ministers responsible for injustices to fellow ministers in forcing them from the active ministry, granting of an appeal for superannuation made by Rev. Frank Wootton of Trinity United Church, Peterborough, was revealed following a Peterborough Presbytery meeting in connection with the conference.

Rev. Wootton

Rev. George S. Easton of North Bay is taking the Trinity Church pulpit. Rev. Wootton, it was learned, will assist at a small mission church in the north of Oshawa. He will receive a small salary in addition to his superannuation allowance.

A tribute was paid Rev. Wootten by his colleagues. "There will be great regret by Mr. Wootton's many friends both in the city and throughout the Province and in the West where he has held many important charges that it became necessary for him to take this step. He has proved himself an able preacher and most faithful pastor. The earnest desire of the Presbytery is that he may in some way be able for many years to render the church still some valuable service."

Rev. Dr. A. E. Armstrong, of the Foreign Mission Board, Toronto, declared "one-half the world is hungry," in speaking to the report on foreign missions. "There are hungry here at home, but here nobody needs to starve," he said. "Where I come from nobody cares. When they see a starving man they say, 'Oh, he doesn't come from our village'."

Money Invested

"Let me say the money you've been giving for these missions has not been spent—it has been invested and a harvest has been reaped."

"Evangelization of foreign countries does not depend on the money we send over, however," he declared. "It depends on the kind of people our missionaries are."

Further, he deplored a waning conviction regarding missions at home. "I don't believe we are going to get anywhere until we've got a Christian conviction behind missions," he asserted. "I feel the attitude at home does not warrant any expansion at the present time."

The committee on reconciliation and world peace reported. "We realize that the forces educating and nuturing mankind for peace must be as thorough and effective as those now tending towards war, and a need to strive continuously for, and cultivate the spirit of goodwill, sympathy and mutual forbearance with the whole world."

The report urged the observation annually of a "Peace Week" in the pulpits.

A service in memory of Rev. George E. Ross, Rev. John D. Boyd and Robert McNab was held by the conference. Rev. J. S. Wilson offered the address.

BUDGET CHANGES PASS COMMONS

Maritime Province potato growers.

Eleven schemes have been approved under the Marketing Act and 18 are under consideration. Minister of Agriculture Robert Weir said The chief concern of the board was to cope with the flood of applications.

Calls Act a Bluff

Mr. Poulict branded the scheme "a life-saver with a stone in it sure to drown the farmers of Canada." The act, he claimed, was a bluff on the part of the Government and would do nothing to remove the primary cause of agricultural distress—skyhigh tariffs.

Canada lost agricultural markets under the Liberal Government, not the present, Mr. Weir retorted. For years Canada shipped 250,000 cattle to the United States, then a duty of three cents a pound was imposed and the trade stopped. The same thing happened with wheat and dairy products.

Not Help Exports

The Marketing Act, Mr. Weir said, would not improve Canada's export business or find new markets but it would empower primary producers to market their goods without waste and to their own advantage.

The act, said Mr. Weir provided a means of overcoming some of the damage done to Canadian exports by the tariffs of other countries. If one looked at the reason tariffs were raised against Canada one found one of them was the desire to avoid a flooding of the home market with Canadian products.

Under the Marketing Act Canada could bargain and agree to control the export to conform to the requirements of the importing country. Thus under the apple scheme Canadian producers had been able to sell large quantities of apples to the United Kingdom without injuring the British grower. Apples were shipped in the quantity, quality and at such times as not to injure the British market.

All Tariffs Should Be Lowered

Everyone agreed tariffs should be lowered, said the minister, but the former Liberal government had done nothing but talk while all countries were raising tariffs against Canada. The present government was meeting the situation by making it possible for tariffs to be lowered.

The entire budget, including tariff changes, increased corporation taxes, increased taxes on large personal incomes and changes in the sales tax and excise duties was approved in committee of ways and means. After that Mr. Rhodes, minister of finance, introduced bills to give effect to the changes which stand for second reading next week.

A few complaints about duplication of taxes on gold mines were heard and Mr. Rhodes promised to look into them and correct any serious injustice which might appear.

The gold bullion tax of last year was abolished but retained in effect for the first five month of 1936. At the same time the corporation income tax was increased and the allowance to mining companies for depletion decreased. These new provisions take effect at the beginning of the year and J. A. Fraser (Cons. Cariboo) and Hon. J. L. Ralston (Lib. Shelbourne-Yarmouth) suggested it was unfair to make the new levy retroactive while old one remained.

Remove Duplication

Some time in the future, Mr. Rhodes hoped, the duplication of taxation on corporation income and shareholders' income would be removed. It had existed for many years, however, and could not be removed in the present state of the country's finances. The Corporation Tax is levied on the profits of companies and after the shareholders receives his dividends from those profits it is again subject to a levy as personal income.

First definite announcement that the government would bring in a bill to create a Federal Trade and Industry Commission in accordance with the recommendations of the royal commission on mass buying, came when Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, introduced a bill to amend the Combines Investigation Act.

Main purpose of this amending bill was to transfer its administration from the department of labor to an independent body to be set up, to be known as the Federal Trade and Industry Commission. The act necessary to create this commission has been the subject of long cabinet sessions for nearly two weeks and it is expected to come before parliament next week.

Since the proposed commission will be an independent body it will be responsible only to the president of the Privy Council (the prime minister). While the amendments proposed in the bill are mainly designed to bring the act into conformity with the new system, the measure also widens the definition of "monopoly" and gives a new interpretation of mergers, trusts or monopoly.

On Monday the House will meet but will take an hour or so off in the afternoon to attend the King's birthday garden party given by the governor-general.

The day will be devoted to estimates and renewed consideration of the Patent Bill and amendments to the criminal code

HOLLWOOD.—As James Cagney and Phil Regan set off on an early morning walk in the hills recently, they had nothing in mind but exercise. The going was easy and presently they broke into a trot. Chin up, Regan was pounding along, unmindful of the road, when Cagney cried a warning and grabbed him by the arm.

In their path was a rattlesnake, coiled and buzzing angrily.

Regan had never seen a rattlesnake before and reptiles of any kind admittedly send him into goose-pimples. But he whipped out a pistol he carries under special permit and plugged the rattler in the head with the first shot.

A little knack he picked up when he was a uniformed cop and later a plainclothesman in the Brooklyn police force.

ONE OF the most thrilling and colorful pictures to reach a local screen in seasons began an engagement at the Regent Theatre on Thursday. This is the new Fox Film production, "Under Pressure," which stars Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen, supported by a finely balanced cast.

This time the tough and trusty team of Lowe and McLaglen are "tunnel men"—leading a crew of husky workers through silt and bedrock many feet below the river. One hour a day in the lives of these intrepid "sand hogs" is reserved for death, while they pursue their perilous work. The other twenty-three are given up to life and love above the river.

Marjorie Rambeau, star of a dozen spectacular stage hits, lends her gusto and fine skill to an important role, and other principal characters are played by Florence Rice, Charles Bickford, George Regas, Siegfried Rumann and George Walsh.

THE MOVIE public is smart. As advance publicity for "Oil for the Lamps of China," a "still" photograph recently was published showing Pat O'Brien and Josephine Hutchison kneeling on cushions and drinking tea.

Two critical feminine fans promptly wrote in and observed that the Chinese do not kneel to drink their tea (this being a Japanese custom) and that the flowers in the background also were Japanese.

They were right on both points. But so was the studio. For the caption on the "still" photo failed to explain that the scene was supposed to be in a hotel in Kobe.

Our Common Birds

A Column Written for the Bird Lovers of Peterborough and District.

By Frank Pammett.

THE HERRING GULL

This bird is found all over Canada, but is most common in the immediate neighborhood of the larger bodies of fresh or salt water.

The Herring Gull is the commonest of our Gulls. As the Robin is to land birds, as is this Gull to the sea-fowl. It is a wanderer and is often seen on the smallest of our lakes even several miles from its nesting-grounds. This bird may be seen in very large numbers during the winter in the Great Lakes and larger waterways of the interior. One never tires of watching the flight of a flock of Gulls sailing about on broad, strong wings. The Gulls that remain on the lower Great Lakes through the summer are immatures or non-breeding birds.

The Gulls haunt harbours in very great numbers, and do a marvellous work in that they are very important scavengers. The Gulls along with other sea-fowl, such as petrels and tarns, rid the water of enormous quantities of refuse. They have been known to follow ships all the way across the Atlantic, picking up the refuse thrown overboard from the ship's kitchen.

It will be seen from the above summary of the Herring Gull's food habits that it is very important as a scavenger and should be given every protection.

THE SENTINEL GULL

See him soaring up above,
Soaring graceful as a dove;
Most beautiful and strongest far,
His coat shining like a star.

First he circles, then he glides,
Now he swoops down o'er the tides;
His shrill cry echoes from the rock,
Guardian of all his flock.

Watch him struggle 'gainst the breeze,
Then glide back to his post with ease;
He watches every bush and brake,
And all the shore-line of the lake.

He seems in play, but his eye so keen
Watches each crevice, each ravine;
From morning till night on tireless wing,
His flock he guards from each harmful thing.

The sun is sinking in the west,
Most living things have gone to rest;
But the sentinel leaves not his post
Till sleep has silenced all his host.

Opportunity for such a trip comes but once in a lifetime to many. There are many who would work night and day for such a holiday, but in the Travel Club such strenuous effort is not necessary.

All that is required is to be persistent and determined to call on the propects in your territory and secure their new and renewal subscriptions to The Examiner. It does not by any means require all of one's time to do this. The campaign is not a hurried-up affair that forces candidates to put in hour upon hour canvassing. During a six-weeks' period a club member can leisurely cover her district.

Two more weeks of the campaign remain in which candidates and helpers can secure votes toward winning the trips. There are many people in the field that have promised their subscriptions. Pay up this week and help her while the votes are still high.

THREE SCHEMES TO AID CANADA ARE OUTLINED

Housing, Reforestration and Grade Crossing Elimiantion Are Suggested.

STEVENS IN VERDUN.

Former Minister Declares He Was Told to Ease Up on Certain Things.

VERDUN, Que., June 1 (C.P.). — A housing scheme, reforestation and grade crossing eliminations are the means of Hon. H. H. Stevens sees as necessary to aid Canada back to prosperity. The former Minister of Trade and Commerce in addressing 500 residents of this city last night urged instead of sending young men to camps they should be employed to these ends.

Reduce Gold Backing.

Necessary funds for the three projects, up to $100,000,000, could be obtained by reducing the gold backing of the dollar to 25 per cent., the amount set by the London Economic Conference of 1933 as sufficient to back currency effectively.

He appealed to the 13 companies which controlled 75 to 80 per cent. of mortgage, trust and insurance companies to step in and solve the credit problem. If they did not do so, it was up to the Government.

On reforestation, Mr. Stevens said the reason for the low water levels in the St. Lawrence River was due to cutting down the forests along the watersheds. He advocated setting young men to replanting these areas.

He spoke personally concerning his relations with the Manufacturers' Finance Corporation, denying accusations made against him in Toronto.

Stevens Threatened.

"I was told some weeks ago that if I did not stay my hand certain things would be brought out that would be derogatory to my interests and character," he said. One of the things had to do with the Manufacturers' Finance Corporation.

"The plain simple facts are that I was a shareholder in that company and a director for some time. When it went into liquidation seven years ago I was not then a director, and I knew nothing about the difficulties of the company until afterwards."

He had done his best to help the liquidator, he said, and had returned about $1,000 he had received as commissions during the time he had been in office for the firm. He denied using parliamentary paper to send out letters for any company.

WEDDING

ROOKE—WOOLL

St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, decorated with ferns, red tulips and gypsophila, was the scene at nine o'clock this morning of a very pretty wedding when Marguerite Asthore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Wooll of Sherbrooke street, was united in marriage to Mr. Alvah Roy Rooke, son of Mrs. Rooke of Chamberlain street and the late F. C. Rooke. The ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a frock of pale pink stressa suede lace, fashioned on straight lines, with a matching jacket. Her turban was of pink lace; she wore sandals of pink and silver, flesh-colored hose and short white silk gloves, and the gift of the bridegroom, a necklace of pearls. Her bouquet was of Butterfly roses, showered with orchid sweet peas and gypsophila.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Mary Staples of Toronto, attired in hyachinth blue georgette with white hat and white accessories. Her bouquet was of Briarcliff roses and gypsophila.

Mr. Fred Cripps of Brampton was best man.

The wedding music was played by Mr. M. B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O.

Ushers were brothers of the bride and bridegroom—Mr. Gerald Wooll and Mr. Sydney Rooke.

A reception was held later at the home of the bride's parents, where the bridal party was assisted in receiving by the parents of the bride and bridegroom. BOUISSON FORMS UNION CABINET

Ninth Cabinet in Past Three Years in France is Formed.

TO SAVE THE FRANC.

PARIS, June 1.—(CP).—The new National Union Cabinet pledged to the salvation of the franc and the maintenance of the economic stability of France was presented to President Albert Lebrun to-day by Premier-Designate Fernand Bouisson, for the past decade president of the Chamber of Deputies.

The new cabinet, ninth since the present Chamber of Deputies was elected three years ago, follows the resignation of the Government of Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin after defeat in the Chamkber on its request for sweeping powers to govern French financial policy.

Swings More to Left.

The Cabinet differs little from Flandin's in the principal posts, although it is slightly more to the left because of the inclusion of the former Communist, Louis Frossard as Minister of Labor.

The political complexion ranges from Marin, on the extreme right, to Frossard, the extreme left. He resigned from the Socialist party at midnight because party rules forbid participation in the government.

Be Given Wide Powers.

The new cabinet will go before the Chamber of Deputies for the first time on Tuesday. As a result of M. Bouisson's insistence on a preliminary understanding, it is virtually certain to win even more extensive powers than those refused to Pierre-Etienne Flandin. In return, the new premier has already given his promise that those powers will not be used for any political ends, but purely for financial and economic measures.

Johannesburg, South Africa, will pay an Oxford University man $5000 to write its municipal history.

CYCLIST CALLS ON CITY POLICE

George Millard, Belleville, Volunteers Explanation to Chief Constable.

VISITING CITY.

Identity of the cyclist who was involved in the accident that resulted in serious injury to Stan. Watson, whose condition is reported unchanged at Nicholls Hospital, was cleared up last night when George Millard of Belleville voluntarily reported to the Chief of Police here.

Mr. Millard, who is visiting at 144 Murray street, explained the reason he had not reported the accident previously was because he had not realized the pedestrian had been seriously hurt.

Following the accident he accompanied the injured man into Bond's drug store and received the assurance from Mr. Watson that the latter had not been seriously injured. After Millard left the drug store, however, Mr. Watson was removed to the Standard Medical and Surgical Clinic and was subsequently ordered to hospital, where it was discovered that he had sustained a fractured base of the skull.

Further it was stated, Mr. Millard returned to Bond's store later the same evening and again enquired as to Watson's condition. The seriousness of the situation was unknown to the employees of Bond's store, but they gave Millard directions as to where he could locate Watson.

George H. Watson, Frederick avenue, a brother of the accident victime, told The Examiner, "My brother said he was just about to cross George street and had stepped off the curb when the traffic lights turned against him and he attempted to regain the curb, but was struck by something."

Cheese Is Ordered Served At All Meals

MADISON, Wis., June 1.—(CP).—Cheese for breakfast, cheese for dinner and cheese for supper time became the law of Wisconsin today—if you eat in a restaurant and your meal costs 25 cents or more. Governor Philip La Follette signed a bill which requires all public eating places to serve two-thirds of an ounce of Wisconsin cheese and two-thirds of an ounce of Wisconsin butter with every meal costing a quarter or more—and you may have to pay for it, for the law doesn't say it is to be given away.

FROM LONDON, ONTARIO.

OTTAWA, June 1 (C.P.) — The London, Ont., Branch of the League of Nations Society in Canada at the annual convention of the society today submitted to "take the initiative toward a concert of Pacific nations."

A concert of Pacific Powers would have to be done outside of the League of Nations, the resolution read, as the United States and Japan are not member nations.

The resolution named Canada, the United States, Japan, China, Russia, and Mexico as the nations to be included in a concert of Pacific Powers.

Possibility of Canada inviting a conference of Pacific Powers should the resolution meet with the approval of the government was seen by members of the society.

H. H. P. JOHNSTON
Manager

"Somebody to see you!"

IF EVERYBODY with something to interest you should come and ring your bell, what a nuisance it would be! Think of the swarming, jostling crowd, the stamping of feet on your porch and carpets!

Every day we know of many callers who come to see you. They never jangle the bell—they don't take up your whole day trying to get your attention. Instead, they do it in a way that is most considerate of your privacy and your convenience. They advertise in your newspaper!

In this way you have only to listen to those you know at a glance have something that interests you. They make it short, too, so you can gather quickly just what you want to know. You can receive and hear them all without noise or confusion in a very few minutes.

In fairness to yourself look over all the advertisements. The smallest and the largest—you never can be sure which one will tell something you really want to know.

Gone dear Lila, gone forever,

How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness

QUINTUPLETS IN TULIPS

Quintuplets came to Peterborough recently in a floral design, five lovely tulips appearing on one stem. The plant was grown by Frank Biddell of 431 Roger street, and was shown to The Examiner yesterday. This occurrence in the horticultural world is perhaps as unique as that of the Dionne babies in the world of humans.

STORES OPEN MONDAY.

Although Monday is a bank holiday and all federal buildings and schools here will be closed, merchandizing stores will be open for business as usual.

STAR-GAZING

It was a dark night but the sky was filled with stars. On a green lawn wandered two young ladies, equipped with a book and a flashlight. Not worms, but planets engaged their attention. And they told a passer-by of their accumulated lore, something of the star Antares that clings to the neck of the Scorpion; the star Arcturus that tags along at the tail of the Big Dipper; of Job's coffin and Leo Major and Leo Minor and the Little Bear with his tail nearly worn off. And, best of all, they could point them all out, and indicate their position in stellar maps in the little book, with the aid of a flashlight. It sounded like a fascinating hobby,—if one's neck could "take it."

10 DAYS TERM FOR ASSAULT

"Rowdyism Must Stop" Magistrate Cautions in Dealing With Case.

PLEADED GUILTY.

"This rowdyism has got to stop" Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., cautioned to-day when sentencing a local man to ten days' imprisonment for assault occasioning actual bodily harm. The accused pleaded guilty to the charge which arose as the result of his having struck Herbert Rye at Rye's Pavilion on Wednesday night last.

Giving his own version of the affair the accused said he and a friend had been dancing at Rye's and obtained a pass-out check. His friend later attempted to enter the hall to get his hat and a quarrel ensued. Austin related he heard his friend call out to him, and he went to his assistance and struck Rye twice.

The complainant stated that he was knocked down, and that his spectacles were broken.

Determined to discourage any further disturbances at the pavilion H. B. Rye, the proprietor, has engaged the services of Ted Boyer as special constable.

CHANGE NIGHT RATES TO 7 P.M.

Earlier Schedule for Long Distance Calls is Announced.

SAVING FOR PUBLIC

Commencing to-day, night rates on long distance telephone calls are to begin at 7 p.m. instead of 8.30.

According to District Manager H. H. P. Johnston, The Bell Telephone Company has fyled with the Board of Railway Commissioners at Ottawa a revised schedule of Long Distance rates in which from to-day night rates on 'Anyone' (station-to-station) calls become effective an hour-and-a-half earlier. In other words, the so-called 'Evening Rates' (7 to 8.30 p.m.) are discontinued, and the lower 'night rates' substituted.

As Mr. Johnston explained, a marked upturn in long distance traffic occurred at 8.30 when the night rates began. This upturn had become so pronounced as to constitute, on many lines between important centres, an undesirable peak load which tended to slow up the service. The longer period of minimum rates is counted on so to spread the low rate traffic as to reduce the peak load factor and thereby make easier the task of long distance operators by making possible a more even apportionment of work.

This important change in the long distance rate structure, while involving in isolated cases (affecting about 3 per cent of the traffic) a five-cent advance in the minimum rate, will effect a worth-while saving to users of the service of extending the minimum period.

Obituary

FREDERICK PRIMEAU

Funeral services were held in Detroit this morning for Fred Primeau, native son of Peterborough and former employee of The Peterborough Examiner who died suddenly on Thursday morning.

Prior to enlisting in the 33rd Battery in 1915, with which unit he served overseas for the duration of the War, Mr. Primeau was a member of The Examiner composing room staff. Since demobilization from the army he had been working on the Detroit Times as a linotype operator.

He is survived by his widow (formerly Minnie Bosley of Peterborough) and three children residing in Detroit, also his mother, Mrs. John Primeau of Cricket Place, five brothers, Charles, Arthur and Joseph Primeau, all of this city, and William and Alex Primeau of Detroit; and a sister, Mrs. Ken Poole, of Windsor.

ALBERT ELLIOTT

CAVAN, June 1 (Examiner Correspondence)—The funeral of the late Albert Elliott was held from the residence of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hutchison, Newtonville on Wednesday.

Interment was in the family plot in Gardiner's cemetery, Cavan.

Pall-bearers were fellow members of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, Millbrook. Messrs. R. M. Howden, John Cathcart, Alexander Braithwaite, Harry Fallis, Laverne Fallis and Thos. Harkness. Mr. George Cobbley, Noble Grand conducted the Oddfellows' service at the grave-side.

The Rev. J. E. Whithame, a former pastor, the Rev. J. R. Trumpour, pastor of Cavan United Church and the Rev. Mr. Wallace of Newtonville, conducted the service at the home and cemetery.

Mr. Elliott had been a life-long resident of Cavan, where by his quiet unassuming manner, sterling integrity of character and Christian life he had won a host of friends and was respected by the entire community.

He was a faithful member of Cavan United Church which he regularly attended when health permitted.

He served long and faithfully with the C.P.R. being foreman of the Cavanville section and during that time he resided in his comfortable commodious home near the station.

After his superannuation ten years ago he and his wife purchased a comfortable bungalow in Cavanville where they resided until the death of his wife three years ago last April, since which time he made his home with his daughters, Mrs. Richards and Mrs. Hutchison, his health not permitting him to have the responsibility of maintaining his own home.

He had been remarkably well during the past winter, but passed away after a brief illness at the age of seventy-eight.

He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Howson, of Toronto; Mrs. H. Gardiner of Battleford, N.W.T.; Mrs. Sidney Hutchison of Newtonville and Mrs. S. Richards of Cavanville. One son predeceased him. Nine grandchildren and three sisters survive him.

WILLIAM ROBERTS.

ROSENEATH, June 1.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The Rev. L. W. Scott, Tuesday afternoon, stood in the pulpit of Roseneath United Church and delivered an eloquent funeral oration on the occasion of the services held in tribute to the late William Roberts, who passed quietly away on Sunday morning in his 74th year.

Deceased was oldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James (Jimmy) Roberts, who were among the first pioneers to settle in the township of Otonabee, and later moved to the south-west corner of Alnwick Township, and is known to-day as the Roberts lived for many years, until Robers lived for many years, until 1921, when he and Mrs. Roberts (Malinda Harper) came to the village to reside on a semi-farm, keeping themselves interested in the life of their choice.

He was a faithful member of the former Methodist Church and later the United Church, being regular in attendance and actively interested in its organization so long as health permitted. The gift of singing, music and teaching was born in the Roberts family, and therefore the deceased gentleman was a valued member in the church choir for many years, and was also an elder in the church since the Union.

He served as a councillor, and also as reeve of the township for a term of several years.

Besides the bereaved widow, he leaves three sons—Cecil of Roseneath, Lewis of Central Public School, Port Hope, and Burton of the Public School, Colborne, one granddaughter, Doris Roberts; five sisters—Mrs. Rogers (Eva) of Vancouver, B. C., Mrs. W. Campbell (Ida) of Norham, Mrs. Malcolm Baker (Amy) of Hastings, Mrs. Sewell (Minnie) of Detroit and Mrs. George Montgomery (Belle) of Oshawa; one brother, Christopher (Bob) of Western Canada.

The active pall-bearers were Messrs. Gilbert and Herbert Howson, Keene; Malcolm Baker, Hastings; Harry Bowman, Coldsprings; Albert Harper, Camborne; William Campbell, Norham.

DAWSON TIGHE

WARSAW, June 1 (Examiner Correspondence). — Dawson Tighe died suddenly from a heart attack at the home of Samuel Bell, where he has been living for about a year. He was seventy-three years of age, though in good health. In the forenoon on Wednesday he complained of a sudden violent pain in the region of the heart. Dr. Munro was called, but Mr. Tighe died in a short time.

Mr. Tighe was born near White Lake, and had a farm on the Fourth Line, Dummer. He married Maggie Allan, and to them were born three children: Hazel (Mrs. Edward Bell), Warsaw; Maggie (Mrs. Edward Earl), Wilberforce, and Percy, married and living in Wilberforce.

Mr. Tighe was a member of the Methodist Church and later of the United. He was a quiet man, well liked and respected by those who knew him, and always willing and glad to help his neighbors or any who needed him. Mr. Tighe sold his farm about six years ago, as he could not manage alone.

Left to mourn a father's loss are the three of his family. There are also three grandchildren.

MRS. SHERMAN NORTHEY.

The funeral of the late Enid Violet Rosborough, beloved wife of Sherman Northey, took place on Friday, May 31st, at 2 p.m. from her late residence in Smith township after a lingering illness.

The deceased leaves to mourn her loss, besides her sorrowing husband, one daughter, Doreen, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Rosborough. One sister, Erma, of Peterborough, and two brothers, Alex of Peterborough and Earl at home.

The pallbearers were Stanley Roseborough, Wesley Bell, Max Northey, Stanley Northey, Graydon Northey, Kenneth Northey.

Funeral service was conducted by Rev. W. R. Archer, minister of Lakefield United church, assisted by Rev. W. B. Walker, minister of Lakefield Baptist church and Rev. Harold Bell, minister of Blackstock United church.

Interment in Lakefield cemetery.

MRS. EDWARD WALSH.

The funeral of Mrs. Edward Walsh took place on Friday morning from the family residence, 186 Edinburgh Street, to St. Peter's Cathedral, where Requiem Mass was offered by Rev. C. J. Carroll. Rev. Paul Costello, rector of the Cathedral, was present and delivered an eloquent sermon on the virtues of a Christian mother, and the great loss to a home when the mother is taken away, and reminded those present the advantage of continuing their prayers for her soul.

The number of spiritual and floral tokens and the attendance at the services as well as the large number who visited the home since Tuesday, gave silent testimony of the friendship and esteem which the deceased and her family have enjoyed amongst the friends and relatives.

Rev. Dr. J. V. Masterson conducted the services at the graveside.

Pallbearers were: William Young, Emmet Fitzgerald, Daniel Parsons, Chris. McGrath, Dan Burke, and William Boyle.

Among the visitors who attended the funeral from outside points were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Turney of Grand Rapids, Michigan; Mrs. William Staples of Apsley, Mr. and Mrs. Parsons, and Miss Madeline Gallagher of Cobourg, Miss Annie McGrath of Lindsay, and Edward and Jack McGrath of Westwood.

Minister Is Held as Suspected Slayer Of One of His Own Church Members

DE RIDDER, La., May 31 (A.P.)—The Rev. Edgar Eskridge, who sought to take the law in his own hands, was held in jail yesterday as the suspected slayer of one of his own church members, Ed J. O'Reilly, Chief of Police at Orange, Tex.

The minister and vice crusader was arrested Wednesday a few hours after Chief O'Reilly was killed by shotgun blasts from a passing motor car. Sheriff J. H. Cain said Mr. Eskridge had a rifle, a pistol and a shotgun in his motor car when taken into custody.

Chief O'Reilly, a close friend of the minister, arrested his pastor last Tuesday on a charge of impersonating an officer as the result of a raid Mr. Eskridge made at a night club. The chief did not press the charge and the minister was released.

After his arrest here, the minister refused to waive extradition to Orange County, where a complaint charging murder had been fyled against him.

The first problem Sheriff Cain faced yesterday was in getting the minister out of his cell. He was placed in a cell which had not been used for a long time and when officers tried to open the door Wednesday night the lock refused to work.

They decided to wait until yesterday to pry the door open.

LEGION BRANCHES ARE PLANNING JOINT PICNIC

MARMORA, June 1 (Examiner Correspondence).—Marmora Branch No. 237, Canadian Legion, met in the Legion rooms on Friday evening with the president, W. Mumby, in the chair. Part of the session was used in winding up business in connection with the recent Victoria Day celebration. One application for membership was received. The proposed joint picnic with the Stirling Branch was further discussed, and July 3rd was suggested as the date for the holding of the same. Practices for the degree team which will enter the competition at the Zone rally at Belleville on June 26 were decided upon. The Branch will continue to hold meetings twice monthly during the summer months.

BRITISH-ISRAEL! What Does It Mean?

IS IT A NEW SECT?

Emphatically No! It is a Federation of orthodox Christians of many denominations, who believe the Bible to be the inspired word of God, and therefore literally as well as spiritually true.

IS ISRAEL A NATION OR A CHURCH?

Since God cannot change (Mal. iii., 6), Israel must still be in existence as a nation literally (Jer. xxxi., 35-37) as well as a Church, spiritually.

WHERE, THEN, ARE THESE CHOSEN PEOPLE ISRAEL?

Only one race to-day answers in every detail to the Bible picture of "Israel in the latter days"—(Christian Dispensation)—and that is the English-speaking-Race—the British Empire and U.S.A. They possess what Israel was to possess, and they are doing what Israel was to do.

WHAT IS THE KEY TO BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH?

The differentiation between "Israel" and "Judah," clearly marked throughout the Scriptures (1 Kings xii.; Jer. iii., 6-11; Ps. cxiv., 1-2; Ezek. xxxvi.). They are not interchangeable terms.

Israel—The 10-tribed Northern Kingdom or House of Israel, who kept the surname Israel.

Judah—The 2-tribed Southern Kingdom or House of Judah. Of this latter House only, are the "Jews." Hence all Jews are Israelites, but all Israelites are not Jews. Jews was the name given to the men of Judah only. 11 Kings xvi., 1-6; Esther ii., 5-6.

FOR WHAT WAS ISRAEL CHOSEN?

For Service. Isa. xxv., 55. "Unto Me the children of Israel are Servants." Isaiah xlii., 10, 21. xliv., 21.

For Witness. Isaiah xliii., 2. "Ye are my Witnesses that I am God." See also Isaiah xlix., 3.

For Blessing. Gen. xii., 1-3, 16-18. "I will bless thee, and thou shalt be a blessing."

Not for Favoritism or special righteousness. Ezek. xxxvi. 22-24, 32. "I do not this for your sakes O House of Israel but for My Holy Name's sake." See also Isaiah xlviii., 9-11.

WHAT OF SALVATION?

Individually, personal Salvation by faith in the atonement of Jesus Christ is as necessary for an Israelite as for any other, (but nationally) the Israel race is charged with the responsibility of distributing the Gospel and proclaiming it to the world. See Isaiah lxi., 1-11.

IS BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH NECESSARY?

1. It alone throws true light on the prophetic Scriptures, and on British origin, history and destiny.
2. As part of God's Word and God's Plan, it must be as necessary as any other part.
3. It alone completely demonstrates the inspiration of the Bible, and vindicates a Covenant-keeping God.
4. If Britain is not Israel, she must go down before the true Israel, who must appear and take Britain's place, and continue her tasks. For this there is no time, as the "latter days" of this dispensation are well advanced.
5. In the coming conflicts of nation, Israel is to lead those nations fighting for God (Christian) against the combination of nations fighting against God (anti-Christian). Think! Britain is the "Chief of Nations" to-day. Is she Israel, or is she the Anti-Christian power?
6. In 1917 Britain liberated the Holy Land and set free Jerusalem. If Britain is not Israel then "Jerusalem is being trodden down of the Gentiles" still, Luke xxi., 24.

A CHALLENGE.

If these statements are not correct —Prove the Contrary!

If they are the Truth — Accept them! and Pass them on!

ROBERTA'S CHAT

A column conducted by a reader of The Examiner for her other reader friends. Address all mail to Roberta in care of The Examiner.

"Independence now, and independence for ever."

—Daniel Webster.

Dear Friend:

Do you believe in insurance? It can be such a help.

But there are many different kinds. We can insure ourselves against old age and be independent of help from others.

We can also insure ourselves, against a great many hurts in life by not expecting too much.

We can build a wall of privacy around ourselves, thereby insuring against the interference of others. We can insure against fickleness by being true, against gossip by not gossiping.

Against forgetfulness by God, by not forgetting Him.

Against loneliness by having a hobby. All the ugly things in life can be insured against, if we look for the remedy in time.

We cannot be slipshop in living, and expect much from life.

So, if you are insured against fire, theft, death, or accident, do insure for yourself a full, happy, life, by looking for, and expecting, the best.

Your friend,
Roberta.

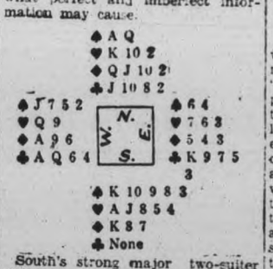
GIVE PARTNER ALL DETAILS

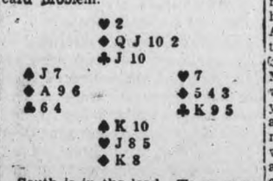
Perefect team work requires all possible important information to be given one partner by the other. The following hand, appearing in one of the open games of the eastern tournament well illustrates what perfect and imperfect information may cause.



South's strong major two-suiter obligates an opening bid of 1-spade and his partner's proper response is 2-no trumps, then South must bid 3-hearts. Not knowing but what South may have 5 spades and only 4 hearts, North should shift to 3-spades. Many players in South's position went 4-spades, when they should have bid 4-hearts, to show suits of equal length. North should pass the 4-bid by South. Although North can take 3 spade tricks, 5 heart tricks and 1 club trick, against the opening lead of clubs, the hand should be played at a suit call, not at no trumps.

No South player had trouble in going game at spades, against any opening lead except a club. The most common opening lead was the 2 of spades, to avoid an opening appearing more dangerous to West. The spade opening enabled South to win all tricks except one spade and one diamond trick.

Against an opening lead of a winning club South must play carefully to go game. Let the ace of clubs hold. When West leads the Q of clubs have South ruff. Win two spade tricks in dummy. Take two heart tricks with the ace and The holdings about the table will be as shown below. South has a 7-card problem.



South is in the lead. To go game at spades he must win 5 of the 7 tricks not yet played. Opponents have won a single club trick. They will win in addition only one trump trick and the ace of diamonds, against the best play of South. Lead hearts from declarer's hand to oblige West to ruff. If a club is returned the 10 will hold the trick, or force East to cover with his K, and have that trick ruffed. Such procedure will establish a good club in dummy, and South will pick up West's J with his K. West can win only a diamond trick, giving game to South. Before Monday see what South can do with hearts as trumps.

Be Beautiful

By GLADYS GLAD

Although the average lass does not realize it, many of the cinema sirens in Hollywood have their figure problems just as non-professional girls do. But Alice Faye seems to be one lass who doesn't have to worry much about her weight. Alice doesn't believe in starvation diets. She believes that exercise is best to keep her youthfully slender. But at the same time, she never gorges herself on foods that she knows won't do her any good, which, I imagine, is one reason why exercise seems sufficient to keep her figure perfectly proportioned.

Take it from me, it's a wise baby who chooses a sensible method of reducing. A carefully planned dieting and exercising routine such as the one outlined in my "New Figure" booklet, for instance, is an ideal type, because it is well balanced. However, for the woman who likes to plan her own menus, calorie counting is a good procedure to follow in reducing, too. If a girl eats the proper foods in the proper amounts, and balances her meals well, she is bound to lose weight effectively. And with a good calorie chart, she'll not find it at all difficult.

Calories Needed Vary

The amount of calories required each day varies, of course, with the individual. But there's a system whereby the average girl can figure out the amount of calories her body needs with great ease. If she is a normally active woman, which means not over athletic yet not of a sedentary nature, her normal intake of food daily should range from 16 to 20 calories for each pound of her normal weight. If, for instance, her normal weight is 115 pounds, her diet to supply the needs of her body, should have a calorie value of from 1,840 to 2,300.

This variation in amounts is given to take in difference in activities. If a girl is usually active, she should incline toward the larger number. While, if she's usually inactive, she should incline toward the smaller one. And if she wants to reduce, she should cut down her normal intake of food by about 1,000 calories per day. This will not only check any weight increase, but also will forced the body to draw on its reserves of fat, and thus gradually bring about weight reduction.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Gaining Weight

B. B. B.: Bony hips do indeed look most unattractive in the new styles. The gaining weight course contained in my booklet on 'The New Figure' will prove of great assistance in rounding out the scrawny portions of your body.

Oily Skin

Peggy: Use a bland soap and water to cleanse your skin, and apply a milk skin tonic frequently. Get plenty of fresh air and exercise, and eliminate all highly-seasoned foods and stimulating drinks from your daily menu.

RECITAL GIVEN BY SERENADERS IN LEGION HALL

Class of Miss Helen Ludbrook Provides Most Interesting Concert.

YOUTHFUL PERFORMERS.

One of Miss Helen Ludbrook's very entertaining programs, the recital on Hawaiian guitars by the "Aloha Serenaders" to which her pupils look forward each year and to which they contribute their talent with wholehearted zest and enthusiasm, pleased over two hundred people in the hall of the Canadian Legion, last night, when a very appreciative audience listened to the langorous, dreamy music of those Southern islands where time, apparently, matters little, and the strumming of guitars seems a fitting accompaniment to the splash of mild blue water on a palm-fringed shore.

The setting for the native music was very pretty, with a back drop simulating a tree-girdled beach and a volcano in the distance. The young people taking part wore Hawaiian leis about their necks and a very effective spotlight with colored globes, was arranged by Jack Sage.

Miss Ludbrook is to be congratulated on the excellence of her tuition as reflected in the skilful playing of her pupils and the manner in which they present their attractive selections, entirely from memory, and with an apparent intense interest in, and fondness for, their pleasant music.

An outstanding attribute of the program was the extreme youth of some of those taking part and the manner in which they made a big hit with their listeners. Young Jim Sands, assisting in the program, and one of the little musicians of the musical group, Betty Brown of Lakefield, were encored with repeated vim for their playful little action song, "Here Comes Cookie", and its bright encore, "Fare Thee Well, Annabelle". And Ruth Harris, another young performer, made almost as great an impression with her peppy singing of "As I Stroll Along the Shore", accompanied by the guitar music of Miss Opal Rosboro and Bob Hamilton. Audrey Murray, reciting "Pa's Cheap Car", was another skilful and expert young entertainer. And Betty Brown also pleased her audience with a recitation about the little brother who 'fixed' his sister's wedding, and a zestful little song, loudly encored, "Good Ship Lolly Poy."

Fine Assistance

Assisting in the program, which was supervised by Miss Helen Ludbrook, who played in the orchestral and many of the group numbers, were Miss Dorothy Whatley, who played accompaniments in a very capable manner; Miss Mignon Maynood, Peterborough's whistling expert, who trilled, light and free as a bird, in two lovely number: the "Spring Song" and its encore "Kiss Me Again"; Miss Kathleen Ludbrook and Roy Lane, banjoists with the solo and orchestral selections; Jim Sands, who gave several Scotch songs in characteristically good style, and a lovely bit called "Old Faithful", and Bob Wagstaff, a baritone singer whose splendid voice has to be heard to be appreciated. Rich, resonant, finely handled, with exquisitely clear enunciation and much expressiveness, it is a pleasure to listen to this singer, who gave two unusual numbers: the tramping song of the highway rover, and a "Lullaby to the Quintuplets". Mr. Wagstaff was encored to the echo.

The program opened with an orchestral selection by the entire ensemble, "The King's Serenade," followed by a pleasing guitar solo by another youthful performer, Buster Sals, playing "Blue Moon," and a Hawaiian guitar quartet: Bill Sage, Bob Hamilton, Clare McWilliams, playing, with Miss Ludbrook, "The Old Rugged Cross."

The orchestra exhibited splendid training, in their rendition of "Mauna Loa Chimes," with a very beautiful chiming effect introduced by their teacher. While the Junior orchestra was exceptionally good in "One, Two, Three, Four" and "Repaz Band," with vocal solo work in the former piece, by Audrey Murray, a member of the band. Other members are Jim Reynolds, Buster Seals, John Turner and Bruce Kimmond.

Two duets, "Royal Hawaiian Hotel," by Ruth Harris and Clare McWilliams, and the lovely "Waters of Minnetonka," by the Misses Greta Reynolds and Ethel Calvert were very well presented, as was also the duet by Miss Opal Rosboro and Bob Hamilton, playing "Minuet in G."

"On the Beach."

A instrumental solo was by Bruce Kinmond, playing expertly "Paul Mullette" and "My Wild Irish Rose," and a quartette of young ladies, with their teacher, played some attractive music, "Haola Hula" and "On the Beach at Waikiki," with Miss Ethel Calvert taking the solo in the 1st named selection. Other members of the group are the Misses Opal Rosboro, Greta Reynolds and Kathleen Ludbrook.

Two effective scenes that aroused much enthusiasm were the Texas Scene and the bit about "King Ka-me-ha-me-ha." In the former, boys took the music, dressed in cowboy suits, and singing favorites like "Oh, Susannah," "The Tavern in our Town," and "Home on the Range," to their own banjo, harmonica and guitar accompaniment. The members of this group were Bob Hamilton, Max Northey, Jim Sands, Buster Seals, Jack Sage, Roy Lane, Clare McWillims nd Donald Ralph.

And the the second very entertaining scenic bit of music showed Jim Sands as the South Sea Island monarch with the long name, wearing a gilt crown and accompanied by four pretty maidens; the Misses Helen Shaughnessy (assisting for the occasion), Ruth Harris, Pett Brown and Audrey Murray, with the Misses Ludbrook playing guitars. The four damsels attending the king, waving large gilt fans, wore regulation "shredded wheat" Hawaiian skirts, with white blouse and dark jackets and floral wreaths. This snappy number was partially repeated, in response to enthusiastic applause.

And a most entertaining program closed with the ensemble singing "Now it's time to say Aloha to you," with their own guitar accompaniment.

GEORGE ARLISS IN "CARDINAL RICHELIEU"

"Youth must be served" is never the slogan of the movies. What young actor could ever hope to approximate the skill of this elderly man who weaves a charm about his work, so that his audience sits enthralled as they watch him do his stuff. It is useless to repeat again that Arliss pictures are mostly Mr. George Arliss. What of it? Any man who can present such a masterly picture is welcome to parade himself all over the screen. If Cardinal Richelieu could step forth from the shades, he would probably be less than half as interesting as this veteran who uses his rich voice and his expressive countenance and his polished skill so supremely.

This is a picture that presents roistering times in the world's history, with scheming courtiers (what goregous laces they wear to their peacock outfits!) with a lax king who still has wit enough to recognize the power of the Prince-Cardinal, who was once a warrior and is always a statesman; with intrigue and jealousy and envy tearing at the glory of the wily old diplomat; and with young love and romance. Maureen O Sullivan, her rather ugly wide mouth very prominent, but pretty otherwise in a new coiffure of soft curls, is the Cardinal's youngest ward, Lenore, to save whom he almost sacrifices his place in the favor of the philandering King Louis 13th, while her suitor is a lad with a real Irish twist to his tongue. (Evidently the picture-makers believe in sacrificing the ears of their listeners as long as they can please their eyes).

This is probably the strongest role essayed by Arliss since he made such a success in "The House of Rothschild." The part seems made to order for the old man, although any student of history would realize that Cardinal Richelieu would probably be quite a different type. But Arliss plays it with wily ease, and his admirers will like him all the more for his prowess in the role. There are some memorable bits, not least among them the wild coach ride after the deceptive Queen and also the dramatic moment when Arliss (supposed to be dead) confronts the false and scheming nobles before His Majesty.—Jeanette.

"MAN OF ARAN"

It is seldom that any film is given such world-wide acclaim as has been extended to "Man of Aran" which is coming to the Capitol Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday. This screen masterpiece was produced by Robert Flaherty, a former Canadian who lived in Toronto and Port Arthur for many years. Mr. Flaherty was employed as an engineer while in Canada and is credited with having rediscovered the Belcher Islands while on a mining expedition. It was at that time he became interested in photography. His first film was "Nanook of the North" which for the first time revealed the life of the Eskimo to screen audiences. This picture is still running in various parts of the world.

Flaherty's latest screen production "Man of Aran" was awarded the highest prize at the recent International Film Exposition held in Venice in competition with 67 pictures entered by leading studios of the United States and Europe. "Man of Aran" was also honored by being selected as the best film of the year by the National Board of Review which passes on all films shown in the United States.

In order to make "Man of Aran" Flaherty spent two years in the romantic Aran Islands off the western coast of Ireland and lived the unusual life of the natives of Aran, who prefer to endure the hardships of life on these bleak islands rather than sacrifice their independence by entering civilization. Robert Flaherty is known as "the man with a camera" and nobody knows what unusual aspect of life on this picturesque globe he will next choose to portray. "Man of Aran" is at present delighting audiences in Canadian theatres and all of us are proud to share the acclaim that is greeting Flaherty's newest screen achievement all over the world.

THREE CANDIDATES PRESENTED FOR UNITED CHURCH ORDINATION

Fruition of Religious Educational Training Realized at Conference.

TELL LIFE INCIDENTS.

Members of the Bay of Quinte Conference now in session in St. Andrew's United Church saw last night the fruition of their religious educational training for young men, when three candidates were presented for ordination in the Christian ministry. This was one of the most significant sessions of the whole conference over which Rev. Dr. Semple, president, presided.

The service of worship was conducted by Rev. Principal Kent of Queen's University, Kingston, who read for his lesson, Acts 20:17.

The excellent music for the evening was provided by Knox United Church choir under the leadership of Wm. Potter, the organist and choir master. The beautiful and appropriate anthem rendered was "Te Deum Landamus" (T. S. Lloyd) with A. Pitchford as soloist.

Rev. James E. Beckel, secretary of the conference, presented the three young candidates individually to the assembly, when each told briefly something of his Christian experience and of his call to the ministry. The first speaker was Preston Charles Brown, B.A., of Millbrook, who said that his call would involve the relation of more than one experience. He paid high tribute to his Christian home and to the high ideals set before him by Christian parents, and by the Christian Church. He also spoke of his great debt to the professors who had enabled him to satisfy mind as well as soul regarding religious problems. In conclusion, he declared that he was prepared to enter the ministry with a clear conviction that Christ is able to help in every experience of life.

Trained As Engineer

Horatio Todd, B.A., the second candidate related some of the incidents that had brought him into the church. Coming of a seafaring family in Ireland, he trained to become an engineer but was unable to secure a position. "At first it seemed that God had dealt harshly with me" said Mr. Todd, "but at His own purpose, certain doors closed and others opened, so now I am seeking to follow, by God's grace the light".

The last candidate, Charles Robert Wragg, B.A., B.D., said that his conviction to enter the ministry took form ten years ago, when faced with the problem of a life work. Deeply conscious that he was a social product absorbing a part of all whom he had met, the speaker found it impossible to pay tribute to all who had helped in his decision. He felt the church to be one institution where one can express his ideas and in closing hoped that he might live up to the great opportunities of the work.

Leaders Required

The resolution for the reception of these three young men into full connection to be ordained as ministers was moved by the Rev. E. W. Rowland, chairman of Belleville Presbytery. In addressing the candidates, Mr. Rowland assured them that there was never a time when the church required more consecrated leadership. In this world of fear, suspicion, selfishness and doubt, society is wistfully looking toward the Church of Christ. It is asking the question, "Can the church lead us from this wilderness of doubt into the promised land of hope, faith and national co-operation. Youth, too, is asking, not for a theology or a creed, but for a life, for Christianity is not a creed to be debated. It is a life to be lived and a work to be done.

Mr. Rowland concluded with a word of encouragement and advice that these young men keep burning brightly upon the altar of their hearts, the love and passion for preaching the unsearchable riches of Christ. He pleaded that they would never allow secular matters to stampede them into half-hearted prayerless preparation of their message. This is one of the pitfalls pecular to the calling, but the challenge of the church and the call of God is to be at your best.

Professor J. O. Watts of Queen's University seconded this resolution, adding his word of counsel. He spoke of the long years of preparation in the class room, on the mission field or in the slums, and suggested that the candidates be regarded, not just as under graduates, but as transfigured into accredited ambassadors of the King of Kings. On the other hand, he expressed the hope that the minister of the conference might be transfigured into representatives of the universal church and worthy custodians to receive these young men into fellowship. In closing, Professor Watts spoke of his gratitude to God for young men who have prepared for a life ministry in which Christ may be revealed to men.

Rev. Dr. Semple then put the motion, "That upon the recommendation of the college authorities, of the Presbyteries, and of the Religious Education Committees, these young men be received into the ministry of the United Church of Canada and be ordained on Lord's day next."

In affirmation of the resolution, the members of the conference stood.

This solemn and inspiring service was closed with prayer and the Benediction by Rev. T. E. Robertson, chairman of Kingston Presbytery.

The Ordination service will be held in the conference church on Sunday, June 2nd, at 11 a.m. when the sermon will be delivered by the Rev. W. E. Donnelly, B.A., of Brockville.

Eventful Racing Week

Three Doubles at Thorncliffe Park Pay Four-Figure Prices.

WRIGHT SELLING OUT

THIS PAST week has sure been an eventful one in racing circles. Up at Thorncliffe they had three double bets on consecutive days that all bordered on the fourteen hundred dollar mark. Then on Thursday at Detroit, Eddie Seagram's good handicap performer Stand Pat ran away and hid on the famous Azucar and several other high-class performers. He won by three lengths and was just waltzing at the finish. The same day at Belmont Park, Mrs. Silas B. Mason's 1933 Preakness winner Head Play won the historic Suburban handicap defeating among others the great Cavalcade.

W. H. Wright of Barrie, the well known Canadian horseman is leaving soon for England to reside there and is going to hold a dispersal sale and unload all 6ft horses. He has some wonderful stock in his barn especially one called Spey Crest and the bidding will be brisk. This mare called Lofty Lady is coming along in fine style and should cop the duke about her next start. Bold Bendigo is another that we are proud of. He likes the distance and the further they go, the better it suits him. There is another sprinter by the name of Indicative that is fairly burning up the track in his workouts.

KENILWORTH PARK at Windsor has decided not to operate this year so this will leave the Border city territory entirely open to Billy Woollatt and his Devonshire venture. It is remarkable how old George De Mar retains his good form and is always a dangerous factor in any claiming event. Young Kitty who is now ten years old has had only one start this year but she is coming along nicely and will spring a real surprise one of these days. The Smallman stable has lost plenty of horses via the claiming route since coming home to Canada but George Alexandra will reach out one of these days and grab some so quick that they won't know what has happened. Down in the States he is known as the Claiming King.

Whitey Abel is sure having a great year so far and we hope his luck keeps up as there is no more popular boy around the tracks than this lad. Popcorn who is a distance horse has been going strong in the sprints lately and Meridian Queen has been doing a lot of racing recently but has been unable to get in the money. She is pretty well up in years and needs a lot of work to reach top form but will drop from the skies one of these days when least expected.

CHISOX LOSE TO INDIANS

6-2 Setback Sends Pale Hose Game and a Half Back of Yankees.

GIANTS EXTEND STREAK.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Chicago White Sox, who led the American League through the greater part of the month of May almost without challenge, seemed to have run into some of the evil days that have been predicted for them.

They began to wabble a bit when they began their eastern jaunt in the middle of the month, the hitters slackening their pace and the pitchers sowing less steadiness. As a result they have won only six and lost eight of 14 games since then and even had considerable trouble providing "silent" John Whitehead, eight-game winner on the mound, enough to gain his last few victories.

Drop to Second Place

The Sox dropped into second place Thursday when they divided the holiday bill with Cleveland and skidded into an even more precious position yesterday when they "blew" a 6-2 decision to the Indians. That left them a game and a half behind the Yankees, whose game with Boston was rained out, and only one game ahead of Cleveland.

The feats of New York Giants and Detroit Tigers and Cincinnati second game under the floodlights rounded out the day's brief program with about equal interest.

Extend Winning Streak

The Giants slammed out a pair of victories over the cellar dwelling Braves, 15-3and 4-2, extending their winning streak to seven games and stretching their lead over the idle Cardinals to 5½ games. Their 18 runs and 22 hits in the opener represented their best one-game production of the season and every player contributed to it.

The Tigers, after a narrow escape at the hands of the Browns, took undisputed hold of fourth place in the American League, moving ahead of the Red Sox.

The Reds drew another good sized crowd, 19,429 for the second night game in big league history but found it less of an artistic success than the first when the Pirates won 4-1 in a mound duel in which Bill Swift of Pittsburgh and Al Hollingsworth of Cincinnati each allowed six hits.

BAILIEBORO GIRLS GAIN NEAT VICTORY

Snappier Fielding and Better Base Running Gives Verdict to Visitors.

Bailieboro girls squeezed out a neat victory last night at the Ashburnham Bowl over the C.G.E. team in the first completed game of the City and District Softball League, taking the decision 15 to 14.

Snappier fielding and better baserunning swung the verdict in favor of the visitors, who although outhit by the locals, 18 to 15, put extra punch into their wallops, clouting two homers and a double, and made the C.G.E. look bad the way they romped around the runways. They staged a double play in the second, nabbed a runner between bases and caught another napping at third.

E. Breckenridge pitched the whole game for the winners, fanning four and walking two. She was no mystery to the C.G.E. batters, who pounded her for eighteen safeties, four of these being safe bunts by Annette DeCarlo. Sanderson, husky fielder, clouted a homer and double, while W. Snowden pasted a double also. DeCarlo was on the mound for the Electrics, and twirled a nice game. She passed one, and was fairly steady throughout, but the opposition bunched their hits in the first and eighth for nine runs.

M. Whittington, centre-fielder for the winners, was leading clouter with three singles and a homer. P. Carl, T. White and R. Wood, all had two bingles apiece, with the last named adding a home run in the fourth. White at third played a bang-up game with M. Wood, the first baseman, was also effective. Marg English in left and Martin in centre were the pick of the C.F.E. fielders, and both hit safely three times. DeCarlo hit four out of six.

The teams:

Bailieboro—M. Wood, 1b; R. Wood, ss; A. Barnard, c; T. White, 3b; D. Dawson, 2b, lf; P. Carl, lf, 2b; E. Breckenridge, p; M. Whittington, cf; B. Barnard, rf; Gainor, rf.

AUBURNS GAIN OVERTIME WIN

Woollens Open Home Season With 6-5 Verdict Over Norwood.

WELL-MATCHED SQUADS.

Pulling out a 6-5 Tri-County Lacrosse League decision in overtime last night, Auburns opened their home season against Norwood before a good crowd of fans at Auburn Field. The count was tied up at 4-all at the end of the three 17-minute periods, but Auburns tallied once to Norwood's once in the extra 10-minute frame to gain the verdict in a fast, even and exciting contest.

The well-matched squads battled hard throughout on the slippery ground with play roughing up at times. The homesters took a 3-1 lead in the first stanza and were still in front 4 to 3 going into the third. Norwood got the lone marker this inning and forced an overtime session. Of the nine penalties handed out, the Woollens were guilty five times. At fist fight between King and Baker in the third enlivened things.

Good Network

Both goalies were on their toes and blocked some redhot thrusts. Rogers had more close-in stabs to handle and looked good. The rival defences checked hard and covered well while all the forwards worked their heads off, Norwood especially as they had but three substitutes. For the visitors, McConnell, Baker and K. Puffer were outstanding; while for Auburns, Dundas, Miller, King and Dallin were most effective.

Early in the first canto, Dundas took Dallin's pass in close to fool Rogers. Ellis was gated for charging and McConnell tallied on K. Puffer's assist. Baker went off for boarding later and Auburns pressed. They notched two quick ones, Miller aided by Dundas on one and Dundas alone on the other, all in close. Baker took E. Godin's pass to score right after the second opened and Baker tied the count with one on an assist by G. Puffer. Dallin and G. Rathwell went off for mixing it, followed shortly by Ellis for boarding. Munden scored for the A's on Reynold's pass, and Baker and Miller were chased for roughing it up as the frame closed.

Norwood Scores in Third

K. Puffer started the third with a neat goal, assisted by Baker. Later, King and Baker slashed each other, swung fists and grappled on the ground before being pried apart jugged. Jackson got one but it was in the crease and they went into overtime. Heard got the air for slashing and King scored in close on Miller's forward pass. Miller handed Jackson one right away and he tallied, but McConnell got one back in a scramble before the finish.

The teams:

Norwood: Goal, Rogers; defence, G. Rathwell and W. Rathwell; centre, K. Puffer; rover, Baker; wings, C. Puffer and McConnell; alternates, H. Godin, E. Godin and G. Puffer.

Auburns: Goal, Meyette; defence, Miller and Reynolds; centre, Dallin; rover, Dundas; wings, Heard and Jackson; alternates, O'Keefe, King, Ellis, Hunt, Vinette and Munden.

Referees—R. Innes and W. Lebarr.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

They's been a jinx following our ball team around, Mac, and since my last we dropped 2 games in a row, losing to Oshawa 8 to 1 last Sat., and getting a kick in the trousers of them new ball unies at Kingston Wed., the Ponies winning 9 to 4. Mister Lee ain't been able to put a full team out there as yet, and meanwhile the enemy has been cashing in. However, they ain't no use selling the Petes short; they got what it takes, and when the casualty list clears up they'll be in there shooting all the time.

The Wed. game went sour, Mac, because our Mister Scriver weakened. At that the Spook had a out, for he worked all night before the game, and that 135-mile hop to Kingston ain't no preparation for a tough game. The best thing about that battle, Mac, was the Petes got a look at this much-touted Mister Bud Clancy, the St. Lawrence Valley's gift to the Ponies, and he didn't look so hot, the boys nicking him for 8 hits, while he walked 3 and plugged 3 more, which ain't exactly de luxe pitching, folks. According to advance notices, Mister Clancy was going to burn up the league, but he'll hafta show more stuff than he trotted out there Wed. before he's crowned ace hurler of the loop. It's a long schedule, and we'd say they's a few bumps ahead of this U. S. heaver.

The serious with Oshawa was like a real old-time party and then a headache, the Petes trimming the Brewers from the Motor Town 10 to 4 here on the holiday and then going back to Oshawa the next day and staging a stratosphere flight, the Oshawans grabbing off a 8 to 1 win. The opening here Victoria Day was all the hardest ball fan could desire, for the Petes done some timely clouting and snappy fielding, and our old college chum, Mister Spock Scriver, tossed in a lotta baffling stuff, with the result the home talent win easier than the 5 Dionnes make the front page. The Lee gang looked as promising as a dollar chain letter, and a big crowd come back from the ball orchard telling theirselfs the 1935 Petes was a wow.

It's lucky they didn't see them next day, for somehow or other the Petes couldn't do nothing right at Oshawa. Their fielding was more open than this year's bathing suits, and while they did manage to slap 9 hits off the antiquated delivery of Mister Lefty Wills, he whiffed 12 of them and stopped them cold in the clutches. Mister Foley done his best to get the attack going by crashing out 4 hits, but the resta the gang just wouldn't follow his example. To me the consoling part of that weird game was the hurling of our Mister Art Lepper, a southpaw heaver. 4 innings in a row Mister Lepper pitched himself outa a deep hole with the bases jammed or nearly so, and that, neighbors, is pitching, even if the strain did tell on him finally. It ain't reasonable to expect no tosser to go on all day whiffing batters with the sacks all groaning under the weight of base-runners, but Mister Lepper showed enough to convince me that he oughta win a flock of games before the snow flies, if he can get any help from the resta the lads.

I ain't got much more to take up with the customers this week, Mac, so you might as well take it away.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

FRANK LEAL IS RE-ELECTED

Deloro Amateur Athletic Association Holds Annual Meeting.

RECEIPTS $662 14.

MARMORA, June 1.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—Activities of the past year were reviewed and officers for the ensuing year were duly elected at the annual meeting of Deloro Amateur Athletic Association, held in Deloro Hall on Friday evening under presidency of Frank Leal.

The attendance of members was slightly lower than in past years, but there was no lack of enthusiasm. President Leal, in giving his report, touched briefly on the achievements of the various branches of sport fostered by the Association. J. McCrodan, secretary-treasurer, in a well compiled report, showed total receipts for the year as $662.14 with expenditures amounting to $679.11, leaving a deficit of $16.97. A slight balance on the baseball finances was shown to be offset by small deficits in the other departments—football, tennis, bowling and skating. Managers for the past year then reported for their departments in the following order:

July 1st Celebration — H. R. Haacke.
Baseball—W. Simmons.
Tennis—M. J. Corrigan.
Bowling—D. Robertson.
Football—G. Brooks, for J. Hart.
Rink—F. Leal.

There will be no league football or baseball at Deloro this year.

The election of officers was then carried out with the following result;

President—F. Leal.
Vice-President—W. Simmons.
Secretary-treasurer—J. McCrodan.
Managers—
Baseball—T. Cousins.
Tennis—M. J. Corrigan.
Bowling—D. Robertson.
Rink—G. Brooks.
Auditor—C. R. Quinn.

With the exception of the positions now filled by T. Cousins and G. Brooks, the filling of the offices constituted a re-election.

In appointing T. Cousins as baseball manager, it was felt that some of the juveniles of the village might be trained as good material for a junior team at a later date.

Before the meeting adjourned a motion was carried that the president confer with the past presidents as to the possibility of continuing the Dominion Day celebration that has been an outstanding annual event at Deloro for several years.

The list of honorary presidents and past presidents follows:

Honorary presidents — M. J. O'Brien, Dr. S. T. Kirkpatrick, T. B. Wright.

Past presidents—R. A. Elliott, F. A. Bapty, F. Paquet, C. H. Buskard, A. V. Yates, H. A. McNally, W. Regan, R. D. Murray and H. R. Haacke.

LEAFS DROP TO 5TH PLACE

Fifth-inning Rally Wins For Buffalo at Rochester.

CHIEFS COP VERDICT.

(By the Associated Press).

Toronto Maple Leafs have taken a sudden nose dive in the International League.

Up until last Sunday they were riding the crest, entrenched in first place and looking as though they meant to stay there. Then things began to happen. They split their Sunday double-header with Montreal, then came back Wednesday to drop another to Buffalo. Five games in a row they lost to find themselves, within the span of two days, from Wednesday to Friday, dropping from first to fifth place.

They still aren't too far behind, as far as percentage points are concerned, but they will have to do some better work with the willow if they want to start climbing again. The records show they have collected but 30 hits in the past five games. In the second game of Sunday's double-header their hit column totalled but two.

Buffalo is now in first place, with Newark, Baltimore and Montreal tied for second. Toronto is three percentage points behind the second place trio.

Fall To Royals.

Toronto got nine hits yesterday, but the Royals shaded them 5-4 in 10 innings. It was the best show of hitting in the Leafs string of five defeats, but the pitching went sour, and four Leaf moundsmen had filed to the hill and back before the game was over.

Buffalo won a slugging match from Rochester knocking Maywood Belcher out of the box with a six-run barrage in the sixth. Ed. Holley, who succeeded Belcher, wasn't treated kindly either, and it wasn't until Lisenbee took over the mound duties that the scoring was stopped. The final score was 11-8.

In a night game, Syracuse nosed out Newark 4-3 for their fourth straight victory and their fourth consecutive win over that team. Joe Mulligan's fast one was finding the corners nicely, and Newark got to him for but five safe blows.

OMEMEE GAINS FIRST VICTORY

While Luckless Fashion Craft Crew Go Down to Third Straight Loss.

FINAL SCORE 13-9.

Omemee finally entered the win column in the standing of the Men's Softball League by handing the luckless Fashion-Craft outfit a 13-9 reverse last night at Central. The villagers who had previously been defeated in all their starts staged a powerful offensive attack throughout the entire evening and finally, after the score see-sawed back and forth, wound up on the long end of the count.

T. Parsons earned himself a nice win by pitching steady ball at all times. He had the Indian sign on a number of his opposition, retiring ten via the strike-out route and issued free transportation to but three, kept eleven hits well scattered and aided by good support gained his first victory of the season. Abbott, for the losers, although beaten, pitched fair sort of ball allowing but three more hits than his opponent. However the bingles against him came in bunches and, with the runways crowded as they were more of the night, this proved disastrous.

Pogue and Rehill supplied the heavy clouting for the O's each receiving credit for three blows and driving in several of the villagers' 13 tallies to aid greatly in the win. Smith for the Craftsmen along with Stanger were the only two who could seem to hit Parsons consistently, the former hammering out three for four and the latter bagging two for a like number of times at the plate.

The fielding, though not spectacular, was better than usual neither team committing an undue amount of errors. The Fashions tried a new catcher in the person of White and although he went well behind the bat was held hitless in four trips to the plate.

The teams:

Fashion-Craft—Smith, 1b; Curry, rf; Montgomery, lf; Playford, cf; Gainey, ss; Stanger, 2b; Abbott, p; White, c; G. Dormer, 3b; W. Calladine and Butcher, pinch-hitters.

Omemee: McQuade, cf; Adams, 1b; Shine, 2b; Pogue, lf; T. Parsons, p; Brooks, c; Rehill, rf; Prince, 3b; F. Parsons, ss.

Score by innings:

Fashion-Craft .	103022001—	9	11 3

Umpires—Weir at the plate, Darling on the bases.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

DAY BY DAY

(By C. J. P.)

A couple of miles north of the Exhibition Grounds—in fact it was at the northend of town—a lot of action took place last night. The occasion was a Tri-County Lacrosse League game in Auburn Field between Norwood and ye Auburns. And ye Auburns won out, 6-5, but they had to work overtime and without pay to do it. It was sewed up tighter than Uncle Jock's money sock at the end of regulation time, 4-4 to be exact. The Weavers then stepped out and got two more to Norwood's one and, lo, a happy throng departed. 'Twas a tidy tussle in the shade of the grey Auburn walls and seems to indicate some tough evenings ahead for Dinty's Inn, Lindsay and Millbrook.

They drew a pretty fair crowd—many lasses included—for the first local game of the season and the baptism of the new box-field. This field has been fixed up fine by the fellows themselves up around Auburn, with boarded sides and screened high on three sides After the rain, the place was somewhat gooey, but when dry and rolled will be the nertz. The game last eve was fast, quite even throughout and showed some smart lacrosse—both sides having a bunch of experienced veterans. It was rough enough at times, too, with pairs being chased three times. Pete King and Baker mixed with fists flying once but they were pulled apart before we had a chance to lay any coin on it.

• • • • • • •

Lacrosse as played by the Norwoodians and Auburns is a man's game—and they're welcome to it! They play a rugged brand and ask or give no quarter. But they dish up considerable scientific play, also. And the poor goalie—he must feel like a wartime spy facing a firing squad at dawn when he lamps half a dozen huskies bearing down on him fast waving their sticks and shooting the ball. Norwood gave 'em a great battle here and in Kemptville the other night. Don't know what will be done yet about that disputed 3-1 tilt. Auburns go to Lindsay Monday and play Dinty's Inn here next Thursday.

• • • • • • •

Omemee came to life last night and knocked off Fashion-Crafts 13-9 in a good men's softball game. 'Twas the O's home game but they staged it at Central and no doubt are very glad they did now. Tommy Parsons hurled a smart game and got good support, with Abbott fair on the other slab. The unlucky Dormer gang can't seem to get untangled lately and we know of three other outfits in the same loop which are chuckling without much restraint over this fact. Well, boys, it will all come out in the wash and washday is just far enough in the future so it's hard to figure who will be in the driver's seat then. How's that for metaphor mixing, eh?

• • • • • • •

And over at the Bowl last evening, Bailieboro gals came to town and yanked out a 15-14 nod over C.G.E. The maidens from down under hit timely, fielded better and ran the bases like frightened rabbits to gain the win, but they had to be good to get it. Some man-sized—or is it lady-sized?—hitting was dished up to a fair crowd of fans, including several homers. Bailieboro look like a strong entry if they get the pitching. They entertain Westclox Monday while Keene meets C.G.E. here Tuesday. Postponed games to be played are Keene at Bailieboro next Wednesday, and Westclox at Keene on June 12th.

We have received a 1935 copy of the O.B.A.A. year-book, just off the press. Constitution and bylaws, outline of the annual meeting, summary of last year's activities and other matter makes it an interesting book. Max Swanston's picture appears in it this year, replacing that of Bill Kay, who resigned from the O.B.A.A. executive. In discussing the various playdowns, Peterborough teams are mentioned in senior, intermediate 'B', juvenile and bantam playdowns. Both Alex Kay and Bill Prindible have been named convenors here this year. And in the list of past officers, the names appear of Ward Patterson—first vice-prexy in 1920—and Jake Solomon—second vice-president in 1923-24. On the two pages of past O.B.A.A. winners, Liftlock City names appear six times.

The Petes' souvenir score-booklet of 24 pages is out now and will be given to fans at all home games. Some will be distributed also in the locals' games on the road. Knotty Lee, who did most of the work on it, made a fine job of it and ball fans will like these souvenirs. Those so inclined may score the game as it goes along as so many do in Big League parks. It's full of ads that are worth reading and contains some interesting facts on baseball in general. For instance, it says one place that Hoike, firstbaseman with the Boston Braves in '20, had 43 putouts and one assist in one game. We doubt if there is a better booklet put out this year in amateur ball in the Province.

• • • • • • •

While the Belleville and Kingston scribe openly gloat over the the Petes' early misfortunes this season, the Oshawa key-pounder isn't making cracks he'll have to take back later. He says: "Kingston Ponies took full advantage of the weakened Peterborough team Wednesday down in the Limestone City and handed Johnson Motors a 9-4 setback, thus sending the Petes, generally judged as the team to beat for the C.O.B.L. honors, down to the cellar the first week of the race. Of course, it is very doubtful whether they will be kept down in the lower regions for long."

• • • • • • •

Grab-bag: Rotary Juniors and the intermediate Petes play an exhibition game in the Exhibition Grounds at six Monday eve and both squads should have full turnouts . . . . Seating accommodations for over 800 fans are assured at the pro rasslin' show in the Armouries Tuesday night . . . . We are in receipt of a season pass for ball games in Napanee this year; much obliged . . . . City Ball Loop should be making arrangements for its schedule shortly . . . . Hood and Cummings play Lillico Motors at six in Central Monday p.m. . . . . Lindsay arena will have the floor ploughed up and rolled soon so the Tri-County League lacrossers will find the footing okay in future . . . . And now we're starting the busiest sports month of the summer locally.

NO SHORTAGE LONG BRANCH

Orpen Interests in Complete Accord With Breeders.

PLANT IMPROVED

Everything is in readiness for the first of the Orpen tracks to inaugurate its spring meeting, the Long Branch seven-day session getting under way on Wednesday, June 5th. Not in years has the outlook for a successful meeting been as bright. If only for the fact that the Orpen's have been in complete accord with the breeders the impending meeting has it on others that have gone before. There will be no shortage of horses, such as existed at the other tracks due to differences with the horsemen, and with plenty of horses assured, large and well-balanced fields can be expected, and that is the most important feature about a race meet.

Seldom a session but what the Orpen's, who also control Dufferin Park in Toronto, Queen's park in London and Kenilworth Park in Windsor, do not make some interesting changes tending to the convenience and comfort of patrons and the impending session is no exception. There will be a new wager for conservative bettors in the form of a combination for place and show for the total of two dollars while the payoff will be computed to the dollar and posted as such.

In the past it has been the custom to post the odds computed to a $2.040 wager and where there was a nickel "break", it could not be taken care of an there was usually dissatisfaction among speculators, and with good reason. Computing of wagers to the dollar and posting of such will do away with all this.

Laying of new walks and arranging for more cashiers' wickets in the ladies' mezzanaine are among the added comforts and conveniences, while there will also be a new restaurant. There are many other improvements of a minor character all tending to help Long Branch live up to its reputation of being the best appointed and most modern race plant in Canada. It was the last one to be built.

The Daily Double will be in vogue and this will be on the second and third races, while there will be the regular dollar two-way and three-way combination, in addition to the new place and show combination.

There is no trouble getting to Long Branch as a street car service takes patrons to within an eight-minute jaunt from the track, at Kipling Avenue and Lake Shore Road. From there a free bus service transports patrons right into the track. Trains also afford the same excellent service and there are also motor buses taking patrons from down town Toronto right into the track and back.

Post time for the first race is 2.30 p.m. daily and the races are run off as expeditiously as possible so as to allow patrons to get back to town in good time. The mutual service is unexcelled, Ed. Vivell, supervisor of the "iron men", having no peer in that respect, and there will be the usual efficient staff of officials on the job.

VETERAN BATSMEN PLAY UP TO FORM

Frank Woolly and Philip Mead Provide Cricket Interest.

LONDON, June 1 (C.P.)—One of the charms of cricket is the interest lovers of the ancient English sport show in its veteran players. The retirement this year of the great Jack Hobbs, outstanding star of post-war years, at the age of 53, resulted in expressions of regret from all parts of the empire. Now the doing of Frank E. Woollev of Kent and Philip Mead of Hampshire, both approaching the half-century mark, are engaging the attention of cricketers.

Although the season is barely a month old both of these great professional batsmen already have centuries to their credit and their play is up to the high standard that has made them idols of the fans in their respective counties.

In the first game of the season the Kent veteran international scored a dazzling 105 and in a subsequent match compiled 74 not out. Woolley, who celebrated his 48th birthday this month, is known as the prince of left-handers. He made his debut for Kent in 1906 and from the following year until last season he has scored more than 1,000 runs each summer. In 1928 his aggregate was 3,352 (12 centuries). He has played for England against Australia on 32 occasions and in the course of his career has scored 134 centuries.

While not so famous as a bowler "F.E." has had marked success in this direction. On eight occasions he has achieved the cricket "double," 1,000 runs and 100 wickets in a season. In 1920 he captured

Mead, another left-hander, is a few months older than Woolley and made his start for the southern county in 1905 when he was 18 years of age. Mead, who compiled 151 not out in a recent game, now has 148 centuries to his credit and from the time of his entry in first class cricket has never failed to score more than 1,000 runs a season. In 1931 he equalled the record of the great Dr. W. G. Grace of 126 centuries and stood alone as the first left-hander to do this until Woolley shared the honor last season.

He appeared for England against Australia in 1921 and his 182 at The Oval still ranks as the highest score ever made by an Englishman in a test match against the Commonwealth in this country. He has twice toured Australia and South Africa.

Both Woolley and Mead have some distance to go to achieve Hobbs' record of 197 centuries at the time of his retirement.

Alluding to Woolley Sir James Barrie once naively said: "He never seems to me to hit the ball, but simply to tell his bat to order it to go away."

Canadian Officer Is Stationed In Quetta

OTTAWA, June 1.—(CP).— National Department officials to-day awaited with some anxiety word from Quetta regarding the safety of Capt. C. Sanford of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals taking a course at the Staff College in the earthquake - stricken Baluchistan capital.

Capt. Sanford is the only Canadian officer stationed in the city, but it was impossible to learn here if Canadian civilians were in the stricken zone.

Grimm Can Still Give Pointers

Manager Charlie Grimm (RIGHT), of Chicago Cubs, may have relinquished his first-basing job to youthful Phil Cavaretta, but the veteran infielder is obviously keeping a weather eye on his successor. Here is Grimm showing 18-year-old Phil the proper position to assume when covering the initial sack. Cavaretta shows promise of becoming one of baseball's sensations. Grimm was a star first-baseman in his heyday.

IRISH SWEEPSTAKE TOTAL IS LOWEST IN FIVE YEARS

New British Anti-Lottery Bill Responsible For Big Decline.

$8,500,000 TOTAL.

(By GEORGE HAMBLETON)
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DUBLIN, June 1. (C. P. Cable).—Another Irish Free State sweepstakes draw began to-day—on next Wednesday's derby—with gross receipts of 1,935,627 pounds (about $8,500,000) and 1,160,900 pounds ($5,636,000) available for prizes.

This is the lowest prize fund for the derby since the Free State hospital sweepstake began operations five years ago. The high mark was reached with the derby of 1932 when about $14,000,000 was available for prizes.

The new British anti-lottery bill was seen responsible for the big drop.

Following the practice instituted with the last draw on the Grand National, officials refused to divulge the identity of Canadian drawers of horses or consolation awards in view of the Canadian laws. Only the ticket numbers and noms-de-plume of the Canadians were announced.

The fund was divided into 11 units of 100,000 pounds each ($486,000). In each unit the drawer of a ticket on the winning horse receives a first prize of $150,000; second $75,000 and third $50,000. Seventy-seven other horses are included in the draw, these being still in the race at second acceptance, although actually there are only 17 horses left in the big race.

Tickets on a horse, regardless of its placing or not, were worth approximately $2,250. Of the balance, there will be 100 consolation prizes of $486 and residual prizes.

Grappler Findlay Is Newcomer Here

Bull Findlay, giant Detroit grappler, has promised not only to continue his winning streak at the Armouries pro wrestling show here Tuesday night but to unmask the Masked Marvel. The latter, weighing, 220 pounds, is a graduate of the Farmer Burns' Wrestling School —which produced such matmen as Frank Gotch, Strangler Lewis, Rudy Dusek, Joe Katchnack, Hans Steinke, etc.—and will not reveal his identity until that mask is pulled off his head. He has a standing cash offer for anyone to take it off, regardless of whether they are wrestlers or not. These two behemoths clash in the main bout Tuesday.

Another heavy pair meet in the semi-final bout. Don Petroff, 211-pound Russian, goes on against the huge St. Kitts' star, Walter Parnall, who scales 228—the heaviest man on the card. Johnny Gyroffy, 205-pound Hungarian, opens the show against Jack Peart of Toronto, tipping the beam at 200 pounds even. All these men are experienced modern grapplers who never fail to put on a hair-raising performance. Matchmaker is Ivan Michailoff with Jack Forbes refereeing. The Rangers' Band will supply music between bouts.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX J. MORRISON

Number 623

Recently I played with Dr. H. N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago Board of Health, and his friend Barnet Hodes. The doctor has been playing for some time and is an enthusiastic golfer. Mr. Hodes has played but few rounds.

We were about half way around when it began to rain. Mr. Hodes picked up his ball to run for the clubhouse. The doctor was playing well and didn't want to quit. We finished the round in the rain.

Mr. Hodes' comments on playing in the rain can't be repeated here. At that it does seem rather silly to continue play in the rain, especially tournament play.

The only other game played under similar conditions is football. The two games aren't very much alike. Golf requires a timing and touch that can't very well be had in a pouring rain. It would be a good move to give out rain checks on the links.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

CHAPTER 40

Yes, Consuelo had informed the two newspaper men that she was to succeed Louise D'Ville as star of the Follies tonight. Was it madness—madness from this dream of hers?

"Congratulations, gypsy!"—shouted the reporters. "Gosh, we've been writing stories about you ever since you got here, but this is the best one yet. In a few short weeks you have done what others have worked years to accomplish. Old Man Luck has surely walked with you, gypsy."

"Old Man Luck—I wonder why you call it that. It is not luck that you dream a dream and that the dream becomes more real than life itself until everything but it is swept away. It is not luck that makes you say this impossible thing is possible—" She caught her breath. This possible thing is possible, she thought, I wonder, oh God, I wonder if this impossible thing is possible!

"Mr. Goldberg will give it out to the other newspapers later," the words almost choked her.

"What about L'Ville?"

There was a moment's hesitation.

"She is going to Europe, to Italy, to somewhere I don't know."

"How come you got the break on this?"

She did not know how to answer them, so instead she smiled vaguely.

One of the men winked at her.

"I saw you with him last night. Fast work, gypsy, fast work." At the alarm on her face, he added: "Needn't worry, I won't write it up and Jo here's a dramatic critic and isn't concerned with such choice bits. Everybody's got to have somebody behind her to get along in this racket, so don't you worry, just thank your bones that you've picked on one of the big boys that can get you some place, and not one of the little fry with a lot of empty promises. At that, Dalstrom was one of the first men on the job and he's one of Blackmire's men, so we might have tied it up before if we'd used our heads. Good work. Keep it up and you'll be the biggest hit Broadway ever had. They'll pack the house tonight with this out in the afternoon papers."

"'Gypsy girl takes L'Ville's place.' New sensation! Call it what you like, it's luck!"

"Come along, Jo, let's get this back. Maybe the old man will give us an extra on it, who knows? Good luck, gypsy."

"Thank you."

"Sure, good luck, Consuelo. I'll give you some good writeups on it and add that the gypsy dancer has brains besides being pretty—that looking into the impossible until it becomes possible—that's good copy."

"Knock 'em cold tonight, gypsy!"

They were gone.

The girl sank into a chair. Her body was shaking.

Oh, Lord, she thought, what have I done! Now surely he will not do it! Now surely my big talk is wrong and this impossible thing is still impossible. But then again, he promised. He said sometime, and he cannot blame me if I have made the sometime, now! Oh Lord! Oh Lord!

She began to laugh.

Tonight! Tonight! Ah, how I have waited!

Fear came to her.

You are a fool to think you can get get by with this, Louise has her contract. Maybe he will not buy her off, or, if he will, maybe he cannot. Maybe this is only a silly trick. The papers will give headlines. What a fool I will be if they say at curtain time that it was a mistake and the gypsy will only go on in her two little acts! Oh, no! No! This is life, life itself! Nothing else is worth while. I cannot be wrong. Back in the gypsy camp I could have used a knife or have whispered to Marcu to get rid of this woman for me, but here it is different and so I use this way. What if it fails? What if I am wrong?

No, I cannot be wrong. It is right that I should be star of the Follies. Stewart promised it. It is right that I am the best dancer New York has ever seen. It is true that I have lived all my life just for this moment. Now I cannot fail! Tonight! Clapping. Oh! Oh! Maybe tonight they will throw silver dollars—maybe—maybe.

Ah, now is the marble palace real. Now is my dream come to me. Now! Now!

She closed her eyes and there upon the stage she saw herself and she was dancing in the new costumes that were duplicates of L'Ville's, and she was dancing L'Ville's dances and singing her songs. Then she was dancing her own dance in the improvised gypsy camp with the Spaniards who were less than dogs. Before her was the little honey bear and she went to him and buried her face against his rugged coat and when she looked back the scene had changed and it was no longer this imitation but the real gypsy camp. She cried out with gladness and ran to the wagons and to the tents, but they were empty. She went to the campfire to wait for them but there was only ashes, no glowing coals to stir to life. And she sat down by the dead bonfire and cried because the gypsies had gone away and left her. Then through the tears she remembered that it was not the gypsies who had left but she who had gone away and deserted them.

"Miss, Mr. Parker is here."

Consuelo started up. The camp vanished, but tears were lingering on her eyelashes. She ran to the door and put her arms around Douglas.

"You have not seen me for a long, long time, my friend, and it is good to have you back again."

He held her to him and then pushed her arm's length and looked at her hungrily.

"I feel better already." He followed her into the room and, when he sat down, she perched herself on the arm of his chair. "All right, gypsy, what have you been up to that you call me for a deep and mysterious conference?"

"Nothing—nothing—"

"I suppose you know you're going to have me around again as nursemaid, bodyguard and shock absorber?" He pinched her cheek. "A clever little baby as ever I met. So you have your sweet papa back again and crawling at your feet and Louise bollering up a tree."

"Dougalas—" she was not listening to what he said—"Dougalas—" She ran her fingers through his hair and twisted his ear. "My darling, will you tell me things—"

"Stop tickling and I'll tell you anything—even my past!"

"Dougalas, do you think Stewart likes me now?"

"I heard this morning that you had called him an old turtle hiding under a shell of money, and Bluebeard thought it was the cutest thing he'd heard yet, so it must mean he likes you. But you've got something up your gypsy sleeve, Tell Doug."

"Dougalas, do you think he likes me well enough to give Louise a lot of money and send her away—"

Doug whistled through his teeth.

"Whoa, baby, whoa, back up! Don't run so fast that you forget what you're running for. Just be content for a while and maybe he will later, who knows?"

Her eyes were dreamy.

"Do you think he would be awfully mad at me if—if—"

"Out with it."

"—if suddenly I was to go on in her place?"

"You're way ahead of me, baby. I don't get you at all."

Apparently she dismissed the subject.

"I must be dressed pretty soon. He is coming to take me to lunch and for a long drive this afternoon. We will not get back until dinner time." She bit the top of his ear. "Dougalas, will you stay around Mr. Goldberg's office this afternoon?"

"What for? I'm still in the fog and besides I can't think when you're doing things to my ear."

"You will promise?"

"Anything, where you're concerned."

"Maybe you could take Stewart's place and say what should be said—"

"As clear as mud, but leave it to me to always say what should be said."

"You're a dear. Now will you run along?"

"Righto, and return when you whistle and say things for you when I am supposed to say them."

"You are a darling, my Dougalas. Tonight, tonight—" There were tears in her eyes.

"Tonight, yes tonight! Is this a date with me, young lady, or are you just mooning about something vague and idealistic?"

She did not answer.

"Well, goodby baby. Whatever you've got up your sleeve I wish you luck on it. Above all don't ask for anything less than a town car, Stewart is death on roadsters. And don't fight with him again or I'll be taken off the job and have to sell apples on street corners or take Pekingeses for walks or else find some nice old lady to keep me in socks and stocks and like me for myself alone. So long and good luck!"

Good luck! Good luck! Maybe after all it was only good luck or bad luck.

That many women workers in England receive only $1.85 for a ninety-hour week, has been revealed in a report to the National Conference of Labor Women.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, June 2

Sunday's horoscope portends subtle, perplexing and intriguing conditions, with possible financial difficulties, unless the activities be kept strictly to the social, domestic affectional or mystical realm. In these there may be encouragement and heartening for all anxieties.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which there may be much perplexity and anxiety in workaday affairs.

A child born on this day, because of its sensitive, imaginative and perhaps impractical nature, should be educated for intellectual or artistic vocations.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of interesting and propitious developments. There may be definite business settlements through the friendly intervention of possibly an elderly woman or an old established institution, and this in a surprising or mysterious manner.

By HARRIS-STAPLETON

All Kingston was en fete on the day it had as guests the Princess Louise and her husband, the Marquess of Lorne. Even the "pen" was decorated for the occasion with a "Welcome" arch bearing the Royal coat of arms, and the princess accepted the invitation by paying her first visit to any penal institution.

Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll, is the oldest surviving child of Queen Victoria, and is now in her 88th year. The celebration of King George's jubilee is the third event of the nature she has witnessed, the previous ones having been that of 1887 and her mother's diamond jubilee. The veteran princess is three years older than the Duke of Connaught, her brother.

Being somewhat of a Samson doesn't mean a thing if you can't find a useful outlet for your strength, according to "Frenchy" Labreche. He only weighs around 190 pounds, but he can drag a five-ton truck along with a rope clenched in his teeth and takes it with a smile when anyone swings a sledge on the anvil pictured as he lies on a bed of spikes. He apparently swallows razor blades, bites ten-inch nails, and seems to relish chunks of broken glass.

Labreche is a native of Quebec, last reported at the Long Branch, Ontario, unemployed camp, where his stunts provided much diversion. Someone played a dirty trick on him one day, when he undertook to pull a truck along. When the brakes were put on suddenly Albert lost a front tooth in a hurry. His repertoire includes climbing and balancing a 150-pound wheel on his chin.

Canada's once national game, lacrosse, was played by its Indian originators long years before the white man came. Fred Williams, well-known historian, has found mention of it in a book published in Paris in June, 1632. Sagard's "Voyages au Pays des Hurons" describes the zest with which this tribe entered into a game which may yet do the comeback, its originators think is long overdue.

Fame that came when he turned from "dead thrills to loving ones" has made Jack Miner one of the Dominion's finest advertisements. Past-flying winged messengers have carried his name from coast to coast, from the Gulf of Mexico to Arctic seas.

The man who operates the bird sanctuary at Kingsville, Ontario, enjoyed the tingle of the hunter's thrill in his youth, but declares it can't compare with those he now gets from catching, banding and then releasing the Canada geese that visit him with clock-like regularity and in constantly increasing numbers.

Three wild ducks that he let live, instead of bringing down with a rifle, brought him 700 thrills in seven years. One pair of barn swallows multiplied to 26 nests in the fifth year. And the eleven high-flying geese that first visited him have since brought thousands, Miner having banded more than ten thousand.

FISH and GAME COLUMN

Conducted by The EXAMINER for the Protection of one of Ontario's greatest Resources

The tourist business in this district is beginning to get underway and judged by present indications this season promises to be a banner one. According to information secured at the local Chamber of Commerce office, many inquiries from holiday-minded Americans concerning accommodation facilities offered by the district have been received. Cottages at many of the more popular resorts have been booked far in advance. In fact everything concerned with the tourist business appears most encouraging at this stage.

Anyone with knowledge of the economic affairs of this district can not but be aware of the great value of this tourist business. Tourists as a rule are free spenders and everyone benefits by the tens of thousands of dollars they leave in this district annually.

These facts are related again to sound the warning that if we are to hold this lucrative tourist business, public opinion must be aroused to safeguard our game fish. The tourists in the main come for fishing and successful fishing they must have or they will not return.

Conditions Serious

The marked decline in the bass and maskinonge fishing in our lakes and rivers has become serious and it becomes imperative that some effort be made to improve this situation. The Department of Game and Fisheries must be aroused from its apparent lethargy by an aroused public opinion.

The Department of Game and Fisheries is not a spending department. Year after year it is self-supporting and it usually turns in a handsome surplus. It appears that too much economy has been practised by this department, at least it has failed to properly safeguard our game fish. There has been some effort at restocking, but if our stock of fish is to be maintained we must protect the fish that we have so that they may reproduce.

Field Force Under Staffed

So far as its field force has been concerned this department has never been over-staffed. More full-time game wardens are needed badly if the work of conservation is to be successful.

So far as this district is concerned there is a great lack in the proper number of game wardens. Wardens at Campbellford, Bancroft and Port Hope were discharged last last September and they have not been replaced. Tremendous areas are now under the supervision of single game and fisheries officers and the task of proper surveillance under these conditions is hopeless.

This is but an example of the too rigid economy of the department.

Ex-Magistrate Appointed

Announcement was made this week that John Macartney, former magistrate at Wiarton, has been appointed departmental inspector and special lecturer on game and fish protection. It was explained that Mr. Macartney lost his post as cadi when the magisterial system was re-organized.

The report did not say what the new appointee's experience in fish and game matters is or why he should be selected as a specialist on these important matters. It might be interesting to note that Mr. Macartney comes from Wiarton the home town of the deputy-minister of the department.

Does it seem likely that Mr. Macartney is as well qualified to fill his new position as many veteran members of the department's staff?

Preserve Must Be Marked

If it is to serve the purpose for which it was intended, the Peterborough County Crown Game Preserve should be properly established without further delay. Although this preserve was set aside with a blare of trumpets in 1933 by Order-in-Council its boundaries have never been properly located or marked. If it is not the intention of the department to properly mark and define the preserve's boundaries then the legislation establishing the preserve should be rescinded.

Triplets Arrive

Fin Meeks, enthusiastic naturalist of Armour Road has had an increase in his family of fowl—triplets. Three husky young Canada Geese, or one goose and two ganders. The father of this family takes his responsibilities as a guardian most seriously, according to Fin. He removed a neat section from the seat of his owner's trousers the other day. Mr. Meeks keeps that end ahead when he retreats from his goose pen now.

Fish and Game Picnic

Why not a big community picnic this summer under the auspices of the Fish and Game Associations of the district? Such a get-together might have far-reaching results and it could not help but increase the co-operation of the various groups which are all working to benefit the district. Perhaps the local association could father the picnic.

Many Getting 'em

Pickerel fishing along the Otonabee has come back strongly during the past week. H. B. Rye, reports that many fine pickerel have been hooked about the locks. On his first cast the other evening Provincial Constable Silvester hooked a dandy at the locks, and three casts later brought in a second pickerel.

MASTER FROM MECCA

(By T. E. Lawrence)

As soon as he felt the air growing chill with the coming change, Tafas got up, and two minutes later we were swinging forward again. An hour after and it grew bright, as we climbed a low neck of lava drowned nearly to the top with blown sand. This joined a small flow near the shore to the main Hejaz lava-field, whose western edge ran up upon our right hand, and caused the coast road to lie where it did. The neck was stony, but brief; on each side the blue lava humped itself into low shoulders, from which, so Tafas said, it was possible to see ships sailing on the sea. Pilgrims had built cairns here by the road. Sometimes they were individual piles, of just three stones set up one above the other: sometimes they were common heaps, to which any disposed passer-by might add his stone—not reasonably nor with known motive, but because others did, and perhaps they knew.

Old River Valley

Beyond the ridge the path descended into a broad open place, the Masturah, or plain by which Wadi Puro flowed into the sea. Seaming its surface with innumerable interwoven channels of loose stone, a few inches deep, were the beds of the flood water, on those rare occasions when there was rain in the Tareif and the courses raged like rivers to the sea. The delta here was about six miles wide. Down some part of it water flowed for an hour or two, or even for a day or two, every so many years. Underground there was plenty of moisture, protected by the overlying sand from the sun-heat; and thorn trees and loose scrub profited by it and flourished. Some of the trunks were a foot through: their height might be twenty feet. The trees and bushes stood somewhat apart, in clusters, their lower branches cropped by the hungry camels. So they looked cared for, and had a premeditated air, which felt strange in the wilderness, more especially as the Tehama hitherto had been a sober bareness.

In the early sunlight we lifted our camels to a steady trot across the good going of these shingle-beds among the trees, making for Masturah well, the first stage out from Rabegh on the pilgrim road. There we would water and halt a little. My camel was a delight to me, for I had not been on such an animal before. There were no good camels in Egypt; and those of the Sinai Desert, while hardy and strong, were not taught to pace fair and softly and swiftly, like these rich mounts of the Arabian princes.

Yet her accomplishments were today largely wasted, since they were restored for riders who had the knack and asked for them, and not for me, who expected to be carried, and had no sense of how to ride. It was easy to sit on a camel's back without falling off, but very difficult to understand and get the best out of her so as to go long journeys without fatiguing either rider or beast. Tafas gave me hints as we went: indeed, it was one of the few subjects on which he would speak. His orders to preserve me from contact with the world seemed to have closed even his mouth. A pit, for his dialect interested me.

Quite close to the north bank of the Masturah, we found the well. Beside it were some decayed stone walls which had been a hut, and opposite it some little shelters of branches and palm-leaves, under which a few Beduin were sitting. We did not greet them. Instead, Tafas turned across to the ruinous walls, and dismounted; and I sat in their shade while he and Abdulla watered the animals, and drew a drink for themselves and for me. The well was old, and broad, with good stone steyning, and a strong coping round the top. It was about twenty feet deep; and for the convenience of travellers without ropes, like ourselves, a square chimney had been contrived in the masonry, with foot and hand holds in the corners, so that a man might descend to the water, and fill his goat-skin.

Half Filled by Stones

Idle hands had flung so many stones down the shaft, that half the bottom of the well was choked, and the water not abundant. Abdulla tied his flowing sleeves about his shoulders; tucked his gown under his cartridge belt; and clambered nimbly down and up, bringing each time four or five gallons which he poured for our camels into a stone trough beside the well. They drank about five gallons each, for they had been watered at Rabegh a day back. Then we let them moon about a little, while we sat in peace, breathing the light wind coming off the sea. Abdulla smoked a cigarette as reward for his exertions.

Some Harb came up, driving a large herd of brood camels, and began to water them, having sent one man down the well to fill their large leather bucket, which the others drew up hand over hand with a loud staccato chant.

As we watched them two riders, trotting light and fast on thoroughbred camels, drew towards us from the north. Both were young. One was dressed in rich Cashmere robes and heavy silk embroidered headcloth. The other was plainer, in white cotton, with a red cotton head-dress. They halted beside the well; and the more splendid one slipped gracefully to the ground without kneeling his camel, and threw his halter to his companion, saying, carelessly, "Water them while I go over there and rest." Then he strolled across and sat down under our wall, after glancing at us with affected unconcern. He offered a cigarette, just rolled and licked, saying, "Your presence is from Syria?" I paried politely, suggesting that he was from Mecca, to which he likewise made no direct reply. We spoke a little of the war and of the leanness of the Harb she-camels.

Meanwhile the other rider stood by, vacantly holding the halters, waiting perhaps for the Harb to finish watering their herd before taking his turn. The young lord cried, "What is it, Mustafa? Water them at once." The servant came up to say dismally, "They will not let me." "God's mercy!" shouted his master furiously, as he scrambled to his feet and hit the unfortunate Mustafa three or four sharp blows about the head and shoulders with his riding-stick. "Go and ask them." Mustafa looked hurt, astonished, and angry as though he would hit back, but thought better for it, and ran to the well.

Camels Get Drink

The Harb, shocked in pity made a place for him, and let his two camels drink from their watering-trough. They whispered, "Who is he?" and Mustafa said, "Our Lord's cousin from Mecca." At once they ran and untied a bundle from one of their saddles, and spread from it before the two riding camels fodder of the green leaves and buds of the thorn trees. They were used to gather this by striking the low bushes with a heavy staff, till the broken tips of the branches rained on a cloth stretched over the ground beneath.

The young Sherif watched them contentedly. When his camel had fed, he climbed slowly and without apparent effort up to its neck into the saddle, where he settled himself leisurely, and took an unctuous farewell of us, asking God to requite the Arabs bountifully. They wished him a good journey; and he started southward, while Abdulla brought our camels, and we went off northward. Ten minutes later I heard a chuckle from old Tafas, and saw wrinkles of delight between his grizled beard and moustache.

"What is upon you, Tafas," said I.

"My Lord, you saw those two riders at the well?"

"The Sherif and his servant?"

"Yes; but they were Sherif Ali ibn el Hussein of Modhig, and his cousin, Sherif Mohsin, lords of the Harith, who are blood enemies of the Masruh. They feared they would be delayed or driven off the water if the Arabs knew them. So they pretended to be master and servant from Mecca. Did you see how Mohsin raged when Ali beat him? Ali is a devil. While only eleven years old he escaped from his father's house to his uncle, a robber of pilgrims by trade; and with him he lived by his hands for many month, till his father caught him. He was with our lord Feisal from the first day's battle in Medina, and led the Ateiba in the plains round Aar and Bir Derwish. It was all came-fighting; and Ali would have no man with him who could not do as he did, run beside his camel, and leap with one hand into the saddle, carrying his rifle. The children of Harith are children of battle." For the first time the old man's mouth was full of words.

While he spoke we scoured along the dazzling plain, now nearly bare of trees, and turning slowly softer under foot. At first it had been grey shingle, packed like gravel. Then the sand increased and the stones grew rare, till he could distinguish the colors of the separate flakes, porpyry, green schist, basalt. At last it was nearly pure white sand, under which lay a harder stratum. Such going was like a pile-carpet for our camels running. The particles of sand were clean and polished, and caught the blaze of sun like little diamonds in a reflection so fierce, that after a while I could not endure it. I frowned hard, and pulled the head-cloth forward in a peak over my eyes, and beneath them, too, like a beaver, trying to shut out the heat which rose in glassy waves off the ground, and beat up against my face. Eighty miles in front of us, the huge peak of Rudhwa behind Yenbo was looming and fading in the dazzle of vapor which hid its foot. Quite near in the plain little shapeless hills seemed to block the way. To our right the steep ridge of Beni Ayub, toothed and narrow like a sawblade, fell away on the north into a blue series of smaller hills, soft in character, behind which lofty range after range in a jagged stairway, red now the sun grew low, climbed up to the towering central mass of Jebel Subh with its fantastic granite spires.

A little later wet turned to the right, off the pilgrim road, and took a short cut across gradually rising ground of flat basalt ridges, buried in sand till only their topmost piles showed above the surface.

Put Up For Night

Along this we held our way till sunset, when we came into sight of the hamlet of Bir el Sheikh. In the first dark as the supper fires were lighted we rode down its wide open street and halted. Tafas went into one of the twenty miserable huts, and in a few whispered words and long silences bought flour, of which with water we kneaded a dough cake two inches thick and eight inches across. This he buried in the ashes of brushwood fire, provided for him by a Subh woman who he seemed to know. When the cake was warmed he drew it out of the fire, and clapped it to shake off the dust and then we shared it together, while Abdulla went away to buy himself tobacco.

They told me the place had two stone-lined wells at the bottom of the southward slope, but I felt declined to go and look at them, for the long ride that day had tired my unaccustomed muscles, and the heat of the plain had been painful. My skin was blistered by it, and my eyes ached with the glare of light striking up at a sharp angle from the silver sand, and from the shining pebbles. The last two years I had spent in Cairo, at a desk all day or thinking hard in a little overcrowded office full of distracting noises, with a hundred rushing things to say, but no bodily need except to come and go each day between office and hotel. In consequence the novelty of this change was severe, since time had not been given me gradually to accustom myself to the pestilent beating of the Arabian sun, and the long monotony of camel pacing. There was to be another stage tonight, and a long day tomorrow before Feisal's camp would be reached.

WARDEN CALLS EARLY SESSION

Council of United Counties Meets at Cobourg Next Tuesday Evening.

EXCURSION POSTPONED.

June sessions of the council of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham open at Cobourg Tuesday evening next at 7 o'clock, Warden Percy Stinson of Millbrook has announced.

The council is convening earlier in the month than usual to deal with tenders for the rebuilding of the counties House of Refuge destroyed by fire last December.

"If the council decides to proceed with reconstruction it is necessary that we should make a start as early as possible, as it will take three or four months to complete the work," Warden Stinson told The Examiner today. "I called the council for a night session because some of the minor municipalities set that date for Court of Revision."

The Warden's annual picnic will be held at some later date. "Bringing it on in the middle of the session holds up the work," Warden Stinson said. "We have all the information and tenders for the House of Refuge, and the question of rebuilding will now probably be the most important of the session."

MAN HAS FAILED TO ADJUST SELF TO MACHINE AGE

Objective Should Be to Develop Man Power Says Rev. Dr. R. W. Sockman.

Address At Lunch Meeting.

Held Under Joint Auspices of Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs.

One of the basic reasons for the existing moral and social disturbance the Rev. Ralph W. Sockman, D.D., of New York City, believes is that man has failed to adjust himself to the new machine age which he has evolved.

The Rev. Dr. C. V. McLean, pastor of St. Andrew's United Church, introducing the distinguished guest speaker at a joint luncheon meeting of Kiwanians and Rotarians at Empress Hotel on Friday noon, described Dr. Sockman as providing a link between the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church in Canada (now in session here) and the service clubs, and also as a bond betwen Canada and the United States of America.

Acknowledging what he termed Dr. McLean's "gracious words of introduction," Dr. Sockman remarked upon the fact that he and Dr. McLean had undertaken their theological studies at the same institution of learning.

Custodians of Peace.

Commenting on the remarks as to the bond of union between Canada and th United States, he added further, "I feel sincerely and profoundly that your nation and mine hold the custody of the world's peace."

The speaker dealt with what he termed "our man power problem" in an address that was followed with rapt atatention and interest, and at the conclusion he was tendered a vote of thanks by Ivan T. Lillico, president of the Kiwanis Club, which was ably moved by A. R. Piper.

Rise of Machine Power.

Dr. Sockman traced the remarkable growth and development of machinery and transportation during the past century and stated "we have seen the rise of machine power, while at the same time we have seen a lessening of man power."

He claimed that under the influence of modern scientists, philosophers and psychologists man had come to believe that he was pretty much of a machine himself, and the result had been that moral control had been undermined and weakened.

The world had made so much greater progress in the handling of machinery, the speaker contended, that man had been neglecting his own personal advancement.

Develop Man Power.

"Our first objective should be develop our man power, otherwise we shall run away with ourselves," the speaker said.

Acknowledging the many benefits that the machine age had conferred upon mankind and expressing the opinion that there was no virtue in going back to the old order of things, Dr. Sockman urged there was a great necessity of man's leisure time being properly organized with due regard to man's moral and social development.

New Independence.

Another effect of the machine age, the speaker thought, was that it had increased man's independence, and had also increased man's interdependence. "We want freedom, but the difficulty is that we do not know how to handle our independence to safeguard our interdependence," he said.

He was of the firm opinion that there was no social regulation that could ever be devised that would substitute for individual sportsmanlike play. "We must handle our new-found independence with a sincere regard for our interdependence one upon the other," he urged.

Moral Fibre Sound.

In conclusion Dr. Sockman said he believed that under all the moral and social awkwardness of the machine age, the moral fibre of the people was still substantially sound. "We are awkward," he said, "because we have so many ideals, but no one quite ready to come forward and do the squad-drill."

There was, he contended, an urgent need for "a local drill ground and personal guidance," and he believed that such a need could wil be filled by such organizations as Rotary and Kiwanis.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY EXAMINER

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet
Or dims the radiant light
No unkind word our lips shall pass
No envy sour the mind;
But each shall seek the common weal—
The good of all mankind.

MILLBROOK

"You may keep a car; you may keep house; you may keep books; you may even keep a boarding-house; and all together will not be so different as to 'keep cool' — in other words, to maintain control of your temper." So began the speaker at an Institute convention, taking up the theme, "Keep your temper."

"Temper, of course, has its place in the economy of human life; and some of its uses might be: to rebuke insolence; to repress arrogance; to make the feeble and gentle strong and courageous in resistance to wrong. I believe a flash of it on an edequate occasion is not to be cried down, for there are so many selfish, calculating, unreasonable persons ready to impose on their fellows, if they were not afraid of 'rousing' them, that temper has its place. But it requires an immense amount of wisdom to keep it in its place.

Unless one is master of himself, surely he can never control others; parents who wish to rule their children with wise discipline; employers who desire proper control over their employees; teachers who would govern well in school; all must first learn to rule their own spirit. To 'blowup" in a passion, even if there is justification for impatience lessens respect from others ,makes it more difficult to reprove wisely at another time, and brings a secret sense of shame over the loss of temper, and the hasty word, or blow, that leaves feelings of unhappiness and weakness to rankle in the heart, and makes it doubly hard to regain the position of authority, and of proper self-regard.

Now to lose the respect of others, is a serious, and often an irreparable, loss; particularly is this true for the mother in the home; when our child has once seen you 'off parade,' in 'undress' of mind and feeling if you will, it will be very hard for you to win back the place you have lost in his or her estimation through loss of temper, especially if the habit becomes chronic.

Temper can be controlled; it may be that 'this kind cometh not out but by prayer and fasting,' if the evil is hereditary as I firmly believe it sometimes is; for it has been so in our own family. I can remember my fright as a child at the rages into which a mere trifle would throw my grandfather; my father was the same; and personally it has been a warfare all my life to 'keep under' the family bad temper.

To smile, and talk, and jest, and keep your temper when the fire will not burn and a meal is needed in a hurry; when the meat is underdone, or the cake falls in spite of all your care; when some member of the family is late for supper and the dish you have prepared must be served at once or be a failure! when you are so tired, hot and bothered it seems you cannot stand another thing, and yet the 'last straw' is laid on; yes, you control yourself in company, so why not for the sake of your own family, and of yourself? But the miracle of keeping sweet under any circumstances is not possible in merely human strength; so comes from outside of ourselves, from the One Who said He would not suffer us to be tempted above that we are able to bear.

Have you noticed that if you talk about the things that fret they multiply in size and temper rises? Possibly silence is desirable when there is danger of losing control; not the silence of sullenness, however, that plans an arrow hiding for the one who caused our trouble, which in the end only wounds ourselves. If ever we are tempted to plan along this line let us hear that voice which says, 'Veangeance is mine.'

When we remember that after all fretfulness is but a drizzling rain that shuts out the sun; and temper a thunder-shower that overcharges the home atmosphere leading to nervousness and irritability of all the inmates culminating in actual harm physically, mentally and spiritually, and that good temper is like a day of sunshine with gentle breeze, opening flowers, and bird song; when the 'trees of the field clap their hands,' would it not be worth while, this very moment, to have established in our minds the conviction that control of temper is greater wealth than millions, and more to be desired than 'taking a city'?

It was never meant that life should be so uniformly bright that we can never be ruffled. But if we give way to temper habitually, or indeed only occasionally, the sky grows dark wherever we are stationed. If a thorn enters your hand, is it not better to draw it out and throw it away, rather than strike at the bush? It was never meant that our tempers should never be tried, but what is wanted is that we should stand the trial; was it not Pope who said woman should be "Mistress of herself, though China fall"?

For the majority of us we need forgiveness as often, at least, as we are called upon to exercise it, and shall we not remember Him whose rights are paramount, yet often denied Him, and Who is 'long-suffering and slow to wrath'?

60th Anniversary Of Their Wedding Celebrated Today

Mr. and Mrs. Lachlan MacKay, Sherbrooke Street, Met and Married in Scotland.

"DARBY AND JOAN."

Difference in Language No Bar to Their Courting.

"To grow old gracefully is an art".

On the verandah of their modest little home at 323 Sherbrooke street, Mr. and Mrs. Lachlan MacKay sit side by side on these pleasant May evenings and converse happily over the little events of the day.

They are like a modern Darby and Joan, these young-old people who will observe quietly on Monday, June 3rd, the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding.

Time has laid a light hand on their heads. "She didn't get very grey", remarks Mr. MacKay proudly, regarding his wife with the affectionate light that shines in his eyes as he looks at this partner of six decades. And, despite the fact that she is in her eighty-sixth year of life, she isn't so very grey, and her hair is plentiful. Her kindly, placid blue eyes are bespectacled, but she does her own housework yet, and does it well, judging by the neatness of her home.

"God Bless You Sir — Long May You Live" Shout Great Throng.

By BURDETTE T. JOHNS (A. P. Staff Writer)

LONDON, Eng., June 3. (A.P.)—His Majesty, astride a gentle bay horse, rode to-day with his four sons at the head of a column of crack cavalry and foot soldiers in the ancient ceremony of trooping the colors as a mark of his completion of the Biblical span of three score years and ten.

His Majesty wore the scarlet and gold uniform of Colonel-in-Chief of the Irish Guard. He saluted right and left with a white gloved hand as he rode from Buckingham Palace to the horse-guards' parade and back again.

From all sides came from the crowds cries of "God bless you Sir-" "Many happy returns!" "Long may you live!"

The Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Duke of Gloucester, and the Duke of Kent, like their father, wore military uniforms and the blue ribbon of the Order of the Garter. It was the first time all four sons had participated with their father in such a ceremony.

Also accompanying the Monarch were two Indian Princes, honorary-aides-de-camps, dressed in luxurious silk robes, the King's four Indian orderlies, and the military attaches of the United States and foreign countries.

SAILOR IS SHOT FLEEING POLICE

St. Pierre Officers Open Fire on Norwegians Suspected as Smugglers.

NEW FRENCH LAW.

ST. PIERRE, Mig. June 3—(C.P. Cable) — A Norwegian sailor was shot in the stomach early today as St. Pierre police tried to halt a fleeing boatload of sailors whom they suspected of carrying liquor away from this French island.

The condition of Paulus Jorgensen, seaman, was serious and hospital authorities feared he would not recover. The 38-year-old man, father of two children, was unconscious. The bullet had penetrated his body to the spine.

He was shot while he and two shipmates were rowing back to the Norwegian steamship Gyda after spending a few hours ashore. Two gendarmes, watching against the illicit export of alcohol from St. Pierre, fired at the dory as it pulled away from a wharf.

The sailors said later they did not know who was shooting at their boat. The shots only spurred them on toward the ship, until Jorgensen, second officer on the Gyra, was dropped.

An official inquiry into the shooting opened today at the courthouse here. Ernest Folquet, Norwegian vice-consul, was present at the hearing.

The incident was the outcome of the passage of a new liquor law in St. Pierre under which no alcoholic liquors may be shipped from the island. The French government passed the law at the request of the United States to stop smuggling from the island, one-time centre of rum-running in the North Atlantic.

Just Playing

NEW YORK, June 3 (CP)—Two patrolmen halted a group of children in their play Sunday —tossing hand grenades at one another.

The children said they found the grenades in an excavation. The grenades lacked percussion caps and the end vents were plugged with corks, but the patrolmen gathered them up carefully and took them to headquarters for an expert of the Bureau of Combustibles to determine if they contain explosives.

THOS. M. HUNTER FORMER WARDEN DIES SUDDENLY

Apoplexy Fatal to Prominent North Monaghan Farmer Saturday.

ONLY FEW HOURS ILL.

Stricken Saturday Night After Working During the Afternoon.

Death came suddenly at daybreak Sunday morning to Thomas M. Hunter, an ex-warden of Peterborough county, after a few hours' illness at the home of his brother, Albert Hunter, in North Monaghan.

Always an active and industrious man he had done some work about the farm on Saturday, preferring to come to town early this week when business usually moved at a slower pace. Mr. Hunter appeared to be in normal health throughout the day, but Saturday night he was stricken with apoplexy, and, failing to rally in the hands of his physician, passed away about 4 o'clock Sunday morning.

Mr. Hunter was born in Cavan township 73 years ago, a son of Anthony Hunter who acquired the Thompson farm in North Monaghan, near the old town hall, forty years ago. When the head of the family died, this property, known as Elmdale Farm, was bequeathed to the deceased, Thomas M. Hunter. Sixteen years ago he disposed of it, and, virtually retiring from farm management went to live with his brother Albert, a short distance to the south of the old homestead.

Residing in the precincts of the town hall during the years when it was the centre and the seat of the municipal affairs of North Monaghan, "Tom" Hunter soon became interested in the administration of 12 MILE FRONT.

(By Canadian Press)

Rain is badly needed in Ontario's northland to-day where dozens of bush fires are threatening communities and destroying thousands of dollars worth of timber.

Assisted by transport plane from Sault Ste. Marie, 500 men are battling fires in the North Bay area where the most serious outbreak is reported. Fanned by a stiff wind, the fire is moving across a 12 mile front.

A large fire is reported burning some distance southwest of Haileybury.

At Kirkland Lake, where residents spent all day Sunday battling a fire which threatened to wipe out the south-western section of the town, fire fighting equipment was held in readiness to combat a further outbreak.

Controlled fires are also burning at Iroquois Falls, Sudbury, Cochrane and Sault Ste. Marie.

Nine Canadians Become Knights

E. W. Beatty, Charles G. D. Roberts, Maj. Gen. MacBrien Given Knighthoods.

30 WOMEN RECOGNIZED.

Dr. Dafoe is Among O.B.E.'s Awards Bring Total Since 1934 to 206.

LONDON, June 3.—(CP)—The King's birthday brought to Canada this year a longer list of honors and awards than has appeared since restoration of titles in 1934.

Today nine Canadians found His Majesty conferred knighthoods upon them, while one already enjoying that title was promoted. The imposing list of today's honors and awards brought the number of knighthoods created among Canadians since titles were restored in Canada up to 27.

In addition to knighthoods, 97 other honors and awards were included in the list. Numerically it is greater than all three former lists issued including that of New Year's 1934, the first after titles returned to Canada. It is conspicuous for the fact that arts and letters are recognised repeatedly not only in the lesser awards, but in knighthoods.

Another feature of the list this year is that women figure prominently. Out of the total 107 awards, 30 have been conferred upon wom-

$750,000 Fire Sweeps Two Railway Docks

ERIE, Pa., June 3 (C.P.).—A raging fire which firemen said may have been of incendiary origin, destroyed two big Pennsylvania railroad docks and almost 90 loaded box cars at a loss estimated by railroad officials at between $750,000 and $1,000,000.

All equipment and tracks adjacent to the loading docks also were lost, but after a four-hour fight last night were able to save cargoes of nearby docks.

One man was arrested and an investigation as to how the blaze started got underway.

Bass Eats Bird

BELLEVILLE, Ont., June 3 (CP)—"If I hadn't seen it with my own eyes I wouldn't have believed it," said George Boucher, angler. Boucher, fishing in the Bay of Quinte, saw a small swallow half under the water, beating one wing furiously. Released briefly it struggled to rise, but again was seized and drawn down.

"Must have been a black bass. I've heard of them doing that before," Boucher added.

Work of Experts Police Chief Claims—Done Saturday or Sunday.

TORONTO, June 3 (C.P.).—Robbery of the North York Township offices of $4,000 in cash and $60,000 in non-negotiable cheques was reported to police to-day. The robbery apparently was carried out on Saturday or Sunday.

The robbers hacked their way through a 14-inch brick wall which formed the sides of the vault.

The stolen cheques were made payable to North York Township, and represented tax collections. They were endorsed by Treasury Department officials.

The robbery was discovered by Ernest Marrett, caretaker, when entering the building to-day.

Office Closed for Holiday.

Officials pointed out the theft might not have been discovered for another 24 hours if the caretaker had not visited the building to-day, as the office, which is in suburban Willowdale, is closed to-day in honor of the King's Birthday.

Chief of Police Roy Riseborough said the robbery appeared to be the work of experts.

Six Mid-West States Flood Toll Now 128

OXFORD, Neb., June 3. (AP).—Harassed by fears of new floods, the western great plains area today counted its dead from raging waters of the past week at 128, fixed its property damage in six states at more than $12,000,000 and plunged into the work of reconstruction.

South Central Nebraska was the hardest hit. Stricken simultaneously by the twin disasters of tornado and the Republican. River leaping out of its banks over a 200-mile area, its dead numbered 86. Today it watched with apprehension as the north and south Platte rivers swept toward a junction in the western part of the state.

Colorado had 10 known dead, Wyoming 7, Texas 5, Kansas 9 and Missouri 2.

Ontario turned out in full force to enjoy one of the first summer-like week-ends yesterday, a week-end that was to pile up a grim toll of dead and injured.

Automobile accidents, fishing and swimming accidents, and in other ways, claimed the lives of 10 persons, sent several score to hospital, some seriously hurt, and inflictied minor injuries on many others.

Automobile accidents were responsible for four of the deaths, and four more met death in the water.

Near Paris Edna Thompson, 17, and Edwin Duncan, 22, both of Ingersoll, were killed when their car plunged off the road. Scott Rutherford, 19, went to hospital with injuries not thought to be serious.

At Lambeth John Parr, 14, was killed and Wallace Nash seriously injured when the automobile Nash was driving crashed into a Hydro pole.

Wilma Kelusky, six, died of injuries received when struck by a car driven by S. F. Dewaney, Toronto, while crossing a highway. A fracture at the base of the skull and two fractured legs proved fatal.

Walter Numeroski, 19, was drowned while swimming near Brantford. Two youths tried desperately to save him, but in vain.

Bert Noble, 40, was drowned when a boat from which he was fishing capsized in Brewster's Lake, near Creemore.

Leonard Wilkes, Belleville, tumbled into the Trent River while fishing from a dam, and was drowned.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, June 3.— July wheat, the lone future on the Winnipeg board, slipped to lower levels on Saturday in sympathy with foreign markets, and at the close was down ¾c at 82½c.

Chicago and Liverpool both were weak, and though Winnipeg looked like following them in the early trading, signs of recovery appeared in the last hour, and a fair rally was made from the bottom level.

Continental and seaboard houses were fair buyers, and probably took 500,000 bushels out of the pit, but a good part of this was covering of old sales.

Trading in the various grades of cash wheat was slow. Cash sales of coarse grains were small and made up of barley and oats for export. Pit trade in coarse grains was active at the start, but very dull in late trading. All prices slipped to lower levels with wheat and outside markets. Flax crashed the whole limit of 5 cents, but reacted a little.

The butter market ended the week at 21½c per pound for carlots or less of No. 1, compared with 20¾c to 21c per pound on the preceding Saturday. Small lots to retailers were quoted at an advance of ⅛ cent, at 22½c for solids and 23½c for prints. Receipts were 18,239 boxes, compared with 13,161 a week ago.

Cheese closed the week ¼ cent higher at 10c to 10½c for No. 1 current Ontarios. Arrivals totalled 10,096 boxes, against 4,974 the previous week.

Eggs were steady to slightly higher, graded Ontario eggs, including cases, closed at 19½c a dozen for A-large, 17½c to 18c for A-medium, 17c to 17½c for B, and 16½c for C. Carlots of Western eggs were offered at 20c a dozen for A-large, 18½c to 19c for A-medium, 18c for B and 16½-17c for C. Receipts totalled 9,440 cases, compared with 10,675 for the preceding week.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Shaken by nervousness over President Roosevelt's suggestion that wheat might possibly fall to 36 cts. a bushel, all grain reeled downward Saturday, wheat 3¾ cents.

Low price records for the season were broken not only in wheat, but also in corn, oats and rye. Substantial rallies from the day's bottom quotations took place in the late dealings, however, largely as a result of buying on the part of previous sellers who were in a position to collect profits.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1 cent to 1⅛ cents under Friday's finish; July, 82⅝-8s cents; corn, unchanged to 1 cent higher; July, 78⅜-⅞ cents; oats, ⅜-½ cent up, and provisions unchanged to 25 cents lower.

Giving added momentum to the tumble of Chicago wheat prices on Saturday was weakness of the Liverpool wheat market and of sterling exchange rates. Numerous stop-loss selling orders were forced into execution by the rapid descent of values here as soon as trading began. Favorable weather and crop reports contributed to bearish sentiment.

KANSAS LANDS DISAPPEARING BENEATH FLOOD

200-mile Area in Nebraska Devastated to Extent of $12,000,000.

1,000 FAMILIES HOMELESS.

By Willis Young

(Associated Press Staff Writer).

OXFORD, Neb., June 3 (A.P.).—While the raging torrents of the Republican river swept onward into Kansas, leaving behind nearly 100 dead and thousands homeless, new flood worries assailed Western Nebraska to-day as the North and South Platte rivers plunged toward a fearson junction.

In its wake the onslaught of water left beside its toll of human life, a devastated 200-mile area in which property damage was estimated to exceed $12,000,000.

J. M. Power of St. Louis, directing Red Cross work, said, "It will be at least a week before the full number of dead and injured is known." Power said an incomplete but official survey by Red Cross chapters showed at least 1,000 families homeless.

Reports of heavy livestock casualties were uniform throughout the valley.

The only property damage estimate, made by R. R. Hartford, engineer, before the torrent completed its race through Nebraska and entered Kansas, was more than $12,000,000.

State Representative Charles R. Herrick of Curtis said tornado and flood damage in Frontier County alone would reach $1,000,000.

Reconstruction efforts included disease prevention, power and communications restoration and rebuilding of water supplies.

MANY HONORED ACROSS EMPIRE; SIX NEW BARONS

King's Awards Made to Figures Famous in Artistic, Literary, Scientific World.

46 KNIGHTS.

Order of Merit Conferred on John Masefield—No Peerages in Cabinet.

LONDON, June 3 (C.P. Cable).—Tokens of royal favor, honors of varying degrees were awarded by the King to-day to many of his subjects throughout the Empire who have attained distinction in different fields.

Conferred upon the occasion of the Kings birthday and the Silver Jubilee, the awards went to famous figures in the artistic, literary and scientific worlds. Honored with them were persons who had rendered valuable service in business, government and kindred spheres.

The awards were made "on the occasion of His Majesty's birthday and in commemoration of the completion of the 25th year of His Majesty's reign," it was announced.

Those conferred in the United Kingdom gave three persons the order of merit, made one a Viscount, created three new Privy Councillors, six new Barons and 46 new knighthoods.

Included in the honors awarded elsewhere in the Empire were five knighthoods for Australians and one for a New Zealander.

To Canada went nine knighthoods and one promotion to a higher rank of knighthood.

No Cabinet Peerages.

The new peerages did not include any members of the British Cabinet and failed to provide any clues as the nature of the Cabinet shuffle which is expected to take place this month.

The order of merit was conferred upon John Masefield, poet laureate, in recognition of his eminent position in the world of literature; Dr. Ralph Vughan Williams, in recognition of his valuable contribution to British music, and upon Sir Frederick Gowland Hopkins for his contribution in the field of chemistry, notably in the discovery of vitamins.

The order of merit, which is restricted to 24 members, may be conferred upon "such persons, being subjects of our Crown, as may have rendered exceptionally meritorious service in our navy and our army, or who may have rendered exceptionally meritorious service towards the advancement of art, literature and science," it is provided in the statutes of the Order.

U.S. LAW NETS BEGIN CLOSING ON KIDNAP GANG

Davis, Suspect in $200,000 Weerhaeuser "Snatch," Reported in Custody.

LAD GIVES DETAILS.

Descriptions Fail to Tally With Those of Karpis Believed Brains of Plot.

(Copyright, 1935, by The A. P.) TACOMA, Wash., June 3. (A.P.)—Volney Davis, gangster suspect in the $200,000 kidnapping of nine-year-old George Weyerhaeuser, was reported by federal agents to be in custody to-day as the Government's carefully set traps began closing upon the suspected snatchers.

Seized Friday night, the man who Federal operatives here said was the Alvin Karpis gang lieutenant, was hurried from Chicago by airplane last night in custody of a small army of Federal men.

There was no immediate confirmation of reports the 'pane was bound either for St. Paul where Davis is under indictment in the $200,000 ransom kidnapping of Edward G. Bremer or for this city.

A plane believed to be that in which Davis was held was forced down late last night at Medison, Wis., but resumed its flight again early to-day, supposedly in a westerly direction.

Seen in Vicinity

Various persons here have reported they saw Davis in this vicinity about the time George Weyerhaeuser, heir to a timber fortune, was grabbed as he was walking home from school at noon May 24.

The boy, unharmed, was released early Saturday after a member of his family paid the kidnappers the $200,000 in used currency as they demanded.

Wires hummed with descriptions given by the nine-year-old victim of the three masked men who held him prisoner for eight days. He had said they called each other Allen, Harry and Bill.

Autorities immediately associated these names with Alvin Karpis — Allen and Alvin having a similar sound — notorious Montreal-born gang leader and reputed brains of the Bremer kidnapping, and two of his lieutenants, William Weaver, and Harry Campbell.

Authorities pointed out, however, the descriptions as sent out did not tally with those of Karpis, who weighs only about 130 pounds, or Campbell. One description, they said, came close to that of Ed Bentz, former associate of George "Machine Gun" Kelly.

BEET STRIKERS SWELL FORCES

Farmers May Seek Higher Prices to Enable Higher Wages.

POLICE PATROL AREA.

CHATHAM, Ont., June 3.—(CP) —Vast sugar beet lands lay unattended today as the tillers of the fields remained on strike demanding higher wages from their farmer employers.

As picketers cruised from farm to farm over the week-end, urging sugar beet workers to join the strike, the ranks of the Agricultural and Cannery Workers' Union were swelled by 'blockers' who lay down their hoes and joined in a demand for $16 an acre for their labor.

Detachments of Provincial Police moved about the area, ready for any outbreak of disorder.

Members of the Agricultural and Cannery Workers' Union, newly formed organization, negotiated with farmers for an increase of $4 an acre in wages of men employed in 'blocking' the sugar beets. Little progress was made as farm owners insisted they could pay no more unless the price paid by sugar companies for their produce was raised.

At present workers receive $14 an acre for 'blocking' beets. Sugar beet company officials declined to negotiate with the strikers but it was indicated efforts might be made by the farmers themselves for prices which would enable them to pay higher wages.

THREE ORDAINED TO THE MINISTRY AT CONFERNCE

Ordination Service is Conducted by Rev. Dr. Semple of Belleville.

MOST IMPRESSIVE.

"Take thou authority to preach the word of God, and to minister the holy sacraments in the congregation." With these words Rev. Dr. James Semple of Belleville, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church, sent forth three young men to preach the gospel as a solemn ordination service concluded the sessions of the Conference at St. Andrew's Church yesterday morning. A congregation which filled the church to overflowing joined in the service.

The newly-designated ministers were Preston Charles Brown, B.A., of Millbrook, a graduate of Toronto University; Horatio Todd, B.A., of Kingston, a graduate of Queen's University; and Charles Robert Wragg, B.A., B.D., of Newtonville, a graduate of Queen's University. Rev. Brown will take the pulpit of the Calabogie charge in the Renfrew presbytery and Rev. Todd the pulpit in Calvery Church, Kingston. Rev. Wragg will continue as a post graduate student at the Newtonville church in the Oshawa presbytery, assisting Rev. E. L. Beech.

The service commenced with the Doxology and an invocation and praise in song and prayer followed. Rev. James E. Beckel of Napanee, Conference secretary, presented the three candidates to the congregation with the words, "We have inquired of them, and also examined them, and think them to be fit and worthy to exercise this ministry." Dr. Semple voiced the acceptance of the men by the official church with the words, 'I commend these that have been found meet to be Pencils are being sharpened, rush calls for subscription receipt books are being received, rural telephones are humming with activity, supporters everywhere are falling in line, nerves are all atingle and all because The Examiner Travel Club members and their friends realize that the last stages of the Travel Club Contest are here and every ounce of effort is being summoned to carry the fight for the New York-Bermuda Tours to a successful conclusion. In just a matter of a couple of weeks, many of the districts will boast of having supported their candidates in a successful campaign for the free trips.

The announcement of the winners will bring joy to the happy ladies whose names will appear in the Peterborough Examiner as the successful participants. While credit will be due to the ladies who head the list, no small amount of praise should be given to the districts that victoriously bring their candidates through the struggle for the high honors. It is doubtful if ever a campaign aroused such keen interest as the Travel Club. From even far off sections of The Exam-

1,000 DRIVERS LOSE LICENSES

Suspended During First Four Months of Year to Check Accidents.

McQUESTEN ANNOUNCES.

TORONTO, June 3.—Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, revealed on Saturday that approximately 1,000 motor vehicle drivers in the province had had their driving licenses suspended during the first four months of this year, as a result of the drive to check the alarming increase in auto accidents and fatalities for violations of traffic rules.

"Since September, 1930, more than 15,000 suspensions have been imposed and 5,000 of these are still in force," he added. "I cite the figures to show that the threat of loss of driving privileges is no idle

Too Tired at 5 o'clock?

Revitalize your blood stream and the day's work will not weary you so!

When tiredness turns into torture, when it changes gay folks into glum ones and when it won't be shaken off with sleep . . . it is a tiredness which is akin to a disease. Aid to find its cause is the first step to securing a remedy.

To be over-tired is to be under-energized. You get your energy from and through your blood. Then build up the blood and your new supplies of energy will overcome your fatigue. The remedy that will do this is one that was recently tested by a competent authority on 40 run-down men and women. Proof of its restorative value was shown by testing the blood before and after treatment.

Remarkable results in one month

Blood tests are scientific. They can't mislead you. So the competent authority who made the blood tests of the 40 rundown people relied upon tests to show exactly how much progress in health this group of people made.

The treatment he gave was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills (called pink because of their pink sugar coating) . . . two after each meal for about 30 days. At the end of the month each of the 40 people returned for another blood test. Then the microscope told an astonishing story of regained vitality. Thirty-eight of the forty had now much richer blood. There was more iron-nutriment (haemoglobin) in their blood and more red cells (corpuscles) to carry the iron-nutriment. In every case where the count of red blood cells had been below normal at the first blood test, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills increased it. Naturally the patients in all these cases reported that they felt very much benefitted. They had gained vigour and strength. Appetite had become keener, nerves better, digestion improved and they again enjoyed work and play.

Use this tested treatment yourself

When scientific records of 40 people irrefutably show that treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills helped them back to vigour and health, you have abundant evidence that you, too, can expect the same good results. This is not a new remedy. It has been known for over 40 years and was originated by a Canadian physician, a graduate of Edinburgh University. There are thousands of people in many countries who gratefully ascribe their joyous health to the taking of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Haven't you often said that you would give everything to be rid of chronic tiredness? Then here's the treatment, which by actual blood tests has proved it can help you. Start back to health and vigour today. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold at 50c per package. 324

The guests, a goodly quota, were received by Mrs. A. D. McLeish and Miss Elizabeth Walker, superintendent of the Sunday school, which has recently been inaugurated in the district. The tables were laid with dainty covers, silver vases filled with tulips and lilac, and decorations of the rooms were of the same blooms, with apple blossoms and ferns. The piano selections by Mrs. Broadley added to the entertainment of the guests; Mr. A. E. McKeown played violin solos, and Mrs. L. R. Mitchell rendered vocal solos, accompanied by Miss Emma Lou Chenhall. During the period from six to ten o'clock a large number again appeared and enjoyed the refreshments, with music provided by Mr. McKeown, Mrs. Kay, and Mrs. Broadley. The hostess, who wore a becoming French frock of black and white printed crepe, with long skirt, the bodice cut down at the back, received her guests in the drawing-room in front of the piano. Her daughter, Mrs. George Somerville, received with her, and Mrs. Gordon Matthews of Peterborough. The former was pretty in a simple gown of pale pink chiffon, and Mrs. Matthews wore a frock of beige crepe, with large flower design in a deeper shade; the narrow belt had a diamond buckle. The rooms, filled with fine pictures, were gay with flowers in big Chinese vases. In the hall a brilliant bouquet in a black vase centered the carved table. In the dining-room, with its hanging of Venetian red the table was done with yellow tulips and green candles, with Mrs. Victor Sinclair and Mrs. F. H. Green presided. Through the sun-room with its masses of greenery the guests wandered down stone steps to the flagged terrace with its huge blue Italian water-jars, into the big garden with its brilliant flower beds and tall sheltering trees. "Teacher of Teachers"

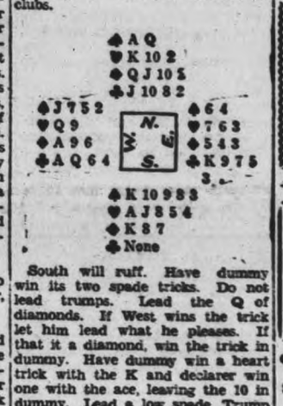
WHAT CAN SOUTH WIN AT HEARTS?

It is more instructive, also more interesting to most players, to study the various possibilities of a difficult hand than to casually read only what happened as bidding and play went. No South player bid higher than 4 hearts on the hand shown. Most South players played the hand at 4 spades. An opening lead of clubs defeated 4 spades, in the only case tried in one session of the eastern tournament. See what can be done at hearts, with an opening lead of the ace of clubs.



South will ruff. Have dummy win its two spade tricks. Do not lead trumps. Lead the Q of diamonds. If West wins the trick let him lead what he pleases. If that it a diamond, win the trick in dummy. Have dummy win a heart trick with the K and declarer win one with the ace, leaving the 10 in dummy. Lead a low spade. Trump with dummy's 10. Lead a diamond. Win with South's K. Pull the last opposing trump. The remainder of South's cards are good, yielding a small slam.

Instead of leading back a diamond, when West gains entry with the ace of that suit, suppose he leads a spade. Have dummy ruff with the 10. Lead the K of trumps, followed by the 2. Win with South's ace. Pull the last opposing trump. Spread the hand for a small slam. The same sort of play will win the small slam in case West leads a trump, after winning his first trick, with the Ace of diamonds.

Having won with the ace of diamonds, the most troublesome return lead by West will be the Q of clubs. South must ruff with dummy's 10, to shut out East. Win with the K of hearts and the ace of hearts. Lead declarer's J of hearts, to pick up East's last trump. Spread the two good diamonds and two good spades for a small slam.

Having tried the various possible return leads which West can make, after he has won his single defensive trick with the ace of diamonds, try having West hold off winning the trick, to see if he can thus gain an advantage. If he holds off only once it will not change results. Have West refuse to win either the first or second lead of diamonds from dummy. Stop leading the suit. Take the K and ace of trumps. Have dummy ruff a spade lead with the 10. Lead a club from dummy and have South ruff. Pick up East's last trump. Lead off the two good spades and good trump. Give the thirteenth trick to West's ace of diamonds.

ROBERTA'S CHAT

A column conducted by a reader of The Examiner for her other reader friends. Address all mail to Roberta in care of The Examiner.

God give us men! A time like this demands,
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and ready hands;
Men whom the lust of office does not kill;
Men who possess opinions, and a will;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who have honor—men who will not die.

—J. G. Holland.

Dear Friends:

How much the world needs men at the present time. A Moses who will lead the people out of the captivity of unemployment, and put them on their feet again. But, if most of us sit back, and let a few run things, how are we ever to get out of the mess we are in?

You can read the different newspapers and very easily get an idea, just who is the best man. Voting Liberal and Conserwative just because your parent did, is the silliest thing I know.

If a man is good, keeps his word, does not make promises he can't keep, pledges himself to certain things, then I vote for him, irrespective of what party he represents. The newspapers have a powerful bearing on an election, and if you trust a reputable newspaper like the one you are now reading, you won't go wrong.

::God give us men," and also give us men and women who will vote intelligently, but if we don't take the trouble to read about it, go out and hear the men, then vote for the best man, we are responsible.

No use to howl about it afterward. It's your country as well as mine, so do your part and elect men who will do their best.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Weather conditions did not favor opening of the championships for intermittent rain during the night and morning were accompanied by a rather stiff cross wind. The course itself was ideal but nevertheless the early finishers were baffled by the ladies' par of 77.

Be Beautiful

By GLADYS GLAD

"Dear Miss Glad: I have very lovely eyes, and am really quite skilled in enhancing their beauty through the use of mascara and eyebrow pencil. My brows, however, cause me much annoyance. They are nicely shaped, but seem extremely unruly. They simply refuse to lie smoothly in their proper alignment, and consequently appear sort of bushy and unkempt. I pluck them always, to keep them neat and shapely, but this fussiness ruins the whole effect. Can you tell me if there is anything that can be done to keep such brows smoothly in line?

"CLAIRE."

As a rule, eyebrow pencil helps somewhat to keep unruly eyebrows smoothly in line. This, however, is not the basic purpose of eyebrow pencil, for this cosmetic was primarily designed merely for darkening and emphasizing the brows. Brushing usually is sufficient to train the eyebrows to lie in their proper alignment. But sometimes extremely stubborn eyebrows may need further training, and plain cornstarch is excellent for this purpose. Before retiring at night mix enough cold water with a small amount of cornstarch to form a thick paste. Then brush the brows into shape and apply the paste over them. Allow this paste, which soon hardens, to remain on all night. The next morning, remove it with tepid water and a soft cloth, and then brush and lubricate the brows with a small brush that has been moistened with plain castor oil or vaseline. This will counteract any drying effects, and promote the health and glossiness of the brows.

Weight Problem Solved

"Dear Miss Glad: I wish to thank you for the aid you have given me in solving my weight problem. I've been following that excellent reducing course outlined in your 'New Figure' booklet, and have already lost 31 pounds. And let me tell you, I certainly feel much younger and healthier without that excess baggage! However, I've a new problem now. You once mentioned a white henna bleach for lightening superfluous hair, and I'd like to try it. I'd be grateful, therefore, if you'd explain the procedure for me.

MARCIA."

The white henna bleach for lightening superfluous hair is the bleach that is used in most beauty shops. To prepare this bleach, mix enough chalk of magnesia (so-called "white henna") with two teaspoons of ordinary household ammonia to form a thick, smooth paste. Spread this paste over the hairy areas, and permit it to dry. When it is thoroughly dry, remove it with tepid water and a soft cloth. It is really only the peroxide and ammonia that do the bleaching. The chalk of magnesia is used merely as a base to insure moisture for a longer period of time.

60TH ANNIVERSARY OF THEIR WEDDING

job in his trade of engine blacksmith, followed for many years in the Old Country, where he worked for so long, (twenty-five years in one place and almost as long in another), and in Canada too, for Mr. MacKay was seventy-five years old when he ceased to do active labor.

He was a Scotch lad in the land o'cakes and she was an auburn-haired lass from Germany, come over the sea to work in the British Isles, when they met. Little did it matter that she could speak no word of English but 'yes' until after they were married, two years from the time he started courting her. For she came "all the way from Germany to Scotland with never a word of the English on her tongue, and only a bit paper in her hand to tell the way she would be going."

Kilted Forbears

Springing from a Highland clan that could trace its lineage back four hundred years to the Orkney Isles, with the skirl of the pipes and the sound of the pibroch always fresh in the ears of the men folk, Lachlan MacKay wooed and won (without benefit of language), the rosy-cheeked German fraulein, Margaretha Diehl, who came from Friedberg, in Hessen, near Frankfort-on-the-Main, and just two miles from the famous watering-place of Bad-Nauheim, where the great ones of the earth assembled for playtime.

When she cares to think about those old days, she remembers the days of the Franco-Prussian conflict in 1870, when she and her sister did volunteer nursing work.

Asked if she remembered much about that time, she said, in her softly guttural tones: "I don't like to think about it It was horrible. War is a dreadful thing. Lying all over the place were the wounded and every empty house was like a hospital".

But she liked Scotland. "Have you ever been there, missy?" they wanted to know. "It's a pity, Ay, it's a bonny place, with the heather and the hills".

They met in Holytown, in Lanarkshire, in the parish of Bothwell, where Mr. MacKay was born, and they were married in Glasgow, sixty years ago, after two years of wordless courting. (But the German fraulein knew how to say 'yes' in English). It was on June 3rd, 1875, when he was twenty-five and she a little older.

They lived in Glasgow for thirty-seven years and there seven children were born, six of whom are still living, with twenty-four grandchildren and four great grandchildren. One daughter, Matilda, (Mrs. Alex Irvin of Sherbrooke street), died five years ago. But her mother, who has never in her life "looked on death", was spared that experience even then, for she was visiting in Toronto at the time.

The other children are Karl MacKay and Mrs. Lachlan Todd, both of whom live in the same terrace on Sherbrooke street occupied by their parents; Mrs. Margaret Thomson of Burnham street, whose husband, Andrew, was a casualty of the Great War; Mrs. Elizabeth Baird of Glasgow; Arthur, of Detroit, and John of Murray street.

Old Scotch Name

Mrs. MacKay, it seems, never cared for the name of Lachlan. ("Just put me down as 'L. A. MacKay'," said her husband to a disobedient scribe). An interesting facet of the conversation with these two old people is the way in which each has unconsciously imbibed some of the little talking mannerisms of the other.

"I can speak no so bad", she explained, in almost a Scotch idiom, as she proudly asserted that she had taught herself, since her marriage, to read and write in the English tongue. And he calls her 'frau' constantly, describing her also as "that wonderful old German wife of mine". In a confidential aside (a slight deafness is the only physical handicap of either of these bright old people) he asserted: "I don't care for the German men, but the German women are awfu' fine".

Another proud boast is: "Neither her nor me has ever had a doctor yet. The Lord has been our doctor, our lawyer and our friend." He has been wonderfully good and kind to us. He has been with us all the way, missy, and He'll be with us to the end".

Fifty-seven years ago, in Glasgow, Mr. and Mrs. MacKay joined the Christian Brethren and here they attend the Gospel Hall meetings.

Their children came out to Canada first and then sent the tickets back for their parents. In the long time spent in Scotland, where Mr. MacKay was "never out of work", they travelled extensively. "And travel shows you just how small you are, missy, when you go to see all those beautiful places and wonderful people". They were on the Continent and in Germany twice, where Mr. MacKay drew much enjoyment from the marvellous music and the public places where people gather to enjoy themselves and listen to great orchestras.

But Mrs. MacKay likes Canada, "almost better than my own land", for the climate suits her well. In Germany she has still two sisters, one a nurse. A letter came this week from Friedberg, to their address in 'Kanada' and they were indignant over the three postmarks which signified in triple fashion that the letter had been censored at its starting-point.

Their Teutonic Majesties

Mr. MacKay comes from a long-lived family and so does his wife. His simple diversions are to make his garden and to fish, but she says she like "a wee bit talk". A well-worn Bible lies on the table in their little sitting-room.

On the sideboard is a Jubilee picture of Their Majesties, the natal day of King George being the anniversary of the wedding of two of his subjects in this land of Canada.

On the wall hang a pair of very beautiful and striking enlarged portraits, done in soft colors, of a fine-looking young man and a beautiful young woman. They are pictures of the last Napoleon, Emperor of the French, and his Empress, the lovely Eugenie. Mrs. MacKay, with a little twinkle in her soft old blue eyes, confided that these pictures that are possessed by a dyed-in-the-wool Scotsman and an expatriated German who, by marriage, is also a loyal subject of the Empire, are there by accident. Passing a sale one day, some of her children paused to look at the pictures, and, mistaking this pair for the German Emperor and his wife, purchased them as a present for their mother's birthday! And so they will celebrate quietly on Monday their diamond wedding anniversary, at the home of their son, on Murray street. Friendly, warm, interested in a chance visitor ("for we don't have many people coming to see us"), they are growing old together.

"Missy, you never know what life will bring you. Wasn't it wonderful, when you think of it, how she came all those hundreds of miles from another country, just to me? Eh, frau?" he says, in his broad Scotch tongue, with the rolling 'Rs'. And she nods a wise old head.

OUR MAIL

To Anne Wilcox,

Dear Anne,—Why could we not have some bird stories? My pantry window has moved me again. A work window facing an orchard with a bush beyond sometimes takes on a joy of its own. This morning a large wood-pecker amused me, he fed himself by hopping over the grass and evidently picking food, for he stopped every few moments and seemed to be getting something for his head was buried in the grass. There is clover so there will soon be bobolinks. Yesterday a tiny bit of brilliance, a humming bird rested for a moment on the fence. In fluttering in the sunshine he was brilliant. While sitting outside quietly a little chirping sparrow perched upon my knee for a few moments. They are such darling little birds. The wee song-sparrows from the top of a spruce tree sings as though his tiny throat would burst.

In do think children should be taught to know the birds and the wonderful good they do. We farmers would soon be out of business were it not for birds. They eat many weeds too, so that over and above their beauty and song they are indispensible. Sometimes one is exasperated. The good man always looks out for nests when ploughing and saves them, and wishes the hired man do so. The other day the man saved a killdeer's nest of eggs and shortly after a crow visited the nest. I notice some of these destructive birds are neither so useful nor so beautiful, nor sing so well as those which are not noted for their destructive inclinations.

You may think I am batty on birds, but the good man will waken me to hear the first robin chirp or oriole whistle. In my childhood home we were taught to notice the birds, and love them.

Best wishes, dear Anne,
Sincerely yours,
"Quid Est."

Dear Quid Est:

I wish I could spend a day or two at your pantry window. You do see the loveliest things from there. It is so nice of you to take time to write and tell us about all the wonders of your surroundings. I am sure your days are very happy even if you art a very busy woman. How free you must feel with the sky and the birds and your appreciation of all that is beautiful. Please write again soon, your letters are an inspiration. I had a lovely letter from "Meta" and it was so nice to hear from her again.

Very sincerely,
Anne Wilcox

HIS MAJESTY'S BIRTHDAY.

On this, the birthday anniversary of His Majesty King George, the best wishes of his subjects throughout the far-flung British Commonwealth of Nations are extended to their beloved head of the British family.

The gratification of the British people over this auspicious occasion is tempered to some degree by the arrival of news that on Saturday His Majesty suffered a chill and was forced to cancel several engagements.

The hope will be general that this may prove to be only a temporary indisposition, and that the King will suffer no ill-effects, but be completely restored to health and vigor so that he may enjoy to the full the balance of the jubilee program.

While Canada has never seen fit to observe His Majesty's birthday as a general holiday, it is so marked in official circles, and at all events the people of this country need no holiday to remind them of the occasion; they are a unit in congratulating King George upon this anniversary and in praying for his speedy recovery, and for many more years of service as the beloved ruler of the British Empire.

THE "EXPERTS FAILED."

In connection with the increase in automobile accidents there are many of those interested in safety work who declare that a stricter examination of applicants for driving licences would be an effective contribution to better traffic conditions.

Some color for this viewpoint is provided by the experience of the British authorities, who have launched a compulsory driving license system, which came into force on Saturday, and in the preparations for which they have made some interesting discoveries.

Many supposedly expert drivers, men who have been driving commercial vehicles for a livelihood, did not wait for the compulsory examination date to arrive, but voluntarily presented themselves for testing, and to the surprise of the authorities, it has been found necessary to turn down many of these so-called experts; in fact, up to a recent date one out of every twelve of these experienced drivers failed to pass the test which is now being applied to every person who wishes to drive a motor car.

Like large numbers of motorists in this country, these bus and taxi drivers prided themselves upon being capable and dependable; in fact, would have been insulted if anyone had ventured to cast the slightest doubt upon their skill and carefulness while at the wheel, and yet the fact remains that when they were tested according to the regulations now in force they were found to be incompetent.

It is to be imagined that a great many people in Canada who call themselves good drivers would also fail if they were submitted to such an examination, and it is this misplaced confidence in their own ability that causes many accidents.

OUR FRUIT IMPORTS.

As an example of our changing food habits, the fact that last year Canada imported $67,872,892 worth of fresh fruits, about six dollars' worth for every man, woman and child in the country, is significant.

Not so long ago importations of fruit from outside countries did not come close to that figure, and especially in the winter time the consumption in Canada was limited in comparison with the present quantity.

Last year's total was ten million dollars more than the previous year, with bananas, oranges, lemons grapes and grapefruit heading the list in that order.

The British Empire supplies us with the bulk of the bananas consumed in Canada, for of 3,232,618 items imported in the last fiscal year 2,820,330 stems came from Empire countries, with Jamaica by far the biggest contributor with over two and a half million stems. Only 236,235 stems came from the United States.

However, Uncle Sam furnished us with most of the 3,744,151 cubic feet of oranges that came in last year, while we also imported oranges from South Africa, Jamaica, Palestine, Australia, Japan, Spain, Italy, and for the first time, from Egypt.

By far the greatest part of the 33,623,930 pounds of grapefruit imported last year was of United States origin, the Empire through Jamaica and British Honduras sending us about two and a half million pounds.

Grapes, too, came from the United States in large quantities, with small shipments from Spain, Australia and Argentina, while of the 380,892 boxes of lemons that were shipped in 200,348 boxes were from the United States, 172,121 from Italy and the rest from Australia and Palestine.

WE'RE HEADING THE PARADE.

Politicians opposed to the present Federal Government continue to tell their audiences that Canada's foreign trade is completely shattered, despite the evidence on all sides that such statements are far from being accurate.

The formula for making this kind of a speech is, of course, simple. All that is necessary is to ignore the world picture, compare the trade figures of the boom years with those of the present time, and there you are.

But from those who are not politicians come a different story; their testimony is that Canada's trade is doing very nicely, and indeed the monthly letter of the Royal Bank of Canada—surely a non-partisan and reliable source—calls attention to the rather remarkable fact that Canadian exports last year made a greater gain in value than those of any other country in the world, except for the British Malay States, the increase in this latter case being accounted for by the very substantial rise in the price of and demand for rubber.

Canadian gains, on the other hand, were general and not desportionately influenced by any special commodity.

In each month but one since May, 1933, the bank statement points out, Canadian exports have exceeded the exports of the corresponding month of the preceding year, and this commutative increase has reached large proportions.

For the fiscal year ending March 31, 1933 Canadian exports totalled $473,799,055, and her imports $306,383,744. These figures had jumped to $659,471,994 and $522,431,153 at the close of the last fiscal year; in other words, there has been a betterment in Canadian trade of over three hundred million dollars in two years.

And, as the bank report says, this improvement in the volume and value of Canadian foreign trade is by no means a world phenomen, for there has been a steady downward trend in world trade outside the British Empire.

In short, Canada, in spite of political speeches to the contrary, has been virtually leading the parade during the past year so far as gains in exports are concerned, while in the matter of imports only British South Africa made greater gains.

IT LOOKS RATHER SEVERE.

Under an amendment to the Weights and Measures Act, now due to be passed at Ottawa, merchants giving their customers short weight will be liable to imprisonment for six months and to fines ranging from $50 to $250.

One is not inclined to make excuses for a merchant who hands over a short-weight package, but it is well to remember that so much as an ounce or half an ounce constitutes "short weight," and that in many stores there are a great many articles weighed and sold in a day and many of them at a time when there is a rush of business. It means that in order to be safe and escape prosecution under the new provisions a merchant would have to guarantee 100 per cent. accuracy in his store.

Insofar as the new amendments make for accuracy and fair-measuring in merchandising one would be inclined to give full approval, but there is always that other condition to be considered, that is the human element in business. We have yet to hear of the individual who never makes a mistake. He does not go about it intentionally; he does not deliberately plan that he will cheat this customer or that one. It is much the same as a worker in a newspaper office. The reporter tries to get all names and addresses correctly written; he tries to guard against error in statements or reports, but mistakes do happen. We do not know of a paper which is entirely free of them. The person who works in a grocery store or in any place of merchandising is in the same class. He cannot always be correct, try as he will.

Without any desire to condone short-weighters, we believe the element of error which has never been entirely eradicated from human beings, should have some consideration in the application of the law as amended. It would be more reasonable to make the law so that a short-weighted sale would have to be replaced by twice the weight paid for.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

MR. ROOSEVELT ON INFLATION.

The case against inflation—against one brand of inflation—has seldom been put more forcefully than President Roosevelt put it in his condemnation before Congress of the veterans' bonus bill.

The proposition of this measure, known officially as the Patman Bonus Bill, is that the United States Treasury print $2,200,000,000 of greenbacks, hand them over to the veterans. Mr. Roosevelt, warning against this "deceptively easy method of payment," and holding that resort to such money would lead to other similar demands, added:

> "The first person injured by skyrocketing prices is the man on the fixed income. Every disabled veteran on pension is on fixed income. This bill favors the able-bodied veteran at the expense of the disabled veteran. . . . Every country that has attempted the form of meeting its obligations which is here provided has suffered disastrous consequences."

Mr. Roosevelt was on the side of history. The story of what happened during the French Revolution, the story of what happened to greenbacks after the American Civil War, the story of what happened in Germany after the Great War—all tell the same thing. Inflation, or the particular brand of inflation which resorts to printing press money, is a catastrophe.

If it could happen, or if it could be managed, that the supply of money could be made more plentiful without a rise in prices, printing press money would have no terrors. But it doesn't work that way. As soon as money is issued without something tangible behind it, without gold or credit, then, inevitably, men lose faith in its integrity, there is a consequent flight from money to things, and prices soar.

This, bad enough in itself, would not be so bad if wages and incomes soared with prices. But they don't. All economic experience shows that, under inflation, wages and incomes are the last things to rise, with the result, of course, that the great army of workers and middle-class salaried people are worse off than before.

The extraordinary thing is that, notwithstanding this well-known economic fact, taught by all history and by all experience, many people still plead for inflation. Thinking of all economics in terms of money, and forgetting altogether that the important thing is money value, or, to put it another way, the integrity of money, they believe that all our troubles would be solved if only more money were printed. Of all the economic heresies, it is the worst, and the most dangerous.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Empire's birthday message to His Majesty King George will be a fervent prayer for his speedy recovery and continued good health.

After all, if the people of the United States want to save the NRA it should not be impossible to find a way to do it.

"Hunger marches" on Toronto and Ottawa are being organized. These demonstrations may appeal to some of the militant leaders, but it is difficult to see where they offer any chance for success.

The formation of a Dominion housing commission is foreshadowed from Ottawa. It is to be hoped that this is the beginning of an energetic campaign to aid the construction industry.

Urban voters must make sure this month of being on the voters' lists if they want to take any art in the federal election.

That summer is, alas, only a fleeting season is evidenced by the fact that the City Council has already arranged for its fuel supply for next winter.

DO YOU PASS BAD CHECKS?

Did a friend ever give you a bad check? . . . I mean intentionally, knowing he had no money in the bank to cover it. Knowing that when you found it out for the cheat that it was, you'd lose your respect for him.

Before that, he'd owed you money. Afterwards you OWED him not even admiration. You had taken his check as seriously as if it really amounted to something, as you had taken HIM. And his check was no better than himself.

He was overdrawn on friendship. ....He had proved himself a coward...He had owed you that money and you needed it. But he didn't have the courage to say: "I haven't got it, Bill, and I can't pay it. I know I promised, but I can't!".... You would have accepted that. You might have gone somewhere and gotten the money. Instead you took his check as though it were cash and used it to pay a bill of your own....But the check came back! And the jig was up!

But such checks as those aren't the only ones....Some of us write others without knowing how bad they are....We persuade people near to us that we are dependable and then we betray that faith. That betrayal is a bad check, too.

We have a "nice personality" and others mistake it for character. But if we don't live up to it, we are giving a bad check.

We bluster and boast and people think, for a while, that we are strong....We have passed a bad check.

We are strict with our children and try to make them think we are always fair with them....They learn that we are not and again we have issued a bad check.

We make bold promises to ourselves, and tell ourselves that we will not fail that fellow within us who expects us to be right and become the sort of person we SHOULD be. But we slip again and again....We give bad checks to ourselves. And we are the brothers of that other weak fellow who did not keep his promise to US!

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

The tomato juice cocktail has been vindicated by medical science.

Those of us who patronize its use think it is delicious and feel that it increases our appetite. And now an article in a German medical publication, by Dr. Geimlich of Berlin, reports an extensive research on the action of tomato juice.

He finds that tomato juice increases the amount of digestive secretion in the stomach very markedly. There is a drug called "histamine" which we have long known will increase the hydrochloric acid in the stomach when given hypodermically. Only in the case of a complete atrophy of the stomach wall does it fail to operate in this way. In fact, it is used in medicine for diagnostic purposes in this fashion.

Tomato juice acts very much like histamine. Dr. Geimlich found that it increased the secretion of hydrochloric acid in the stomach when given hypodermically. It does also when given by mouth (in which incidentally, it differs from histamine).

Hydrochloric acid is formed by the cells of the stomach and is a necessary part of the digestive juices of the stomach. Pepsin, which is the active digestive ferment of the stomach, acts only in the presence of hydrochloric acid. Since hydrochloric acid is much easier to test for than pepsin, we use the percentage of hydrochloric acid present as a measure of the digestive activity of the stomach.

Increase Digestive Power

When we say, therefore, that tomato juice increases the stomach acid, we mean it increases the stomach's power of digestion.

In discussing this report with some of my medical friends, and interesting observation was revealed. There are times when the hydrochloric acid is lowered or absent from the stomach and a form of indigestion results. The regular treatment for this is to give dilute hydrochloric acid by mouth with meals. One physician told me he had been giving it into tomato juice, and that several of his patients had told him that they gave up the hydrochloric acid after a while and just used the tomato juice, as it seemed to work just as well. The explanation for this comes to light in this article to which I refer.

Still another point. Patients with ulcer of the stomach usually are made uncomfortable by tomatoes. We see now it is because the increase of acid irritates the ulcer.

Even if it doesn't do any good, it is a delicious beverage. And the nutritive value of the tomato we have touched on before. It is as good a source of vitamin C as orange juice, and in most places, a cheaper source.

What's in the Name of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

COCHRANE, ONTARIO

In June of this year this hustling city of northern Ontario will celebrate its silver jubilee, incorporation having taken place in 1910, after the townsite had been laid out following the building of the National Transcontinental railway.

The townsite is located around Lake Commando. Up to 1907 this place was known as "The Junction", but the name was changed to Cochrane in honor of Hon. Frank Cochrane, then Ontario minister of lands and forests.

Mr. Cochrane so appreciated the honor that he offered to give $100 to the first baby born in the town. The recipient of the prize was Miss Ida Bellevue.

The town has had a chequered career, having survived two disastrous fires, in 1911 and 1916, while in 1933 a typhoid epidemic left many deaths in its wake.

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

POUNDMAKER'S WISH FULFILLED!

God Save and Bless Our King!—Today he reaches the 70th anniversary of his birth on June 3, 1885, and his millions of subjects throughout the world rejoice that he has been spared as the Father of his people. Guns will fire salutes as the sun marches through the sky all day long but the true celebration will be in the hearts of His Majesty's peoples whose spoken and unspoken birthday wishes will be greater tribute than the boom of all the ceremonial cannon.

One June 3, 1885, Poundmaker and other Indians who had surrendered to General Middleton at Battleford on May 26 were transferred to Fort Otter. The order which follows therefore is an historical document of interest this semi-centennial year.

Battleford, 3rd June, 1885.

Brigade Order

Captain Brown will take charge and be responsible for the undernamed prisoners charged with treason—felony, viz:

Poundmaker, Yellow Mud Blanket, Breaking the Ice, Lean Man, Crooked Leg, Charles Bremner, James Bremner, William Frank, Baptiste Sayers, Harry Sayers.

He will see that they are properly fed and sufficiently exercised for the preservation of health allowed them.

Captain Brown
Commanding detachment of Q.O.R.
Government House.

(sgd) W. D. Otter, Lt.-Col.,
Commanding Battleford Column

Before the rebellion Poundmaker predicted that the would one day live in the old Government House at Battleford. He did, but as a prisoner, not, as captor. Poundmaker was later taken to Regina, there tried and sentenced to a term in Stony Mountain penitentiary, but while there accepted Christianity, was baptised by Archbishop Tache, and within a few years was released on parole and went back to his reserve and was loyal thereafter. He had learned his lesson.

THREE ORDAINED TO THE MINISTRY

ordained to the prayers of the congregation."

The Charge

In part, the charge of Rev. A. J. Wilson of Napanee to the ordinands was: "You have heard, brethren, as well in your private examination as in exhortation which was now made to you, and in the holy lessons taken out of the gospel, and the writings of the Apostles, of what dignity, and of how great importance this office is, whereunto you are called. And now again we exhort you, in the name of our Lord, Jesus Christ, that you have in remembrance, into how high a dignity, and to how weighty an office and charge you are called: that is to say, to be messengers, watchmen and stewards of the Lord; to teach, and to admonish, to feed and provide for the Lord's family; to seek for Christ's sheep that are dispersed abroad, and for His children who are in the midst of this evil world, that they may be saved through Christ forever."

The brief catechism of the ordinands by Dr. Semple and prayers to which the congregation responded followed. Then the laying on of hands was carried out, a number of Conference ministers in addition to Rev. Dr. C. V. McLean, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, acting with Dr. Semple, Rev. Beckel and Rev. Wilson. Dr. Semple's prayer asking that the blessing of Heaven might be granted the newly-ordained ministers of the gospel, concluded the impressive ceremony.

Sentient words of advice were directed to the three men by Rev. Walter E. Bonnelly of Brockville as he preached the sermon of the service. He took for his text the words, "For after that in the wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe."

Much Preaching

Preachers ought to feel flattered, he said, so many of the modern world are seizing upon opportunities to preach. He pointed to preachings contained in the books pouring off the presses by the thousands, in the newspapers, in radio programs and declared that even the movies are mediums of preaching.

"We preachers ought to have a real conviction of our importance as ministers," he declared. He asserted that, at the same time, preachers should be fully conscious of their responsibilities as preachers specially consecrated to the spreading of Christ's gospel.

Salvation has a wider meaning than redemption from the power and consequences of sin, he continued. Many to-day fail to realize they are under sin by reason of the fact that they interpret sin in too narrow a sense. They see as sins only the grosser sins. "We've forgotten many of the things for which men need to be saved," he said. Out of minor sins can come fears, a sense of futility and a sense of confusion, he declared.

Rev. Donnelly commended the present trend toward "disentangling" Christ from the war system. He declared the church must challenge race prejudices and the world's slums. The church must also challenge the "out-of-date Model T economic system" of today, he said.

PATRICK BOYS MAKING GOOD IN OWN RIGHT

Brothers From the Coast Giving Good Account of Themselves.

IN VARIOUS SPORTS

By ELMER DULMAGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Those surprising sons of Lester Patrick, working under the usual handicap that sons of celebrated fathers must work, have advanced to a point where they stand as probably the most unique brother act in Canadian sport. If they are not super-all-round athletes, then that breed must be extinct.

Last winter stories came out of New York to the effect that Murray Patrick, younger son of the "Old Fox" had box-fight aspirations. It was in the middle of the hockey season and the whole Patrick tribe was waist-deep in the sport. But Murray—or "Muzz" — was telling Gotham sports writers how he could box.

Just the other day the husky, 21-year-old youth won the Canadian amateur heavyweight title at Edmonton by knocking out Tommy Osborne of Montreal in the final. Osborne, the best heavy in the east, had been flattening many of the best amateurs in eastern United States during the winter season.

Twice in the first round he brought Murray to his knees. Once he nearly knocked Lester's son out of the ring. Old Lester was at the ringside, too, grimacing as he does when his New York Rangers are taking a thumping in the National League hockey wars.

In the second round Muzz waded into Osborne and smashed him into defeat with a two-fisted attack. He dropped him with a mighty right and when Tommy staggered to his feet this patrick clansman measured the Montrealers and put him away for keeps.

So the Patricks made good again. It will surprise no one if, within a few years, Lester is managing a Ranger team on which his two sons, Lynn and Muzz, are players. Hockey is the Patrick business and favorite sport and Lynn has already made the grade.

Raised in the temperate climate of Victoria, where the only skating ice is artificial and the only hockey players are imported, there seemed little chance that Lynn and Muzz would ever follow the hockey trail blazed by Lester and his brother Frank, now manager of Boston Bruins.

Shine In Many Fields

They promptly earned national reputations as basketball players. In the spring of 1933 they led Victoria Blue Ribbons to the senior national championship. In 1934 they moved closer to natural ice and in Montreal played both hockey and basketball. The Montreal Nationals basketball team won the eastern title, with the Patricks showing the way, and made a brave stand before succumbing to Vancouver Province in the Canadian final.

Lynn played football that fall, too, making a place on the Wheeler team of the Interprovincial Union. Then he decided he wanted to play professional hockey. He went to the Ranger training camp at Winnipeg in the fall of 1934 to put his father definitely on the spot.

Lester had a host of fine amateurs to choose from and he finally selected Bert Connolly of Moncton Hawks and Lynn. The others were not yet ready for the big league, he decided and these two were. By choosing his own son the crafty Ranger boss put himself on the spot. Lynn shoved him off.

They booed him when he played first in Madison Square Garden. When he found himself there was nothing to it. He established himself as one of the best rookies of the season and wound up New York's high score in the play-offs, playing regularly beside Murray Murdoch and Butch Keeling.

Murray spent the winter playing defence on the Brooklyn Hamilton-Crescent team, rated the strongest amateur outfit in the United States. In view of what these astonishing brothers have already accomplished, it is a foregone conclusion that Muzz will wear Ranger livery pretty soon, too.

RAINS SLOW UP NORTHERN FIRES

Danger to Englehart, Elk Lake and Other Settlements Eases.

HUNDREDS FIGHT MENACE.

(By the Canadian Press).

Hundreds of men in Northern Ontario to-day fought bush fires on several different fronts. None of the fires was out of control, and showers in the Sault Ste. Marie district aided firefighters in subduing flames which raged through pulpwood slashing.

In Kirkland Lake area the situation was in hand. Danger lurked only in the possibility that a strong wind might blow up.

Seven hundred men were engaged yesterday in trying to extinguish the fire in the Matachewan sector, and other places in the North Bay district. A lumber mill at Mulock was destroyed and several barns were burned down. Reports were that a logging camp had been ravaged in the spread of the flames. North-bound traffic was halted. Danger to Englehart, Elk Lake and other settlements in the Matachewan district was lessened to-day.

BANKS COOPERATING

TORONTO, June 3—(CP)—Banks have been doing their best to cooperate at lowest price possible under existing conditions, Frank A. Rolph, president of the Imperial Bank, said today regarding announcement that Ontario would seek to borrow money in the United States or over the counter of the Provincial government's savings banks.

"I doubt very much that Premier Hepburn can get the needed money through the Provincial Savings Banks," said Mr. Rolph. "If he can, let him do it. But if he gets all the funds Ontario needs he will have to obtain an awful lot."

KIDNAP CLUE FAILS

LOS ANGELES, June 3 (AP). Police vigilance was maintained today in Southern California on the possibility some of the George Weyerhaeuser kidnappers may have fled here from the northwest, but what was at first believed to be a clue to the whereabouts of two suspects failed to materialize. A tan sedan abandoned in north Hollywood and similar to a machine in which the Sheriff of Kern county, north of here, said two men were riding who resembled Weyerhaeuser suspects, was found to belong to the employee of an automobile dealer.

NORMANDIE SETS

til between three and 3.30 p.m., E.D.T.

Besides the mythical blue ribbon —won for the fastest time across the ocean—the Normandie set these records:

Beats Record By 3 Hours.

Fastest northern lane crossing, her time from Southampton of 107 hours 33 minutes beat the best mark of the North German Lloyd Bremen, 110 hours 27 minutes, by almost three hours.

Fastest day's run: During 25 hours from noon Saturday to noon yesterday the Normandie covered 748 miles at an average of 29.92,beating the Rex's high mark of 736 miles in a day.

The best hour's speed, until she flashed by the Ambrose Light, was 31.39 knots, highest sustained speed ever achieved by a liner.

The French pride came up to the mouth of the bay in gleaming sunshine. With binoculars passengers crowding the decks could see black rows of automobiles and crowds lining the Brooklyn and Long Island shores to watch the graceful ship glide by.

Flag-bedecked ships, looking almost like toys from the towering height of the Normandie's decks, swarmed about the monster. Whistles, sirens and deep-toned fog horns blared a cacaphony of welcome.

Among the welcoming craft were the official city welcoming boats and coastguard cutters crowded with dignitaries "down the bay" to meet the Normandie.

Glimmering overhead, their droning motors adding to the noisy celebration, airplanes circled, dove and soared away, accompanying the ship from far out

As the ship made the short run from Ambrose Light to her anchorage off Quarantine without perceptibly slackening her speed, many of the smaller vessels that met her in the harbor approach had difficulty keeping abreast.

A FLOATING CITY

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP). — The Normandie, world's largest ship is a veritable steel-and glass encased floating city.

Her weight, 79,280 gross tons, is more than 22,000 in excess of any other passenger ship afloat.

Her length, 1,029 feet, if up-ended, would bring her 17 feet short of the pinnacle of the 77-storey Chrysler building, but would send her prow 175 feet above the 70-storey R.C.A. building in radio city.

She is 22½ feet broader than the United States' aircraft carriers, Lexington and Saratoga.

Her four propellers—each weighing 23 tons—are driven by engines producing 160,000 horse power maximum. Her anchors weigh 17 tons each.

The Normandie can transport 2,170 passegers without crowding and is staffed by a crew of 1,320 men and women.

Some of her novelties: 1,100 telephones, cabins with private terraces, a formal garden, a theatre, a night club, several swimming pools

You will find many thing in the Classified Ads of The Examiner.

Lawrence Rides Through Night in Pitch Darkness

ALWAYS FALLING ASLEEP IN SADDLE BUT WAKEN UP BEFORE HE LOST BALANCE

It Was Long Past Midnight Before Halt Was Called For Rest.

BUT NOT FOR LONG.

(By T. E Laurence).

So I was grateful for the cooking and the marketing which spent one hour, and for the second hour of rest after it which we took by common consent, and sorry when it ended, and we remounted, and rode in pitch darkness up valleys and down valleys, passing in and out of bands of air, which were hot in the confined hollows, but fresh and stirring in the open places. The ground under foot must have been sandy, because the silence of our passage hurt my straining ears, and smooth, for I was always falling asleep in the saddle, to wake a few seconds later suddenly and sickeningly, as I clutched by instinct at the saddle post to recover my balance which had been thrown out by some irregular stride of the animal. It was too dark, and the forms of the country were too neutral, to hold my heavy-lashed, peering eyes. At length we stopped for good, long after midnight; and I was rolled up in my cloak and asleep in a most comfortable little sand-grave before Tafas had done knee-haltering my camel.

Seen On Move Again.

Three hours later we were on the move again, helped now by the last shining of the moon. We marched down Wadi Marel, the night of it dead, hot, silent, and on each side sharp-pointed hills standing up black and white in the exhausted air. There were many trees. Dawn finally came to us as we passed out of the narrows into a broad place, over whose flat floor an uneasy wind span circles, capriciously, in the dust. The day strengthened always, and no showed Bir ibn Hassani just to our right. The trim settlement of absurd little houses, brown and white, holding together for security's sake, looked doll-like and more lonely than the desert, in the immense shadow of the dark precipice of Subh, behind. While we watched it, hoping to see life at its doors, the sun was rushing up, and the fretted cliffs, those thousands of feet above our heads, became outlined in hard refracted shafts of white light against a sky still sallow with the transient dawn.

We rode on across the great valley. A camel-rider, garrulous and old, came out from the houses and jogged over to join us. He named himself Khallam, too friendly-like. His salutation came after a pause in a trite stream of chat; and when it was returned he tried to force us into conversation. However, Tafas grudged his company, and gave him short answers. Khallaf persisted, and finally, to improve his footing, bent down and burrowed in his saddle pouch till he found a small covered pot of enamelled iron, containing a literal portion of the staple of travel in the Hejaz. This was the unleavened dough cake of yesterday, out crumbled between the fingers while still warm, and moistened with liquid butter till its particles would fall apart only reluctantly. It was then sweetened for eating with ground sugar and scooped up like damp sawdust in pressed pellets with the fingers.

I ate a little, on this my first attempt, while Tafas and Abdulla played at it vigorously; so for his bounty Khallaf went half-hungry; deservedly, for it was thought effeminate by the Arabs to carry a provision of food for a little journey of one hundred miles. We were now fellows, and the chat began again while Khallaf told us about the last fighting, and a reverse Feisal had had the day before. It seemed he had been beaten out of the head of Wadi Safra, and was now at Hamra, only a little way in front of us; or at least Khalluf thought he was there; we might learn for sure in the next village on our road. The fighting had not been severe; but the few casualties were all among the tribesmen of Tafas and Khallaf; and the names and hurts of each were told in order.

We rode seven miles, to a low watershed, crossed by a wall of granite slivers, now little more than a shapeless heap, but once no doubt a barrier. It ran from cliff to cliff, and even far up the hill-sides, wherever the slopes were not too steep to climb. In the centre, where the road passed, had been two small enclosures like pounds. I asked Khallaf the purpose of the wall. He replied that he had been in Damascus and Constantinople and Cairo, and had many friends among the great men of Egypt. Did I know any of the English there? Khallaf seemed curious about my intentions and my history. He tried to trip me in Egyptian phrases. When I answered in the dialect of Aleppo he spoke of prominent Syrians of his acquaintance. I know them, too; and he switched off into local politics, asking careful questions, delicately and indirectly, about the Sherif and his sons, and what I thought Feisal was going to do. I understood less of this than he, and parried inconsequently. Tafas came to my rescue, and changed the subject. Afterwards we knew that Khallaf was in Turkish pay and used to send frequent reports of what came past Bir ibn Hassani for the Arab forces.

We turned to the right, across another saddle, and then downhill for a few miles to a corner of tall cliffs. We rounded this and found ourselves suddenly in Wadi Safra, the valley of our seeking, and in the midst of Wasta, its largest village. Wasta seemed to be many nests of houses, clinging to the hill-sides, each side the torrent-bed on banks of alluvial soil, or standing on detritus islands between the various deep - swept channels whose sum made up the parent valley.

Riding between two or three of these built-up islands, we made for the far bank of the valley. On our way was the main bed of the winter floods, a sweep of white shingle and boulders, quite flat. Down its middle from palm-grove on the one side to palm-grove on the other lay a reach of clear water, perhaps two hundred yards long and twelve feet wide, sand-bottomed, and bordered on each brink there by a ten-foot lawn of thick grass and flowers. On it we halted a moment to let our camels put their heads down and drink their fill, and the relief of the grass to our eyes after the day-long hard glitter of the pebbles was so sudden that involuntarily I glanced up to see if a cloud had not covered the face of the sun.

Peterborough Band Delights Listeners

CAMPBELLFORD, June 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Peterborough Temple Band, which arrived on Saturday evening to take part in the 50th anniversary services of Salvation Army celebrations here delighted the citizens of this town with their splendid musical selections. After parading from the Temple, the band played on each side of the river and special policeman had a busy time regulating motor traffic at the intersections.

Services were then held in St. John's United Church, where a grand musical festival was given and at which Adjutant N. Warrander presided. The program for Sunday included Holiness meetings in the Salvation Army Hall during the morning, followed by a musical program in the Public School grounds in the afternoon, and concluding with a grand musical service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in the evening, at which the Rev. Simpson Black presided.

Large congregations attended all the meetings and the visit of the Peterborough band in connection with the Golden Jubilee ceremonies of the local S. A. will long be remembered in this district.

SAILOR MAROONS SELF IN WILDS FOR 14 MONTHS

Refusing Relief "Crusoe of North" Hews Out Living From Hinterlands.

TO PADDLE OUT

Got Tired Tramping Streets Looking for Work, so Hit for West.

REGINA, Sask., June 3 — (By Central Press Canadian).—On a spot 250 miles north of Prince Albert, Sask., stands a shack, the only one for hundreds of miles, and above the doorway burnt into the logs with a hot poker can be read, "Lone Wolf Olie."

It marks the result of one man's effort to keep off relief. Olie Ness, a Norwegian sailor, tramped streets of Canadian cities in vicinity of the Great Lakes for several months, jobless. He decided it would not pay to go on relief, so he hit out for the Canadian Northwest, beyond the last marks of civilization. What little cash he had went into the purchase of aeroplane fare and freighting of food supplies and other necessities for a hermit's life in the far north.

Trying Himself Out.

The location he selected for his home, 130 miles north from Lac la Ronge, is so isolated he had not spoken to a white man for 14 months to the time when he was discovered by R. J. Groome, Regina pilot, and a companion. Groome had heard of his being somewhere north of Lac la Ronge from half-breed trappers. It appears Ness had met a half-breed after ten months of his hermit life. The half-breed passed word along until it reached Groome, who had just completed blazing an air trail from Lake Athabasca to Prince Albert.

Groome, taking off, followed a water-course until he discovered the dog-tracks of Ness' team, and crossing bush country, spotted the shack. Landing on a nearby lake, Groome and his flying companion, Gus Christopherson, fur buyer of Lac la Ronge, dropped in on the surprised Ness. At first Ness was shy, but when he did open up Groome said he talked so much that he apologized for his loquacity.

Ness has not had his hair cut since he entered the north and now sports flowing locks. He said his reason for losing himself in the north was to "try himself out" and see what he was made of. He admitted he rather enjoyed the experience.

To celebrate the arrival of Groome and his companion Ness opened his ice-house and produced a tin box containing some of his own Christmas cake and some doughnuts which he made during the winter and kept in a frozen state. When thawed out, Groome said they tasted much better than the tough "bannock" they had experienced at other trappers' cabins.

"His Robinson Crusoe existence had not affected him at all," Mr. Groome said on his return to Regina. "Ness said it was a lot better than being on the breadline 'outside' and that he had no desire to come out permanently."

To Paddle Out.

His little log cabin was well-chinked with moss and very clean inside. He managed to bring some glass in with him and had windows. Above the door was a fine set of antler horns. Another little cabin alongside was his storehouse and he had apparently fared well on moose meat and fish. His basic commodities, such as flour, tea, sugar and potatoes were running low. He had, in fact, been without potatoes several weeks. But he was not worried. Just as soon as ice conditions permitted he intended to paddle south to visit "outside."

Ness will come out in a home-made canoe. He is adept with tools and Groome says he has one of the neatest shacks he has ever seen in the north country, with a neat bunk and shelves lining the walls and a substantial rough lumber table. During his stay in the north he has done some trapping and will bring out with him at least $800 worth of good skins which he will sell at Lac la Ronge.

Olie Ness will more than likely reach the outside about mid-June and start back for his shack in the north during the middle of August, which will give him two months in "civilization."

Nobody thought Katherine would make a very good wife. She seemed too frivolous. Always made a game out of everything. Hadn't a practical thought in her head—so it seemed.

Maybe that's why she does make Ed such a good wife. You still wouldn't think she was serious about a thing. Yet she must be. Because you've never seen a house kept better in your life. Or a budget balanced more neatly.

Most women come home from shopping all tired out. Not Katherine! She makes a grand game of it . . . calls it her weekly "Cook's Tour." She pores over her newspaper like a travel map . . . charts a course that takes her to bargain ports . . . and gets there without one wasted step.

How? She follows the advertisements. Watches them as closely as a sailor watches his compass. And she gets fun out of it all. . . . But who wouldn't, with a happy home like hers and her knack for saving up money?

in an open carriage, accompanied by the Duchesses of York and Kent and the former's daughters, Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, watched the ceremonies from a window of the Home Office.

The King gave a thrill to the huge crowd when, half-way through the ceremony, he stopped and gave a smart salute to the Queen.

The King's medical advisers reported he had thrown off the slight chill from which he has been suffering the last two days, and was in shape to participate in the ceremonies.

Messages wishing the King good health and long life came from the humble shepherds in the Scottish Highlands, from Indian potentates, and from the heads of foreign states and diplomats.

Among the presents he received, the most appreciated were remembrances from his grandchildren, the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, and the two sons of the Princess Royal and Viscount Lascelles.

The servants of the Royal household dusted off champagne bottles to drink the usual toast to the Master at noon.

LOCAL CONTROL IS REQUIRED IN RELIEF SITUATION

James Dutton Not in Favor of Having Governments Assume Whole Cost of Caring For Unemployed.

ADDRESSES ROTARY.

Chairman of Local Committee Gives Much Information About Relief Operations.

Opposition to the idea that the whole cost of relief should be borne by the Provincial Federal governments was voiced by Rotarian James Dutton in addressing the local Rotary Club today on some problems of the relief situation. Rotarian Dutton who is chairman of the Relief Committee, declared that looking after the unemployed was primarily a local responsibility and could best be done by a committee of local citizens familiar with conditions.

The activities of the local relief organization were outlined by the speaker in a thoughtful address that was full of information.

At the end of last month Rotarian Dutton reported there were 546 families, consisting of 1803 individuals on relief while on May 31 a year ago there were 553 families and 1694 individuals. The highest number on relief was during March 1933 when 3818 individuals had to be helped.

The relief costs for the years from 1929 to 1934 inclusive were given by the speaker showing an increase from $4130 in 1929 to $155,595 last year or over 4000 per cent. The city's share of last year's expenditure was $51,865, representing about 2½ mills on the tax rate.

Last year's relief expenditures were divided as follows: Provisions, $84,636; milk $11,134; fuel $22,951; rent $36,741; clothing, etc., $4,896; doctors, $4,931 and medicine $324. It was significant he said that while the number being helped had decreased the per capita cost of relief had climbed 10 per cent.

Rotarian Dutton said that a surprising situation had been revealed inasmuch as in perhaps 95 per cent of the cases, members of families refused to recognize any responsibility for caring for others in the family group. Sons and daughters earning wages chose to regard themselves merely as boarders and maintained their duty had been discharged when they paid their board. To him this was an amazing thing, that there was no sense of family obligation.

The speaker dealt with some of the main problems of the relief situation, including extra care in maternity cases, the provision of bedding and household utensils, the rent question and the method of caring for transients explaining clearly what policy had been followed in each case. The garden lot scheme he said had been doubly successful inasmuch as the average yield was $30 from a $2 expenditure while the morale of the men had been improved.

President J. Fred Reed voiced the thanks of the club to Rotarian Dutton.

Miss Dorothy Sager delighted the gathering with two most enjoyable vocal numbers in which her beautiful soprano was displayed to fullest advantage. Her selections were 'Morning' and the always popular, 'Danny Boy'. Harry Northrop was at the piano for Miss Sager's numbers.

President-Elect Jack Gillespie received an ovation when he rose to make an announcement and he acknowledged the applause with a modest little speech in which he promised to do his best for Rotary during his term in office.

HYNDMAN PROBE REPORT TABLED

dian Legion and Army and Navy Veterans' Association and one by the Government.

The Government's nominee would act as chairman and would also be appointed an ex-officio member of the commission to be set up under the Employment and Social Insurance Act. This body would be known as the Veterans' Assistance Commission.

The report recommends that to each regional office of the Employment and Social Insurance Commission there be attached an official sole duty it would be to seek employment for ex-service men and to guard their interests generally. This official should himself be a veteran.

The proposed commission, according to the report, might well concern itself with the work of direct placement with employers. In addition to that, it is suggested, consideration should be given to the formation of community centres "such as have proved satisfactory in Great Britain, for the purpose of interesting the unemployed in various pursuits."

These are classified as hobby employment; repairs to boots, clothing, furniture and others things; allotment gardening or small community farms; land settlement; recreational employment and physical training.

POLICE STAGE EARLY MORNING SUPRISE COUP

Tom Long, Local Chinese, Alleged to be Operator of Gaming House.

SIX ARRESTS MADE.

Furniture and Gambling Paraphanelia is Confiscated By Officers.

Confiscated in an early morning rain on an alleged Chinese gambling joint over the week-end, a quantity of furniture and other paraphanalia lent to the police court today, the appearance of an auction sales room.

Today being a statutory holiday, there was no court sitting, but tomorrow morning two Chinese and four other local residents will surrender to bail to answer to gaming charges.

Their arrest followed upon a coup executed by a squad of City Police officers at half-past one o'clock Sunday morning as the culmination of extensive activity on the part of the police who have had the premises, located at 327 Hunter street West under observation for some weeks past. Officers taking part in the raid were: Inspector James Reid, Sergeant Arthur Thomas, and Constables Joe Wheeler, John Naples and John Stevenson.

It is alleged that the police entered the premises when a game of stud poker was in progress, and after the arrest of the operator and those found in, they proceeded to seize and remove tables, chairs, and gambling equipment, including two pin games and a slug machine.

Over Confident

The place had been under suspicion for some time, but so secure had those frequenting the house become, that it was stated, that there would be frequent excursions to a downtown restaurant at intervals through the night for sandwiches, coffee and other refreshment, for the players.

Tom Long, proprietor of the Canton Cafe alleged to be operator of the house, is stated to face charges of keeping a common gaming house, while a compatriot of his and four white men are to be charged as inmates of a common gaming house.

Long who occupies living quarters at the premises, was said to have had a special combination lock on the door to his apartment.

A further manoeuvre carried out by Sergeant W. Wigg and Constable J. W. Thompson resulted Sunday afternoon in the round-up of a dozen local young men, who are alleged to have been gambling with dice on Gordon avenue. They are to be charged with "gambling with dice on the Lord's Day", it was stated.

WINNIPEG WARS ON MOSQUITOES

Plan to Use 8,000 Gallons of Oil to Combat Pest This Year.

$55,000 SPENT IN 9 YEARS.

WINNIPEG, June 3.— (CP). — Winnipeg is back at war with mosquitoes. The sharp-lanced pests are doomed to die before they reach the stage of rising from swamps and ditches.

The anti-mosquito forces have spent approximately $55,000 in nine years spreading 75,000 gallons of oil to destroy mosquito.

The experiment of 1930 proved planes could be used to spread the oil to destroy mosquito eggs. But since then dozens of ditches have been drained and sloughs removed. The breeding area has been reduced and man-power is sufficient for the combat.

Eight thousand gallons of oil probably will be used in the campaign this year. About $3,000 has been collected for the work but if June turns out to be a rainy month, or even July is excessively yet more money and oil will be needed. Weather is the main cause of mosquito intensity.

Dr. H. M. Speechly, chairman of the anti-mosquito campaign committee said the committee should have $10,000 annually for it's work. In years when infestation was not so great, the balance could be used when infestation is heavy. The funds are obtained through a tag day and individual donations.

6,000 PLANTS TO GARDENERS

More Than 300 Citizens in Community Gardening Campaign This Year.

RAINS WERE TIMELY.

Six thousand tomato and cabbage plants were recently distributed for planting in the city's community gardens. Potatoes and ten varieties of vegetable seeds were also included in the allotments, A. B. Cunningham, chairman of the Garden Plots Committee, informed The Examiner to-day. Several hundred packets of garden and flower seeds were also received from the Ontario Department of Agriculture through A. D. Runions.

"Last week's rain has been a great help, and the gardens are in excellent condition," Mr. Cunningham said. "We have more than 300 gardeners this year, more than we ever had, although we expected that there would be a falling off for this summer. To supply everybody with land we had to go into North Monaghan for quite a number of plots.

Many of the gardeners wanted more than one plot. They found that the produce from the ordinary allotment was not sufficient to carry them through the winter, and they realize more than ever that the gardens are a real help. I think this is a problem which the council and the Relief Committee might consider if the work is to be continued next year."

Mr. Cunningham said that the arrangements had worked out smoothly, and this year's gardening campaign promised to be the most successful since the community plan was adopted three years ago.

Single Run Wins For Dukes

Brewers Shutout Belleville Radios For 1-0 Victory.

NEAT PITCHING DUEL.

OSHAWA, June 3.—(CP)—Dominions, Oshawa's entry in the Central Ontario Baseball League, performed a notable feat here Saturday, when they shut out the Belleville Radios in a scheduled game and won by the narrow margin of 1 to 0. For eight innings Smith of Belleville and Ogden of Oshawa staged as pretty a pitching duel as the fans could wish to see, but in the second half of the eighth three successive singles by Hurst, Kitchen and Jubenville enabled Hurst to cross the plate with the only run of the game. Ogden turned in one of the best pitching performances of his career, allowing only three scattered hits and striking out ten batters. Belleville at no stage of the game looked like scoring. Until the fatal eighth Smith had pitched nice ball, as only four hits had been nicked off his deliveries until that inning, and he had struck out six Oshawa batters.

HOMERS FEATURE NEW YORK VICTORY

Detroit Tigers wrought the day's best effects in the American League with the aid of a home run swatting spree on the part of the Yankees. Detroit bowled over the white Sox 10-5 with a 14-hit attack on four pitchers, while the Yanks belted six home runs, two by Bill Dickey, and trimmed the Red Sox 7-2. The Yankee home run production was the best one-game job of the season and fell just one homer short of tying the major league record.

As the result the Tigers moved into fourth place ahead of Boston, while the Yanks increased their lead over Chicago to two games. The pale hose remained only a half ahead of the Indians, who downed St. Louis Browns 6-2 with aid of Earl Averill's third homer in two days, and one by Hal Trosky.

The Athletics moved up within a game of the sixth-place Senators by beating them 8-7 with a ninth-inning run after Washington had tied the count with three runs in the same frame.

WILD FIFTH INNING IN WHICH PETES GATHER IN EIGHT RUNS CLINCHES 10-7 C. O. B. L. WIN

Five Flingers, Three For Kingston, See Duty in Long Drawn Out Contest.

LOOSE FIELDING.

General Field Fight Threatens When Smith and Ash Collide at First.

Johnson Motors knocked over Kingston Ponies, 10-7, before 1200 fans in Riverside Park Saturday, coming from behind to hammer home eight runs in a wild fifth frame. It was a weird sort of ball game, replete with erratic pitching and loose fielding, and with a general fight almost starting in the eighth when Smith and Ash collided at first. Five flingers—three for Kingston—saw duty in the contest that dragged out for nearly two and a half hours.

Lefty Lepper started for the Petes but wildness spoiled his effectiveness and he retired in the fifth with the score 5-1 for the Ponies. Spook Scriver replaced Lepper and got by in fair style the rest of the way, except for two runs in the seventh. Their support was bad. Yammy Jamieson went good for the visitors till he weakened in the fifth and left in favor of Speedy St. Louis. The latter had nothing and was yanked the same inning after five runs were scored on him. Bud Clancy finished fairly strong.

Smith led the Daley crew at bat with a double and single in four appearances. Foley topped the Petes with three singles in four times while Calladine hit safely three times out of five. Murphy and Ash smashed out triples, the former's driving in three runs in the fifth. The fielding of McQuaide and Calladine with a Murphy-to-Hollingsworth-to-Ash doubleplay were the only defensive features. Both sides had some costly errors.

Get First Run.

Kingston could do nothing in the first but the locals got a run in their half when Calladine singled and reached second on Scrutton's error, coming home on Kearns' hit. A bingle and two walks loaded the sacks for the Ponies in the second but a roller, fly and strikeout turned them back. The Petes got runners on in the second on a walk, in the third on an error and Foley's hit, and in the fourth on Burton's bingle but they were left stranded.

The first two Kingston markers came in the third. Arnell singled and went to third as McQuaide reached first on an error. As McQuaide raced for second, Whatley pegged perfectly for the bag but it was uncovered and Arnell scored while McQuaide headed for third. The throw-in from the outfield was bad and McQuaide galloped home. They got two again in the fourth with Quinn walking and Webber safe on an error to start things. They were sacrificed along and Quinn scored on a wild pitch, Webber going to third and home later on Jamieson's single. In the fifth, Smith walked, went to third on Compeau's hit and scored on an error with Scriver replacing Lepper.

The homesters went to town for eight in their half of the fifth. Hollingsworth was safe on a miscue by Smith, taking second on Calladine's hit and scoring on Foley's bingle, Bill going to third and Foley advancing on the throw. Jamieson was pulled. Kearns walked to fill the bases and Murphy's triple to deep left sent three in. Burton rolled out but Ash was safe on Compeau's error and Murphy tallied. Starr, replacing Whatley, walked and he went to second and Ash to third on Scriver's infield hit. St. Louis left the game after a wild pitch sent Ash home. Clancy's wild pitch let Starr in and put Scriver on third, the latter scoring on an outfield fly. Calladine got his second hit of the inning but the next batter flied out.

Kingston threatened in the sixth inning but failed to score and the locals went out in order. The Ponies got two in the seventh. Smith led off with a double and two outs sent him around, while Quinn walked, moved up on a wild pitch, went to third on one of the outs and tallied on Joyce's hit. A smart doubleplay cut the visitors down in the eighth and they failed to counter in the last though loading the sacks on two walks and an error. The Lee gang got their final marker in the seventh on a triple by Ash and a long fly to right by Starr. Foley walked in the eighth but died on third after advancing on two infield outs.

TORONTO DROPS DOUBLE-HEADER TO MONTREAL

Royals Get 19 Hits in Opener—Appleton Cops His 7th Straight Nightcap.

SYRACUSE GOING UP.

(By The Associated Press)

The infusion of new blood seems to have worked miracles with Syracuse Chiefs in the International League.

They weren't going so good at the beginning of the season. Then they began to bring in some new players. Yesterday they took both ends of a double-header with Newark to bring their first string of consecutive victories to seven. In the first, with Joe Cascarella, who recently came down from the Athletics, in the box, they pounded out 15 hits to win 10-4. They were forced to go 10 innings in the nightcap to win 8-7. Hamel and Schino, both outfielders and newcomers, contributed, Schino whaling one for a round trip, and Hamel's single in the 10th providing the margin of victory.

The double win pushed Syracuse up from sixth to fourth place, behind Buffalo, Baltimore and Montreal, which led in that order.

Herd Divides Double

The leading Bisons divided a doubleheader with Rochester. Buffalo took the first by the overwhelming score of 14-4, but Dick Ward stopped the Bisons with two hits for a 5-0 shutout in the second. Buffalo loaded the bases with two out in the sixth but then Fitzgerald popped up to Healy.

Baltimore and Albany also broke even, Baltimore taking the opener 2-0, and Albany the second, 5-4. Hayes banged out a home run in the eighth inning to win for the Senators.

A crowd of more than 15,000 saw Montreal Royals take both games of a double-header from Toronto Maple Leafs, 16-2, and 4-3.

Royals Get Twin

Montreal rifled out 19 hits in the opener, Gus Dugas belting two homers and driving in four runs, and Benny Tate also connecting for a round trip blow. Pete Appleton, after experiencing difficulty in the early innings, rallied to win his seventh straight game in the afterpiece. The Royals made their winning run in the last inning of the seven inning nightcap.

CARDS SCORE 3RD STRAIGHT NATIONAL WIN

St. Louis Cuts Giants' Lead to 3½ Games With 6-5 Victory.

Braves Blank New Yorkers.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

The same sort of a battle that marked the close of the 1934 National League season is on again with the Cardinals coming up with a tremendous rush to threaten the leadership of New York Giants. Only so far the Giants haven't shown any signs of the "crack" that cost them the pennant last September.

Buried in fourth place almost from the start, the Cards tuned up at the end of their Eastern tour then opened up the machine to top speed last week to pile up six straight victories and move into second place.

To-day they had cut the Giants' lead to 3½ games as they won No. 6 with a garrison finish that brought a 6-5 victory over the Cubs, while the New Yorkers came to the end of their seven-game winning string with a 2-0 shutout at the hands of the Braves.

Homer Adds Up.

Trailing 5-1 going into the last inning, the Cards pounded their former teammate, Tex Carleton, out to score one run and leave the corners crammed when Larry French took the hill.

Jimmy Collins promptly belted French's second pitch for a homer, and when Chicago threatened in the last half of the inning Dizzy Dean came in to save the game by disposing of two pinch-hitters.

The Cubs, beaten in 13 of their last 21 games, sank into a virtual tie with Brooklyn, holding fourth by one percentage point and trailing Pittsburgh by two games after the Pirates white-washed Cincinnati 8-0 on Jim Weaver's five-hit flinging.

The Giants' hitters couldn't fathom the offerings of Bob Smith, while the Braves, aroused by Babe Ruth's announcement of his intended retirement, smacked out a run off Clyde Castleman in the sixth and another on Bill Urbanski's homer in the eighth. The Phillies kept Brooklyn from moving into the first division by beating the Dodgers 7-5 on a three-run ninth inning

UNCONDITIONAL RELEASE IS GIVEN RUTH BY FUCHS

Action Follows Slugger's Announcement of Intenion to Go on Retired List.

WON'T PLAY FOR FUCHS.

BOSTON, June 3 (A.P.). — Babe Ruth was given his unconditional release last night by Emil Fuchs, president of Boston Braves, a few hours after he had announced his intention of going on the voluntary retired list.

The slow burning bomb that has had the baseball world going around with its fingers in its ears since the season started let go yesterday afternoon when Ruth told his teammates and then the baseball writers he was through.

Last night Ruth, after several hours of seclusion, came out with the announcement that removed baseball's aged and ailing idol from the club's roster.

After watching his Boston Braves teammates hand the New York Giants their first shutout of the season 2-0, Ruth had announced that he intended to go on the voluntary retired list.

"I have to tell you boys this," Ruth said, "but I have decided to go on the voluntary retired list. I like the Braves and have nothing but the highest regard for Manager Bill McKechnie, but I will not play another game for the team as long as Fuchs remains at its head.

"When I knocked those three homers in Pittsburg I thought I was back in condition, but that injury I suffered in Cincinnati put me away back. I don't know what I am going to do. I don't want to get out of baseball, but I won't play for Fuchs. He double-crossed me."

Ruth was asked to explain the double-crossing charge, but he declined to go into details, explaining, "Well, we didn't get along."

During the ninth inning of the game the ailing home-run slugger called the baseball writers into the Braves' dressing-room and told them he was displeased with the treatment accorded him by Emil Fuchs, the Braves president, and had decided to ask Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner, to place him on the voluntary retired list.

You can make no greater mistake than to take your first rounds as a rating of what you'll do for the rest of the season. These first rounds may be very good. You may be at your best. All the more reason to discount them for your success cannot be lasting.

You may start the season by playing very erratic. You can feel like giving up the game. Again you're not fair to yourself. Your average performance for the season depends mainly upon muscular co-ordination. Something that you can't establish in a hurry or in a few rounds.

It takes time to get into your regular swing. Very often weeks of play are needed to get your muscles in shape. Then, and then only, can you get a line on what your scores should be. Just charge up the first few rounds to the routine of getting your muscles in shape.

PACKERS WHITEWASH C.C.F. ELEVEN FOR 2 TO 0 VICTORY

G. Downer Scores First Goal and Wagstaff the Second—C.C.F. Right Wing Good.

TIGHT SOCCER BATTLE.

Canada Packers eliminated the C.C.F. from the White Challenge Cup on Saturday afternoon, before a good attendance of spectators, on King Edward Park, by the score of two goals to nothing, in an interesting game that was productive of scientific football in every department. Jack McMaster, who has made his debut after two years layoff, was conspicuous with his clever dribbling and strategic movements while in possession of the ball. The winners' entire team clicked to perfection throughout and now meet winners of Canadian General versus Brinton, in the final.

Opportunities Missed

Canada Packers lost the choice of goals and had to face the sun. Both goals went under bombardment, with Chamberlain stopping a close drive from the foot of Dyer, while at the other end Wagstaff brought C.C.F. goalie to his knees. After five minutes' play Canada Packers' forwards travelled fast inside C.C.F. territory to get the advantage of the opposing backs as George Downer accepted the opening to bulge the net. Quickly the C.C.F. forwards transferred the play into the Packers' goal where the right wing dominated the issue to the discomfort of Whatman and Denisen with the perfect combination that was pleasing to watch but unproductive of the necessary goal. On one occasion, Jack McMaster lobbed the ball in below the bar where Chamberlain clutched it under the crossbar to clear his charge. Then Jobe tried to pick the far corner with a low grounder but C.P. goalie threw himself the full length of the goal to divert the ball around the corner. Newt Downer cleared the situation but carrying the attack into the C.C.F. territory where Agnew and O'Halloran intercepted a dangerous raid in the nick of time. Just before the interval Latham beat three opponents as he endeavoured to dribble his way into the Packers' goal. He passed the sphere over to Mayette who shot into the goalkeepers' arms. McMaster came back with a rocket drive over the sticks, Canada Packers 1, C.C.F. 0.

Packers Make it Two

The customary respite semed to enliven the second half as the players travelled up and down the field at a terrific pace. It was from one of these raids that the Packers added their second counter after Melrose had saved his goal three times in a row but he had to accept defeat where Wagstaff headed the ball into the net, from a cross by G. Downer. Both elevens indulged in beautiful combination that was interesting to watch as they tore in to test the custodians with accurate shots which brought out the brilliant qualities of goal tending, in fact, Chamberlain deserves for the smart clearance he made of the oblique shot of Dyer's parting drive. A little later, Jobe accepted a pass from the foot of McMaster, to send a lightning left footer to near post as Agnew felt back to clear the rebound. Repeatedly the C.C.F. forwards would penerate their opposition defense to find Chamberlain unbeatable. Play continued on an even basis for the remainder of the tussle with the forwards battling against two perfect full backs in each team. Canada Packers 2, C.C.F. 0.

CLOCK MAKERS GAIN VICTORY

Knock Over Fast-stepping Electrics 18-11 For Their First Win.

NUMEROUS ERRORS.

Westclox Maidens tacked up their first victory of the season on Saturday night at the Bowl when they pasted thirteen safe hits past the C.G.E. team for a decisive 18-11 win. The losers were minus their regular second sacker, and besides this kicked in with sixteen boots which coupled up with smart hurling by Barb Blade for the Clockers gave the latter team almost a walkaway.

Mary McCarthy, pitched for the Electrics, fanning six and walking five. She was steady throughout and kept the hits scattered but her infield support was wobbly and disorganised all through the game. The outer fielders turned in good performances on fly balls but left grounders sift through that were easy stops. Blade had a great night on the mound, whiffing twelve and passing eight, four of these free trips being in the ninth when she weakened and the C.G.E. scored five times. She held the opposition hitless for the first three frames, fanning five. She was given good support except in the last three innings when Snowden catching had a flock of past balls, due to a severe injury to her finger, caused in the sixth when she blocked a low ball.

Thelma Harris was the leading batter for the winners, singling three out of six. Marie Ferguson had a homer and single, while Genevieve Mann and her sister Hazel collected a brace apiece. DeCarlo, Thompson and McCarthy all hit safely twice for the losers with Martin getting the only other bingle.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(By C. J. P.)

Looks like the Petes are determined to win their home games anyway this season, beating Oshawa here in the opener and taking Kingston, 10-7, Saturday. And it looks like they are after an all-time record for errors this season, too. They've had 22 in four games to date and other clubs will have to hustle to catch them in this department! But at least they are coming through with some timely hitting again. They got 11 off Jamieson, St. Louis and Clancy Saturday, including triples by Ash and Murphy. The latter's was a real money clout, coming in the fifth with the sacks crowded. The Ponies could collect but seven off Lepper and Scriver, but they also got nine walks and the assistance of six local miscues.

• • • • • • •

It was one of the daffiest games we've ever had to sit through. The ball shown was of intermediate "C" calibre, or less. Not only was the pitching poor but the fielding and thinking were screwy. Twice runners went to second on the locals with no one covering the bag for a throw—although once they thought it was a walk and didn't bother. The other time, Whatley threw perfectly but the ball breezed over the base into centre field. The error is counted against the baseman supposed to cover the sack, as it is definitely stated in the rule book. And on a throw-in to third, no one covered the third-sacker and another run scored. Just boners, that's all.

• • • • • • •

Lepper had a lot of speed and stuff but his control was nothing to brag about and he got himself in a lot of holes, aided and abetted by poor support from some of his teammates. Scriver came to the rescue okay, though he wasn't invincible and had us worried till the last out. Jamieson was good till the fifth but that deadly frame finished him. St. Louis had nothing but a prayer when he went in and he came out shortly with the prayer unanswered. He musn't live right or something. Clancy staggered through then but looked far from a fifty-a-week flinger. It wasn't a pitchers' day. Starr replaced Whatley catching in the fifth and looked good.

• • • • • • •

Showing how errors affect the score, Kingston had but two and the Petes four earned runs—six earned out of 17! Two of the Ponies' counters came in on miscues and two on wild pitches while one of the Lee gang's scored on a boot and two on wild heaves. The game was lengthy and loose though not too rough except when a free-for-all nearly enlivened things in the eight. Smith—who has been feuding with Ash for three years—was nipped easily on a doubleplay but stepped on Fred's foot and the latter went for him. The players of both sides swarmed to the scene but nothing happened. Compton held up the game once when he knocked a pimple off his face and started it bleeding; he's softening up. Well, we hope the locals get in a lot of fielding practise before the next tilt here.

• • • • • • •

Next Saturday is an open date at Riverside with Kingston at Oshawa. The Petes go to Belleville Friday and to Kingston a week from Wednesday, entertaining the Quinte crew here the following Saturday. By that time, Russ Kitchen will be back in the game and Whatley will be all over the cut he got in Oshawa. Murphy at short makes a difference and Knotty Lee's outfit should start clicking properly in the near future. Meantime, they have won two and lost two, so aren't doing so badly. They drew another fine crowd Saturday and will continue to get the fans 'support if they play heads-up ball.

• • • • • • •

Down in Oshawa on Saturday, the Brewers pulled out a 1-0 win over Belleville's Radiomen in a thrilling hurlers' duel. Done Ogden—who couldn't have been dosing very much—held the Quinte crowd to three hits as he fanned 10;; while Smith for Belleville was just about as good except for three hits and a run in the eighth. This winning streak of Oshawa's which has gone all of two games now may go to the heads of the players and fans down General Motors way with disastrous results, but if the team can just stand prosperity the Barons will be sitting pretty for some time now both baseballically—we have it copyrighted—and financially. And maybe now we'll hear fewer chirps out of Belleville till old Jack Williams wins for them again.

• • • • • • •

Westclox gals broke into the victory slot Saturday at the Bowl with an 18-11 smirk over C.G.E. Did you ever see a hippopotamus yawn? No, no, we're not getting away from the subject. But if you did, then you have an idea of how open the Electrics' infield was in this game. They did more booting than two soccer teams and the outfield, good on flies, was weak also on grounders. Barb Blade pitched a nice game and her buddies clouted the big apple with abandon, not to say vengeance. The Alarm Lasses are due in Bailieboro this e'en with Keene meeting C.G.E. here Tuesday and Keene at Bailieboro the following night.

• • • • • • •

The dukes de rassle come here in force tomorrow night for a bit of a brawl in the Armouries. Mat mastodons who will be on hand include: Mona, M. Marvel, with the sock over his pan; Mister Bull Findlay, 218 pounds of Detroiter; and the Messrs. Don Petroff, Walter Parnall, John Gyroffy and Jack Pearl. They will kick each other about the ring, two at a time, for a couple of hours or so and the fans can go prepared for some hair-raising grappling stunts. Personally, we do not intend to sit too close to the ring as we are not built for the job of catching huge rasslin' gents in our lap and it is a quaint habit these birds have of flinging each other over the ropes at the press table. Trying to catch the final edition always. Show starts at 8.30 o'clock and lineup appears elsewhere.

WEST SEYMOUR SECURED LATE SOFTBALL WIN

Menie Does Goes Down to 2-11 Defeat in Seymour League Opener.

INDIFFERENT BALL.

BURNBRAE, June 3 (Examiner Correspondence). — In an opening game featured by good and indifferent brands of ball, the Seymour League got away to a start on Saturday evening with West Seymour pulling out a last minute 12 to 11 win over Menie. Anderson on the mound for the Westerners was wild at the start and Menie rolled up an eleven-run count in the first three frames. From then until the end only one man reached first and that on a walk. The West side hurler set a strikeout mark that will be something for other pitchers to aim at when he whiffed thirteen men, with the last seven men to face him being struck out in succession.

Errors Costly.

Eagleson on the mound for the losers deserved a win on his performance, but four errors at crucial moments in the sixth and seventh made what looked like easy victory into certain defeat. Hoard and Eagleson, with three runs each, were the heavy scorers, while Anderson, McCulloch, Hooper, Shadwick, and Rannie counted a pair each. McCulloch was the only player to secure three safe hits, while Chadwick hit the only homer. To McCook, snappy young outfielder of the Westerners, went the real honor of winning the game, his clean-cut hitting driving home the tying and winning runs with two gone in the seventh.

West Seymour—Anderson, p; McCulloch, 1b; Lambert, c; McCook, rf; Rowe, cf; Hooper, ss; Hoard, 2b; Waddell, 3b; Chadwick, lf.

Menie — J. Ranie, rf; Eagleson, p; Craighead, 1b; K. Oddie, ss; R. Oddie, 2b; Hutcheon, cf; Holmes, c; Bedford, lf; Smith, 3b.

West Seymour... 1100154—12 10 4
Menie ..... 4610000—11 6 4

Umpires—C. Holmes, Shillinglaw, and Sarginson.

On Tuesday evening West Seymour and Petherick's meet, and it will be the opening game for the Northerners. Godolphin are anxious to enter a team in this league, and a decision will be reached this week. Should the entry be accepted a re-arranged schedule will be drawn up with each team playing nine games instead of eight as at present.

Warsaw Wins From North Douro 10-8

Warsaw, suffering under the defeat Indian River gave them, came out in front over North Douro. Bill Simmons pitched a good game for the losers but the infield was sloppy at times. Chris Tyghe also pitched a good game for Warsaw.

The teams:

Warsaw: C. Tyghe, p; I. Payne, ss; E. Bell, 1b; I. Clements, c; J. Bell, 3b; J. McCauley, 2b; J. Payne, lf; C. Payne, cf; P. Moore, rf.

North Douro: B. Simmons, p; F. Condon, c; Jim Delaney, 1b; F. O'Brien, 2b; V. Dwyer, 3b; C. Condon, ss; S. Condon, rf; G. Condon, cf; J. Delaney, lf.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

By DONALD PEARCE

CHAPTER 41

At the entrance of the hotel a shiny new limousine was waiting for Consuelo with Ito, Blackmire's Japanese chauffeur, at the wheel. It's yours," Stewart told Consuelo. It seemingly was a trifling gift for, as they rode, he talked of penthouses, country estates on Long Island, of cars, of servants, of lazy days traveling together. He spoke of the yacht he was going to buy that would carry a crew of 40 and could go anywhere, and he would name it The Gypsy and when the season closed they would go away on it.

It was all that Consuelo could do to know what he was saying and to murmur "how nice," or "you are a darling," for her thoughts were not with him; she was thinking of the thing she had done and how it would turn out and the blood ran hot and cold in her veins and her heart beat fast. Then because she was afraid to think longer she took her thoughts from this that was closest to her and turned her full attention upon Stewart and what he was saying.

Never had the man found her so gay or so entertaining as then. He wondered how it was that he had stayed away from her all these weeks and it seemed that only now he had discovered how fascinating and lovely she was and he told himself that nothing was too good for her, nothing—of course, within reason.

They rode far into the country and stopped at a crooked little inn, like a picture out of a fairy book, for tea with hot biscuits and rich sweet butter and home-made jam. They lingered before the fireplace and watched the crackling flames and the warmth was good, for the air outside was chill with the promise of winter.

For the space of a while neither spoke. Stewart reached across the table and placed his hand over hers.

"I am realizing now for the first time what it is like to be in love," he told her. "I like you, Consuelo, because you're so sincere. You say what you think and you do not care what the other might do. You gave me a pretty bawling out last night." He chuckled. Then he grew serious. "Tell me what you'd like, Consuelo. I'll give you anything."

She took her eyes from the fire.

"Only that you love me enough, my darling," she said simply, but to herself she added: "Only that you love me enough to give me this thing I want most of all, and it must be more than your money to do it."

"Is that all you ask?"

"Could there be more than love?" she countered and did not remember that once she had said, "If anyone tells you that love is greater than dancing, my friends, they lie!" and now she might still have said the same thing if it would have served her purpose.

"Not when you ask it."

They hardly spoke during the long drive on the way back. The girl noticed the bare trees at the side of the road and how the wind whipped through them. She thought that now the gypsies would be moving southward and something came and tugged at her heart. The gypsies. The odor of burning wood came to her nostrils and the sound of Romany floated over her more sweet than the sweetest music. And she moved closer to Stewart and put her head on his shoulder and closed her eyes and would not look at the brown leaves that rustled at the side of the road.

They were still in this quiet mood when they returned to the hotel at dusk, but it did not last long, for much had happened in their absence.

"Mr. Blackmire, they've been calling you here all afternoon. Mr. Goldberg, Miss L'Ville, Mr. Parker, the Times, Mr. Dalstrom and—"

Stewart looked at the gypsy.

"What have you been up to, Consuelo?"

She put her arms around him and nestled her head against his neck.

"It is only a trifle that you could not refuse your gypsy." How soft were her words!

"A trifle, eh? Well, I'll soon settle that."

"You promise, my dearest?"

"It won't take a minute, whatever it is." He gave his coat and hat to Ann and went to the telephone.

Consuelo sat down in the furthest corner of the room. She was trembling. Her hands were tensed. She heard him say: "Goldie, Blackmire talking. . . . What—what's that? No! . . . Why didn't you stop the story? . . . Consuelo did it? You're kidding me. She wouldn't do a thing like that. . . . Have you lost your mind? . . . What about Louise's contract? . . . Buy her off? You're crazy! Louise is the star of this show and she'll stay the star until I get ready to say otherwise. You stop that story and stop it quick! . . . Of course not. . . . No, I wouldn't think of it. Louise will go on tonight as usual. What I say goes, don't forget that!"

He slammed down the receiver and turned to Consuelo. For a moment he was too angry to speak. Then: "How come you thought you could get by with this, gypsy?" he demanded, and now there was nothing about him of the man who had said earlier in the day, "I'll give you anything."

"You promised me," Consuelo said meekly.

"I made no such promise!"

"You said sometime."

"And you made it now, eh? Well, you're wrong!" He was shouting the words at her. "You think you'll get by with this, eh? You think you can do anything with me, eh? You thought because you got by with winding me around your finger last night that you could do this today, eh? You're wrong. I'm not forced into doing things for you or anyone else, get me? I do things when I'm good and ready to and only then!"

"An hour ago you said you would give me anything," reminded the girl. "This is what I want."

"Yes? I thought there was a catch in it somewhere. 'Just that I love you.' And then I thought you were sincere and so honest. Bunk! You knew this all the time and were just playing me for a sucker. Well, you won't get by with it, that's what. I'm through with you. You're just what I thought you were at first—what all gypsies are—greedy thieves!"

"And you, my friend, are like all the rest of the white men, aren't you? Maybe there perhaps I am wrong, for you are more generous with your money, but that is all you are generous with! So you are through with me, eh? Like that!" She snapped her fingers. "You are mad at me because I have taken something you intended to give me anyway. You are mad because I do not say, 'Stewart, you are a darling to give me this'—Bah to you, with your cheap little feelings! Have you had your way all your life, my friend?" She did not give him time to answer. "You know how much this means to me and then you think you are so good and fine to offer me limousines and penthouses and yachts and all of that, when for just this one thing I would go in rags and live in the dirtiest hovel in New York. Well, I spit on your fine gifts! They mean nothing to me! There are dozens of others who could give me as much, but you are the only one who could make me star of the Follies and you will not!' There were tears of frustration and anguish running down her cheeks. She went to him.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, June 4

According to the lunar aspects, this may not be an important day in business, although some financial success may be expected through speculation or by the friendly intervention of influential friends. There may be some slight disappointments or an anxiety or a purely private nature.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be assured some financial advancement, either through speculative enterprises or through the friendly interest of those in place and power. Personal prestige and popularity are important, although there may be a trivial setback or disappointment. A social association may prove treacherous or mystifying.

A child born on this day will be efficient, intelligent and affable, with personal popularity contributing to its success.

THOS. M. HUNTER DIES SUDDENLY

the township. As a member of the council, then as reeve and finally as warden of the county he discharged a duty of citizenship with credit to himself and advantage to the community. He was a capable and prudent trustee, and a good financier. After he retired from active municipal life, he became an unofficial counsellor whose opinions and comments were always received with respect. At the municipal nominations this year, Mr. Hunter paid a tribute of approval to the council of 1934 led by Reeve Hy Wood, frankly acknowledging that his previous doubts had been overborne by the council's efficient management of the township's business and problems during a year of serious economic difficulties.

About the same time, Mr. Hunter, as a ratepayer of the city, volunteered a statement that he intended to support the C.G.E. assessment by-law, believing that the proposed assessment of one million dollars was a fair valuation from the standpoint of the owners of property, and that the by-law should be carefully considered by them.

In religion Mr. Hunter was a Presbyterian, and his political allegiance was to the Liberal party. He was respected as an upright man by all who knew him. He trusted others, and he proved himself worthy of their trust. He was a successful farmer, a product of the old school of work and thrift.

Mr. Hunter was unmarried. He is survived by two brothers, Albert and George of North Monaghan.

The funeral will take place at 2 p.m. Tuesday from the home of Albert Hunter to Centreville cemetery. The service will be conducted by Rev. H. R. Williams of Grace Presbyterian Church, Millbrook, and Centreville Presbyterian Church, assisted by Rev. H. P. L. Seymour of Springville United Church.

LOYAL SUPPORT OF CONTESTANTS

iner's field, voters have journeyed to Peterborough to cast their votes in favor of their candidates. Each week it is necessary to clear the ballot box many times of the hundreds of thousands of coupons that are deposited for the popular Travel Club Ladies. Even during the quiet days of the week, an average of fifty or more people visit the Travel Club Office to deposit vote coupons or to pay their new or renewal subscriptions that their chosen candidate may head the list of winners, or at least be among the ten who will win trips.

Double Header Attracts

The first grand prize in the Club permits the winner to take along with her on the New York-Bermuda tour any friend she desires to choose. There are several of the members within a very few votes of each other, for the high honors and the winner will have keen competition in her efforts to capture the peak award.

Those who hold the leading positions up to date in the race are not by any means sure of success in the Club, as a number of the lower contestants are determined in their efforts to pass their now leading opponents. In more than one case a very few subscriptions would put candidates right up in leading positions, which would result in the present leaders dropping back. The ability of the lower members should not be under-estimated. As will be noted in the two standings published, several changes took place through the increased efforts of a few of the workers, and between now and the close of the Club many more changes are expected.

150,000 Extra Votes for every $12.00 this Week

Throughout the Travel Club, we have repeatedly advised members and their friends to "vote early." Votes have decreased every week since the Club began and will continue to do so as time goes on. This week, the regular vote schedule declines and the 150,000 extra votes for each $10.00 worth of subscriptions ended last Saturday. So popular has become the demand for these extra votes that we have felt it only fair to continue the offer. However, to conform to the promise that we made that the votes would decrease each period, the offer for this week will be 150,000 votes for each $12.00 turned in. Any portion of a Club of $10.00 remaining over from last week will count on a $12 Club this week. Next week a one year's subscription will be worth far less votes than this week. Voters, if at all possible, do not delay paying your subscription until next week as the votes lost on your subscriptions may just cost your club member a trip to Bermuda. Vote this week and enjoy the satisfaction of knowing you voted for her before the last week, when the votes will be lowest.

"MAN OF ARAN"

(Directed by Robert J. Flaherty)

Once in a while a picture is filmed that is "in a class by itself," and such is Robert Flaherty's "Man of Aran, playing at the Capitol Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

It has none of the opulence of setting of the average motion picture. Its locale is one of the Aran Island—a barren waste of rock off the west coast of Ireland. The sky, the sea and far horizon constitute the boundaries of Mr. Flaherty's three - dimensional studio. The characters are natives, none of whom has ever before faced a camera. There are occasional snatches of dialogue in a rich Irish brogue and there is native Irish music. But the real accompaniment to the film is the wail of the wind and the symphonic surge of the sea.

From such primitive elements as these, Mr. Flaherty has wrought a picture that is a joy to see and that is almost indescribable in its sheer, stark beauty. It has the epic quality of such novels as Gladys Hasty Carooll's "As the Earth Turns" and Knut Hamsen's "The Growth of the Soil" and more, because the camera can capture a realism that words cannot achieve.

It is enough perhaps to say that it is "An entirely simple and great piece of acting" another commands "the intense suspense" and the simple, magnificent realism," and a third says "the contemplation of the beauty of it all is a breath-taking experience.

However, though the theme of "Man of Aran" is the interminable struggle of the natives to wrest a livelihood from the sea, I do not want you to think it is a gloomy picture. To quote from one of the New York critics, "Man of Aran" is a portrayal of a happy people, of smiling Irishmen, who scramble a gaunt livelihood from rocks and sea and find great joy in their independence." As such it perhaps has a touch of inspiration for all of us. "Man of Aran" is an unusual film and you will be doing a real favor to your friends if you commend it to them, particularly if they are discriminating people who like unusual pictures.

SCOUT NEWS

About six years ago the Boy Scouts' Association, in co-operation with the Government began to operate a Forestry Demonstration Camp for Boy Scouts to learn how to plant different kinds of trees. A large area of land near Angus, Ont., was given for this purpose and during the last five years, Boy Scouts were busy each summer planting trees. This year's plantation took place on May 24 and 25.

The annual Gilwell Camp training course, for Cub and Scout leaders, at Ebor Park, Brantford, will be held this year, for Cub leaders: July 18-30, and for Scout Leaders, July 23-Aug. 3. Already a large number of Scouters from Ontario have sent their application to headquarters to attend this camp, and as the number of attendants are limited to 32 only, those who wish to go from Peterborough should send in their applications right away.

Now that the big events for Peterborough Scouts, namely the Toronto Rally and the jamboree, are over, Scouts can spend more time on their different kinds of tests for second and first class Scout or proficiency badges, and we hope that a large number of boys will be first or second class Scouts before the end of June.

The months of June, July, August and September will be outdoor months for the Rovers with only one formal indoor meeting each month, to discuss business and activities; the rest of the time to be spent by hikes, week-end camps and other forms of activities. Plans are now being made to have a Rover Camp on Aug 3-11 together with some of the Toronto Rovers.

The last meeting of the 6th (St. Peter's) Troop consisted mostly of signalling for 1st and 2nd class tests, there was a very low attendance and since the success of any organization depends mostly on co-operation, members of this troop are asked to show their co-operation by attending these meetings regularly. Outdoor meetings will be held from June 14th on. Also members are asked to return all unsold tickets for the recently-held card party.

There will be a meeting for all Scout Masters and assistants on Tuesday evening at headquarters at 7.30 to discuss and make plans for the coming district camp.

Soccer Notes

A change of venue has been made in the White Challenge Cup game scheduled for to-morrow evening on Brinton Athletic ground to the King Edward Park. The grass is too long at the Carpet field, hence the change. Canadian General will play the Brinton. Kick-off is scheduled for 5.30 with Asa Downer handling the whistle.

There is no meeting to-night of the association. No game has been scheduled for Saturday, owing to the Scots' game in Toronto. Many local fans are making the trip. Maple Leaf Baseball field has been secured for the return game next Saturday afternoon. Kick-off is 3.30 (Daylight Saving Time). It is expected that Tommy Walker, the great soccer player, will be in his position at inside right. Montreal and Sudbury are running special trains to Toronto.

Week-End Free From Any Local Accidents

Despite the increasing volume of traffic that is using the highways these week-ends, now that the fine weather has established itself, Highway Traffic Officer A. E. Hornick was again in the happy position of being able to report "all quiet" on his beat extending from Fowler's Corners on No. 7, to Port Hope on No. 28.

And while Provincial Constable David Silvester also had a week-end free from any untoward incidents requiring his attention, the City Police were less fortunate in that they were quite active. In addition to rounding up several local residents on gambling charges, they issued several summonses to violators of city traffic by-laws. The offences were chiefly angle parking in the congested down-town area, which is still prevalent in spite of persistent police warnings.

PRIMATE HERE CONFIRMS CLASS 63 CANDIDATES

First Official Visit to St. John's Since Elevation as Archbishop.

INSPIRING SERVICE.

Suffragan Bishop of Toronto Confirms Large Class at All Saints'.

At a service which was spoken of by the rector as one of the finest and most inspiring of its kind he had ever witnessed, The Most Reverend Derwyn Trevor Owen, Archbishop of Toronto and Primate of All Canada yesterday administered the Rite of Confirmation at morning service at St. John's Church.

The class of sixty-three candidates, the majority of whom were children, was the largest ever presented for confirmation in the history of St. John's, and the occasion was further marked by a capacity congregation which overflowed to chairs placed in the aisles.

His Grace delivered an inspiring address containing a message of special spiritual significance to the candidates, prior to their presentation by Venerable R. C. Blagrave, D.D., the rector for "the laying on of hands."

It is interesting to note that the visit of Archbishop Owen, which was the first since his elevation to the Primacy of the Church of England in Canada, coincided with the visit to the Rural Deanery of Peterborough by The Right Reverend A. R. Beverley, Suffragan Bishop of Toronto. The latter who arrived here over the week-end to commence a week's visit to the parishes and missions of the Rural Deanery, was at Lakefield yesterday morning, at Warsaw in the afternoon, and at All Saints' Church to administer the Rite of Confirmation in the evening.

At All Saints'

At All Saints' the rector the Reverend J. Douglas Paterson, presented a class of over thirty adults, and their admission into full membership in the church was witnessed by a large congregation.

Following upon the outstanding service at St. John's in the morning, a special Jubilee service was held on the rectory lawn by the scholars of the Sunday School, the address for the occasion being delivered by the Rev. Austin Jackson.

The service attended by approximately 450 scholars from the Senior and Primary departments of the school was conducted by Superintendent Bert Graham, who was accompanied by Mrs. F. D. Craig, superintendent of the Primary Department. Others in attendance included the Sunday School orchestra under the baton of Reg Dyer; the 1st Peterborough Boy Scout Troop and Wolf Cub under Scoutmaster George Groombridge and Cubmaster William Coleman; and the surpliced choir.

Congratulating the Rev. Jackson upon his splendid address which had drawn attention to the significance of the reign of King George V, Archdeacon Blagrave commented on the fact that the Jubilee service had very appropriately been held on the eve of His Majesty's birthday.

Acknowledging the "gracious presence" of Archbishop Owen he re-echoed the welcome he had extended to His Grace at the morning service, and referred to the confirmation rite as having been "the finest and most inspiring" he had ever attended.

Visits City

ARCHBISHOP OWEN

The Most Reverend Derwyn Trevor Owen, Archbishop of Toronto and Primate of all Canada, who administered the Rite of Confirmation at St. John's Church Sunday morning. Former resident of Peterborough, the visit of His Grace coincided with the 34th anniversary of his ordination into the ministry. Remarking upon that fact Venerable R. C. Blagrave, D.D., rector of St. John's also called attention to the furthering interesting fact that the Rev. E. R. James, recently retired from active ministry was ordained on the same occasion.

Though becoming infirm about two years ago, he was only confined to his bed for six days before peacefully passing away. In his early days the late Mr. Ryan followed the chief pioneer occupations of the district. As a river driver, shantyman and teamster he spent many years of toil, first for the Rathbun Company and later for the Gilmour Company and his reminiscences of those days were interesting to listen to. Later he took up farming a few miles north of Marmora from which he did not retire until a comparatively few years ago. He was born in Rawdon Township, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick M. Ryan. He was married to Mary Ann, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Bedore of Marmora Township who, with six children, survives him.

The children are Michael, Stirling; Eugene, Hunter, North Ontario; Mrs. John Stewart, Madoc; Mrs. John Downs, Stirling; Mrs. Bert Harvey, Gilmour; and Rose, at home. He is further survived by two brothers: Frank, Rawdon Township (who is still active at the age of 92), and Thomas, Marmora; and one sister, Mrs. M. A. Keenan, Campbellford. He was a member of the Sacred Heart Church, where the funeral will take place, according to arrangements deferred until Monday.

Mr. Ames had been attending to his duties around the farm as usual during the day, sat down to the supper table and was just beginning his meal when taken with a weak spell and expired before a doctor could be summoned.

Services will be held at the Codrington United Church at 2.30 on Monday afternoon. Interment will be made in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Armour, Donald Cameron, Gordon Johnston, Bruce Longmuir, Marshall Longmuir and Edgar McKee. The remains were laid to rest in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Observe Regulations.

The Minister's statement regarded with concern the continued increase in auto accidents, injuries and deaths, and asked for "increased co-operation of law enforcement agencies" in the effort to bring about better observance of traffic regulations. Accompanying the statement were accident statistics for April, showing an increase of 16 per cent. in the number of accidents in comparison with the same month a year ago, and an increase of 7 per cent. in the total for the first four months of the year. The April figures also showed double the number of deaths (from 19 to 38) from auto accidents and an 18 per cent. increase in the number of persons injured.

PREACHES GOSPEL ONCE RAN HORSES

Will Give a Thrilling Account of His Experiences Locally.

In September 1921, he staged the greatest harness race ever run in a small place, when he brought "Single T," the world's greatest pacer and "Sir Roche" together in his home village, Chesterville, at a cost of $5,000.

He paid the veteran Pop Geers, world's greatest reinsman $3,250 to bring his champion "Sanardo" to Toronto Exhibition Track for one day. Now he is preaching the Gospel. He is T. J. Ellis of Ottawa, who speaks in the Y.M.C.A. Lecture Hall here on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at eight o'clock.

HAVEN'T you noticed that your happiest hours occur on days when you feel your best?

Have more of these happy days. You and all your family. Guard health while you have it. Keep on the sunny side of life.

The greatest enemy of health is common constipation. It may cause loss of appetite and energy. Certainly it kills enthusiasm! Yet it can be banished by eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" and vitamin B to relieve common constipation. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. How much pleasanter to eat this delicious ready-to-eat cereal than to take patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

A minor controversy between the fundamentalists and the liberals among the Conference delegates arose over the United Church publication "New Outlook." Rev. James Taylor of Egansville declared the "New Outlook" has consistently spurned opportunities to present the fundamentalist point of view. Rev. E. W. Rowland of Stirling contended the magazine would lose its younger readers if it used space on the fundamental views. Space limitations prevent a presentation of fundamentalism, Rev. S. W. Dixon of Milford declared, presenting the report of the Publications Committee.

HONORS GIVEN TO 97 OTHERS

em. The Order of the British Empire, in its various grades, was the vehicle utilized by His Majesty in conferring these honors upon women particularly. The list indicated that voluntary service to the community or country had been recognized.

Into all parts of the Dominion His Majesty's honors extended this year. They crossed the Pacific to Japan where Hon. Herbert M. Marler, Canadian envoy and minister plenipotentiary for Canada resides. He was created a Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

They extended into Northern Ontario, and Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, who has won the admiration of the entire world by his care of the much-loved and world-famous 'quints' found himself an officer of the Order of the British Empire.

To Sir Thomas White, K.C.M.G., who headed Canada's Department of Finance during the difficult days of the Great War an added honor came in the list. He was promoted to be a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. The promotion does not carry with it any change in title—That is he remains "Sir Thomas" but his rank in the Order has been advanced.

Knighthood List

The nine new Knighthoods were conferred as follows: E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, made a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the British Empire. This title carries with it the letters G.B.E. after the name. It was conferred upon Mr. Beatty for his public services, his activities in connection with education, and his philanthropic work;

Hon. Herbert M. Marler, Canadian Minister to Tokyo, Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George (K.C.M.G.).

Major General J. H. MacBrien Commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath. (K.C.B.)

Dr. Arthur George Doughty, Dominion Archivist, Knight of the Order of the British Empire. (K. B.E.).

Dr. J. C. McLennan, professor emeritus of Toronto University, Knight of the Order of the British Empire (K.B.E.).

Senator Thomas Chapais, Quebec, Knight Bachelor (K.T.).

E. Wyly Grier, Toronto, Knight Bachelor (K.T.).

Ernest Campbell MacMillan, dean of music, Toronto University, Knight Bachelor (K.T.).

Dr Charle, G. D. Roberts Toronto, Knight Bachelor (K.T.).

97 Other Awards.

The other honors and awards, divided among 97 Canadians, embrace varied orders with that of the British Empire predominating, the list comprises one Companion of the Bath, 10 Companions of St. Michael and St. George; nine Commanders of the British Empire (Civil); one Commander of the British Empire (Military); six companions of the Imperial Service Order; 23 officers of the British Empire (Civil); three Officers of the British Empire (Military); 39 Members of the British Empire (Civil) and five Members of the British Empire (Military).

With Hon. Thomas Chapais elevated to knighthood, the Senate of Canada will now have two knights. Sir Thomas will look across the centre aisle of the red chamber at Sir Allen Aylesworth, who, for 24 years, has enjoyed the rank of K.C.M.G. Sir Allen is a Liberal and Sir Thomas a Conservative.

The recognition of literature, art and science is constantly in evidence through the list. Dr. Arthur George Doughty, Dominion Archivist, is a writer and a recognized authority on the lore of Canada. He is credited with building up the Canadian Archives to their present high standard.

Thus through the list, it is evident that His Majesty sought to recognize the literary, scientific and artistic.

Ralph Connor Honored

Names which have for years been among the most prominent in Canadian literature appear in the list. Rev. Charles W. Gordon, of Winnipeg, known all over Canada, as well as in other countries, as "Ralph Connor," is one of these. The other is Mrs. L. M. M. Macdonald who as "L. M. Montgomery" has turned out book after book for the particular benefit and pleasure of Canadian girlhood. Charles G. D. Roberts, famous author of many books and poems was given a knighthood.

The list is the fourth which has been issued since restortaion of titles in Canada. The 107 awards comprised in the birthday list this year brings the total of all awards to date since 1934 up to 206.

Lord Bledisloe, who has completed a five year term as Governor-General of New Zealand, was elevated from the rank of Baron to that of Viscount. He has held several ministerial posts in the British government and is an acknowledged authority on agriculture.

The three new party councillors are Clement Richard Attlee, deputy leader of the Labor Opposition in the House of Commons; Leslie Hore-Belisha, Minister of Transport, and Capt. Robert Croft Bourne, Deputy Chairman of the House of Commons.

Origin of the Privy Council goes back to early days in British history. A council was instituted by King Alfred in 895 which discharged various functions of State now managed by the Cabinet. In the middle ages the King's chief advisers formed the Privy Council. It was reconstituted in 1679.

The Council is summoned to act "with others," upon the death of a reigning sovereign. Many matters are referred by the sovereign to committees of the Council, such as judicial appeals from the Dominions.

Balfour Becomes Baron.

The list of new Barons included several prominent business men. Sir Arthur Balfour, who served in the diplomatic corps and on various industrial committees during and after the war, is well known in the steel industry. He is a lieutenant of the City of London, a director of the Bank of England and a partner in the firm of Morgan, Grenfell and Company.

Sir William Mason, created a Baronet in 1919, was High Sheriff of Somersetshire in 1928-9. Sir George Ernest may since 1932 has been chairman of the Import Duties Advisory committee. He is a director of the British Overseas Bank, a member of the Council of the Institute of Actuaries and a highly-rated economist.

Sir Frederick Ponsonby has served three Royal households. For the last seven years of Queen Victoria's reign he was Assistant Keeper of the Privy Purse and Assistant Private Secretary. He held the same office under King Edward and was Equerry and Assistant Private Secretary to King George 1910-12. He has been Keeper of the Privy Purse since 1920 Sir Clive Wigram since 1931 has been Private Secretary and Equerry to the King. From 1910 until 1931 he was Assistant Private Secretary.

In the United Kingdom nine baronetcies were conferred. Among the many Knighthoods were people in widely-different fields. AFFECTED AFTER ACT IS IN FORCE FOR SIX MONTHS

Woollen Dye Section Asks Right to Work 48 Hours in 5 Day Week.

COBOURG MAN APPEALS.

Nature of Work Prevents Work Started Saturday to Stand Till Monday.

OTTAWA, June 4 (C.P.).—Railway employees in the running trades will come under the provisions of the Eight-Hour Day Bill six months after the measure receives Royal Assent under an amendment passed to-day by the Senate Banking and Commerce Committee

In adopting the amendment, the committee changed a decision made in the Commons which put through an amendment granting exemption to this class of railway employees until March 31, 1936. Provision the Act would apply to other industrial undertakings three months after Royal Assent was approved.

Changes in Penalties.

Another amendment altered the provision dealing with offences of employers for breach of the Act. The Bill as received from the Commons provided for each offence an employer would be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding $100, and not less than $20 in addition to any other penalty prescribed by law for the same offence. The amendment deleted the words "and not less than $20 in addition to any other penalty prescribed by law for the same offence."

In amended form the measure will be reported to the Senate for approval of the changes, probably later to-day. Following concurrence the Bill will be in a position for third reading. The Commons then will be asked to agree to the amendments.

DYE SECTION PROTESTS.

OTTAWA, June 4 (C.P.). — Representing the dyeing section of the woollen and knitting industry of the textile trade, David C. Dick, Cobourg, Ont., to-day asked the Senate Banking and Commerce Committee that this branch of industry be given permission to work the 48-hours per week "in five days." The industrialist was making representations on the Eight-Hour Day Bill.

The nature of this work made it necessary to finish dyeing processes in this industry once they were started, so it was impossible to allow work begun on Saturday to stand until Monday. For this reason it was impossible to work a short day on Saturdays, Mr. Dick said. Workers joined with employers in the request they be allowed to work nine hours and 36 minutes on five days of the week, he added.

LETTERS BY HALL ARE HIGHLIGHT MACPHAIL CASE

Claim Dawson Talked About Morals of Women Interested in Social Welfare.

Denies Fomenting Trouble.

OTTAWA, June 4 (C.P.)—Inspector James Dweight Dawson of the Penitentiaries Branch of the Justice Department today denied flatly from the witness stand that he had used derogatory remarks towards Miss Agnes Macphail attributed to him in an affidavit by A. G. Hall, former convict.

OTTAWA, June 4 (CP) — Legal obstacles against fyling a letter written by Alfred George Hall, former convict of Kingston Penitentiary, to Minister of Justice Hugh Guthrie last July were ventilated on resumption to-day of the hearing before Judge E. J. Daly of Miss Agnes Macphail's charges against Inspector J. D. Dawson.

The burden of Miss Macphail's complaint is that on April 9, 1934, Dawson then an official of the penitentiary, told Hall that she had made a "—— —— fool of herself."

Whether this letter which also discussed matters not relevant to this patrticular point should be filed as an exhibit formed the subject of warm argument between J. C. McRuer, Miss Macphail's counsel, and G. H. Greer, counsel for the commission. Mr. McRuer was permitted to read extracts from Hall's letter. These incorporated Hall's definite charge against Dawson.

Scored Dawson To His Face

They also showed Hall to have criticized Dawson to his face about his reference to Miss Macphail." Hall had also communicated to the Minister of Justice a suggestion that Dawson manifested a lack of penology and social psychology.

Dawson, according to Hall's charge, had also talked about the morals of women interested" in social welfare, McRuer brought out.

He was not punished for writing this "insubordinate letter," Hall informed Judge Daly. Dawson had made no challenge as to the truth of the offending remark. However,

CITY COUNCIL STORM BREAKS OVER FIREMAN

Dismissal of Fireman Shearer is Raised in the City Council.

VOTE IS A TIE.

Stocker Charges Stool-Pigeons of Fire Chief Present at Meeting.

Last night's meeting of the City Council, which opened in desultory fashion, wound up with a spirited discussion of the recent dismissal from the fire department of Francis Shearer, during which Chief George Gimblett was referred to as having run counter to democratic principles and was charged with having tried to establish a "dictatorship."

One section of the Council, headed by Alderman Malcolm McIntyre, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, demanded Shearer's reinstatement, while another section, desiring to see the chief of the department and the chairman of the committee come to some mutual agreement on the matter, voted that Mayor Doland Denne and Alderman McIntyre be a committee to act as arbiters of the question.

A motion was moved by Alderman Walter Stocker and seconded by Alderman Fred. Tuggey, "that the chief be requested to reinstate Shearer," and an amendment by Alderman George A. Macdonald and Alderman Robert S. Cotton, "that the matter be left in the hands of the mayor and chairman of the committee for settlement."

A Tie Vote.

The question when put to the Council resulted in a tie vote and the mayor cast the deciding ballot in favor of the amendment, upon which Alderman Stocker jumped to his feet and heatedly ejaculated, "The chief is being allowed to get away with murder."

REPAY LOANS IN CANADIAN FUNDS

Hepburn Only Go to Foreign Market to Borrow Money on Certain Conditions.

TORONTO, June 4.J(CP).— As he considered the problem of Ontario's short term borrowings today, Premier Mitchell Hepburn declared the only condition on which he would go to money markets outside Canada would be that the loans be repaid in Canadian funds.

Determined to secure a lower rate of interest than the three per cent which Canadian chartered banks have been charging, the Premier has indicated he may sell short term treasury bills in New York. However, he is communication with representatives of Canadian banks today and he believes it is still possible they will meet his terms.

While money was required to fund maturing loans, the province is not pressed for money, Mr. Hepburn said. It is indicated, however, short term treasury bills will be issued within the next few days. The Premier conferred at some length with Chester Walters, Controller of Finance, and the matter, he said, will be placed before the Cabinet to-morrow.

Mr. Hepburn conferred to-day too, with Hon. David Croll, his Minister of Municipal Affairs on the problem of municipal financing and taxation. The Municipal Affairs Department is to embark upon an intensive campaign of reorganization of the finances of defaulting municipalities and at the same time a study will be made of municipal taxation methods with a view to complete revision.

To-day and to-morow the Premier will speid on these problems. Later in the week he may leave for a few days fishing in Northern Ontario.

T. H. STINSON IS CANDIDATE FOR VICTORIA

Unanimous Choice For Standard Bearer at Lindsay Convention.

FLAY HEPBURN REGIME.

Will Stand Behind Government In Reforms Advocated By Price Spread Commission.

LINDSAY, June 4 (Special to The Examiner). — Undoubtedly the larservative convention ever held in Lindsay, crowded the Armouries to overflowing yesterday afternoon, when T. H. Stinson, K.C., M.P., was unanimously elected standard-bearer for the party in the coming Federal election. Among the notables on the platform was Major-General Garnet Hughes, the son of General Sir Sam Hughes, who for so many years was Conservative member in Victoria and Haliburton. The speakers were Messrs. L. M. Frost, K.C., Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, Wilfred Heighington, M.P.P., of Toronto, and Denton Massey of Toronto.

Mr. Stinson decried the persistent propaganda being spread throughout the riding, blaming the Dominion Government for the closing of the road camps in Victoria and Haliburton. The speaker stated that the statement was absolutely untrue. The Dominion Government had handed the Hepburn Government over $13,000,000 since the latter government took office, to apply to relief and welfare work as it saw fit. One million four hundred thousand dollars was paid to the province by the Dominion Government to spend in Victoria and Haliburton from October, 1933, to October, 1934, and the Provincial Government spent another $800,000.

"The Hepburn Government received almost $4,000,000 more from the Dominion Givernment for relief and road work than the Henry Government had received in a similar period of time."

Stand Behind Reforms.

He later said he would stand behind the Government that would

LACK OF 2 VOTES SENDS BOUISSON FROM OFFICE

Chamber Opposes Sweeping Decree Powers to Save Franc.

RESTORE FINANCES

Overthrow Follows Strong Vote of Confidence in Premier of 390 to 192.

PARIS, June 4 (C.P.-Havas).—The four-day-old Government of Premier Fernand Bouisson went down to defeat to-night by two votes in the Chamber of Deputies. The Cabinet resigned immediately. The Chamber opposed granting to the Cabinet the sweeping decree powers by which it hoped to save the franc and restore the financial position.

Previous to the Chamber's fatal vote, the Deputies had given Bouisson—for nine years the president of their body—an overwhelming vote of confidence.

Vote Goes 390-192.

In expressing that confidence they balloted 390 to 192.

Despite this action, however, there were murmurs and speeches of discontent in the Chamber and the Lobbies when the Government prepared for immediate passage of a law which would have permitted Bouisson and his Ministers to legislate financial measures by decree.

Flood Toll Hits 400 In 5 Mexican Towns

MEXICO, D.F., June 4 (A.P.).—Check to-day of the flood-ravaged portions of the Federal district in the Valley of Mexico revealed approximately 400 persons had perished. A majority died as they prayed to San Pedro's patron saint, to whom they annually voice supplication for the benefits of rain. The floods followed torrential rains yesterday.

Working by the light of flickering candles on the still gayly-bedecked altar of the San Pedro Church, residents of the town dug out the bodies of 255 flood victims from under six feet of mud in the church where it was estimated 350 died, trapped by the flood waters.

The total of 400, it was believed, was reached as others died in five affected towns in the area where the wall of water swept down into the valley.

VEIL OF SILENCE COVERS ASHLEY MINE DISTRICT

Was Last Reported Cut Off, Surrounded by Wall of Flames.

700 MEN ON FIRE LINE.

Difficulty Being Experienced Feeding Fighters—Flies, Mosquitoes Bad.

Last of the Northern Ontario districts menaced by bush fires to receive rain, North Bay region early today was rejoicing at a steady drizzle, expected to bring the situation within the possibility of control.

Elsewhere fires were generally controlled.

Last night re-inforcements were rushed into the district north of North Bay as hundreds of men battled innumerable fires.

"The fires are too big—too big," remarked one ranger.

Difficulty was being experienced in equipping and feeding the fire fighters, numbering more than 700 men. Mosquitoes and black flies were still other troubles.

The worst fire is at Sand Dam, where workers battle throughout the day, munching sandwiches when the opportunity affords, so precious is time in the battle against fire.

Other Developments

New Liskeard—no word was received from Ashley gold mine, 80 miles west of here, reported surrounded by fire. Communication was cut off. Reports several settlers in the Montreal river area had lost their homes and others had left their dwellings in Henwood township, went unconfirmed.

Sault Ste. Marie—Rains checked all fires in this district, although crews of men were patrolling several areas against new outbreaks.

Kirkland Lake—Heavy rains wiped out fires menacing this area. Old-timers predicted the hazard would not be as serious again this season.

Toronto—Hon. ePter Heenan, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests, said danger would be eliminated if rains continued. He reported no lossof human life had occurred.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 4. — Extremely wet weather that has led to dangerous lateness of corn planting gave a strong upward tilt to corn values yesterday.

Particular anxiety among corn traders was aroused by drenching rains in Illinois, where it is estimated that only one-third of the 1936 corn crop has yet been planted, although normally 87 per cent. of corn is planted before June. Much notice was also taken of reports showing that throughout fourteen grain States the rainfall in May, 1935, has averaged 133 per cent. of normal, compared with 41 per cent. during May last year.

Corn closed strong at the day's top level, 1⅝c to 2⅜c over Saturday's finish, July 80½c to 80⅝c, wheat ¼c to ½c down, July 82½c to 82⅝c, oats ⅝c to 1c up, and provisions 5c to 10c advanced.

Rye prices broke to a new low record for the season. Oats traders took their cue mainly from action of corn.

Provisions reflected an unexpected big decrease of Chicago warehouse stocks of lard.

TIME IS SLIPPING QUICKLY BY END TRAVEL CLUB WORK IN SIGHT

Final Results of Campaign Will Probably See Many Saying I Could Have Done Better.

WORTHWHILE TRIPS.

More than five weeks have elapsed since the first announcement of the New York-Bermuda Travel Club plan to send ten ladies on a glamorous holiday as guests of the Peterborough Examiner. The time has slipped quickly by and it is hard to realize that just a few more days remain before the campaign closes. The trip to be taken by the ambitious and energetic ladies very soon will be more than a holiday. The intrinsic value of such a trip as has been arranged by The Examiner through the Travel Club cannot be valued in dollars and cents. Travel is educational and broadens the mind and, to say the least, the prizes won by the winning ladies will be an asset to them of inestimable value as long as they live. The ladies as long as they live. The really worth while. The subscribers and supporters are helping the ladies to attain their goal—these are worth while trips.

The final results of the campaign will soon be past history and the candidates throughout the field are determined to make the most of the few remaining days. Apparently, as a result of the hectic struggle for the special prizes last week, the efforts of certain candidates to obtain votes, abated somewhat. The result is that advantages have been lost by some and gained by others. The candidates everywhere are well advised to make every minute count from now on and, from observations throughout the field, this

BEET FARMERS ISSUE THREATS

Return to Work or Leave Property They Tell Foreign-born Strikers.

MANY STAND GUARD.

WALLACEBURG, Ont., June 4.—(C.P.)—Threats of farmers they would force striking foreign-born sugar beet workers from their homes on farm property brought a new angle into the sugar beet strike here yesterday.

"Return to work or we will put you out of the house. Take your choice," was the ultimatum issued by several after a meeting of farmers at the farm of Percy Whitmarsh in Chatham Township.

Meanwhile the strikers held a meeting of their own near the Whitmarsh farm, and watched three men at work in the fields—men guarded by Whitmarsh himself.

"If my men want to work, I am going to see they get the chance," said Whitmarsh.

Strikers demand an increase from the present $14 to $18 per acre for blocking the beets.

PLAN ENLARGED ON PROSPECTING

Northern Ontario to be Divided Into Seven Areas in Search For Minerals.

$1,000,000 JOB.

OTTAWA, June 4 (C.P.).—Northern Ontario will be divided into seven areas for the purpose of conducting surveys to ascertain whether gold, silver or other minerals might be prospected for with profit by private enterprise, Minister of Mines Wesley A. Gordon last night gave some general information of the Ontario areas which will be covered by parties of the Dominion Geological Survey in their hunt for mineral-bearing locations.

In considerable detail the Minister's statement described the areas in which the work will be carried on. It did not, however, indicate the number of parties which it is planned to send out. The sum of $1,000,000 was earmarked for this exploratory work in the supplementary public works construction act. This, however, was to be utilized all over Canada.

It was revealed that search for extension of the petroleum and natural gas areas of Southern Ontario will be prosecuted near London.

INQUEST PROBES GIRL'S MURDER

Suspect Admits Assaulting Victim But Denies Killing Her.

SASKATCHEWAN MYSTERY.

NAICAM, Sask., June 4 (C.P.).—Inquest into the death of 10-year-old Anna May Bentson, found in a deserted cabin near her mother's farm 22 miles east of here on May 18, resumes to-day at Tisdale.

Meanwhile, Royal Canadian Mounted Police hold in custody on a charge of murdering the girl, John Welch, 26, transient arrested at Souris, Man., after allegedly assaulting a six-year-old girl.

Welch re-enacted for police and neighbors his meeting with the murdered girl. He is said to have admitted criminally assaulting the girl, but steadfastly denied killing her.

Later, finding her dead, he is alleged to have declared he hid the body under the floor of the cabin and placed an old stove over the hole.

Three days later he appeared in the Souris district where he was arrested and turned over to R.C.M.P. when the Crown waived proceedings in the Souris assault charge.

His preliminary hearing will begin at the completion of the inquest.

FAIR WAGE LAW ON GOVERNMENT WORK UPHELD

Gordon Exacting Sworn Declarations From Contractors He Tells Commons.

"WHITE LIST" PROPOSED.

Fraser, Northumberland, Charges Rural Mail Contracts Let at Scandalous Prices.

OTTAWA, June 4 (CP)—With an assurance before them from Minister of Labor W. A. Gordon that increasing vigilance is being exercised to see that fair wages are paid on all work done by the government under contract, members of the House of Commons to-day turn again to legislation based on the Price Spreads report. The amendments to the Criminal Code hitting at low wages and unfair trade practices are due for consideration after the financial bills enacting the budget resolutions are passed.

Sworn Declaration

Last night when Labor Department estimates were before the House, Mr. Gordon revealed his department was exacting sworn declarations of the wages being paid by all contractors doing work for the government. He said he had been perhaps more vigorous than his predecessors in enforcing the Fair Wage Laws, and with the new legislation now before Parliament giving him increased power he believed still better results could be obtained.

Mr. Gordon made his statement just after A. A. Heaps, Labor member for Winnipeg North, advocated taking such declarations. He said the minister's statement was satisfactory.

Mr. Gordon said he had followed the practice of previous governments in stipulating fair wages on work done for the government, but believed he had been more vigorous than the others. He hoped under legislation being enacted this session that the full powers of parliament could be directed to the obtaining of fair wages on every possible type of work.

Oshawa Abandons Flying Field Plan

OSHAWA, June 4.—The construction of a municipal airport and flying field in this city has been abandoned for the present, it was learned yesterday, following an announcement made by Alderman A. F. Annis, chairman of the special committee which has been investigating the proposal. Alderman Annis stated that the Government is not prepared to give the city any assistance with the project at present, and that as the regulations call for the outright purchase or a long lease on the property, it is not possible for the city to attempt the venture. He pointed out that if the city were to lease the land it would cost several hundred dollars a year, from which there would be little or no remuneration.

Practical Protection

In industry, the study of ways and means of helping workers to improve their efficiency is accepted by a forward looking management as a never-ending duty.

Realizing that no worker ever does his or her best when beset with worry, the Imperial Tobacco Company sees to it that the workers in its employ have little cause for financial worry over what is going to happen in the event of sickness or death.

Every employee male or female knows that, if taken sick, he can count upon the Company for help. He knows that, without his having had to contribute anything to a sick benefit fund, he will receive, when laid up by sickness or some non-occupational accident, at least 50 per cent of his usual weekly wage, for a period that increases from year to year according to the length of service.

Should he desire to take advantage of the Company's plan of group insurance against death and permanent disability, he may do so any time after one year's employment. One-half of the cost of such insurance is borne by the Company. Policies in amounts from $500 to $3,000 are written on the lives of factory workers, at a cost to the worker of only 50 cents per month per $1,000 of insurance carried. Over 75 per cent of all factory workers, male and female, are insured in this way.

As a matter of further protection, the Company maintains a joint contributory Pension Fund, applicable for the time being to male salaried employees only, under which the employee on reaching a stipulated age, or prior thereto if incapacitated, or at any time after fifteen years service, may retire and receive for life a specified percentage of his salary.

In addition to the foregoing, the Company voluntarily makes subsistence allowances to those who leave its employ upon reaching the age of retirement, but who have not qualified under the pension plan. Every case is individually considered in the light of known facts, and dealt with accordingly. The Company disburses many thousands of dollars yearly in this way.

The concern the Imperial Tobacco Company has always shown for the financial protection of its employees has been more than reciprocated in the splendid loyalty and efficiency with which they have served the Company's interests.

Tuberculosis Nearing Defeat Specialist Claims

NOW POSSIBLE TO BANISH ".TB." FROM THE EARTH

Dr. Kleinschmidt Urges All Children Take X-ray Tubercular Tests.

ANTICIPATE DISEASE.

TORONTO, June 4.— Medically speaking, it is possible to banish tuberculosis from the face of the earth, Dr. H. E. Kleinschmidt, Director of Health Education, National Tuberculosis Association, New York, said in an interview yesterday.

50 Per Cent. Infected.

"When we say 'abolish' we do so from the standpoint of control. Plague is not gone, but neither does it ravage the world as it once did, because it is controlled," he stated.

Destroying the old theory that "T.B." germs are present in every one, merely awaiting a lowered resistance to take active effect, Dr. Kleinschmidt stated that fully 50 per cent. of the youth of colleges and high schools, particularly in urban municipalities, were infected with early stages of the disease.

"On the other hand," he pointed out, "we have isolated communities where virtually all the children are free of it."

This knowledge is what demands of medicine that with the help of the public it drop its defensive war and go out in search of the disease.

A Defensive Fight.

"To the persent our fight with tuberculosis has been a defensive, the isolation of definite cases of the disease mainly in sanatoria. In the last twenty-five years the death-rate has fallen to about one-third and it has dropped from the chief cause of death down into sixth place.

"These facts are leading many people to think that it is no longer a menace. They are dropping their guard," he said.

The only way to go out and fight the disease is to make an examination of all children with the tuberculin test and the X-ray. The test is very simple, harmless and cheap and nearly determines whether or not the germs are present, he said. The X-ray is relied upon to disclose whether any harm has been done.

"By this means we hope to anticipate the disease and not wait for it to develop. It is not a matter of expense so much as it is one of organization and public willingness.

X-Ray in Diagnosis

"There is no telling where the germs are," he continued in paying tribute to the X-ray, which had almost replaced the stethoscope and symptoms in the diagnosis of tuberculosis. "We used to think that undernourished children were the most susceptible to it. You are just as likely to find it in the healthy well-nourished child.

"Tuberculosis is a germ infection. Not a single germs, but a definite massive infection. They refer to it as a family disease. It runs through families, not that it is hereditary, but solely as an infection.

"A mother, unconscious of having tuberculosis, kisses her infant child on the mouth; that child has the disease," Dr. Kleinschmidt stated, and placed "over work, lowered resistance" and such generally attributed causes as being merely contributory elements once the germs had entered the body.

Lung Collapsing

Speaking briefly of treatment, he emphasized the practice of lung collapsing as "the brightest ray that ever entered the life of a consumptive."

A relatively new method that has been in use upward to ten years, although it was known before that, it merely entails collapsing the lung or an effected part to allow the lung an opportunity to rest. A more radical treatment is to remove sections of the ribs so that the chest caves in and the lung is collapsed. This is a permanent collapsing, and Dr. Kleinschimtd emphasized one fact: "It is not a cure-all. There are cases to which it is not applicable."

Last evening the doctor addressed a public meeting, sponsored by the Canadian Tuberculosis Association, in conjunction with their annual convention in the Concert Hall of the Royal York.

CITY COUNCIL STORM BREAKS

"That is an insult to me," the mayor remarked.

"What happened at Young's Point?" Alderman Stocker demanded (with obvious reference to the convention of the Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs in the summer of 1933), and in disregard of the mayor's gentle rebuke.

The remark was met with murmers of "Now! Now!" from the remainder of the Council, who appeared anxious to prevent the rise of any ill-feeling.

But Alderman Stocker was not to be so easily quietened.

"All this will go back to the chief. He has his stool-pigeons here," he stated.

"I ask Alderman Stocker to withdraw that term stool-pigeons," Alderman Tuggey demanded. "It is an obnoxious term. Be a man and withdraw it; retract that statement, please."

Refuses Retraction.

Alderman Stocker: "I will take back nothing."

"I don't think that is fair It is a reflection against every member of this Council," Alderman Tuggey complained. Then, realizing that his request was falling upon deaf ears, he broached another item of business, and expressed the hope that "all this trouble over the fire department might end here."

The subject of Shearer's dismissal from the department was re-opened by Alderman McIntyre, after he had brought to the attention of the Council the fact that he and Chief Gimblett had recently reached a settlement with Norwood municipality of $200 for the service of the brigade at the Norwood fire.

The announcement met with general approval, the mayor expressing the opinion that the settlement was "very satisfactory," while Alderman Tuggey described it as naving been "very good."

Alderman McIntyre stated that the reeve of Norwood and other officials of the municipality had been eminently fair, and it had been a real pleasure to do business with them.

The Storm Breaks.

Up to that juncture of the proceedings, the business before the Council had run along smoothly and without event. Then the vexed question as to the fire chief's authority to hire and fire members of the department, without consulting with the committee, was re-opened, and the atmosphere of the meeting changed to correspond with the weather conditions, which were "warm and sultry and threatening to storm."

In quoting from Chief Gimblett's report in which he stated that Shearer had been dismissed because he had been unable to pass examinations set by the chief, and would not in the chief's opinion be suited as a fireman, Alderman McIntyre said: "I do not question the chief's authority, but I do question the way in which this man was let out. If he had bad marks against him the chief had full authority to let him out, but his mere failure to answer examination questions does not constitute grounds for his summary dismissal."

Quotes By-law.

Reading clause 24 of the city by-law governing operations of the department, Alderman McIntyre pointed out that the chief is required to report to the committee any member of the department who cannot perform the duties required of him. Only where flagrant breaches of discipline are concerned has the chief authority to summarily dismiss a man from the service without consulting with the chairman.

Alderman McIntyre said he discussed the matter fully with the chief on Saturday night last, and the chief was agreed that he had exceeded his authority in not reporting the matter of Shearer's dismissal to the committee, and in failing to confer with the chairman regarding the appointment of Edwin Wigg, who replaced him

Alderman James Hamilton: "The chief rated Shearer as a probationer; did that make him a member of the department?"

Another Matter.

"That is another matter I was coming to," Alderman McIntyre replied. "Shearer was 14 months on the department, and was rated as a probationer during the whole of that time. He was not taken off his probationary period at the end of the normal 6-months period."

"This man has been discriminated against," Alderman James Ellis claimed.

Proceeding, Alderman McIntyre stated that Shearer, upon entering his second year of service, had only drawn first year pay. The increase that he should have received as a second-year man was withheld by the chief, and that may have been because of the fact that Shearer was away sick for a lengthy period during his first year, but in any case it should have come to the attention of the committee, he argued.

Alderman Fred. Tuggey: "Certainly."

Wigg on Watch.

Referring to Wigg's appointment, Alderman McIntyre exclaimed: "I went to the fire hall on Saturday night and he was sitting at the desk taking the watch. I said to the chief, the wheels are running fast. This man is already promoted to the desk. The chief told me that there was an officer with Wigg, but there was no officer with him when I first went into the station. If this is allowed to pass I say the chief has overstepped his authority."

Speaking of his efforts to arrive at some settlement, Alderman McIntyre remarked that the chief had asked, "Why can't you and I get along together." "I replied, 'We can't if you will not regard the by-law'."

Mayor Denne: "I think you could have both got together and straightened the matter out."

Alderman McIntyre: "Never again—I tried. If he keeps this new man there he is exceeding his authority and I have lost mine."

Another Angle.

Alderman Cotton: "I am ready to agree that some of the statements made by Alderman McIntyre are all right, but one must not forget that the chief came here and apologized for any mistake he made. I do not think the chief meant to do anything but carry his duty out right."

It was just a case of history repeating itself, Alderman Stocker believed. He had reference to the fact that similar trouble developed 13 years ago. The fire chief, he maintained, was responsible to the Council, and the Council in turn was responsible to the electors, "We have the remedy in our own hands," he said.

Alderman John D. Fitzpatrick expressed himself as being against the Fire, Water and Light Committee assuming authority, which, he believed, should rightfully belong to the chief of the department. And while he felt that in the present case the chief had perhaps overstepped his authority, he pointed out that the chief had apologized for the action which he took. "I would not take away the jurisdiction the chief has over his men; it would only result in the department being thrown into chaos."

Takes Similar Stand.

Similar expression was made by Alderman Macdonald, who, while not wishing to see the chief deprived of any authority, felt that he should be required to live up to the terms of the by-law in reporting all such matters to the committee chairman before he decided upon any course of action. "The chief must recognize the chairman and other members of the committee in such matters," he was of the opinion.

"The chief recognized the fact that he made a mistake and he has apologized for it. I take it that is fair enough," said Alderman Cotton.

Alderman McIntyre: "I think that what should be done is to reinstate Shearer, and then if the chief wishes to discharge the man he should seek to do so in accordance with the provisions of the city by-law. If you let him away with this I don't know what is going to happen."

A Pertinent Question.

Stating that the only reason for Shearer's dismissal given by the chief was that Shearer failed to answer some examination questions relative to the size of water mains, Alderman Tuggey demanded, "What have the size of water mains to do with fire-fighting. I would like to know? We expect our firemen to go out and fight fires, and we can leave the question of water mains to the Utilities Commission."

He maintained that it was unfair that any man should be dismissed without being afforded an opportunity of presenting his case and "if we are to let the chief fire a man and give him no redress it is a bad thing and should not be permitted. It means that a man might be fired merely because the chief happens to take a dislike to him, and it is not in keeping with democratic principles, but is more like dictatorship. I would like to see Shearer reinstated and given back his job. Every man should look at this matter in the light of democratic government."

Another Vacancy.

Mayor Denne: "Was anybody appointed in Carey's place."

"Not yet," Alderman McIntyre replied.

The mayor's question hinted at the possibility of Shearer being reinstated in the vacancy left by the death of Fireman Carey as a means of reaching a satisfactory settlement of the issue, but the matter was not seriously discussed.

It was Alderman E. R. Wilson's wish that Shearer should be given the consideration which, he said, was due to him as a ratepayer and a decent citizen.

"I would like to see the chief and the chairman get together on this question," Alderman Macdonald said.

"They can't—the chief is on his high horse," Alderman Stocker suggested.

With the motion and amendment before the Council, the mayor expressed his confidence in the ability of Alderman McIntyre to handle the matter in the best interests of all concerned, and with the result already stated, the matter was dropped for the Council to take up other items of business.

Tin Hermit Passes His 70th Birthday

PARIS, June 4 (A.P.). — Simon I. Patino, Bolivian, believed to be one of the world's ten richest men, passed his 70th birthday yesterday, wrapped in the mysterious seclusion which has led Paris to dub him the "tin hermit."

Outside his huge palace on the Avenue Foche, brawny guards from the mountains of the Andes patrolled the sidewalk. Inside, surrounded by a battery of secretaries, the round-faced squat Bolivian who turned his nation's tin into gold, spent the morning reading the latest news from the Chaco.

In name Patino is the Bolivian Minister to France—a silent minister who never goes to diplomatic functions and who visits the Embassy perhaps twice a year. He is a diplomat for taxes only.

No other "hermit" in Paris has kept more successfully out of the public gaze than the Spanish Indian carver of mosswood who, at 35, found tin and became the world's tin king 15 years later.

CAMP STRIKERS VANGUARD HOPS FREIGHT TO EAST

B. C. Relief Gangs Plan to Lay Protest Before Federal Authorities.

MANY STOPS ON WAY.

Delegation 600 Strong Expects to Gather Strength—Tag Day Yields $1.510.

VANCOUVER, June 4 (CP)—Vanguard of unestimated numbers slated to participate, 600 relief camp strikers were on their way to Ottawa to-day with the intention of taking their protests against camp conditions to federal authorities.

The men clambered aboard a 90-car Canadian Pacific Railway freight train en route east last night.

The Freight Route

The string of cars crept out of the yards to the cheers and shouted well-wishes of sympathizers and several hundred strikers who expect to follow their companions via the freight train route to-night.

It was a variegated crowd of men who scrambled for place atop the cars, unmolested by a few city police officers present.

There were young men and others not so young. Some had mackinaw coats; a few boasted overcoats, but the majority were dressed in much the same clothing they have worn since they left their camps in various parts of the province April 4 and congregated in the city.

One young striker grinned ruefully as he displayed his right arm in a sling. He had "cracked it" Sunday night, he said, but was "on his way to Ottawa with the rest of the boys."

Stop-overs

Present plans call for a two-day stopover at Kamloops, B.C., one day at Golden, B.C., and three days in Calgary. Other stops planned are Medicine Hat, Alta., one day; Moose Jaw and Regina, one day; Brandon, Man., one day; Winnipeg, four days; Fort William and Port Arthur, two days each; Sudbury, one day, and Toronto, four days.

Tonight the second section of the strikers, about 400 strong, expect to leave on a freight train to join their comrades later in Toronto.

Saturday the strikers held an unauthorized tag day and collected $1,510 to meet the costs of the trek to Ottawa. Twenty taggers were arrested and will be arraigned in court to-day.

Wilfred Heighington, M.P.P., of Toronto, quoted Hon. Mitchell Hepburn's speech in 1934 at Woodstock when he said "that all unemployed in Ontario would be given full employment, whether or not relief came from the Federal Government." The speaker referred to the increasing debt as piled up by the Hepburn Government since taking office, and criticized the wholesale dismissals made by the Hepburn Government and the wholesale Liberals appointed at great expense to the country.

Unwarranted Attack

Hon. Robert Weir, federal minister of agriculture claimed that the Liberal party has made a most vicious, unwarranted attack on the prime minister. "They have said that he is a man of great wealth and therefore is not in sympathy with the common people. We are thankful that we have a prime minister who has enough money that the big interests cannot buy him", said Mr. Weir. The present prime minister of this country is the on has ever had.

greatest prime minister the dominion

"The Liberals say that we, by our tariff policy have restricted the trade of our country. This is absolutely false".

Referring to the Farmer's Creditor's Arrangement Act and the Farmer's Loan Act, Mr. Weir stated that the prosperity of the country depends to a large extent on the farmers of the Dominion. "We put up tariffs against foreign commodities to give the Canadian market to Canadians", he stated. The Ottawa agreements did enough to elect the Conservative government for another five years without anything else. The remnant of once great Liberal party has not done one constructive thing during the last four and one half years. We have in our prime minister the greatest power in Canada in the past and if his health is spared, the greatest constructive power in the future.

Denton Massey of Toronto, said, "We are all crusaders in the cause of Canada—not out to win a campaign. All the other fellow can do is to miserably attack a man who is doing his best. We are here to build up, not to tear down. I challenge any man or ten women to define the 1935 policy of the Liberal party. It can't be done. There is no policy. What sort of nationalism or statesmanship is there when they won't tell till the night before an election to present a policy."

Obituary

MRS. JOHN GARNEAU

TRENT RIVER, June 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—The community was deeply shocked to learn of the sudden passing of Elizabeth Roe Garneau, beloved wife of John Garneau, at her home, Trent River, Sunday night after a short illness of about six hours.

Mrs. Garneau, with her husband, had spent the day in Marmora with her daughter, Mrs. Charlie Jones, and family, leaving for home apparently in her usual health. Shortly after arriving home, she attended to the usual chores and when milking the cow took a weak turn. Mr. Garneau ran to the nearest neighbor and medical aid was summoned, but Mrs. Garneau never rallied.

Deceased was 71 years of age. Born in Stirling, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Roe, she was married twice; her first husband being James Covert. To this union were born five daughters: Mrs. S. Rylott of Havelock, Mrs. Walter Hermiston of Regina, Mrs. Charles Jones of Marmora, Mrs. Harry Pollock and Mrs. Ray Scott of Havelock; one son died at the age of five years. Mr. Covert's death took place at Victoria. In 1911 she married John Garneau of Trent River where she resided the remainder of her life.

Besides her sorrowing husband there survive the loss of a devoted mother, her five daughters, twenty-two grandchildren; two brothers, William Roe of Brantford and Jason Roe of Belmont.

In the passing of Mrs. Garneau, Trent River and surrounding district loses one of its most beloved and highly esteemed residents, one who was ever ready to give a helping hand in time of trouble, a kind friend, good neighbor and will be sadly missed by a large circle of friends.

She was a member of Trent River United Church, an ardent worker in the Ladies' Aid and Women's Institute.

The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon. After a short service at the house at half-past one o'clock, conducted by Rev. S. A. Kemp, the funeral cortege proceeded to Victoria Church, Cordova Road, where service was held, conducted by Rev. S. A. Kemp, assisted by Rev. Mr. Colquhoun, a former pastor of the deceased. Interment was at Victoria Cemetery.

Services were conducted at the Codrington United Church by the Rev. J. W. Flatt of Norham. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. D. C. Stewart, Thomas Martin, R. B. Ryckman, P. J. Cowan, William Poole, and Grant Goodfellow. The remains were laid to rest in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Brighton Township.

FAIR WAGE LAW

South Centre. He said before a firm was allowed to tender, on a government contract it should be compelled to establish, not only that it would pay fair wages in the future, but that it had paid fair wages in the past. In this way a "white list" of eligible concerns for government work could be established.

Discussion of fair wages revived a political issue of 1929, the payment of rural mail carriers who work under contracts let to the lowest tender.

F. G. Sanderson (Lib., Perth South) and Pierre Casgrain (Lib., Charlevoix - Saguenay) advocated paying these men on a mileage basis and at a higher rate, and Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, recalled he had proposed a resolution to that effect in 1929 which had been voted down by the Liberals who were then on the government side.

Conservatives twitted Liberals with advocating now what they had opposed in 1929, and Liberals twitted Conservatives with not putting into effect what they had advocated in opposition, until Mr. Gordon remarked, "All of which shows that both parties have been wonderfully consistent."

Mail Contracts

Rural mail contracts were let at scandalous prices, said William Fraser, (Liberal, Northumberland). He agreed with Mr. Gordon this condition had existed for years. He suggested the government could not expect private employers to practise ethical labor standards if the government did not. The Ontario Liberal suggested the government appointed a committee to study mail contract prices. He told of one man who was paid 20 cents an hour for carrying mail once a day across three miles of water.

Pierre Casgrain, Liberal member for Charlevoix-Saguenay, proposed the mileage system be adopted.

The minister said he had moved in 1930, before the election, to institute the mileage system, but the Liberals voted it down.

"Why haven't you put it into practice in the last five years?" asked Liberal members, leading to the minister's statement regarding finances.

Mr. Sanderson said at the session of 1929 Mr. Guthrie had almost shed tears in his speech about rural mail contracts. The speech was printed and sent out as election propaganda to all rural mail carriers along with a promise to change the system if the Conservatives came into office.

Voted Down

Hon. R. J. Manion said two of the Liberal spokesmen, Messrs. Casgrain and Sanderson, had helped a Liberal majority to vote down a resolution proposing fair wages on a mileage basis for rural mail carriers in 1929.

Hon. Peter Veniot, former postmaster-general, charged the present Government paid at least $250 000 a year less for mail contracts than the last administration. He claimed that mail contracts were not let always to the lowest tenderers, as set out in the law.

The Postoffice Department, Mr. Veniot said, asked some contractors to pare down their figures when lower tenders were submitted against them.

"The chickens are coming home to roost" Mr. Veniot told Conservative members, reminding them of what he claimed was their unfulfilled pre-election promise to institute the mileage system.

Messages From The King

The House celebrated the King's birthday by receiving a personal message from His Majesty thanking the Parliament of Canada for the Jubilee address delivered to him by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett. The members also took a couple of hours off to attend the Governor-General's annual garden party.

Mr. Gordon revealed that the total cost of old age pensions in Canada last year was $16.566,000 of which the Dominion Government contributed $12,313,000. There were 86.873 pensioners. Mr. Gordon said he coud not say whether any changes in the old age pensions system were contemplated this session.

Parts of the Canada Shipping Act pertaining to domestic matters will be brought into effect shortly, Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Marine, informed the House, when his estimates were called. The act was passed two years ago but has never been placed in effect.

Mr. Duranleau explained that parts of it are international in scope and designed to fit in with a uniform system of shipping laws for the whole Empire. Canada took the lead in getting the act on the statute books but it cannot be wholly placed in effect until the other nations of the British Empire put through the bills the are now working on.

The House yesterday received the report of the Commission headed by Mr. Justice J. D. Hyndman on unemployment among ex-service men. It recommended the setting up of a voluntary and temporary commission to assist in providing work for veterans by direct placements with employers, and, made other proposals.

RELIEF GARDENS.

The announcement that the relief garden scheme is being pushed forward on a greater scale than ever this year, with more unemployed men applying for lots and with greater general interest being displayed, should be gratifying.

The garden plan has amply justified itself by its success in previous years, for it has been established that for an initial expenditure of $2 for seeds and ploughing there has been an average yield per lot of $20 worth of vegetables, surely a good return on the investment, and one that gave many unemployed families a worth-while supply for table use.

Even more valuable, however, was the influence upon the morale of the men who entered into the garden plan, and who displayed a pride in their cultivation activities; they gained physically from the exercise and from their hours in the open air, while the achievement of earning something with their own hands had a stimulating mental effect that made this garden work a source of encouragement and stimulation.

Here's success to all Peterborough's gardeners; may they reap a rich harvest this year.

A GOOD TOURIST SEASON.

The Hotel Greeters of Vancouver were told at a recent meeting that this promises to be the best tourist season since 1929, and we agree with the Vancouver Sun that this is pleasant news to all, for the tourist dollar enters all channels of business.

It is interesting to recall that the peak year was in 1929 when the tourist industry was the third greatest in Canada that year, with an estimated expenditure by visitors of $300,000,000, and by 1933 this revenue had dropped to $107,000,000.

There was an increase last year of some $14,000,000, and with the Canadian Travel Bureau reporting numerous inquiries as the result of an extensive and intelligent advertising campaign, there is every reason to look for a substantial gain in the volume of tourist traffic during the present year.

Already the army of visitors is on the move; the advance guard is already in our midst, and from now on it should be everybody's business to welcome our tourist friends, and to treat them as good neighbors and honored guests of this country.

As the Sun truly says, scenic beauties and holiday facilities attract tourists, but it is friendly atmosphere and neighborly interest in their visit everywhere they turn that keeps them here and brings them back again.

Let us all keep that fact in mind and do everything in our power to treat our summer visitors with courtesy and with a friendliness that will make them glad they came and eager to return once again next year.

THE HONOR LIST.

While many Canadians have seen no reason to change their attitude in regard to titles—and their restoration in this country will always be regretted by those opposed in principle to the system—it must be admitted that in the list chosen for honors in the King's birthday list an excellent choice has been made.

Titles have been apparently given on the basis of achievement rather than of wealth or political influence, and for that Canadians generally will be grateful.

In honoring such men as E. W. Beatty for his services in connection with education as head of the Board of McGill University and as leader of the Boy Scout movement in Canada; Professor McLennan, of Toronto University, for his contribution to science; E. Wylie Greer, Canada's outstanding portrait painter; Charles G. D. Roberts, one of the Dominion's best known writers; Dr. McMillan, whose services in the field of music have made him a national figure, and other eminent Canadians, the honor list will strike a responsive chord in Canada.

There will be gratification, too, over the fact that honors have been accorded in various order to Canadian men and women who have made worth-while contributions in every field of public and community service, and particularly over the tribute paid to such famous Canadians as "Ralph Connor," Dr. Dafoe and Edward Johnson.

If there must be titles and honors of this nature in this country let us hope that the same care will be taken in future lists as is evident in the present one to see that those are picked out for royal recognition who have shown themselves entirely worthy of such distinction.

TRADE WITH THE EMPIRE.

According to the Royal Bank's latest monthly letter, from which we quoted yesterday to show the increase in Canada's trade last year, between 1933 and 1935 Canadian exports to Empire countries other than Great Britain increased by more than 100 per cent.

Next in importance to the Dominion's exports to Great Britain and the United States stand exports to Australia.

These exports in 1933 had a value of seven million dollars, but in the last fiscal year there was a total of eighteen million dollars.

During the same interval exports to South Africa increased from four million dollars to twelve million, and to New Zealand from three and one-half million to more than seven million dollars.

The success which has crowned efforts to foster trade between these Empire countries is remarkable, in view of the natural limitations upon the volume of goods which can be advantageously exchanged.

Both Australia and Canada, for instance, produce large quantities of wheat and flour; each is a large producer of cattle and meat. Australia is one of the largest dairying countries, but Canada produces sufficient butter for her own requirements. Both countries are making every effort to supply a steadily increasing proportion of their own requirements of manufactured goods, yet notwithstanding these limitations, Australia ranks third among the export markets of Canada.

While a somewhat similar argument might be put forward to prove that there was little basis for trade with South Africa and New Zealand, it is, says the bank report, more interesting to examine the products which have come to make up the bulk of Canadian exports to these countries.

To all three countries Canada sends automobiles and parts, fish, textiles, pipes, tubes and fittings, farm implements, and wood and wood products. The heaviest gains have been made in automobiles, paper and lumber. The table, however, gives only the leading items amounting to $32 million out of $37 million of exports. In addition, Canada sends to Australia aluminum products, asbestos, brass clocks and watches, coal, glassware, soda compounds and stationery. To South Africa go candy, felt, cereal foods, fruits, pickles, and most important, rails. Rubber footwear, tires, onions, salt, manufactured leather goods, macaroni, cornstarch, furs and clover seed are among the many other items which make up the remaining $5 million.

On the whole, Canadian exports to these countries are much more varied than her imports. From Australia, South Africa and New Zealand, Canada imports fresh, dried and canned fruits, sugar, wool and hides. These few items account for eleven of the twelve million dollar imports from these countries. With the maximum of good-will it is doubtful whether the variety of imports can be much increased, since Canada herself produces most of the other products of these countries. This situation was recognized at the Empire Trade Conferences, and in face of this natural limitation upon Canadian imports, these countries each made liberal concessions to encourage purchasing from Canada.

OUR NEW RACE OF PIONEERS.

Canadian universities this spring are turning out into the world six thousand young men and women, their formal education ended. These young people from the inside have looked out upon a changing world. Now they are to learn at first hand the difficulties that confront those seeking to establish themselves in business and the professions.

University heads, recognizing the difficulties, are not pessimistic. Chancellor Beatty, for example, speaking to the McGill graduating class, spoke of "measured and unhurried progress," reminded them that they had laid an enduring foundation and their ultimate advantage could not be questioned. They had something on which to build, and with patience the reward of knowledge would come.

That, we think, is the calm and reasoned viewpoint. The university graduate has many advantages over the young fellow of the same age who left school at sixteen. He has less practical experience with the problems of making a living, but he has a far more versatile academic background, his mental resources should be broader, he should be in a position to give better employment to his leisure—he is prepared to meet opportunity half way.

And it is, of course, foolish pessimism to assume that opportunities are finished in this young country. The professions, as always, demand youth and courage, ability and knowledge. The field of applied sciences is a vast one, and it is reasonable to suppose the developments of the past three decades will be matched in the next three. This young country has hesitated, but it has not stopped. In the historic sense the depression will be seen as but an incident in a period of great progress, and its passing will give an impetus to those prepared to take up the march.

* * * *

But it is equally foolish for the graduate to expect that employers or clients are going to beat a path to his door, that he need but sit back to await the reward he considers adequate for his learning he has acquired—largely at the expense of the state, of public aid and private endowment. He should consider himself one of a new race of pioneers, should not be averse to a degree of hardship his grandfather would have thought utter luxury.

If he is a doctor is he willing to hang up his shingle in the village, enter the gallant company of general practitioners, or does he propose to "specialize" in the city?

If a lawyer, is he content with nothing less than a place in an established firm or will he seek a footing in the small town—go pioneering?

If trained in one of the branches of science, will he take any job that puts him within possible reach of his objective or is he to sit back awaiting a position?

If a graduate in arts, is he insistent upon something he regards as worthy of his cultural achievements or will he take what offers—and go out looking for it?

Such are considerations facing these six thousand. If they take the ground that the world owes them a living they will find the world singularly cold and skeptical. If they are out only for a "good time" or an "easy job" they are going to come down to earth with a bump. If money is their sole goal they will find much disappointment on that road. But if they can recapture some of the pioneering spirit that is represented in the development we see all about us, if they go on in faith and confidence and determination to overcome obstacles, satisfied with what Mr. Beatty calls "measured and unhurried progress," they need not view the future with alarm.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Knighthood, it would seem, is again in full flower in Canada.

With the retirement of Ruth something has gone out of professional baseball. There have been many hard hitters, but only one Babe Ruth.

The prophets who said that Premier Bennett's name would appear in the King's birthday honor list were apparently making a very bad guess.

The kindest service the Toronto press can accord Premier Hepburn's adopted son is to refrain from making him a front page figure. Let him grow up as a member of the family if he is to attain permanent happiness.

Several municipalities have refused to permit tag days in aid of hunger marchers. Surely there are enough of these appeals without adding to their number by campaigns for such a silly object as this.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

YOU MUST HAVE A CENTER

Every man, every woman, is a center....Sure as you were born, you are a center....A center of growth, a center of activity, a center of being alive.

You can't get away from it. No matter how modest you may be, you are the center of your own thought. This is your brain, these are your hands, this is your life. You cannot strip yourselves of them. You must be your own center....This isn't selfishness. This is merely being alive.

We are all collections of centers, and we must accept that fact. A woman's center may be her children. Or it may be popularity. Or keeping her house clean and livable. A man's may be his job. Or his public career. Or golf. Or his good looks. Or for both of them it may be their religious faith, or the well being of humanity—something that seems outside of themselves, but is in fact the profoundest part of their natures.

But sometimes a man loses what he has always considered his most precious possession. His job. His health. His popularity. His faith in his fellows. Or in himself. Or in the value of the work he is doing....And then he is flung back on himself. He feels useless, shriveled, discarded, empty. And life seems futile, frivolous, meaningless, a cheat. His center has been dissipated, is scattered to the winds.

And though he walks the earth in the appearance of a man, he is no man at all, because he has no center. He is lost until he believes again that he has some use in this life. Until he takes responsibility upon his shoulders once more. Until he believes again that he—one little mite among all the people on this earth—has some value, and is needed by other men and women, and is doing his share. Unless he regains his own self-respect, he becomes a center of despair and cynicism and defeat—an enemy of all who knows him....He must, to save himself, come back to his own hard, healthy and joyful center again.

Your Health

by DR LOGAN CLENDENING

The subject of food handlers is an extremely important public health problem, with which public health officials have a great deal of difficulty and I feel that this is partly due to the indifference of the public.

I received a letter not long ago calling my attention to the condition in a candy factory in which many of the employes were ill, coughing on the candy in the process of manufacture, handling it with dirty fingers, etc. Since the letter was anonymous the conditions were perhaps exaggerated. Still we know that this sort of danger exists, and perhaps the only way to cure it is to overemphasize the situation.

The essential danger of the food handler who has infection upon his hands or in droplets from his mouth, is that food is so often an excellent culture medium for germs. Germs do not grow, perhaps, do not even live, upon many articles which might be contaminated from the hand or droplet infection. But nice hot, mashed potatoes or warm candy mixtures are the finest of soils for their propagation.

Improvement Made

A great deal of improvement has been made in our control of the cleanliness of food. The exposure of food products in open windows and stalls, and their handling by all and sundry, is a thing of the past in the better neighborhoods.

"In this connection it is of interest that last year the municipal council of Paris requested the Academy of Medicine to express an opinion on the subject of the protection of foodstuffs exposed for sale. The academy recommended that bread and cakes should be wrapped in transparent coverings, and that meat and fish should never be exposed outside shops. Protection of fruit was recognized to be more difficult as purchasers like to test by handling, but simple washing an hour oro two before use was recommended."

Milk, which is among the best culture media, is now thoroughly protected in most places, first by pasteurization and then by careful bottling under aseptic conditions.

In the case of food poisoning from meat it is found that the casual organism is usually bacterium belonging to the salmonella group and, according to an English authority. Savage, minced meat foods, meat pies, and foods which are subjected to some manipulation like pressed and salted beef, stews, ham and bacon, were responsible for 47 out of 121 outbreaks of food poisoning due to meat.

A Thought

Would you rather be a rose that died,
Crushed, trampled on the floor,
Or a sweet and rosy apple
That was rotten at the core?

Would you rather have a heart that aches,
From undeserving blame,
Or have a world of joy or wealth,
Without a real good name?

If fame would bring you riches,
Or riches bring you fame,
Do you think you'd rather have them
Than just a real good name?

A CANADIAN ADMIRAL AT BALACLAVA

On this date (June 4) a former harbor master of Quebec died of cholera in the harbor of Balaclava. Edward Boxer came of an English family which had long been identified with the Royal Navy. Accepted as a cadet when 15, he rose through the ranks until in 1814 he won the command of H.M.S. Wizard. His connection with Canada began in 1822 when he commanded the Sparrow-hawk and other ships. Then he took part in the campaign in Syria, winning at C.B. (Companionship of the Bath) and August 24, 1845, he was named harbor master of Quebec. His fluency in French and his strict attention to duty made him popular, so much so, that in 1849 he was elected to the city council for St. Louis ward for two years and, in the language of a French author, "gave excellent service to his colleagues and to the city."

Recalled to England in 1853 he was promoted to rear admiral and when the war came with Russia he was given charge of the convoys of troops across the North Sea, after which he was transferred to the south, being appointed superintending Admiral at Balaclava. There he contracted cholera and died on H.M.S. Juana at the entrance to the harbor. Lord Raglan paid high tribute to "this officer who devoted his life to the public service."

When the news of his death reached Quebec the desk in the city council chamber at which he sat was draped in black and a resolution of condolence was passed by the council. One of his daughters returned to Quebec as Mrs. C. E. Levey and I think that Mrs. J. N. Boxer, for many years one of the leading figures in the Numismatic and Antiquarian Society of Montreal, was a descendant of the admiral. Perhaps some reader can tell of other descendants of this great, but little known British sailor who won so much affection in Canada.

Time Is Slipping To End of Travel Club

seems to be the attitude of most of the candidates. The members of the Travel Club, in less favorable positions, feel that their competitors have by no means an impossible lead and are going to make a real bid for leadership, when the final count of votes is made. This is a reasonable attitude to take. It would be almost impossible to name the ultimate winners of the trips at the present time, although various standings have appeared. Anything can happen between now and the end of the campaign. This is very evident when comparisons are made of the standings shown thus far, and as concrete evidence we might cite the case of Mrs. Bill Jones, of Castleton, who was well down in the standing when special prizes were awarded at Cobourg last year. Mrs. Jones led the field at the finish, winning a double tour to New York and Bermuda, although she did not win a special prize at the half-way mark.

It will be but a matter of a few days when possibly some candidate will be heard to say: "I could have done better if I had tried harder," or "If I had known I was so close, I would have made a special effort." Now is the time to put forth the special effort for we are practically on the "home stretch." Those failing to make the most of the dying moments of the campaign could not expect others to mark time, that their standing might not be changed.

Subscribers and supporters everywhere are anxious that the Local Club Member in their particular district should be a winner. People like to back winners. In many cases subscribers who have already paid a subscription are just waiting for their member to call back for a SECOND PAYMENT subscription because they realize that votes will never be higher than this week and that their member needs every possible vote. Supporters are going to get a real 'kick' out of seeing their favorite win, so the Travel Club Members will do well to see that they do not let their supporters down. The winning slogan will be "Every Possible Vote To-day, Not Next Week." Let the end of the campaign take care of itself. TO-DAY is the important thing. Especially is this true in view of the fact that special Bonus Votes that have been offered for $10 and $12 Clubs will not be extended after this week. Every Travel Club Member does well to take advantage of the final Bonus Offer of 150,000 votes for every $12 turned in this week. Remember, regular votes drop again at the end of this week.

There is a real opportunity from now on to capitalize on the early efforts put forth in the campaign by obtaining second payment subscriptions. In the case of second payments, higher vote values are secured because the first payment was obtained when regular votes were high. It is possible to secure two and three times the number of regular votes for a certain amount of money where money represents second payments instead of initial payments at the decreased vote rate now in vogue.

DULL SESSION MINING MARKET

Gains Made in Some of Golds and Base Metals Lost During Afternoon.

SILVERS MILDLY SOFT.

TORONTO, June 4 (C.P.).—Firm but fairly quiet, the mining section of the Toronto Exchange had a rather uninteresting session following the holiday. Some of the golds and base metals had a morning sally into higher ground, but for the most part the gains were dropped during the afternoon. Silvers appeared mildly soft, through the morning, but the tone improved in the last hour and the final losses were of minor proportions.

Noranda got above the $40 mark for a gain of more than $1, but part of the advance was erased. Falconbridge, Hudson Bay, Sherritt, Big Missouri and Mining Corporation closing firm to strong. In the silvers, Eldorado was off 8 cents to 1.76 for a time, but improved a little before the close. Castle and Bear slipped back 2 to 3 cents each.

Senior golds closed practically unchanged. Patricia had a price rise of about 8 cents to 1.56. San Antonio weakened 7 cents and God's Lake, McWatters and Pickle Crow eased back a couple of cents each.

FAVOR PENSIONS FOR BLIND AT 40

Woodsworth Suggests an Amendment to Old Age Pensions Act.

HIT QUEBEC, BRUNSWICK.

OTTAWA, June 4 (CP) — An amendment to the Old Age Pensions Act to pay pensions to blind persons over 40 years of age was recommended to-day by the House Committee of Industrial and International relations.

The recommendation provided in those provinces in which old age pensions are not in force—Quebec and New Brunswick—pensions to the blind should be made possible without the provinces bringing in the entire act.

The Old Age Pensions Act provides for pensions to needy persons over 70 years of $20 a month. The committee previously had recommended the act be extended to provide for blind persons between 40 and 70 years old under the same conditions. The committee had taken the view the reference did not give it authority to recommend an entirely new act.

Previous View

The House referred back the report to the committee with authority to recommend a new act. The view taken by the house was the amendment to the present act would not take care of blind people in Quebec and New Brunswick, where 36 per cent. of the blind live.

The committee to-day, under the chairmanship of F. W. Turnbull (Cons., Regina), was unanimous in favor of the principle of pensions for the blind, but a long discussion developed on whether the Old Age Act should be amended or a new act recommended dealing exclusively with pensions for the blind.

J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg) suggested an amendment to the Old Age Pensions Act with the provision it could be brought into force by provinces without adopting the entire act.

A sub-committee will draft a report embodying the motion.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, June 4 (AP)—The stock market continued to push ahead to-day as traders apparently expected bullish results from new NRA developments at Washington.

The activity expanded somewhat on the further upturn and gains of 1 to around 2 points were registered by Columbia Carbon, Union Carbide, Union Pacific, American Can, Air Reduction, Case, Du Pont, Philip Morris, American Tobacco "B," Standard Oils of New Jersey and California and Seaboard Oil. Cuban-American Suger Preferred recovered 5 points.

The late tone was firm. Transfers approximated 800,000 shares.

A LITTLE MORE WORK.

EDMONTON, June 4 (C.P.). — Emphasizing its action was in no sense an olive branch, but merely a move to show it was not vindictive, the City Council has voted to restore deductions suffered by relief strikers "provided the commissioners are assured the strike has been called off." In future relief recipients will be required to do much more work than they have been doing.

INTERNATIONAL PETE REGISTERS FAIR ADVANCE

Oil Group Leads Industrial Board for Volume in Day's Trade.

Gains Outnumber Losses.

TORONTO, June 4 (C.P.). — The oils gave a strong demonstration and were able to attract a considerable following on the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange today. International Petroleum pushed up to 37½ to show a gain of nearly three points while Imperial Oil was nearly two points up at the close. The group led the board for volume also, and a fair trade took place in the metals as well as Ford A and Brazilian. Gains outnumbered losses at the close.

Nickel closed a half point up around 28⅝, and bids were raised also for Consolidated Smelters which, however, was slightly down at the close. Brazilian and Ford A reduced early losses to a minimum and C.P.R. finished with a fractional gain.

Distillers Seagrams came along with a gain of about half a point and Brewers and Distillers made up a morning loss.

Closing prices were higher for the utilities, the foods, steels, and the building stocks.

LETTERS BY HALL ARE HIGHLIGHT

on August 3, 1934, Hall was called before a board at the Penitentiary but the only questions he was asked dealt with the frequency of his conversations with Warden W. B. Megloughlin.

No General Probe.

Throughout the early proceedings Judge Daly insisted his junction was not to conduct a general investigation on penitentiaries. He asked Mr. McRuer to adhere to matters that were relevant. If Miss MacPhail's counsel insisted on attempting to introduce matters that were not material, the Commission would sit for a month.

This would not help him at all in coming to a decision, said the Judge.

For about an hour Mr. McRuer sought to read extracts from Hall's letters, some of them written, as he admitted "surreptitiously" and commenting on conditions in Kingston Penitentiary.

This document, said Judge Daly, was an exhibit and he would attempt to interpret it himself. He did not think the fyle was going to have any effect on him in trying to decide the case.

"Unjustly Punished."

A somewhat contentious session came to a head when McRuer, recalling previous evidence, brought out Hall had believed himself to have been unjustly punished by Warden Megloughlin.

"You told Mr. Greer on May 4, after a breach with Megloughlin you would not be in a position to support him any longer. What did you mean by that?" asked McRuer.

Judge Daly objected.

"Well, then, I'll stop the cross-examination right now," said McRuer. "Here is a witness who tells Greer he couldn't support Megloughlin any longer. If I can't ask the question as to what the subject matter was I quit."

The Judge wanted to be fair but thought the question was improper.

It was brought out Hall had generally been considered as advisor to the convicts.

"They looked to me for advice," he said.

He knew trouble was pending and it was in his power to stop it. But after what he considered unjust punishment, he told Megloughlin he could not support the administration in any trouble that might occur.

Never Stirred Trouble.

Hall said he had never fomented trouble in the penitentiary. He said he had been acting chaplain of the Cahaugua County Jail at Cleveland in 1931. He had served on the Ellyott commission investigating methods of probation and re-establishment of convicts of Columbus Penitentiary and had helped to write its findings. Hall said he had written briefs on penology and sociology.

"The information we have is that you were arrested for representing yourself and purporting to be chaplain," said Greer.

"Not purporting to me — I was acting chaplain," said Hall.

"Well, during that period you were arrested and deported from the United States," commission counsel said.

A retort by Hall prompted Greer to tell him not to be impertinent.

"Well, I don't like the phraseology of your question," said the witness. "You are commission counsel, not prosecuting counsel."

Some question arose as to Hall's proper age and name. Previous statements showed him giving his name as Ernest Albert George Hall and his age variously as 53 and 41 years. There was a disparity of 12 years. He had no birth certificate, Hall said. His information was derived from relatives.

The commission adjourned until 3 p.m.

arate trials. Frank MacTemple testified in his own behalf but the son did not enter the witness box. Two juries found them guilty and they were sentenced to death by Mr. Justice W. T. Henderson.

Fred MacTemple passed his 21st birthday only three weeks ago in his cell in the St. Thomas jail.

The written reasons of the two justices were brief. Referring to what was said in Fred MacTemple's appeal as to provocation, Mr. Justice Riddell said, "There was nothing which our laws permits to be considered provocation in this case, nor were the jury called upon to express any opinion as to the conduct of the officers and, indeed no jury could be justified in finding that the conduct of the officers was faulty in any respect."

Unnotified As Yet

ST. THOMAS, Ont., June 4.—(CP)—Frank and Fred MacTemple, father and son, whose appeals against their conviction for murdering Constable Colin McGregor were dismissed by the Court of Appeals at Toronto today, have not yet been notified of the court's decision. Sheriff Cameron said he would leave the breaking of the bad news to Father O'Rourke, their spiritual adviser, when he pays his regular visit to them this afternoon. The condemned men have been in high hopes their appeals would be favorably received.

W. M. Blain who defended the elder MacTemple at the trial said no further action would be taken in the matter until after a conference with A. M. Label, London lawyer, who presented the appeals to the court. He intimated, however, in view of the unanimous decision of the Appeal Court further court action might not be undertaken but clmency would be sought from the Minister of Justice.

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up by an Examiner Reporter

TWO MINOR ACCIDENTS

Two minor accidents were reported to City Police yesterday, the first being one in which Miss Mary Hall of R.R. 9, Peterborough accidentally backed her car into a bicycle that was standing at the curb on George street. The machine owned by Bob Kingdon, 486 George street was damaged, and the owner accepted one dollar in settlement of the matter.

Miss Ennie McCracken reported that at 11 a.m. she was driving her car west on Hunter street bridge, when another car bearing license number LY-230 speeded-up to pass her car; cut in on approaching traffic at an estimated speed of 40 miles an hour and struck the left front fender of her car, causing some damage.

FORTY YEARS A MINISTER

CANON W. L. Baynes-Reed, D.S.O., rector of the Church of St. John the Baptist, Norway, is this year completing his 40th year as an ordained minister.

This genial and whole-hearted clergyman was born in London, Ont., and educated in the collegiate there, and later at Trinity College, Toronto, from which he graduated in 1895. He was ordained deacon by the late Archbishop Sweatman at St. Alban's Cathedral in 1895, and as priest in 1896. His first appointment was curate of Holy Trinity Church in 1895. He later became the incumbent at Otonabee, near Peterborough, in the same year. In January, 1898, he became assistant to Rev. Chas. Ruttan, at St. John's, Norway.

WEEKLY HALF HOLIDAY

Tomorrow the majority of storekeepers are inaugurating the weekly half-day closing that is to remain in effect throughout the months of June, July and August. The shopping public are accordingly requested to do their buying early, as the stores will close at 1 o'clock.

Grocers and butchers, are compelled to close their places of business for a half day each week during the summer quarter in accordance with requirements of a city by-law, but so far as other merchants are concerned the majority of them have a tacit agreement to close up their stores to give themselves and their employees the advantage of a half day for rest or recreation.

WRONG CHRISTIAN NAME.

In last evening's issue of The Examiner the address given on St. John's Anglican Church lawns on Sunday afternoon should have read Rev. Clarence Jackson instead of Rev. Austin Jackson, as published.

AWAIT NEWS FROM ASHLEY MINE.

No definite word has been received to-day as to conditions at the Ashley gold mines, eighty miles from New Liskeard which was reported yesterday as surrounded by forest fires. Mrs. Bennett, wife of the superintendent at the mines, is the only woman in this pioneer camp. She is a sister of Mrs. John Bradbury, 543 Water street and her relatives here are anxiously awaiting news of her safety.

A funeral service will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3.30 o'clock in St. John's Church, Venerable Archdeacon Dr. R. C. Blagrave officiating. The remains will then be forwarded for interment in St. Matthew's churchyard, Aldershot, Ontario.

Raccoon Discovered Inside City Limits

Employees of the Sanitary Ice Supply discovered a large raccoon sprawled high up on a limb above their coal sheds beside the Lakefield branch of the C.N.R. this morning. Their attention was attracted to the stranger from the open spaces by a raucous commotion among a flock of crows storming above the tree in the old cemetery south of Anson House. By some mistake in its bearings the animal had strayed across the city's limits, but sought a respite of safety in a tall tree of the cemetery. The men unloading coal into the Sanitary Ice Supply sheds were interested in the escape of the raccoon. The animal is protected by a closed season, and at this time of the year its pelt is of no commercial value. Reg. Turner shared the concern of his employees for its escape, hoping that under the cover of night it might retrace its steps to the country.

ATTACK ON GOLD AROUSES FRANCE

Premier Bouisson Promises Brutal and Decisive Action Against Speculators.

GETS CONFIDENCE VOTE.

By Richard G. Massock
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

PARIS, June 4 (A.P.). — Premier Fernand Bouisson pledged "brutal and decisive" action against those who "attack our gold" in a ministerial declaration to-day, as he was accorded an overwhelming vote of confidence of 390 to 192.

Making his first appearance as head of the Government before the Chamber of Deputies, which he ruled as President for nine years, Bouisson asked the full powers already promised him so the Government could "safeguard the franc from any assault."

End of Speculation.

Those "broad but limited and temporary powers," he said, "enable us immediately to crush speculation."

"It took only a few days for speculators to make their assault, attack our gold vainly and to try to alarm inventors and demoralize workers. The Government's reply will be brutal and decisive."

Bouisson said the Cabinet was the broadest national union which has been achieved in France since the World War.

"Men who opposed each other yesterday," he declared, "are grouped to-day in close association to support the franc, rehabilitate finance, and revive business."

WELFARE LEAGUE PLANS EXTENSION

Organized Last Autumn to Render Aid to Needy Families.

As a means of raising funds for the further promotion of their worthy activities, the Junior Welfare League, one of the newer charitable organizations of this city, are planning a tea and bazaar to be held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, the president.

Formed in November last, the league is a charitable organization, non-denominational and non-sectarian in character, consisting of fourteen members combined in organized effort to help provide clothing to needy families in the city.

Wool was bought and knitted by the members into warm sweaters; flannelette was purchased to be made up into serviceable underclothing; and donations of used clothing was solicited along with shoes and bedding, for distribution by the visiting committee.

Despite the modest and limited funds at the disposal of the organization, the active co-operation of the membership resulted in the club being able to render valuable assistance to a number of families, and next winter it is the hope of the members that the work may be further extended.

Headed by Mrs. Hicks-Lyne as president, and Miss Clair Mason, secretary-treasurer, the membership consists of the following ladies: Mesdames D. B. Falkner, J. W. Stevenson, Gordon Munro, D. MacTavish, C. Collins, H. Bradburn, W. Perks, J. Bailklock, F. Hills, and the Misses Helen Munro, Mary and Elizabeth Mulholland.

LONDON, June 4 (C.P. Cable). — R. E. S. Watt, who will captain England in the first Test against South Africa on June 15, led Warwickshire to a smart four wickets victory over Nottinghamshire at Birmingham to-day. He had two sparkling innings, scoring 98 and 62.

Middlesex defeated Gloucestershire on the first innings at Lord's and Essex won by a similar margin over Surrey at the Oval to notch its first points of the season. No play was possible to-day in the match between the South Africans and Lancashire at Manchester on account of rain, the game being drawn. The Army defeated Cambridge University by eight wickets.

The scores:

Nottinghamshire, 234 and 315 (Hollies eight wickets for 67 runs); Warwickshire, 300 and 153 for six wickets.

Middlesex, 143 and 196 for eight wickets, declared (Price 66); Gloucestershire, 136 (Smith four for 19) and 103 for four.

Surrey, 171 and 225 for eight wickets, declared (Barling 50, Nichols four for 43); Essex, 231 and 92 for nine.

South Africans 268 and 142 for six; Lancashire, 128.

Cambridge, 294 and 157; The Army, 329 and 13 for two.

CATERPILLARS INCREASING.

Several citizens have suggested that something should be done to check the increase in the number of colonies of tent caterpillars noticed in the city and along the country roads this spring. Probably the Parks committee of the council should be the agency to give lead to rounding up the "tents" in the city.

Eight Nurses Graduate From Nicholls Hospital

THREE QUALITIES MOST ESSENTIAL IN GOOD NURSING

Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe Delivers Masterly Address to the Graduates.

PRIZES PRESENTED.

Misses Dalmas Montgomery and Jessie Davidson Win Proficiency Awards.

Interest, enthusiasm, service — these were the qualities which were emphasized as essential for success in the nursing, or any other profession, as enumerated by the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, giving the address last evening at the graduation exercises of the Training School for Nurses of Nicholls Hospital, in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute.

Between seven and eight hundred people were in attendance for a program which was brief and interesting, closing shortly after half-past nine o'clock, and followed by a reception, with the service of refreshments and dancing, in the gymnasium of the school.

Members of this year's graduating class from the Training School are as follows: Miss Dalmas Montgomery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Montgomery, of Campbellford; Miss Jessie Elma Davidson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alby Davidson, of Manotick, Ontario; Miss Bessie Lillian Turner, daughter of Mrs. Lily Turner, of Roseneath; Miss Rotha Alexandria Lotan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Lotan, of Almonte; Miss Margaret Evelyn Mitchell, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Mitchell, of Collingwood; Miss Florence Winnifred Comley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Comley, of Port Hope; Miss Helen Lucille Armstrong, daughter of Mrs. F. Armstrong, of Indian River; Miss Marion Elizabeth Wagar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wagar, of Lakefield.

In the absence of His Worship Mayor Denne, prevented from taking the chair owing to a meeting of the City Council, J. J. Turner pinch-hitted in an admirable manner, with his customary suavity and goodwill. Referring to the coincidence of the exercises being held on the King's birthday, Mr. Turner called for the National Anthem, and went on, in a few sentences, to speak of the nurses as "ministering angels" in the relief of bodily distress. He spoke also of the fidelity and efficiency of Mrs. E. M. Leeson and her assistants, and of the reputation for proficiency enjoyed by the medical staff members. He also referred, in terms of high praise, to the splendid service rendered to the board by the secretary-treasurer, John Crane.

"If it were not for his wise guidance, the hospital board would not be as efficient."

The Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe, main speaker of the evening, in a thoughtful address imbued with spiritual thoughts, spoke of the graduation day as a "mountain-top experience" in the annals of the graduating nurses. For the lesser days which would follow, when the joyous ceremonies were over, he recommended the consideration of the three attributes mentioned above, as recalled in a recent magazine article written by Dr. James Black, commenting on a speech by Sir William Jowitt in which these three qualities were described as essential.

Three Essentials.

"Without these three qualities there can be no happiness at all. And they are not something that is added to us, but rather something that proceeds or eminates from us, something that proceeds from the inside.

"Labor of any kind without interest becomes drudgery. And we need nurses who are not only interested in their work, but enthused about it. So many people think of enthusiasm as connected somehow with noise, but there is a sustained, a rational and a dignified enthusiasm that should be desired.

"A life of service is the only life that will contribute to real happiness. How splendid is the record just ended of twenty-five years of splendid service by His Majesty King George! The motto on the crest of the Prince of Wales is, 'I Serve.' And the summons to members of the Imperial Cabinet reads, 'All servants of the King are commanded to meet.' True happiness comes from the self-abandonment which implements itself in service for others.

"Remunerative service is essential, of course. But the person who puts this first is doing violence to his or her profession, and to place it in the foreground will certainly spell defeat. Let us put primary things first and secondary matters in second place. In the words of John the Baptist, 'Let him that would be great among you be your minister.' Put service first."

The affirmation of the graduates was repeated, after J. J. Turner, by the young ladies, standing in their crisp white uniforms and caps, their arms filled with roses, on the stage, which was arranged very beautifully with a profusion of lovely flowers —roses, carnations and lilacs—the latter forming a border over purple and gold crepe paper, for the stage, which was decorated at the back with large flags in commemoration of the King's natal day.

The pinning on of the medals was done by the superintendent of the Training School, Mrs. E. M. Leeson, and was followed by the address to the graduated, given by Dr. S. Y. Walsh, who stole a march on the previous speakers by confessing at the outset that he wasn't very comfortable in the role of public speaker, and therefore enlisted at once the sympathy of the entire audience.

Faculties to Cultivate.

Dr. Walsh, chairman of the medical staff of Nicholls Hospital, spoke of the need of courage in the nursing profession.

"There is a remarkable cavalcade of women who have kept burning the torch of your profession."

He also emphasized the necessity of placing the fault in all instances with themselves, rather with their Training School or with fate. "The fault, dear Brutus, lies not in our stars, but in ourselves, that we are underlings."

"You must have knowledge and you must apply it; be cheerful and thorough and tactful, for instance, in such ways as reading books that the patient will like, rather than what you might choose for your own reading."

Following came the presentation of prizes, eagerly looked forward to by the graduating class. To Miss Dalmas Montgomery, who was absent because of illness on her graduating night, went the first prize for proficiency, $25, and the second was awarded to Miss Jessie Davidson, $15, both given by the Trustee Board. These were presented by Mr. Turner.

Second-year students taking highest marks in examinations and receiving prizes donated by the medical staff were Miss Elsie Girven and Miss Freda Harvey, the latter equal in marks with Miss Merle Meade, who was also awarded a prize.

The bandaging prizes for first-year students went to Miss Phyllis Lunn and Miss Mildred Richardson, and were given by the Trustee Board.

The prizes for second year were presented by Dr. R. F. Nott and first-year students were presented by Dr. F. C. Neal, who urged upon the graduates the necessity of belonging to all associations connected with their profession and to try to keep up with anything that would give them a wider viewpoint at all times.

Fine Music.

The program of the evening was enriched by some lovely music, in a program arranged by Miss Mabel Clarry, organist and choir leader of Trinity United Church. Mrs. G. A. Richmond's clear, sweet soprano was encored in "Farewell," with "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" in response. Similar enthusiasm was manifested for Miss Margaret Wolstenholm's two numbers, "Arise, O Sun" and "Wake Up!" in her richly-toned, appealing voice, while Clifford Hall, a recent acquisition to the musical world of the city, whose superb tenor voice is splendidly trained and admirably handled, was applauded resoundingly for his happy choice of a bright number, "Colleen o' Mine," and its very effective encore, a little darky song, entitled "Run Along Home." Accompaniments were played by Mrs. G. Wilson Craw and Miss Muse Cox, the latter also playing for the entrance of the graduates and the pupil nurses in their trim outfits.

J. J. Turner voiced the appreciation of the audience to all who had assisted in any way in making the program so interesting and successful.

The superintendent of the Training School at Nicholls Hospital is Mrs. E. M. Leeson; the assistant superintendent, Miss Eileda Walsh, and the instructress, Miss Edyth G. Young.

Members of the Trustee Board include the chairman, J. J. Turner; the honorary secretary, Dr. J. M. McCulloch; the secretary-treasurer, John Crane; and the following representatives from churches and the City Council: Thomas Brown, Trinity United Church; V. Eastwood, Murray Street Baptist Church; E. B. Fowler and William Langford, St. Andrew's United Church; C. F. Kitney, St. James' United Church; C. Lacheur, All Saints' Anglican Church; E. F. PERMISSION GIVEN ERECT GAS STATION

Several Items of Miscellaneous Business Before the City Council.

Among several items of miscellaneous business that were last night dealt with by the City Council was the granting of an application made by Percy Harrison for permission to erect a service station at the rear and to the west of his new store at the corner of Water street and Park Hill roads. The plans for the proposed station are to be submitted for approval of the City Engineer. An application by Gordon Powell, 465 McDonnel street for authority to erect a temporary booth at the corner of Park and McDonnel streets was refused. In turning down the application, the Council pointed out that not only was there a resolution on the minutes prohibiting erection of temporary booths, but further the petitioner did not have clear title to the lot on which he proposed to build.

Alderman E. R. Wilson, reported on behalf of the Manufacturers' Committee, regarding an interview with C. A. Salmonsen, works manager of the Canadian General Electric Company, in reference to the removal of the luminous tubes and ignition transformer department to their Davenport plant.

Department Moved

He stated the committee had been well received by Mr. Salmonsen, who had intimated that the department of sixteen men had already been removed from Peterborough. Under those circumstances Alderman Wilson did not think it advisable that the committee should take the matter to the general manager of the C.G.E. at Toronto as had been suggested. He had, he stated, received assurance from Mr. Salmonsen that efforts would be made to get a new department to replace the one that has been removed from the local plant to Toronto.

The report of the committee was adopted on motion of Alderman Robert S. Cotton, seconded by Alderman Max Sloan.

Named Trustee

Alderman Fred T. Tuggey was appointed under By-law 3153 to a four-year term on Nicholls Hospital Trust. His name was proposed by Alderman Walter Stocker and Alderman James Hamilton.

A request from Little Lake Cemetery Company for the oiling by the city of roads within the cemetery grounds, was granted.

An invitation from Peterborough Kiwanis Club to members of the council to attend a special luncheon meeting on Friday of this week, on the occasion of the visit of the President of The English Speaking Union in connection with the proposed affiliation between "this Peterborough" and Peterborough, England, was accepted by the Council.

It will be recalled that upon his return from a visit to England last Fall, it was suggested by the Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, a member of the Kiwanis Club that a bond of fellowship might be established between the two cities of the same name, here and in England, through The English Speaking Union.

ABYSSINIA MAY PURCHASE WAR SUPPLIES IN CANADA

TORONTO, June 3 (C.P.) — Preliminary negotiations between Canada and Abyssinia for supplies in case of hostilities between the latter and Italy, have been opened, James H. Mason, Toronto mining engineer and metallurgist, who leaves in two weeks to open an unofficial trade office in Abyssinia.

The negotiations have been carried on between unofficial sources in keeping with the Emperor's desire to avoid any diplomatic connection with England through Ottawa, Mr. Mason said.

The engineer stated Abyssinia was anxious to trade with Canada and the country was a rich field for Canadian business.

VALERA PRESSES WORK MEASURE

Bill Sets Maximum Working Week, Holidays With Pay, Overtime Rates.

LESS SUNDAY LABOR.

By JOSEPH DENNIGAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

DUBLIN, June 4. (CP).—A maximum working week, holidays with pay, restriction of night and Sunday work and regulation of overtime rates and shift work are the main proposals of the conditions of an employment bill, a measure sponsored by President Eamon de Valera's Minister for Industry and Commerce, Sean Lemass, and now passing through the Free State Parliament.

The main purpose of the bill, according to the minister, is to confer on him power to make regulations after consultation with representatives of employers and workers in any industry, prescribing maximum hours of work.

When the bill becomes law, adult men and women may only work an eight-hour day and a 48-hour week, for juveniles, the normal maximum will be 40 hours a week. No reduction in wages may take pace where hours of work are reduced by the bill.

Pacts to be Made Legal

Wage agreements between employers and their workers may be confirmed by the Department of Industry and Commerce so as to be legally enforceable.

The minister proposes also to take powers to prohibit the employment of women or to fix the proportion of women workers to men in any industry.

One week's holidays with pay together with six public holidays per year must be given to all industrial workers and working on Sundays will be banned except under special license. Where such a license is granted, 24 hours' continuous rest must be given to workers in the same week.

Women may not be employed at night in industrial work and men may be employed only on work which must be carried on without intermission.

Council To Settle Claim Against City

In adopting the report of the Legal Committee last night, on motion of Alderman Max Sloan, seconded by Alderman Robert S. Cotton, the City Council authorized the chairman of the committee and the city solicitor to settle the claim of Edwin Broo': for an amount not exceeding $200, upon receiving a release from further liability.

The boy was injured some months ago in a fall from the roof of one of the city's buildings in Inverlea Park, when in the act of rendering assistance to the caretaker at the park.

It will be recalled that some person, whose identity remains unknown, had previously climbed on to the roof of the caretaker's shack and plugged the chimney with some old sacking, with the result that the shack was filled with clouds of blinding smoke.

The caretaker sought the assistance of Broo.. to unstop the plugged chimney, and he had just legged the boy onto the roof, when the boy fell to the ground and sustained the injury which was the basis of the claim against the city.

Floods Spreading Over Three States

JUNCTION CITY, Kas., June 4. (AP).—Like the tenacles of a struggling octopus, water burdened streams of Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri lashed into new lowland widespread destruction.

An Associated Press survey showed 94 unofficially listed as dead in Nebraska but State Senator W. C. Bullard of that state estimated the total of 140. Scores still are missing. Eight deaths have been recorded in Kansas and three in Missouri.

The property loss in Nebraska has been placed at $11,000,000 in addition to $2,000,000 in damage to highways and bridges. The total loss in Kansas was placed at $2,000,000, half of which was to highways. Missouri's estimate was upwards of $2,000,000.

BISHOP BEVERLEY VISITS LAKEFIELD

Handsome Oak Chair is Dedicated by Suffragan Bishop of Toronto.

LAKEFIELD, June 4.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Bishop Beverley's first visit to St. John's Church was marked by a three-fold service and was an event of greatest importance in the parish. The service, which was held at 11 a.m., was attended by a very large congregation. The rector, Rev. W. J. Creighton, M.A., was assisted by Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, D.D.

Bishop Beverley first dedicated the handsome oak bishop's chair, presented in memory of the late Robert Quarles Dench and his wife, Sarah Maria Dench, by their son and daughter.

30 Confirmed.

The confirmation service followed and a class of 30 received the apostolic rite at the hands of the bishop, who exhorted them to be constant in prayer, regular at the services of the church and ready to render service to the church at any time. In the average human life the Sundays amount to ten years, and our Lord will take account of how we spend that time. Sunday was given to us for rest and for worship of God. The obligation does not end with the confirmation service, but goes on to our life's end. The babe is brought to the church and is baptized, and when he or she reaches years of discretion and can repeat the catechism, renounces the temptations of the world, the flesh and the devil and re-dedicating the lives to the service of God.

Immediately following the confirmation, there was a celebration of holy communion at which the confirmation class made their first communion. There were a very large number of communicants at the service, which was impressive in its beauty and simplicity.

FINAL ATTACK ON WARBLE FLY

Treatment of Cattle Should be Applied Not Later Than This Week.

REMINDER TO FARMERS

A reminder to the farmers of Durham County that the third treatment for warble fly should be applied to cattle this week has been issued by E. A. Summers, representative of the Department of Agriculture.

"This is the most important treatment as Dr. Stevenson informs us that at least 75 per cent of the late grubs are heel flies. Do not neglect the young stock in pasture," Mr. Summers writes in his circular letter. Possibly there is an old barn on the ranch, or a lane where the cattle could be enclosed for treatment. If only an odd lump appears, a squirt of the solution from an oil can in the opening would kill the grub. Use a curry to remove the scabs before applying the wash with a stiff brush. The success of the year's work depends on how thoroughly each does the treatment. Mix one part of powder to five parts of water by measure. This is the third and last letter.

On behalf of the Department I wish to thank the secretaries of all the school sections for their co-operation by furnishing us with the lists and to all those in Hope, South Monaghan and Cavan who distributed the powder for their sections."

LEAGUE MEMBERS CONDUCT SERVICE

Grant Meiklejohn Speaks at Conference Sunday at Zion.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, June 4 (Examiner Correspondence) — "Conference Sunday," the minister's annual holiday holds no terrors for Zion people, the Sunday morning worship service being conducted by the league members with the president, George Brunton in charge. The address was given by Grant Meiklejohn, a Ryl-ton boy, who is highly popular in this community and has recently signified his intention of studying for the ministry. He based a very thoughtful and inspiring talk on the story of James and John who wished to sit upon the right and left of Christ, dwelling upon the sacrifices that must be made by the one desirous of being a true Christian.

The scripture lesson for the service was read by Fred Barnum while Thomas Fry led in prayer. Mrs. William Forde gave a splendid reading entitled "How much do you want it." Musical numbers included a cornet solo by Don Barnum, music by the league choir, vocal quartet, Misses Laura Foley and Evelyn Barnum, Messrs. Grant Meiklejohn and Don Barnum and a vocal duet Misses Laura Foley and Evelyn Barnum.

The congregation showed appreciation of the effort of the league executive by turning out in goodly numbers for a most interesting and helpful service.

ELECTION OF TEN LADIES--QUESTION OF THE HOUR

Subscribers Please Note

THE END OF the BIG TRAVEL CAMPAIGN IS IN SIGHT--THE TIME IS GROWING SHORT

HOW SUBSCRIBERS MAY CAST VOTES TO HELP THEIR FAVORITE CANDIDATES

WHAT IS MEANT BY SECOND PAYMENT SUBSCRIPTIONS? We will suppose that Will Black gave Annie Smith $4.80 for a one year subscription before the end of the first period, viz., May 11th, when the votes took the first drop. During the first period a one year renewal subscription was good for 30,000 votes. Now, during the second last period, while a one year subscription is worth 22,000 votes, Annie Smith goes back to Mr. Black and he extends his subscription another year. In this way Annie Smith obtains 45,000 votes, which is a real boost for her. The reason of this is that, had she obtained a two year subscription from Mr. Black in the first period, it would have given her 75,000 votes. In getting an additional renewal of one year in the last or second last period she counts the difference between a one year subscription vote and a two year subscription vote, as she would have had she obtained them both in the first period.

This is what is meant by SECOND PAYMENT SUBSCRIPTIONS: Votes will be given according to the scale in vogue when the first part of the subscription was given. STUDY THE SCHEDULE ON THIS PAGE.

During the second last period Annie Smith would have to go to two people and obtain a yearly renewal from each person to count the same number of votes as she would count on the SECOND PAYMENT subscription for a year she got from Mr. Black, and she would still be 1,000 votes short of it.

SUBSCRIBERS, your second payment subscriptions are needed this week. You can see what they are going to mean in additional votes to your favorite candidate. You can send her to Bermuda and give her the glamorous holiday that she has so long dreamed about. Call her on the telephone and tell her you have a SECOND PAYMENT SUBSCRIPTION for her.

'TIS THE BIG EVENT IN THE LIVES OF THE WINNING CONTESTANTS---YOUR FAVORITE MAY BE ONE OF THEM!

To encourage our candidates to put forth their very best efforts during the remaining days of the campaign, we have decided to give a bonus vote ballot good for 150,000 extra votes for every $12.00 worth of subscriptions turned in. Any money left over from the previous week's clubs may be applied on the $12.00 clubs turned in during this week of the campaign. All candidates should bear in mind that there is a further decline in vote values after Saturday, June 8th.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

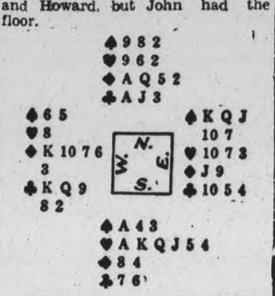
"Teacher of Teachers"

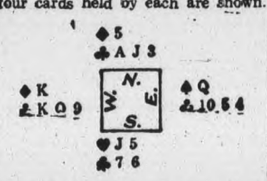
JOHN KEEPS IN TRAINING

Like a prize fighter who keeps in training, both until he becomes championo of his own class and afterwards to remain at the top, so my modest friend whom I will call "John," is rapidly reaching national championship condition, by ever striving for an added trick or two on his hands, regardless of what he needs to fulfill his contracts. Such a man always is in condition to bid slams and make them, where lazier players would fall down. Here is a sample of his work. How many players would bother to play for the fifth trick when not needed, or even realize that it could be made? I believe in John from the rocky New England coast. I believe in the other three players, Gordon, Leon and Howard, but John had the floor.



Bidding went: South, 1-spade (he'll soon recover from his present belief in deceptive bids); North, 2-diamonds; East, 2-spades, showing up John's phychic. South, 4-hearts, ending bidding.

The opening lead was the 6 of spades. East's 10 forced declarer's ace. He took two rounds of winning hearts, to see if an elimination play might be possible, if each defender (new name for adversary) held two trumps. Seeing that would not work, another round of trumps was taken. West let go two clubs. Two diamond tricks were taken with the finessed Q and ace. Now South saw a possible squeeze, if West held the K-Q of clubs, but first he had to let East have two spade tricks, which might help squeeze West. Dummy's low diamond was ruffed, and East was given two spade tricks. The last four cards held by each are shown.



Here is a simple 4-card problem. East is in the lead. He wants to hold South to winning not more than 3 of the remaining tricks. What must he lead? He should see the cards ready for the final squeeze. He should lead the top club, then declarer will be held at 3 of the 4 remaining tricks, having to give West a club trick. Instead of doing this he completed the squeeze for declarer, by leading his Q of spades. South ruffed. When West let go his 9 of clubs and kept his K of diamonds, dummy let go its lowest club. When declarer led his J of hearts West was hopelessly squeezed. Either way West discarded dummy was bound to win the two last tricks, giving South one overtrick.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

WILLIAM POWELL IN "STAR OF MIDNIGHT"

This is one of the suave, smooth William Powell pictures, with the sleek, well-dressed gentleman at his best in the role of Clay Dalzell, lawyer and sleuth. Playing opposite him is Ginger Rogers, just right in her casual, carefree talk and her careless ways that are all the while calculated to a nicety.

The story is one of those modern affairs that involves a mysterious murder, a disappearing theatrical star and a cheerfully grim racketeer, who, by the way, becomes an unwilling, but competent, ally of Mr. Dalzell in the hunt for the murder, who turns out to be an unsuspected individual in a group of likely suspects.

Anyone who has seen Mr. Powell will remember just how sophisticated and keen and smooth is his rendering of any role. He is at his best in this picture. Only this reviewer would like to see him in a picture where he isn't tilting a glass at every possible moment. Somehow, he just doesn't live up to the impression of semi-drunkenness that is created in this way.

Following out the naive practice of the silent screen in portraying actors, and actresses, in most undress moments, we get a glimpse of the bland and poised Mr. Dalzell while in his shower, no less! And there is a homely little touch—the episode of the leaking hot-water bottle—that is calculated also, no doubt, to add to the realistic aspect of the affair.

In this feature, Ginger Rogers, in a R.C.M.P. touch, "gets her man," much to the satisfaction of all concerned.

There is an excellent supporting cast, not the least in the list our old friend, J. Farrell MacDonald, while Ralph Morgan, Paul Kelly, Gene Lockhart and Leslie Fenton add the extras to a picture that has only two ladies in the whole cast. A little disappointment is the omission of a sight of Mary Smith, cause of the whole trouble, from the pictured finale.

With the program is a delightful colored portrayal of the story of "The Old Woman in the Shoe," that is especially gay and colorful.

—Jeanette.

A little learning is a dangerous thing,
Drink deep, or taste not the Pierian Spring;
There, shallow draughts intoxicate the brain,
And drinking deeply, sobers us again." —Pope.

Dear Friend:

I'm prompted to write this after listening to one of those know-it-all people. He knew what caused the depression and what would end it. It was the same old excuse that Adam gave: The woman!

He said if women would do this, and if women would do that, the world would soon be on its feet again. I gently reminded him, that men were at the head of affairs, all over the world. Did it make any difference? It did not.

He ranted on, saying if women were good, men would not be bad.

If women minded their own business, men would forge right ahead.

I reminded him of all the chances a man had, compared to a woman, but it did not stop him. After he had run down, I found he had read an article written by a disgruntled man, all against women. It was indeed a case of a little learning being a dangerous thing.

The poor thing couldn't have gone a step without a woman. His mother and sisters were lovely people yet he had lumped all women together and judged them bad.

Life will teach him differently, but if he ever raves on like that again I shall squelch him utterly. It's bad enough to me a woman, without having the blame of all that's bad being heaped on us.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Human Interest Incidents Happening Every Day Add to Color of Horse Racing.

HULLCOAT STRING IN

IN ORDER to show the different thrills of horse racing we will recite a little incident that happened one day last week up at Thorncliffe. An old trainer brought a horse up from Baltimore at the beginning of our racing season. Due to lack of funds he had difficulty arranging shipping accommodation for his one horse stable but finally succeeded in getting him in a car that was chartered by a large owner. He was unloaded at the Leaside course and has been there ever since. One morning just at daybreak last week, the old man sent the nag on his usual morning trial of six furlongs and set on the fence watching him with his stop watch in his hand.

A YOUNG fellow was next to him also clocking the morning workouts as numerous track followers do. At the end of the trial the young fellow turned to the old man and said: "Do my eyes deceive me or has that horse stepped that three quarter mile in 1.12 flat." To which the old fellow replied, "Son, that is exactly what I caught him in and this watch of mine has not made a mistake in the past thirty-five years." They became quite chummy and the old man confided in his new found friend that he had the horse entered that same afternoon but was broke and unable to pay the fifteen dollar jockey fee or have a little bet.

THE YOUTH was a student and all the money he had was fifty dollars which he had just received from home to pay his examination fees and look after his room and board. He knew however that a horse that could step three-quarters in that time was a cinch in the race he was entered in, so he advanced the Old Man twenty-five smackers and bet his remaining quarter C on the beagle's snozzle.

The old man paid the jockey fee of fifteen dollars and rode his other ten also on the nose. The horse did not fail and cantered in easily to the tune of 40 to 1. The young man won a thousand and the owner four hundred and they were seen that evening having a late dinner in one of the bigger downtown hotels. This little story once again proves the old turf saying, "One day a millionaire and the next day a bum." But this pair will live like kings for a couple of days at any rate and the student will probably save out enough to pay his examination fees.

ARTHUR HULLCOAT will make his initial appearance on a Canadian track this year at the Long Branch meeting and he always has nothing but live horses in his string. Another thing to remember is that Boscobel won his first race on a Canadian track at Long Branch a few years ago and always has a preference for this oval. Fair Mole is another that goes better over this track than any other, in fact he is the maker of a track record at Long Branch which still stands.

LAST MINUTE SPLURGE WINS FOR BUFFALO

Bears Jump Back Into First Division With 5-4 Victory Over Orioles.

SENATORS BREAK STARS.

(By Associated Press.)

Buffalo Bisons, now leading the International League pennant race by 2½ games, apparently do not believe in showing any partiality.

First they knocked Toronto Maple Leafs out of first place. Then they whipped the lowly Rochester Redwings in three out of four games, and yesterday they hurled back the challenge of Montreal Royals, which had climbed to second place. The score was 9-3.

For eight innings, the Royals managed to hold Ray Schalk's men on even terms. But in the last frame the Bisons went on a hitting rampage, sending 11 men to the plate to pound out six hits, including a homer by Buck Crouse, and score six runs. The Royals had counted once in each of the first three innings, with Gus Dugas hitting a homer in the second, but in the third the Bisons drove Larul Mylykangas from the mound with a three-run attack. Leo Mangum came to the rescue and matched Ken Ash in a scoreless pitching duel until the ninth inning uprising when Johny Pomorski had to be called in.

Withstand Orioles.

Newark Bears found themselves in the first division again when they withstood a ninth inning threat of Baltimore Orioles and eked out a 5-4 victory last night. Dick Porter, Ernie Koy, and Bill Baker were the big guns of the Newark attack while Irvine Jeffries clouted two home runs for Orioles and batted in three of the Birds' four runs. Roy Spencer also hit a homer for Baltimore.

The string of seven straight victories Syracuse Chiefs compiled in order to secure a berth in the first division was snapped last night by Albany Senators, who blasted out 25 hits and scored a 23-11 decision over the Chiefs. The defeat cost the Chiefs their place in the higher group. Bob Graham and Johnny Kroner hit circuit clouts for Syracuse and Bud Hafey scored one for the Senators.

Yanks Increase Lead Over Chisox

New Swim Star

Shown above is Mary McConkey, attractive star natator of the South Edmonton Swimming Club, whose recent performances in the Dominion competitions at Winnipeg have won her wide acclaim and marked her as a likely contender in the 1936 Olympics. Capturing two Canadian championships, Mary set records in the accomplishment. Notching 3 2-5 seconds from the ladies' 100 yards backstroke, her time was 1.13 2-5. In the ladies' 220 yards free style, she nosed out Marion Moffat of Vancouver to set a mark of 2.41 1-5.

HEAVY HITTING NEW YORKERS SNAP ATHLETICS' WIN STREAK

Bill Dickey Clouts His Ninth Homer as Yankees Win 7-4—Team-mates Hammer Out Nine Hits for 18 Bases—Indians Defeat Brown s 11-4 in 14 Innings.

By Andy Clarke
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The wags who dubbed the Yankees the "hitless wonders" did a dirty trick on the Athletics.

Rankled by such a label, the American League leaders yesterday vented their wrath on the boys of Connie Mack, hung up their third straight win and snapped the Athletics' win streak at four games. They hammered out nine hits for 18 bases to chalk up a 7-4 victory; this despite the fact the Athletics collected a total of 11 safe blows, including two homers.

George Blaeholder, who started in the box for Philadelphia, was treated so unkindly he took refuge in the showers in the sixth inning. Dickey's home run was the blow that sent Blaeholder off with his fourth straight defeat since he went to the Athletics from the Browns.

That the Yanks went into that game with dire intentions was evidenced in the very first inning when, with two aboard, Lazzeri smacked one to the outer reaches for three bases.

In the next inning Crosetti whaled one for a double to account for another tally. The Yanks got three more in a sixth inning uprising, which was capped by Dickey's circuit blow, and Ben Chapman hit a triple to send Combs home with the final run in the seventh with Mahaffey in the box.

Increase Lead.

Jimmy Deshong, who had languished on the bench all season, was called into service for the first time and he fared well until the ninth inning, when he passed Foxx to load the bases with one out. Murphy, who relieved him, then forced Pinky Higgins to hit into a double play, ending the game. The win increased the Yankees' lead to 2½ games.

In the only other game in the American League, Cleveland Indians waited until the 14th inning to unleash an attack that netted seven runs and an 11-4 victory over the downrodden Browns.

See-Saw Battle.

In a nip and tuck battle in which the Indians went into a one-run lead in the 11th, only to have the Browns tie it up again, Cleveland finally shelled Jack Knott, the fourth Brownie pitcher off the mound and then continued the attack against Bob Weiland. As a final shot, Bruce Campbell hit a homer with the bases loaded and dissipated any thought the Brown might have had of again knotting the count.

In the only game played in the National League, St. Louis Cardinals striving to overhaul the speeding Giants, dropped one to the Chicago Cubs, 6-2. It was the Cards first defeat in seven games and set them four full games behind their New York brethren. Charlie Root pitched heady ball to hold his club in the first division. A defeat would have dropped the Cubs into fifth place behind Brooklyn Dodgers.

MEDAL HONORS CAPTURED BY MRS. GOODERHAM

Score of 80 Leads in Ontario Amateur Ladies' Championship.

AT HAMILTON.

HAMILTON, June 4—With a fine score of 80 over the rolling Ancaster course, Mrs. E. H. Gooderham of Toronto, the former Miss Cecil Smith, won the qualifying medal of the Ontario women's golf championship yesterday, leading into the match play stage sixteen qualifiers who will start eliminations today.

The gross 80 Mrs. Gooderham, a former champion, posted, was a single stroke better than the card returned by Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen of Toronto and the qualifiers strung along no more than thirteen strokes behind the leader, Ancaster had few terrors for the top flight players.

Playoff Necessary.

Tied at 93 with Mrs. D. A. McLeod of Lambton and Miss Ruby Galloway of Glendale, Miss K. Christie of Lambton won the sixteenth berth in the championship flight in a playoff. Close to eighty players started in quest of the title won last year by Miss Mary Hunter of Glendale.

Mrs. Gooderham not only captured the qualifying medal, but she helped the Toronto Golf and Country Club to victory in the team competition, a net-score affair. Mrs. Gooderham's net was 76 and her teammates scored as follows: Mrs. Gil Walker 73, Mrs. Mulqueen 77 and Mrs. Douglas Weld 78. The team's total was 304.

Mrs. Gooderham failed to beat par only because she faltered on the last three holes. She lost four strokes to par on the 16th and 17th holes after playing a regulation figure for 16 holes.

A hooked tee shot on the par-three 16th necessitated a five, and a long drive that hooked sharply under a bush on the 17th cost a couple of strokes in penalties. Apart from these lapses, the Toronto star shot perfect golf. Her card showed five birdies.

One of the day's major surprises was the failure of Miss Hunter, defending champion, to get below a medal round of 88, and it remained for a club-mate, Mrs. Clifton Shuttleworth, to lead Hamilton entrants with 86. Mrs. Shuttleworth, runner-up last year to Miss Hunter in the city and district tournament, was off-color on the outgoing nine, taking 46, but she came home in 40.

Eight Toronto Qualifiers

Toronto entrants captured eight places in the championship flight and Hamilton five. The other successful players were Miss K. Bishop of Brantford with an 86, Miss Caroline Mitchell of Kingston with a 91 and Mrs. Eric Phillips of Oshawa with a 92.

The qualifying round served as a true test, as it pitted the recognized stars of the field in the top flight. The five minor flights are expected to bring out brilliant competition.

Following are the scores:

Mrs. C. S. Eddis, Rosedale, 82-4—78.

Miss Mary Hunter, Glendale, 88-5—83.

Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen, Toronto Golf, 81-4—77.

HASTINGS BALL SERIES ALL EVEN

Westenders Defeat East End Rivals by Large Count of 18-17.

HASTINGS, June 4. (Examiner Correspondence)—The local basketball championship series is all squared as a result of a West End win in the week-end clash that a flock of fans turned out to witness in a boiling sun at "Shibe" Park.

The fans saw plenty of baseball of every known variety from the best to the worst, and then some, as the West Enders defeated their East End rivals for the second straight, by the boxcar count of 18 to 17.

Each outfit has two wins and the fans are ready for the final clash next week-end.

English opened on the mound for the winners but only lasted two innings, being replaced by Emil at start of the third, the latter was in difficulty biggest part of the route.

"Casey" Radford went the route for the Boyle crew and fanned 12, his support in the pinches was terrible, every error being costly to the losers.

Philips, with two triples, double and a single, led the winners with the willow, while A. Petticrew with five out of seven was the best of the losers.

BRANDS RUTH AS DETRIMENT

McKechnie Blames Veteran Slugger For Braves' Failure.

FAILED TO KEEP RULES.

BOSTON, June 4.—(AP)—While his right hand was still tingling from 'Babe' Ruth's hearty farewell handshake, Bill McKechnie, manager of the sorely beset Boston Braves pilot, today branded the newly retired home-run slugger as a detriment to his club.

McKechnie, who had little to say about the 'Babe' during the 97 days he served under his managership, hastened into a conference with President Emil Fuchs after seeing Ruth and his family leave by automobile for New York.

The pilot and his financially harassed superior spent most of the afternoon discussing ways and means for the immediate strengthening of their last place baseball forces. When they adjourned their session, a long statement basting Ruth's record as a Brave was issued over McKechnie's signature.

"I must state publicly that, in justice to the action of Judge Fuchs with reference to 'Babe' Ruth, on Friday and Saturday of last week I pointed out to Judge Fuchs that the main trouble with the ball club was that it was not able to function properly with 'Babe' Ruth playing in the outfield," McKechnie said.

"I frankly stated that certain actions of Ruth while with the club, which I would absolutely forbid with any other member of the club, were responsible for the lack of discipline, and that unless Judge Fuchs could convince Ruth to retire I was unable to get any real baseball discipline or proper spirit as manifested by the club previous to the acquisition of Ruth. . . . WESTCLOX TAKE LOPSIDED WIN

Clockers Click For 29 Clouts and 35-8 Victory Over Bailieboro.

WEIRD FIELDING.

Westclox smothered the Bailieboro Girls under a deluge of hits last night in the Highway Village when they walloped the ball for a new league record of 29 clouts to win by the lopsided score of 35 to 8, in a scheduled game of the City and District loop. This was the first time that these two teams had met and the Clockers performed like champions while the homsters played a weird fielding game and failed to hit Marg. Snowden, winning hurler.

The Clockmakers nabbed eight in the first two innings on six hits, were held scoreless in the next two, added two in the fifth and then ran wild in the sixth to batter out nine hits for eleven counters. Most of the hits were sizzling grounders which were well placed or else flies which just topped the infield, making it difficult to field them. Marg. Snowden pitched for the winners, holding the Bailieboro Girls to six hits, one of these being a triple by Pearl Carl. She fanned four and passed six. E. Breckenridge opposed her, striking out three and giving six free trips. She was hard hit and was given very loose support.

Eileen Sturgeon led the parade in the batters' column, hitting safely six out of eight for the winners. Genevieve Mann had three singles and a double, while her sister Hazel, singled five times. Marie Ferguson conked the horsehide for two circuit blows and a single. Mortimer had three, Merritt three, while Crary added a double and two one-base bingles. R. Wood, at short for the losers, played a good game with her sister at first also showing to advantage. Pearl Carl at second and Audrey Barnard catching, gave the best all-round performance of any on the losing side.

The teams:

The Summer Game

Not every nation is blessed, as England is, by possessing a national game; and, what is more, a national summer game. The English summer, as well as the English character, comes to efflorescence on the cricket field.

Our most gifted cricket essayist, Neville Cardus, never tires of drawing a parallel between the game and the season. "Cricket," he says, "comes to us modestly on spring's rainy days, and like a plant it turns to the sun and is not happy when an east wind blows. But as the season passes, cricket begins to flower; by the time hot June is come it is roses, roses all the way....June and July bring in cricket's gold of the year; August finds the game, like the sun itself, on the wane. Now the sands are running out every evening as the match moves towards its close in yellow light; autumnal colours darken play at this time of the year; cricketers are getting weary in limb and even the spirit has lost the first rapture....and after the last drawing of stumps a leaf falls from a tree and a faint mist touches the field."

To the cricket-lover from overseas a visit to an English cricket field must be an exciting and refreshing experience. It is the greensward on which the game was born and from which it has spread throughout the Empire and even into foreign lands.

Periodically we do battle there with representative players from the countries that have adopted the game and become our peers in the gallant cut-and-thrust of it. Last year the Australians were there; this year it is the South Africans' turn.

Apart from the appeal of the game itself, which is proportionate to our appreciation of its innumerable subtleties, and the thrills of battle, it must be of absorbing interest to compare the conditions under which the Englishman plays—and looks on—with those that belong to torrid skies, sunbaked playing area and the matted pitch.

It does not matter much what ground is visited. Esch has its own peculiar significance and prestige. Pre-eminent is "Lord's," on the edge of London's northern slopes. Here are the headquarters of the "M.C.C." — Marylebone Cricket Club—the club that frames the laws of the game and is the repository of its ancient traditions. At Lord's is unchallenged decorum always; the perfection of ordered ritual.

In London, too, on the south side of the Thames, is Kennsington Oval, where are to be found the "Surrey crowd" and the more democratic touch. In the provinces, Old Trafford, at Manchester, Bramall Lane, at Sheffield, and Trent Bridge, at Nottingham, are renowned the world over. And, during cricket week, an air of paradise pervades the ancient city of Canterbury.

But the most famous ground of all is the one that is the least known and the most seldom visited. All cricket-lovers from the Dominions should make a pilgrimage to Hambledon, in Hampshire, the cradle of the English game. Broadha's penny, this crest of Hampshire downland is called. It is a place of thymy air and misty sunshine and is peopled by the ghosts of giants who stamped the game with their prowess and sowed the seeds of its present and abiding virtues.

You may even enjoy your modest drink at the Bat and Ball, the old inn that still overlooks the ground, though unprocurable, alas, is the "authentic barleycorn such as would put the souls of three butchers into one weaver," nor can you now call for punch at sixpence a bottle.

FOUR COUNTS IN 8TH FRAME CLINCHES WIN

Naish Tightens Up in Late Stages After Free Hitting Earlier Spell.

THIRTY HITS IN ALL.

Following is the standing in the Men's Softball League:

	P.	W.	L.
Hood and Cummings...	4	4	0
Fashion-Craft	5	2	3
Lillico Motors	4	1	3
Omemee	3	1	2

Coming from behind twice Hood and Cumming finally managed to gain a 10-7 nod over Lillico Motors and keep their undefeated record intact. The game was an exciting affair featured by plenty of hitting and the issue was in doubt up till the eighth inning when the winners, who were trailing at that time, by one run, put on a four run spiurge to draw out in front by three markers and managed to hold that margin through to the finish.

Naish, pitching his third straight win, was hit freely during the first three stanzas but tightened up after that only allowing his opponents one run in the last seven frames, his control was good throughout and his support held up well.

Price started on the mound for Lillico's and went along fine 'till the sixth when his opponents began to solve his delivery with a flock of hits and he gave way to Elliott who was also pounded hard and was forced to absorb the loss. The hitting problem for the Ford's was well taken care of by Caccavela, Board and O'Leary who solved the combined deliveries of Price and Elliott for three blows apiece while McGee and Hartley each accounted for two singles. Pat Calladine, with a home run, triple and double, led the Orange-sweatered gang with the willow, along with Weir, Starr and Newson who each managed to collect two bingles.

The fielding highlight of the game was a double play in the last of the sixth by the V-8's engineered by Gillespie who came in from centre field very fast to take a short pop fly on the run and throw to Board, catching a runner who was over half way to second, and complete the twin-killing.

The umpires were in hot water most of the evening, having to render several difficult decisions, especially the arbitrator on the bases who was involved in many arguments with the players and managers of both teams.

The teams:

Hood and Cummings—Dorrington, 3b; McCarroll, 2b; Creighton, 2b; Board, 1b; Gillespie, cf; Caccavella, rf; O'Leary, lf; Hartley, ss; McGee, c; Naish, p.

New Mentor Likely For Hamilton Club

HAMILTON, Ont., June 4 (CP)—Hamilton Tigers, champions of the Interprovincial Football Union, will be under different leadership during the 1935 campaign, it was indicated to-day.

Johnny Ferraro, last year's mentor, it is said, is to be replaced and the backfield star is reported to have confirmed the announcement himself. The club executive is scheduled to meet here this evening when, it is expected, official announcement will be made, together with the appointment of a coach for the Big Four team and another for the O.R.F.U. squad.

George St. Juniors Retain Win Streak

George Street Juniors continued their winning streak in the Church Softball League last night by pulling out a 15-11 win over All Saints in a hard-fought game. It was tied 9-9 going into the seventh, but the winners knocked in six runs on Webb and Seabrook, while All Saints could only get two back on Gunsolus, who relieved Lewis in the fifth. The Anglicans' fielding was shaky but they hit the ball hard and often. Rusaw got four hits, Livingston three with two homers included, and the other a double; while Wright and Cassie led George Street at bat with three hits each, the former a homer. The teams:

George Street.—Lewis, p, rf; Cassie, c; Rutherford, lf; Wright, cf; Ward, 3b; McClelland, 1b; Roberts, 2b; Symonds, rf; Gunsolus, p; Galley, ss.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Number 622

At this time of the year many scores are ruined by gumpy putting greens. Even the shortest of putts can miss the hole, due to an uneven surface near the cup.

This roughness in most cases is a condition that can't be helped. The greenkeepers have to nurse the putting surface at the start of the season. They must be careful about rolling. Rolling the greens too soon can spoil them for the entire season.

In a short time though, the surfaces will be smooth so that your putts will run true. They'll go exactly where you send them. If you're entitled to sink them, they'll drop, and your scores will benefit accordingly. Be patient and try to allow for a condition that is unable.

The selection of a course for the national open is always subject to criticism. This year the Oakmont course offers one of the severest tests in the history of the event.

It brings up the point about a course being too tough. Such a thing can be. There are holes on many courses throughout the country that have been designed to stop even the best players. At Oakmont there are just about 18 such holes. A player who can avoid the sea of hazards will be almost superhuman.

Let a drive be a bit off line or an iron be too far or too short, and trouble will hit the player right between the eyes. It will hit him so hard that in the future he'll have eyes only for hazards.

It is my opinion that the course has too many hazards to bring out the best in those taking part in a championship of this importance.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(By C. J. P.)

With a little rub of Alladin's lamp—not to mention some shekels of silver—the Roman Coliseum is brought to Peterborough for a few hours tonight. It will be set within the big drill room of the local Armouries and while the throng looks on and signal with thumbs up or down, all the time shrieking gleefully, huge gladiators will wrestle mightily. While some of the accessories of the good old Caesarian days are lacking, the essentials are still present—the ferocious physical combat, two rivals and an arbiter in one ring, and an encircling mob yelling for blood. But greenbacks have replaced the laurel wreath.

• • • • • •

This is one type of sport that has retained its popularity since Mok and Tib battled grimly while some cave-gal peeked 'round a bush! Down through the ages, men have grappled in fun or earnest, in sporting matches or life-and-death duels. And today boys take to rasslin' as naturally as to racing. Rules have been modified from time to time, but it is still a hard physical game requiring strength, stamina, speed and science—and the ability to stand pain. And those who don't rassle love to watch the grapplers at work.

Tonight, we have six noted heavyweights in the pro ranks doing their stuff here. Mat mastodons like the Masked Marvel, Bull Findlay, Don Petroff, Walter Parnall, Johnny Gyroffy and Jack Pearl. They mix it in the modern style of catch as catch can, with practicall everything going Flying tackles, elbow clips, scissors-holds, hammerlocks, body-crashing, airplane spins and toe-holds—you get 'em all in every bout. The grunt-and-groan game retains its present popularity because of its color, its showmanship and its man-to-man combat. Drop around to the Armouries at 8.30 this eve and get a load of 'em. They're worth it.

Hood and Cummings pulled out a 10-7 win over Lillico Motors in the all-auto clash at Central yester eve. It was a tidy battle with the heaving only ordinary but some nifty fielding and hard bingling. The Ford crew have run their streak of verdicts to four straight in as many starts while the luckless Lillico crew—strong on paper—just didn't get the breaks again. At that, the Scates squad had to come from behind twice to gain the close victory. They've got some real clouters on that lineup. Omemee plays Lillico's here tonight.

Secretary McIlwraith of the O.A.S.A. sent the following letter to Dave Leether here recently: "Dear Sir—May I express to yourself and through you to the Peterborough Softball League and to all others who in any way assisted the heartfelt thanks and appreciation of the executive members and delegates from all parts of the province to the annual meeting of the Ontario Softball Association which was held in Peterborough on Good Friday last? Arrangements for this meeting were perfect and I can assure you that everyone enjoyed a pleasant stay in your city. This is particularly true of the executive officers who were loud in their praise of the splendid manner in which the arrangements were made for their stay over night. Not the least of the pleasant arrangements was the drive around your city which everyone enjoyed thoroughly. At the annual meeting the following resolution was passed and I have great pleasure in forwarding this. The resolution read: 'That a hearty vote of thanks be extended to the Peterborough Softball League for the efficient and splendid manner in which they had entertained us today. Again thanking you for the trouble necessitated in these arrangements, I am, etc."

Auburns took an 8-2 Tri-County Lacrosse League nod over Lindsay in Scugogville last p.m. and what a battle it was! Ira Dundas and Mick Magee were feuding all evening and finally ended up drawing match penalties in the fourth quarter after a fist fight with half a dozen team-mates of each joining in the young Donnybrook. Seven minor penalties, two majors and two match penalties had the place at fever pitch all through. The Woollens had more experience and system to earn the verdict but Lindsay gave them a rousing battle. The fans up there got a birdseye view of real old time lacrosse by a bunch of veterans who try to keep the game from going pansy. Millbrook is slated for Norwood tonight while Thursday sees Lindsay at Millbrook, Norwood at Port Hope and Dinty's Inn at Auburn.

C.G.E. will not have an intermediate ball team this year. For the first summer in a long time, the Electrics will be out of baseball. It seems the ball club and the Social and Athletic Club in the plant could not reach satisfactory arrangements as to the financial backing of the team, so they won't operate. It's too bad as this team has always been a contender and took care of a flock of good players each season. They were to have entered the Trent Valley League, but now only Raybestos, Coe Hill and Marmora will make up that loop. Raybestos entered last night and the schedule will be drawn up within a few days. Incidentally, Coe Hill started off with a 10-7 win over Marmora the other day.

• • • • • •

Bo Hunt entered Raybestos in the country circuit last night at a meeting in Marmora. Officers of the local club are: Hon. President, R. A. Abbott; president, Bill Kay; vice-prexy, J. J. Ahearn; secretary, S. Haskill; treasurer, J. King; executive, W. Rogers, H. Miller and J. Coursey. The team will practise tonight at six in the Exhibition Grounds and all players wanting a tryout should be on deck. Team will have to be picked within a few days. The locals expect to open shortly in Marmora or Coe Hill, with the first home game likely next week. So we have two intermediate teams here now, although we're sorry C.G.E. isn't in too.

AUBURNS BEAT LINDSAY 8-2 ON HOME FIELD

Major Penalties and Free-for-all Fight Marks Fast Lacrosse Tilt.

AUBURNS HAVE PUNCH.

In an exciting Tri-County Lacrosse League fixture in Lindsay last evening, Auburns defeated Lindsay Kiwanis, 8 to 2, before a fair crowd of fans. Several major penalties, two match penalties and a free-for-all fight between the teams at the last marked the furious encounter as these teams met for the first time. Dundas and Magee, who had been carrying on a feud all through, mixed it with fists flying in the fourth quarter and half of their teammates were embroiled before order could be restored. Both received match penalties.

The Auburns had a little too much punch for Lindsay and topped them in experience to shade them on scoring in every period. They did some nice passing and accurate shooting while checking the Kiwanis hard and effectively. The homesters fought back all through and made it a real battle to the end. The count by quarters was 2-1, 1-0, 3-1, and 2-0. The fans got a big kick out of the scrappy encounter.

Of the 11 penalties handed out, Auburns drew six with Dundas being chased five times. Nicholson and Ringland drew major penalties, while Magee was gated three times. King, Jackson, Miller, Dallin and Mayette all shone for the winners, with Munden and Dundas effective in spots. For Lindsay, Wakelin, LeBarr, Gardner and Lefebvre were best, with Magee and Ringland good at times.

The teams:—

Auburns.—Goal, Meyette; defence, Miller and Reynolds; rover, Dundas; centre, Dallin; wings, Jackson and Heard; alternates, King, Munden, Ellis, Hunter and O'Keefe.

Lindsay.—Goal, Lefebvre; defence, Ringland and LeBarr; rover, Magee; centre, Bacon; wings, Gardner and Ellis; alternates, Wakelin, Loucks, McKee, Coates, Nicholson and Ecobichon.

DANZIG, June 4 (C.P.-Havas).—The Senate of the Free City this morning ordered all banks to remain closed for the next two days in an effort to halt the withdrawal of funds which had assumed alarming proportions.

The run on the banks in the Free City followed rumors the florin, devaluated 42 per cent. on May 2, would be further reduced.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

By DONALD HENDERSON CLARKE

Only one man could make Consuelo star of the follies—and now he had failed her. The gypsy girl went to him, shaking with emotion.

"Oh my darling, I am not asking much," the gypsy pleaded. "I am worthy of this thing. You lie when you say you are through with me. You love me and you know you do. All I ask is this one thing. I am worthy of it, my darling. I can dance a thousand times better than L'Ville. I will put this show over until it is the talk of the world. I cannot say I will make you rich, for you are rich already, but I will make this show so famous that people will come from the far corners of the earth to see Consuelo, the Gypsy Dancer, and you will be proud of me. Can't you understand? Can't you see my dream? Can't you realize that this means more than all else to me and can you not understand how I would love the man who makes this dream come true?" Sobs choked the words and it was a moment before she could go on. "You are my friend and my lover, if I cannot turn to you to help me, then who will? I have no one. I left my own people. I left the gypsy camp for you and for my dream. Do not fail me, Stewart, do not fail me now!"

There was silence between them.

"You should hove been an actress, not a dancer!" He stuck his hands into his pockets and walked to the window. He stood there and did not speak or move.

His silence grew unbearable. Finally he turned to her.

"You are right when you say that I want my own way. I had planned this for you next season. You are not ready now to star in the Follies. It's only your magnificent conceit that makes you think you are, and because of that you are not playing this game fairly, either with me or with Louise. A bit of applause has turned your head and it would be useless to even hold out the promise of next year. I can see quite plainly now that you care nothing at all about me—except what I can do for you. Playing the role of sucker gets tiresome! And after all I haven't forgiven the things you said about me last night." He picked up his hat and placed his stick under his arm. "Out of consideration of the fact that I hold myself a bit responsible for you I'm going to let your contract run as it is written. I'm big enough not to put you out of the Follies after what you've done. I don't know how much Goldberg is paying you but I guess it will be enough for you to live on, since your preference seems to run to dirty hovels. I will settle up what bills you have and you may keep the things I've given you. That's fair enough." He turned to go. "No more nonsense like today out of you, gypsy, or I'll put you out of the show and send you back to the dirty tribe you came from. I expect you to go on tonight in your regular routine and we'll try to explain about the mistake in the papers the best way we can. A fine mess that is. Now no more rumpuses backstage, do you understand or—out you go!"

Consuelo moved up to him, eyes flashing, gypsy temper unleashed.

"You dog! You son of a dog!" She slapped him across the face. "I spit on you! I cry out revenge and the Gypsy Consuelo hates you!" She reached out to slap him again but before she could do so he had grabbed her wrist and twisted it behind her.

"Let me go!" she shrieked. "You dog!" She bit into his arm. Then before she knew what had happened, she was on the floor, her arms behind her, Stewart bending over her.

"Listen, gypsy, you don't talk to me that way! You've gone a bit too far! Now take back those words!"

She held up her head and laughed in his face.

"Dog. Less than a dog!"

He drew her wrists higher.

She bit her lips to keep from crying out with pain. The color went from her cheeks.

"Take back your lying words, you dirty little gypsy!"

"I take back nothing!" she gasped. "You are a white dog, a low dog!" She was panting. The pain was almost unbearable now. "You can't stop me from this thing I want!" The last word was hardly audible. She bent her head to the floor. "When you make your promise to me—" she paused for breath—"that I shall be star—of the Follies—tonight—I will—say—you are not—a dog!" It was all she could do to speak so great was the pain.

"To hell with you and your bargains!" He flung her from him.

Consuelo lay on the floor groaning. Then she raised herself and began to rub the reddened wrists. She was sobbing now.

Stewart was staring down at her He wiped the sweat from his forehead.

"I've hurt you!"

No answer.

"Gypsy girl, I've hurt you!"

She looked up.

"Your last gift to me has not been a pleasant one, my friend." Her voice held utter despair, all anger gone from it. "My dream is less than the dust. The marble palace is gone. You must feel good and fine to have been able to do this to me." Her head dropped. "Go now, you have hurt me all you can!"

He was on his knees beside her.

"Consuelo, forgive me! I've acted like a crazy fool! I didn't mean to! I was so horribly mad I didn't know what I was doing! I've never done a thing like this before." He was massaging her wrists. "I didn't know I was such a beast! Consuelo, will you take back those hateful words you said to me?" He was pleading.

"And you think you can build my dream again!"

"I can do anything."

"Maybe it is only your magnificent conceit that makes you think so. You think, white man, you are big enough to take back this too?" She held up the swelling wrists.

"Don't be cruel!" He buried his lips against her arm. "I'm everything you said plus being a fool. Look up at me, gypsy girl, and say you forgive me for hurting you like this and I will try to build back your dream."

"Is it only a promise?"

"No, not this time."

She raised her eyes to his.

"Stewart, I take back my words. They, too, were spoken in anger. It is only the spiteful gypsy part of me that speaks such words. I have read your fortune, my friend, and I know my own and our lines travel close together and the future holds much for us." She did not say whether it held happiness or unhappiness. "That first day I met you I knew this and if I have been free with myself with you that was the reason. Then when you were so cold to me I tried to hate you and to fall in love with other men, but I could not. You have made me love you, Stewart, and it is only when one loves that one can be wounded so cruelly."

He held her to him. Then he got to his feet. He was a shamefaced youngster.

"Be at the theater early. I'll have everything fixed up." He paused. "The marble palace went through an earthquake, shaken, but undamaged," he added whimsically. "I may be a fool but it's grand to be a fool once in a while. Tonight, my dear, I will make your dream come true for you!"

The girl knelt on the floor where he had left her. Her eyes were closed.

"Dog! Son of a dog!" she muttered. "I wonder if after all I am maybe falling in love with this dog!"

Presently she got to her feet.

"Tonight my dream comes true!" She threw back her head and laughed, and then she put her face in her hands and cried with happiness that was greater than pain that at last this thing had come to her.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, June 5

According to the lunar transits in operation on this day, there should be great activity and commotion, possibly in the pursuit of pleasure or in connection with social or domestic matters rather than purely business. Something in the nature of an upheaval, surprising and sudden, is foreseen, with change or travel. All calls for due restraint and discretion if the prescribed benefits and pleasures are to be allowed to operate.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of much commotion and change under a surprising and sudden impetus. This in relation to private or essentially intimate associations rather than business. It may be wound up in the pursuit of pleasure—social, domestic or romantic—but in all there is need for proper restraint.

A child born on this day may be endowed with many social graces and talents and have kindly and lovable disposition. But it may be changeable, restless and not dependable.

ARABS WERE ILL-ARMED SHORT OF AMMUNITION; BEEN MASSACRED BY TURKS

Lawrence Completes Trip Through Desert to See Feisal.

FEISAL AND HIS LEVIES

Hundreds of Inhabitants Were Butchered by Turkish Soldiers.

By Lawrence of Arabia

We rode up the stream to the garden from which it ran sparkling in a stone-lined channel; and then we turned along the mud wall of the garden in the shadow of its palms, to another of the detached hamlets. Tafas led the way up its little street (the houses were so low that from our saddles we looked down upon their clay roofs), and near one of the larger houses stopped and beat upon the door of an uncovered court. A slave opened to us, and we dismounted in privacy. Tafas haltered the camels, loosed their girths, and strewed before them green fodder from a fragrant pile beside the gate. Then he led me into the guest room of the house, a dark clean little mud-brick place, roofed with half-leaf with half palm-logs under hammered earth. We sat down on the palm-leaf mat which ran along the dais. The day in this stifling valley had grown very hot; and gradually we lay back side by side. Then the hum of the bees in the gardens without, and of the flies hovering over our veiled faces within, lulled us into sleep.

COL LAWRENCE

Date and Bread

Before we awoke, a meal of bread and dates had been prepared for us by the people of the house. The dates were new, meltingly sweet and good, like none I had ever tasted. Afterwards we mounted again, and rode up the clear, slow rivulet till it was hidden within the palm-gardens, behind their low boundary walls of sun-dried clay. In and out between the trees roots were dug little canals a foot or two deep, so contrived that the stream might be let into them from the stone channel, and each tree watered in its turn. The head of water was owned by the community, and shared out among the landowners for so many minutes or hours daily or weekly according to the traditional use. The water was a little brackish, as was needful for the best palms; but it was sweet enough in the wells of private water in the groves. These wells were very frequent, and found water three or four feet below the surface.

Our way took us through the central village and its market street. There was little in the shops; and all the place felt decayed. A generation ago Wasta was populous (they said by a thousand houses); but one day there rolled a huge wall of water down Wadi Safra, the embankments of many palm gardens were breached, and the palm trees swept away. Some of the islands of which houses had stood for centuries were submerged, and the mud houses melted back again into mud, killing or drowning the unfortunate slaves within. The men could have been replaced, and the trees, had the soil remained; but the gardens had been built up of earth carefully won from the normal forests by years of labour, and this wave of water—eight feet deep, running in a race for three days—reduced the plots in its track to their primordial banks of stones.

A little above Wasta the valley widened somewhat, to an average of perhaps four hunded yards, with a bed of fine shingle and sand, laid very smooth by the winter rains. The walls were of bare red and black rock, whose edges and ridges were sharp as knife blades, and reflected the sun like metal. They made the freshness of the trees and grass seem luxurious. We now saw parties of Feisal's soldiers, and grazing herds of their saddle camels. Before we reached Hamra every nook in the rocks or clump of trees was a bivouac. They cried cheery greetings to Tafas, who came to life again, waving back and calling to them, while he pressed on quickly to end his duty towards me.

Lawrence Arrives

Hamra opened on our left. It seemed a village of about one hundred houses, buried in gardens among mounds of earth some twenty feet in height. We forded a little stream, and went up a walled path between trees to the top of one of these mounds where we made our camels kneel by the yard-gate of a long, low house. Tafas said something to a slave who stood there with silver-hilted sword in hand. He led me to an inner court, on whose further side, framed between the uprights of a black doorway, stood a white figure waiting tensely for me. I felt at first glance that this was the man I had come to Arabia to seek—the leader who would bring the Arab Revolt to full glory. Feisal looked very tall and pillar-like, very slender, in his long white silk robes and his brown headcloth bound with a brilliant scarlet and gold cord. His eyelids were dropped; and his black beard and colourless face were like a mask against the strange, still watchfulness of his body. His hands were crossed in front of him on his dagger.

I greeted him. He made way for me into the room, and sat down on his carpet near the door. As my eyes grew accustomed to the shade, they saw that the little room held many silent figures, looking at me or at Feisal steadily. He remained staring down at his hands, which were twisting slowly about his dagger. At last he inquired softly how I had found the journey. I spoke of the heat, and he asked how long from Rabegh, commenting that I had ridden fast for the season.

"And do you like our place here in Wadi Safra?"

"Well; but it is far from Damascus."

The word had fallen like sword into their midst. There was a quiver. Then everybody present stiffened where he sat, and held his breath for a silent minute. Some, perhaps, were dreaming of far off success; others may have thought it a reflection on their late defeat. Feisal at length lifted his eyes, smiling at me, and said, "Praise be to God, there are Turks nearer us than that." We all smiled with him, and I rose and excused myself for the moment.

Feisal And His Levies

Under tall arcades of palms with ribbed and groined branches in a soft meadow, I found the trim camp of Egyptian Army soldiers with Nafi Bey, their Egyptian major, sent lately from the Sudan by Sir Reginald Wingate to help the Arab rebellion. They comprised a mountain battery and some machine-guns. Nafi himself was an amiable fellow, kind and hospitable to me.

Feisal was announced with Maulud el Mukhlus, the Arab zealot of Tekrit, who, for rampant nationalism, had been twice deported in the Turkish Army, and had spent an exile of two years in Nejd as a secretary with Ibn Rashid. He had commanded the Turkish cavalry before Shaiba, and had been taken by us there. As soon as he heard of the rebellion of the Sherif he had volunteered for him, and had been the first regular officer to join Feisal. He was now nominally his A.D.C.

Bitterly he complained that they were in every way ill-equiped. This was the main cause of their present plight. They got thirty thousand pounds a month from the Sherif, but little flour and rice, little barley, few rifles, insufficient ammunition, no machine-guns, no mountain guns, no technical help, no information.

I stopped Maulud there and said that my coming was expressly to learn what they lacked and to report it, but that I could work with them only if they would explain to me their general situation. Feisal agreed, and began to sketch to me the history of their revolt from its absolute beginning.

Arabs Ill-Armed

The first rush on Medina had been a desperate business. The Arabs were ill-armed and short of ammunition, the Turks in great force. At the height of the crisis the Beni Ali broke; and the Arabs were trust out beyond the walls. The Turks then opened fire on them with their artillery; and the Arabs, unused to this new arm, became terrified. The Ageyl and Ateiba got into safety and refused to move out again.

Sections of Beni Ali tribesmen approached the Turkish command with an offer to surrender, if their villages were spared. Fakhri played with them, and in the ensuing lull of hostilities surrounded the Awali suburb with his troops: whom suddenly he ordered to carry it by assault and to massacre every living thing within its walls. Hundreds of the inhabitants were attacked and butchered, the houses fired, and living and dead alike thrown back into the flames. Kakhri and his men had served together and had learned the arts of both slow and the fast kill upon the Armenians in the North.

This bitter taste of the Turkish mode of war sent a shock across Arabia; for the first rule of Arab war was that women were inviolable: the second that the lives and honour of children too young to fight with me were to be spared: the third that property impossible to carry off should be left undamaged. The Arabs with Feisal perceived that they were opposed to new customs and fell back out of touch to gain time to readjust themselves. There could no longer be any question of submission: the sack of Awali had opened blood-feud upon blood-feud, and put on them the duty of fighting to the end of their force: but it was plain now that it would be a long affair, and that with muzzle-loading guns for sole weapons, they could hardly expect to win.

Magistrate's Court

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., was faced with a heavy docket following the long week-end holiday when he opened court to-day.

Arrested in an early morning raid on premises situated at 227 Hunter street, two Chinese and four other local residents answered to various charges of gambling. Each of the accused pleaded "guilty."

Tom Long, proprietor of the Canton Cafe, was convicted of keeping a common gaming house, and was fined $100 without costs. His compatriot and four white men convicted of being found in a common gaming house, were each fined $10 and $3.25 costs, or in default 2 months' imprisonment.

T. J. Carley, K.C., speaking on behalf of Tom Long, stated that while the accused was charged with keeping a common gaming house, there was nothing flagrant about the the offence. He had merely permitted a room to be used by some men for the purpose of "a quiet little game of stud poker." The stake which the men were playing for, Mr. Carley stated, was a modest one and there was no suggestion that Long had taken any rake-off.

Not In Use.

With reference to two pin games and a slug machine which were seized, Mr. Carley told the court they had been in use, but were stored away on the premises.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., while agreeing that what Mr. Carley had urged on behalf of his client to be substantially correct, reminded the bench that the place had been under observation by the police for some time, and he suggested there should be a penalty imposed that would serve as a warning to discourage the operation of other gaming houses in the city.

After imposing sentence, His Worship stated he would order that the machines and other paraphanalia be confiscated, if the Crown Attorney could show him that he had authority to do so.

Timothy Burn of Somerville Township, Victoria County, appeared on an adjourned charge of reckless ang negligent driving. Pleading guilty to the charge he was fined $15.00 and $4.25 costs, or 15 days' imprisonment, and his driving license was ordered suspended for 1 month.

His brothers, Leo Burn and Edward Burn, pleaded guilty to charges of intoxication and drew fines of $10 and costs of $4.50 each.

Crashed Signal Light.

Mr. Carley, representing the three young men, commented on the fact that the car in which they had been driving had crashed the signal light on the C.N.R. on Bethune street, with the result that the car had been badly damaged. No personal injuries were sustained and the case was not flagrant, Mr. Carley urged, in asking that lenient treatment be accorded by the bench.

Chief Constable Samuel Newhall stated that the car was being driven on the east side (the wrong side) of Bethune when the accident happened.

A charge of doing wilful property damage was withdrawn against Roland Gilbert, and the court dismissed the defendant upon ordering payment of a dollar costs.

John Bingham, 26, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of theft of a diamond ring valued at $25 from his employer, Mrs. Howard Gardner, R. R. 2, Norwood, was remanded for sentence until Friday.

Mr. McElderry stated the accused stole the ring and then sold it at a store in Peterborough for $1.25. There were no previous convictions against the accused, he said.

An old age pensioner, who gave his address as R.R. 1, Keene, pleaded guilty to a charge of attempted suicide, and stated his nerves had been in a bad state, and he had been driven to distraction by his son, so that he did not know what he was doing.

The Magistrate urged upon the old man the seriousness of his offence, and received from him a promise that if placed on suspended sentence he would not attempt to repeat the act. The accused readily agreed and was placed on probation for a year, with orders to report to police every 2 months.

It was stated that the man had cut his throat with a table knife, but that the wound inflicted had not been serious.

SCHECTER BROTHERS

It was a test case started by the Schecter brothers, above, live poultry dealers in New York city, which resulted in the United States supreme court decision halting compulsory enforcement of NRA codes. The decision which virtually demolishes NRA free members of the firm from one-to-three-month jail sentences and fines of more than $7,000, imposed for selling chickens in defiance of trade practice rules of the poultry code and failing to observe the maximum 40-hour week and minimum 50-cent per hour wage. In the picture, seated, LEFT to RIGHT, are Alexander Schecter, Attorney Joseph Heller, and Joseph Schecter. Standing, LEFT to RIGHT, Martin and Aaron Schecter. This photo was made following the decision which became the biggest story of year in the U.S.

Suspicious Looking Character Terrifies Residents of Lasswade.

DESCRIPTION KNOWN

APSLEY, June 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—A suspicious looking character is causing some alarm among Lasswade residents, according to reports. It appears that on Saturday afternoon, Mary Davis, a young woman, and Russell Davis, about 10 years old, were fetching the cows home when they came across a small fire that had evidently just been set out as evidenced by the heap of dry wood and half-burned matches. They extinguished the blaze, and soon after saw a man run from an old building near by.

Later, just before sundown, after reaching home, Russell went to the creek near the house, when he saw a man come out of the engine house. He asked him what he was doing, when he states the man presented a large revolver or sawn-off shotgun and replied "I'll show you. I'll shoot you." The lad, terrified, ran to the house and told the men, who at once procured rifles and searched the adjoining swamp but found no trace of the man.

The same evening, St. Paul's Anglican Church nearby, which is under repairs was entered, and the communion vessels taken out of the box where they are kept, and placed on the table. It is believed that the same man is responsible for the fires in that district of last Sunday. The men called out to fight the fire in the long swamp saw a man leaving the road as they arrived, and after the fire had been brought under control, they found all their cars parked at the end of the road had been gone through by some one. A good description of the man has been secured, and his identity is believed established.

He said he had been studying methods of cutting and marketing peat in Ireland and Europe and thought with employment of right methods, the industry could be built up in Canada.

Action of Premier M. F. Hepburn concerning the power contracts had definitely aroused English feeling against him, the member stated, "I am quite certain of that, as I talked with a great many people."

Sells Half Interest, Few Hours Before Race

BROOKLYN, N.Y.—A few hours before Bahram raced home a winner in the English derby today, Mrs. Anna Hyman who held a sweepstakes ticket on him under the name "Past Due" sold half her interest. But there was little regret in the home as mother, father, and six children heard the race results and found themselves richer by $115,000 than when they sat down to breakfast this morning. Mrs. Hyman sold half her ticket for $40,000 and the lucky other half was worth $75,000. She immediately set out to try to book passage on the return maiden voyage of the Normandie.

FOUND ON ROAD UNCONSCIOUS BY HIS FAMILY

NEAR HAMILTON.

Companions on Ride Located —Held For Questioning By Police.

HAMILTON, June 5 (C.P.).—Provincial Police launched a series of raids in Caistor Township and adjoining areas to-day, working on the theory the death of Alex. Sacrivitch had been caused through poison alcohol.

Search warrants have been secured to permit police to visit a number of places suspected as bootleg resorts.

HAMILTON, Ont., June 5 (C.P.). — Found lying helpless outside his home in Caistor Centre last night, Alex Sacrivitch, 45, Caistor farmer, died during the night. Provincial Police at Grimsby were notified to-day.

Officers hurried to the spot this morning on an alarm turned in by the man's wife who reported she found him in an injured condition and put him to bed last night, only to discover this morning that he had died.

According to the story told Provincial Officer Robbie by the wife of the dead man, Sacrivitch had gone out with several companions yesterday. Late at night a car sped past the house and as it did so Sacrivitch was hurled out into the ditch.

The family heard the crash and rushed out to find the unconscious body lying by the roadside. The wife, assisted by her children, carried Sacrivitch into the house and placed him on a sofa where he revived. Before he went to sleep for the night he was heard singing and was thought to be unhurt, but evidently died not long after.

Dr. J. D. Prior of Smithville ordered an autopsy which is being performed by Dr. G. A. Sinclair of Grimsby. An inquest will be held. In the meantime, Provincial Police have located the man's companions and are questioning them. Sacrivitch was the father of six children.

HAMILTON BANK ROBBERY FOILED

Two Masked Men Hiding in Manager's Office Flee From Janitor's Wife.

HAD JIMMIED WINDOW.

HAMILTON, Ont., June 5.—(CP)—Hiding themselves in the manager's office of the Bank of Commerce, Burlington, over night, two masked, armed bandits were foiled in their attempted robbery early this morning.

Window Prove Give-Away

T. A. Smith, janitor, who lived with his wife in the upper and lower back floor of the bank building, to-day noticed a side window of the lower floor had been jimmied. He called to his wife to notify the manager, Cal. S. R. Wallace; Mrs. Smith went towards a phone. She had just succeeded in getting Central when two masked, armed men strode out of the manager's office where they had been hiding.

"Put down that phone," one of them ordered and pushed her away from the instrument.

For a few moments the bandits seemed undecided what to do, but evidently realizing that all money in the bank was locked in the vaults, and that discovery was imminent, they suddenly fled from the building.

NEW YORK CASH HEPBURN'S AIM

Present $15,000,000 Issue No Sign of Abandoning Plan to Comb U.S. Market.

RELIEF OBLIGATIONS.

TORONTO, June 5 (C.P.) — Ontario's $15,000,000 debenture issue advertised to-day does not mean the Hepburn Government has abandoned any idea of going to the New York money market for funds to meet maturing obligations, Premier Mitchell Hepburn said to-day as he went into a pre-cabinet conference with a group of New York financiers.

Mr. Hepburn explained the request for tenders for the $15,000,000 issue was only to take care of the refunding of unemployment relief obligations bearing an average interest rate of 5.0164 which will be maturing this year, the Premier explained, and he hopes by selling short term treasury notes in New York he will be able to refund at a fraction of that rate of interest.

He refused to reveal the outcome of to-day's conference with representatives of New York financial interests, but he is laying the whole financing plan before the cabinet, he said.

If to-day's advertisement for tenders for the $15,000,000 issue does not bring a staisfactory bid, Mr. Hepburn said, he contemplates offering the debentures to the public over the counters of the Ontario Savings Bank system.

DAWSON CENTRE OF QUESTIONING MACPHAIL CASE

BAYNES' LETTERS READ.

Notes By Convict Charges Inspector Resorted to Plain Threat.

OTTAWA, June 5.—(CP)—Interrogation of Inspector J. D. Dawson of the penitentiaries branch was continued today by J. C. McRuer in the probe by Judge E. J. Daly into charges Dawson had used abusive language in reference to Miss Agnes MacPhail, woman member of the House of Commons.

Picking up the proceedings at the point where the commission adjourned yesterday, Mr. McRuer returned to a letter written by Charges Baynes who, in May 1934, was a convict at Kingston penitentiary.

Checking Up

It was brought out Baynes had written a letter which the penitentiaries' officials believed was intended for Miss MacPhail. Dawson's visit to the penitentiary, he said, was to find out if that was so.

Dawson had interviewed Baynes and following this interview Baynes had written Warden W. B. Mcgloughlin complaining of Dawson's interrogation of him about Miss MacPhail. In that letter Baynes said of Dawson:

"Your investigation has turned into trying to make me a party in your attempt to discredit Miss MacPhail, about whom you used a sneering remark that she was mak-

Milk Main Food With Extra Vitamines

TORONTO, June 5 (C.P.) — "Of all foodstuffs which have so far been advertised as vehicles for extra vitamins to protect children from rickets, milk is the only one which can be strongly defended," said Dr. E. He warned that "if a halt is not called to indiscriminate dosing of foods with vitamins, there is a possibility of a disturbance in the balance of nutrition which may have wide-reaching effect and which it is not unreasonable to contemplate with some uneasiness."

Campbell To Seek New Mark In July

LONDON, June 5 (A.P.).—Sir Malcolm Campbell, British sportsman, will attempt to better his own world's automobile speed record at Salt Lake City in July, he announced to-day.

Speaking before an advertising club luncheon gathering, Campbell said he would leave for Utah in July for a new record attempt that month. He lifted the record to 276.86 miles per hour at Daytona Beach March 7.

It's impossible to rely in the future on the beach if you wish to do anything in the region of 300 miles per hour," the sportsman said. "You must have 100 per cent. perfect conditions for high speed. We now are carrying out further tests for our attempt in July."

NEW BRUNSWICK INQUIRY.

Commissioner Finds Force Emerged From Investigation Without Stain.

OTTAWA, June 5 (C.P.—)—Charges against officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in New Brunswick, laid in the House of Commons by Hon. Peter Veniot (Lib., Gloucester), were not sustained in the opinion of Chief Justice J. B. M. Baxter of that province, who was appointed a Commissioner to investigate them. The Chief Justice found some of the charges had been disproved.

Chief Justice Baxter's report, tabled in the House of Commons to-day by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, concluded that "the charges have to a large extent been based upon statements and rumors which should have been more completely investigated before they were put forward as accusations against the R.S.M.P., whose conduct emerged from this inquiry without any reflections upon it."

Started by Veniot.

Mr. Veniot, former Postmaster-General of Canada and former Premier of New Brunswick, made certain charges about the activities of the R.C.M.P. in Bathurst and vicinity; and declared that he would welcome an investigation and that he was prepared to prove everything he said. The Minister of Justice agreed to conduct an inquiry and had Chief Justice Baxter, one-

Manion-Bennett Tiff Has No After Effects

OTTAWA, June 5 (C.P.). — "A mountain out of a mole hill" was the description given to-day to the corridor rumors of whispered tiffs in the House yesterday between Premier R. B. Bennett and Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways.

Dr. Manion had taken exception to what he considered a criticism of his department in the Hyndman commission report on employment of returned men. He rapped the commission for not calling officers of his department to get their side of the question.

The Prime Minister, it is understood, took the view a government-appointed commission should not be openly rebuked by a Minister and said something in an undertone to that effect and Dr. Manion replied. Both usually speak with emphasis and it was said sparks flew but it was all over very soon, their friends say, with no after effects.

Liberal Blockade Looms In House of Commons

MARKETING ACT CASH VOTE STIRS LIVELY BATTLE

William Fraser, Northumberland, Defies Board to Jail Him For Infraction.

STEVENS DELAYS TEST.

Withdraws Amendment to Patent Bill — Predicts Change Within Year.

OTTAWA, June 5 (C.P.).—Threats of an Opposition blockade loomed in the House of Commons to-day after the liveliest debate of the session last night when Conservatives and Liberals joined issue on the merits of the Natural Products Marketing Act. The dispute arose when Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, sought approval of the money vote for administration of the Act enacted last year and stubborn opposition was offered.

When the 11 o'clock adjournment stilled the angry tongues last night a half-dozen Liberal members were doing their best to shut off a speech by J. Earl Rowe (Cons., Dufferin-Simcoe). Mr. Rowe was repeatedly interrupted as he charged the Liberals with a "laisser faire" attitude, with speaking in the interests of the dealers who made more out of farm products than the farmers who produced them.

Separate Speeches.

Finally Liberals contended Mr. Rowe had spoken more than 40 minutes and the Deputy-Speaker ruled some of the interruptions had been separate speeches and had enabled Mr. Rowe to begin his forty minutes anew.

Hon. Ian Mackenzie (Lib., Vancouver Centre) and William Duff (Lib., Antigonish-Guysborough) appealed from the ruling, but Sir George Perley and Hon. Ernest Lapointe, acting Leaders on the Government and Opposition sides, urged the question of an interpretation of a rule should not be decided in such a summary fashion, and the adjournment hour arrived.

Minister of Agriculture Robert Weir and Mr. Rowe came to the defence of the Marketing Act, with the Ontario member drawing a continued round of fire from the Liberals. They claimed the Act was the only salvation of farmers, enabling them to command their own marketing.

Attack C.C.F. Members.

Humphrey Mitchell (Lab., Hamilton East) joined the general row by attacking C.C.F. members. He called them "overnight revolutionists" and "revolutionists in the abstract" and advised them to talk less and act more.

TORONTO, June 5 (C.P.)—The Toronto Wholesale Cheese Market was steady to-day with dealers buying large colored, paraffined and government grades at 10½c.

Wholesalers offered cheese to retailers at the following prices:

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, June 5. — Bacons were steady at $9.75, fed and watered on the local live stock market yesterday. Butchers, heavies and lights brought $9.25, with extra heavies $8.75. Sows ranged from $6.50 to $7.00. Receipts were 498 head.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, June 5. — Grain prices, given a lead by strength in gains of one cent in the wheat pit of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday.

The July option, only future left on the big wheat board, ended the session at 83½c. Export sales of wheat aggregating 400,000 bushels were also in aid in maintaining the price structure.

Trading on the while, however, was rather on the dull side. Traders took little notice of copious rains throughout the Canadian West.

Liverpool edged ahead 1d to 1¾d. Buenos Aires climbed ¾c to 1c, and Chicago also advanced.

Spreads were better in the cash grains market and coarse grains improved their position. Flax, headlining the upward movement of coarse grains jumped five cents at one time.

Futures:

Wheat—	Open	High	Low	Close	Prev. Close
July . .	.83	.83⅝	.82¾	.83⅛	.82⅛
Oats—

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Egg prices held the spotlight on the Montreal dairy and produce markets yesterday as they again moved higher, while prices in butter and cheese held steady.

The butter market was quiet, with No. 1 in carlots or less generally quoted 21¼c to 21½c per pound. Small lots to retailers brought 22½c for solids and 23½c for prints. Receipts totalled 486 boxes.

Prices ruled steady on the cheese market. Number 1 current Ontarios sold for 10¼c per pound. Arrivals totalled 207 boxes.

A better tone was exhibited among eggs despite heavy receipts. Graded shipments in carlots or less were generally 20c to 20½c a dozen for A-large, 18 to 18½c for A-medium or B, and 16½c to 17c for C. Lots to retailers were quoted at 23c a dozen for A-large, 21c for A-medium, 20c for B, and 19c for C, in cartons, and a cent less when bought loose. Receipts were 4,422 cases.

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point.—Wheat, 85c to 87c; oats, 32c to 33c; barley, 43c to 45c; corn, 59c to 61c; rye, 43c to 45c; malting barley, 63c to 66c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Halting its recent downward trend, the wheat market advanced almost two cents in a brisk rally just before the close yesterday, reflecting outstanding strength displayed by wheat in Liverpool.

Normally more or less sensitive to fluctuations in the British market, the Chicago pit showed a pronounced sympathetic movement, largely ignoring bearishness coincident, with a favorable domestic crop situation, with private authorities predicting a total United States wheat yield this year 40 per cent. larger than last year's small production.

When the definite upward trend in wheat appeared, shorts moved to cover, accentuating the rise. Wheat closed 1¼ to 1⅞ cents above the previous finish, July 83⅞ to 84 cents. Corn was ⅛ to ⅛ cent higher, July 80¾ to 80⅞ cents. Oats unchanged to ⅜ cents lower. Rye ⅜ to ½ cent up, and barley unchanged.

FATHER ADMITS LOSING HIS HEAD AS HOME BURNS

Rushed to Save Car Instead of His Five Trapped Children.

HE TELLS INQUEST JURY.

Might Have Saved Two of Victims—Witnesses' Stories Conflict.

ALDERWOOD, Ont., June 5 (CP) —Panic-stricken, a father rushed out to save his automobile and let his children burn to death last Friday, an inquest jury heard last night.

Harry Scott, the father, who with his wife and one of his six children were all that escaped the holocaust, admitted he "lost his head" in the excitement.

Perhaps two of the five children who perished might have been saved if he had not broken down, Scott told the crowded inquest hall.

The jury ruled the children died from suffocation caused by a fire of unknown origin.

No Fire in Stove

Scott, a milkman, arrived home with his son Victor, about half-past four in the morning. He retired after having something to eat. Scott was positive there was no fire burning in the stove, nor had he used the electric toaster—which Fire Chief John O'Connor thought had caused the fire.

He was awakened by his wife and rushed outside to give the alarm. Scott said if he or his wife had roused the children then, at least two of them would have been saved.

The witness was positive neither he nor his son had been smoking before they retired, because they were out of cigarettes when they returned home. He borrowed a cigarette in New Toronto.

Stories Differ

Some conflict was brought out in the stories of 20 witnesses examined by Coroner Dr. H. R. Conn and Assistant Crown Attorney Hugh Jones.

Several maintained at least four of the five children died in their sleep; others said at least three could have been saved if awakened early enough by Scott or his wife.

Ivan Shorter told the jury Mrs. Scott threw the baby to him from the verandah roof and then jumped herself.

O'Connor said his brigade was at the scene within a minute or two, but flames had already turned the home into an inferno. With his deputy he had climbed a ladded and rescued the body of Victor, 19. Twelve-year-old Vera and another child were both dead when reached.

SIR FREDERICK BANTING PRESENTED GOLD MEDAL

LONDON, June 5 (C.P. Cable).—The discoverer of insulin, Sir Frederick G. Banting of Toronto to-day held the gold medal of the Society of Apothecaries of London, presented for his valuable services to the science of therapeutics.

The award was made last night at a dinner of the society. Sir William Willcox, noted physician who presided, introduced Sir Frederick as "one of the most distinguished research workers in the world."

Acknowledging the presentation, Sir Frederick paid tribute to those associated with him in the early work on insulin. (Dr. Charles H. Best and Professor J. R. MacLeod collaborated in the discovery of insulin, which was announced at Toronto in 1922).

COUNTIES' RATE BEING FORECAST SLIGHTLY MORE

Council of United Counties Opens Its June Session in Cobourg.

INSURANCE CLAIM.

Adjustment Bureau Has Claim of $1,020 For Collecting Insurance.

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, June 5.—A fractionally higher tax rate for 1935 was prospectively mentioned at the opening of the June sessions of the council of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham here last night.

According to estimates prepared for the guidance of the council by Major E. N. MacNachtan, counties clerk and treasurer, the rate is likely to be slightly in excess of 10 2-5 mills to yield $15,000 more than last year.

"There is bound to be an increase in the requirement for Mothers' Allowances," Mr. MacNachtan said, "but we have no means of ascertaining beforehand how much the increase will be. The proposed estimates have been pared as closely as possible, and the committees should make a special effort to keep within the appropriations."

The general county rate looms at 7.27 mills, and among the items mentioned for payment is $21,000 to be applied on the counties' debt of $70,000 to the Provincial Highways Department.

Warden Percy Stinson, Millbrook, said he had read recently that the federal government proposed to

LAVAL ACCEPTS JOB OF FORMING FRESH CABINET

Veteran Foreign Minister Steps Into Breach as Nation Faces Crisis.

WORST SINCE WAR.

3,500,000 Ex-Soldiers Threaten Action Unless End Made of "Loss of Confidence."

By JOHN EVANS

(Copyright, 1935, by The A. P.)

PARIS, June 5.—Pierre Laval, veteran foreign minister, and tireless toiler in the cause of French security, agreed to-day to attempt to form a cabinet to succeed that of Fernand Bouisson.

Laval only last night rejected the suggestion of President Albert Lebrun he accept the premiership on the grounds his services were more needed in the foreign office.

He finally acceded to-day after the President tried in voin to persuade Jules Jeanneney, president of the Senate, to assume the responsibility.

Laval told Lebrun he would accept the Premiership "in principle" and report to him after consulting his supporters.

Gravest Crisis Since War

Deprived of a government for the second time within a week when Bousson's ministry fell last night, France faced one of the gravest crisis she has experienced since the Great War.

Bouisson, 60-year-old former President of the Chamber of Deputies, likewise declined to attempt to form a new government. He contended the Chamber's refusal to concede him the full powers he sought to battle for the franc eliminated him as a possibility.

The unsettled political situation brought from the National Federation of War Veterans, representing most of France's 3,500,000 ex-soldiers, a threat to take action unless an end were made to "dispair" and "loss of confidence."

The tense situation created by developments of the last week was reflected in a strike of shopkeepers against tax burdens and a clash last night between gendarmes and several hundred members of the Nationalistic "Solicarite Francaise."

The overthrow of Bouisson's Cabinet established a new record for short life among France's notoriously brief governments. He occupied the Premiership exactly three days and 20 hours. The previous record was established by Herriot's "fall of the Franc" Cabinet, which collapsed after five days in July, 1926.

Purchase of New Fire Engine is Discussed and Laid Over.

RELIEF SHOWS DROP.

Inspector Orders Gov't Allotment be Limit—Revision Court Sits.

HAVELOCK, June 5 (Examiner Correspondence).—The advisability of purchasing a new fire engine for the protection of village property was one of the questions that came up at the regular session of the council here on Monday evening, June 3rd, when there was a full attendance of the members, Reeve Leeson in the chair.

Mr. Carmichael, representing the Seagrave Machinery Co. of St. Catharines, was present and described the engine which he believed would best serve the interests of the village. The engine described, of which illustrations were shown, can be bought for $2,600, a reduction of $600 from the original $3,200 and is a great improvement over the engines now in use. It was said that the reduced rate for fire insurance would soon make up to the ratepayers for the small additional taxes required to pay for the engine.

The matter was left over for the

One Caterpillar

NEW YORK, June 5 (C.P.) — A caterpillar crawled into the ear of a horse in the business section of Rockaway Park.

The horse bolted.

A one-year-old baby was snatched from its carriage by its grandmother an instant before the horse trampled it.

A blind man picking his way along the sidewalk, unaware of the exact nature of the confusion, was pushed out of the way by a windowwasher.

The horse was haled by three men after it had wrecked a dozen store front stands and four awnings.

MUTE 56 YEARS WOMAN SPEAKS THEN SUCCUMBS

Victim of Influenza Unable to Speak Since Birth Asks For Brother.

SAYS ONLY 8 WORDS.

DAY SPRING, N.S., June 5 (CP) —Miss Sevilla Knox spoke her first words in 56 years just before she died.

She was a deaf-mute from birth. A few days ago she was seized with influenza and Mrs. Emmaline Conrad was attending her. More from habit than anything else, Mrs. Conrad asked: "How do you feel?"

"Not very good," came the deliberately-enunciated reply. It was the first time the 56-year-old woman had spoken in her lifetime. Then she went on: "Where is my brother Arthur?"

Dies Shortly After

She spoke no more, and she died the next day.

The puzzled matron of the county home here was at a loss to explain the purported sudden return of voice and hearing.

Miss Knox spoke just eight words, according to Mrs. Conrad.

The matron, Mrs. Alton Wagner, declared Mrs. Conrad had told her of the amazing return of the dying woman's speech and ability to hear. On the morning of the day she died, Mrs. Conrad claimed, she was sitting by the other woman's bed in their room when she asked the sick woman how she was feeling.

She expected no answer; but Miss Knox, she said, startled her by answering: "Not very good," the words, spoken slowly and laboriously, were followed by the question: "Where is my brother Arthur?" according to her companion, Miss Knox said nothing more.

The matron was called in and she spoke to Miss Knox but without getting an answer. The dying woman, though, looked up at the matron and smiled at her.

"It was the first time she had smiled at me in the three weeks I've been here," Mrs. Wagner said. The matron added she could assign no cause for the asserted return of the inmate's faculties. "It's all very strange," she declared.

No Medical Examination

No medical examination of Miss Knox had been made before the incident, before or after death. She died in about six hours. The doctor who attended her during her illness has not been at the home since and the matron said she did not believe he had heard of the occurrence.

Miss Knox suffered from goitre and Mrs. Wagner ventured the belief perhaps this circumstance may have had something to do with her temporary release from her silence.

Specialists Skeptical.

TORONTO, June 5 (C.P.) — Prominent ear specialists in convention here regarded with suspicion a report from Dayspring, N.S., which said a 56-year-old woman, deaf from birth, spoke eight words on her deathbed.

"If the woman was a congenital deaf-mute she did not speak," said Dr. Max A. Goldstein, St. Louis, Mo.

"Speech is an imitative achievement," he added; "the woman would be incapable of imitating sounds she had never heard."

Other doctors agreed.

Said one, "Children learn to speak slowly and laboriously by imitation. A child who has learned to talk and becomes deaf through disease quickly forgets sounds. If its hearing is restored it has to learn to speak all over again."

"If the woman spoke, it was a miracle," said another.

A special device which will automatically open parachutes at any given height was successfully tested recently at Leningrad, Russia.

Pleasing Program Rush Point League

RUSH POINT, June 5 (Examiner Correspondence) — Miss Corinne McArthur of McGills, who is the fifth vice-president of the Young People's League had charge of the fifth Thursday's meeting of the month on the evening of May 27th.

The meeting was held in the church at 8 o'clock as usual, and the president, Earl Pollock conducted the opening exercises with the league organist, Miss Luella Keating presiding at the church organ.

Miss Madeline Menzies read the selected scripture reading. As the member to whom the giving of the topic was assigned for this meeting was unavoidably absent, Earl Pollock kindly filled the gap with a suitable and interesting talk on "Big Mack." A comic reading "Next," was given by Mrs. Earl Pollock.

Elinor and Betty Petherick were then called upon to sing a duet, a springtime theme, "There is Wind in the Willows."

The next meeting will be the first Thursday in June and Miss Clara Menzies is first vice-president. An interesting program is anticipated.

has got to win or lose," but it is up to you. We are putting squarely and fairly before you and the onus of the results rests on the shoulders of, not the candidate who is putting forth a Herculean effort, but to you who, in your own district, should develop that public spirit which after all controls the life of a community. In other words, and broadening the thought, the community in which you live is only publicized by your own efforts and we feel sure that your own self-satisfaction would come come from the realization that the Club Member in your district had won a trip to Bermuda because of the fact that her loyal friends in the community in which she lived had decided that it was she whom they wanted to be one of the ten winners.

150,000 Vote Offer Expires This Week.

This week will see the end of Special Bonus Offer of votes for the candidates. During this week only the Travel Club is allowing each candidate a bonus of votes to the extent of 150,000 for each $12 turned in. It is of course, understood by the candidates that any portion of a club of $10 which was in vogue last week, will be credited on the new clubs of $12 for this week.

This is positively the last week during the campaign in which the Travel Club will offer Club bonuses of votes. We would strongly urge that the candidates take advantage of the additional votes for this week as we feel that they will 'bolster up' their relative positions in the contest. Candidates can, only through their own efforts in contact with the reading public, realise materially on this SPECIAL BONUS VOTE OFFER. The Travel Club realizes that this means an extended effort on the part of the contestants but the Travel Club well knows, through years of experience, that the final weeks of a campaign usually result in many surprises for both candidates and the Travel Club.

We certainly do not mean to say that the candidate should sit back and rest on her laurels or make up her mind that the work that she has already done is going to bear fruit of its own volition. This would be a most drastic error on the part of the candidate, because a competitor who feels that little has been accomplished in the way of final results in addition to what she has already done, may put a splendid effort into field canvass during the closing stages of the campaign and in doing so may leave leave her close rivals far in the rear. Therefore, we would urge that all club members take advantage of every facility open to them during the final stages of the contest, and not leave one loophole uncovered that might mean a mishap in their realizing their dreams of travel; a never-to-be-forgotten trip to the sunny isle of Bermuda.

During the winter season the west coast of Mexico shipped over 30,000,000 pounds of fresh tomatoes to the United States.

grant three million dollars toward the cost of special road work that was done a year ago.

"There has been a very general feeling among the counties that they should not be charged with that expenditure," Warden Stinson said, "and if this grant goes through it may relieve us of this account. However, we have no definite information before us regarding this matter."

Two New Members

Warden Stinson welcomed two members who have been elected from their municipalities since the January sessions. Reeve H. A. Grant of Colborne has succeeded I. Palen who was appointed to the staff of the counties jail, and Reeve A. W. Graham of Newcastle occupies the seat of the late J. H. Gibson, whose death took place during the January sessions.

The only absentee when the roll was called last evening was Reeve George Hooton of Cavan whose brother died on Sunday and was buried this afternoon.

An Account For $1,020.

Warden Stinson broke the news to the council that the Canadian Adjustment Bureau of Toronto had a claim against the counties for $1,020 for services rendered in collecting the insurance of $34,000 on the House of Refuge, destroyed by fire last December 22.

"When I took office I didn't know anything about this matter," Warden Stinson said. "It seems that an agreement was entered into with the Bureau by the former Board of Management of the House of Refuge, or members of it, by which 3 per cent of the amount of the insurance was to be paid to the Bureau for collecting the money."

The agreement was signed by ex-Warden Wilbert Davey on January 3rd, and is dated 1934, presumably in error for 1935.

Major MacNachtan informed the council that he had signed the document upon instruction of Mr. Davey, "without being favorable to it."

Warden Stinson said he believed the agreement was made in good faith by the representatives of last year's council.

"I wrote to Mr. Davey about it," Warden Stinson continued, "and he replied that he had entered into the agreement in good faith, although his judgment might be open to question. It is to be regretted that the paper was signed, but I think we can make a better settlement than has been asked. It seems that there was no meeting of the Board on this question, but that the members were interviewed separately by a representative of the Bureau, and the impression was left with them in this way, that they were all in favor of it."

Reeve M. Greer of Hamilton township said ex-Reeve Fred Gray of Manvers, did not sign the agreement.

Claim Not Contested

Warden Stinson added that the insurance company had not contested the amount to be claimed by the counties.

Presumably it was suggested to the members of last year's Board that the Bureau's experience would enable them to obtain the insurance money to the full extent and more expeditiously than if the negotiations were carried on by the Board or the Council.

'It seems a high-handed and almost unprecedented proceeding," Reeve N. A. MacColl, Campbellford, remarked. "These people were engaged to collect something for the counties which nobody refused to pay. This was surely a matter that could have been handled by our solicitor without going outside. It is beyond my comprehension. I don't think they can hold this council to pay the $1020."

Warden Stinson said that there should be a ruling as to whether any Warden had the authority to enter into an agreement binding the whole council. In this case it was a question whether a Warden and other members whose terms in the council had expired had "any right to enter into an agreement that could bind the incoming council."

It transpired that F. D. Boggs, counties solicitor, had not been consulted.

Reeve MacColl—We should know definitely what is the responsibility of former members in that contract. I should like to feel that he won't get his fingers burned whatever bad judgment may have been used."

Didn't Sign Cheque

Referring to council's application to the provincial government for new legislation rescinding the special Act of 1905 which embodied an agreement between Northumberland and Durham respecting county bridge assessment, Warden Stinson said he did not sign the required cheque for $150 to accompany the notice to the Legislature, because he could not find any authority to do so.

This question of bridge assessments was the subject of debate at all three sessions last year, and a Northumberland majority asked for annulment of the old Act.

"This was one of the first duties I had to face as Warden," Mr. Stinson related to the council, "and I felt the responsibility very keenly, especially as I was a representative of the Durham minority in this council. I couldn't see my way clear to signing the cheque. There was nothing in the council's resolution about financing the petition to the Government. Colonel Boggs advised me that it did, but I couldn't see it in that way."

Warden Stinson said the legal costs would amount to another $100, and during the present session the council should deal with the question of financing the appeal for cancelling the 1905 Act.

"When the legal costs are paid, neither of us will have anything," the Warden added. "As we look back at it the council should not have been locked in a room and told to stay there until an agreement on this bridge question has been arrived at."

Reeve MacColl suggested that the Warden vacate the chair if this issue was to be discussed, as there was likely to be something said about it, but the council decided to postpone the debate until later in the session. After adjournment last night the House of Refuge building committee met to complete their report on tenders for the rebuilding of the institution.

Relief Drops

The report of Relief Officer John Kinnaird disclosed the fact that only about half the amount spent for relief in the month of April was required for the month of May.

A visit from the inspector of relief activities, Mr. Knechtel, to the various homes in the village where relief is being given, resulted in a change being made in the manner of administering. By a special arrangement with the council and those on the woodcutting job, a man could make more than the government allotted according to the size of his family; if he wanted to work hard he could make more than the one who was an indifferent worker, and those who were wise enough managed to lay aside a little to tide them over after the job was finished. A complaint from one of the men on relief that some of the others had made more than he had been able to earn, resulted in an order from the inspector that each family be kept strictly to the amount allowed under the government arrangement, according to the number in the family. This order was confirmed by the council.

Chief Roberts presented his report of activities. One arrest had been made as a result of a collision on Ottawa street. The tax collections for the year amounted to the total amount of the year's taxes; some of these were for past arrears as there are still a number of property owners who have not paid their 1934 taxes.

Court of Revision

After a few accounts were ordered paid the council went into court of revision and heard the following appeals:

Miss Wright, on behalf of her brother, Mr. Will Wright, drew the attention of the court to the $75 difference in assessment between the Wright property on King street and an adjoining property of the same apparent value. It was decided to lower the assessment from $1,100 to $1,025, the same as the two adjoining houses.

John Harvey appealed his assessment of $1,075 which is an increase of $75 over 1925-26 assessment. On motion of Hooper and Spencer it was lowered to $1,025. The assessment of $550 on the property of John Herring was confirmed, but the business assessment of $100 was removed. An appeal by Mrs. Hunter against the assessment of $875 on her property resulted in no change being made.

Mr. Gilbert Wright asked that the property on Concession street in the name of his mother, Ether Wright, and himself be changed to Gilbert and Jenny Wright as joint owners. The assessment of the Mack property which has recently changed hands will be placed in the named of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hill, the new owners.

The new McColl Frontenac gasoline and service station was assessed at $3,000 and a business tax of $100 was levied on the tenant, Mr. Mathison. The Wellman service station at the west end of the village was assessed at $1,700, with a business tax of $100 to be paid by Mr. Wellman.

The court then adjourned, to meet after the next regular meeting of the village council in July.

MARKETING ACT CASH VOTE STIRS

Apple-marketing Board to fine him or throw him in jail for infractions of their regulations. He branded the act the threshold and stepping stone of Fascism in Canada.

Liberal members criticised the Marketing Act on various points but concentrated on its compulsory features. Hon. W. R. Motherwell, former Minister of Agriculture, disagreed, however, claiming it was nonsense to claim a minority of 10 should dictate to a majority of 90.

Government-paid propagandists were covering the country organizing of union favorable to the act, the Liberals claimed, citing an expenditure of $50,000 for workers in conjunction with the poultry scheme in the West.

The Minister of Agriculture claimed the Eastern Canada potato scheme had placed thousands of dollars in the pockets of farmers, and announced a vote on continuing it, would be held before July 10.

Leitch in Limelight

Archie Leitch, chairman of the Federal Board, figured in the debates. It was claimed by William Moore (Lib., Ontario), that Leitch was president of two tobacco syndicates and, at the same time, a member of the Ontario Tobacco Board which was in the position to grant preferences. The agricultural minister claimed Leitch was in no position to favor his associations but promised to find out the acreage he controlled and its relations to the whole tobacco acreage in Ontario.

Mr. Rowe said the act brought near to realization the dreams of farmers for many years past. Every agrarian movement had been aimed at securing to the producer a measure of control over the Marketing of his product. All such movements had been captured and turned to political ends by the Liberal party. Canada was 15 years behind in its marketing control methods and had lost markets because of this.

Butter Topic Revived

The hoary question of the price of butter was dragged into the debate by Mr. Duff, who said the act was designed to fool the farmers as the Conservative speakers had fooled them in 1930 by promising them 70 cents a pound for butter. Mr. Rowe at once challenged Mr. Duff to produce any newspaper clipping to show such a promise had been made. He denied ever having made it or heard made.

Hon. H. H. Stevens withdrew his amendment to the government's Patent Bill, permitting it to pass all stages in the House without a storm that appeared to be brewing for several days. At the same time, Premier R. B. Bennett announced that alleged patent abuses practised by electrical companies would be referred by the Minister of Justice to the Patent Commissioner for investigation under the new act.

For the third day galleries were crowded and Liberal members sat back in their seats in anticipation of verbal fireworks between the former Minister of Trade and Commerce and Secretary of State C. H. Cahan, who piloted the bill. But the fireworks were missing, not even the Prime Minister's entry into the debate producing them. Each of the three who formerly sat around the same cabinet table was conciliatory, tactful and extremely moderate in language.

Would Permit Price Fixing

The Stevens amendment would have made a technical change in the law, permitting the Patent Commissioner to fix prices where abuses by patentees were proven. Both Premier Bennett and his Secretary of State declared the new act was adequate to correct abuses and the Patent Commissioner could go the length of revoking patents where the holders were enhancing prices, making undue profits or practising other unethical business ethics.

Mr. Stevens again charged that electrical companies mulcted the public by using the Patent Act to enhance prices and as a super-tariff against imported bulbs. His remedy was to empower the commissioner to fix prices at which the patented bulbs could be sold to prevent the spread between 26 and 60, the difference between imported and domestic bulbs after duties and royalties were paid.

The former minister said his amendment was offered in "the kindliest spirit" and he had not the faintest idea of embarrassing the government. Premier Bennett, replying in kind, suggested the whole difficulty arose through a misunderstanding by Mr. Stevens of the terms of the new bill.

At the same time the former minister added a word of warning. He said he was satisfied to see the bill go through, but perdicted it would be changed within a year to conform with his ideas after the extent of patent abuses had been learned by the public.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk, and the world looks punk, don't think that a large cleaning out of the bowels will make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

It can't do it! You know it can't give you any lasting relief. For a mere cleaning out does not get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pints of bile flowing freely. Then you feel "up and up." Carter's Little Liver Pills contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resents substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

UPSETTING THE APPLECART.

The validity of the Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement Act is to be challenged by the Provincial Government of British Columbia, and the courts will be asked to decide whether or not the Federal Government has the authority to enforce such legislation.

It is unfortunate that there should be a clash over a measure of this nature which was designed to improve conditions for hard-pressed farmers throughout the country, and as a matter of common sense at least, should be operated on a Dominion basis in order that farmers in all parts of Canada should be assured of the same amount of help.

The Border Cities Star hits the nail on the head when it says that it stands to reason that if it is necessary to write down rural indebtedness it matters little from the general point of view whether the writing down process be under federal or provincial authority.

"If people can't pay 100 cents on the dollar, they can't pay, and that's all there is to it," says the Star.

That is so obviously true that it is to be imagined that farmers in British Columbia who have been looking to this Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement Act as a way out of their financial difficulties are not likely to be enthused over the action of the Pattullo Government in attempting to upset the applecart by interjecting his constitutional problem at the present time.

CONTROLLING SERVICE STATIONS.

A progressive bit of legislation was that recently introduced in the Quebec Legislature aimed at the curbing of the mushroom growth of gasoline stations, which in that province, as in other sections of Canada, has been stimulated by the rivalry existing between the oil companies.

The Quebec Public Service Commission has been given full control over permits for the construction of new stations, so that henceforth there will be a check upon these places.

The Provincial Government takes the view that the great competition that has been going on results in increased distribution costs, which the consumer ultimately has to pay, and at the same time the beauty of the countryside is often injured by these conspicuous filling stations.

It is worthy of note that similar measures have recently been adopted by New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, so that now in three of Canada's nine provinces there is authority which says how many gasoline stations shall be established and where they are to be located, and it is impossible to erect one of these stations without official permission.

It is a law that might well be adopted by other Canadian provinces where gasoline stations have been allowed to spread all over the urban and rural scene with little or no control.

There are more than are needed in operation, and probably it would have been better for all concerned if a curb had been imposed in the earlier days when the sale of gasoline was just beginning to develop into a major business.

THE TRADE SITUATION.

In the presidential review presented to the 64th annual general meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association at Hamilton to-day President James H. Webb supplied further evidence that Canadian trade is making material progress.

During the last three fiscal years, Mr. Webb declared, Canada's trade with other countries of the British Empire increased by 45 per cent. and with foreign countries by 27 per cent.

Tribute was paid by the speaker to the contribution to this result made by the Empire trade agreements, which, he said, not only had a valuable moral effect but also great material results.

Those who keep on declaring that this country should develop her trade with other nations—as if that were a ridiculously easy matter—are answered by the president of the Manufacturers' Association.

"Export trade with foreign countries," he says, "have been maintained under extraordinary difficulties."

During the past year there have been few indications that economic nationalism is declining, and on the other hand, according to Mr. Webb, there is much evidence that nearly all countries, especially foreign countries, are continuing their determination to be as self-contained as possible.

"While this condition of affairs is undesirable and inconvenient, especially to a country like Canada, which has large and varied amount of products for sale," says the C.M.A. president, "we have been compelled by world circumstances and procedure to adapt ourselves to the facts, and to make the best of the existing situation, as obviously it is impossible for any one country to oppose world policy and practice. If we attempted such a rash experiment we could accomplish little in the way of persuading other countries to change their policies, and would lose part of our own trade."

That sentence from the lips of a business leader we commend to a great many of our politicians who talk as if they knew little or nothing about the world situation.

A QUESTION OF POLICY.

Without attempting to discuss in detail the controversy arising out of the dismissal of a member of the fire department by Chief Gimblett, The Examiner feels that it is necessary to say this, that the less interference there is with the operation of the fire department or any other civic department the greater is the chance of efficiency in such services.

Once let the direction of any branch of the municipal service become a matter of civic politics and the door is opened to endless trouble and to a rapid deterioration in morale and discipline.

If the employees of any particular municipal service are given the impression that the head of that service is only a rubber stamp, and that they are at liberty to run to members of the Council whenever they feel that they have a grievance, it is obvious that the official responsible for department efficiency and discipline will in a short time find himself without much authority or control.

As a general principle, a municipal council is most effectively discharging its responsibility when it lays down certain regulations for the guidance of the civic departments, and then leaves the administration of those departments to the officials who have been placed in charge.

If weaknesses develop and abuses creep in, then the obvious course is not to interfere with and countermand the rulings of department heads, but to replace those heads if it is evident that they are inefficient.

There can never be satisfaction under any other system, for aldermanic interference with departmental activities cannot fail to be disastrous in the long run.

LAWRENCE'S FUNERAL.

One cannot help but wonder what prompted Colonel T. E. Lawrence, the glamorous hero of Arabia, in the days of his health and strength, to impose such rigorous restrictions regarding his burial. His obsequies were almost the simplest on record. In the Dorset moors, as far removed as possible from the stirring scenes in which he had been the chief actor, he was laid to rest with exceedingly simple rites in the little burial plot of the village near which he had made his home. Col. Lawrence might have had, if he had permitted it, one of the most ostentatious funerals in Britain and his resting place would have been marked by a monument that would have suitably recorded his great service to the Empire. But he chose instead to be buried in a plain casket, carried to the grave in a four-wheeled hand-cart. It is not much wonder that the Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill's eyes, as he thought of the years of the terrible conflict in which Lawrence had so signally served his country, and in which he himself had played a great and important part, were filled with tears.

Surely this modest hero must have had in his mind a desire to rebuke the horrors of war. It is rather noteworthy that many of the great military figures, including Field Marshal Earl Haig, desired humble funerals. The latter was carried to the quiet burial plot in the land of his fathers on an ox-cart, and buried in the midst of extreme simplicity. Lawrence of Arabia gave himself wholeheartedly to win victory for the allied cause in the bitter struggle into which Germany plunged the world, but there is no denying the fact, however, that he was disappointed over the result. He refused to enrich himself by capitalizing his own extraordinary experiences in the war. He deliberately rejected fabulous offers for his literary products, but instead chose virtual poverty. He declined honors of every sort, and it is said that he accepted the title of colonel merely to ride on a fast railroad train which refused to carry officers of a lower rank. His lowly grave may remain unmarked, but it will nevertheless be the shrine of countless numbers of people who have been stirred by the recital of his adventures, and the unswerving uprightness of his life.—Brantford Expositor.

COALITION AT OTTAWA?

The political prophets are busy once again regarding speculations as to what will happen in case the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett decides that in justice to himself he must retire from the arduous duties of the premiership. The question naturally arises among these speculations, "Will there be national government?" It must be admitted that this is a very problematical issue, and yet it is one that deserves careful consideration. The possibilities of forming a coalition government in Canada have been canvassed from time to time, but invariably they have met with rejection, as neither political party appeared to be willing to lose its identity. However, if Premier Bennett decides that it is not only in his own interest but also in that of the public welfare as well to retire it might possibly alter the situation.

Undoubtedly, under the circumstances, it would be the best thing that could happen the Dominion. The reasons for the formation of a truly national government in Canada are just as urgent to-day as they have ever been during the depression. By common consent the greatest single difficulty confronting the country, burdening it down, if the whole truth were told, with an average deficit of about $90,000,000 per year, including capital costs, is the railway situation. So far neither party has had the courage to undertake to deal with this harassing problem as it deserves. The game of politics has prevented it. If the forthcoming federal election is to be fought on the usual lines the settlement of this issue will be ignored. Another matter that is demanding urgent attention is that of pensions. Though the war ended more than 16 years ago, an annual sum of more than $60,000,000 is required for pensions and disabilities. Both parties admit the whole question is one requiring investigation and readjustments. The Dominion is faced with a gigantic load of national debt, the annual interest on which now totals about $140,000,000.

No one denies that a national government, which could deal with the railways, pensions, the public debt and courageously put restrictions on unnecessary expenditures, and budget for a surplus is the paramount need of Canada to-day. While these are merely speculations, and while there are colossal political difficulties in the way, there is a general conviction that only a united effort can successfully lift the country out of the distressing condition of debt that hinders its progress.—Brantford Expositor.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Social Credit League may enter candidates in the federal election campaign, thereby making that topsy-turvy battle still more complicated.

The tariff on hats has been reduced, but judging by the number of bare-headed folks seen on the streets, the news will be only of slight interest.

Sir Edward Beatty was not knighted for his connection with the C.P.R., but for his services to education and to the Boy Scout movement, yet undoubtedly there will be attempts to make political capital out of the appearance of his name in the birthday honor list.

Uncle Sam's efforts to salvage the NRA will be watched with interest on this side of the line, where we are faced with much the same kind of a constitutional problem.

At that Mayor Simpson of Toronto might have been given a title for his travels in aid of the C.C.F. movement.

What this country needs, in fact what the whole world needs, is to settle up and settle down.—Tulsa World.

JUST WHAT IS MR. BURNHAM?

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—I would like to say a few words in re Mr. Burnham's articles. He surely has me buffaloed. I don't know whether he is a red or a white, a fascist, or a blackshirt, a Catholic or an evangelist, a Tory or a Conservative. What is he anyway?

If he would choose one thing and stick to it, we might know what he is writing about. Apart from getting his name in the paper a great many times, I do not see what he or anyone else is getting out of it. He can't say he hasn't had the opportunity to clarify himself, as the editor has certainly allowed him enough space. I do wish he or someone else would tell me what it is all about. I'm supposed to be naturally intelligent, but I can't seem to grasp it at all.

Sincerely,
"Ad Infinitum."

Your Health

by DR LOGAN CLENDENING

We mentioned yesterday the increased protection that has been given the public through the covering and wrapping of food in stores, pasteurization of milk, and so on. This involves the elimination of infected food handlers in places where food is manufactured.

There is, however, another source of infection of food from food handlers which occurs after the manufacture and purchase, and that is infection by cooks and food handlers in the kitchen. No more complete proof of the hazard which these people constitute could be offered than to recall the outbreak of amebic dysentery in Chicago during 1933, most of the cases of which were traced to certain hotels.

In hotels of Chicago, generally, it was found at that time that 3.9 per cent of the employes in hotels and restaurants carried the cause of amebic dysentery on their persons and usually on their hands, and in one hotel it was found that, on the average, about 7 per cent of the employes were carriers.

It is very difficult, as I said yesterday, for boards of health to enforce regulations concerning food handlers of this type. They move around from place to place, and it is difficult to make employers inform the board of health of changes, and a great deal of sentimental obstruction is given to the efforts of the board of health to eliminate the infected carriers. But the possibilities of widespread epidemics or disease from this source are so common and so horrible, that the public should demand the enforcement of the regulations to the limit.

History of Carrier Cited

Recently in a popular magazine there was printed the history of the famous Typhoid Mary, who was almost the first person to be proved to be a carrier of typhoid fever. She worked as a cook in many households, and everywhere that Mary went typhoid fever was sure to go. She objected strenuously at first, according to the account, to being prevented from engaging in her ordinary occupation, but finally became reconciled to it and led a happy existence as a laboratory assistant. She is, I believe, still alive, although not engaged in any occupation.

She is the most famous, but by no means the only typhoid carrier known. In fact, about one out of every ten persons who ever had typhoid is a carrier (many, as in the case of Typhoid Mary, cannot remember ever to have had typhoid fever, however).

And, according to officials in the U.S. public health service, typhoid epidemics, now what the water supply is so generally under control, are more likely to come from carriers (food handlers) than any other source. An epidemic in Washington a few years ago occurred among the guests at a church supper: the potatoes were "diced" by two women, both of whom carried typhoid germs under their fingernails.

The only sure protection is to be vaccinated against typhoid.

People should be talking about James Boyd's "Roll River"....People should be reading it....The Browser has read it and he will be talking about it, telling others that here is a strong and beautiful book that men and women should read....Ten years ago James Boyd met John Galsworthy through Hugh McNail Kahler. Boyd had been in the war and a doctor has ordered him into the country where he decided that since he had to do something he might as well learn to write. He thinks that anybody with reasonable ability CAN learn to write, for although imagination must be born in a man style is "pure craftsmanship"...So he spent five years trying, and then Galsworthy read some of his manuscript and went back to New York and told editors to keep their eyes on James Boyd.

After that Boyd wrote "Drums", "Marching On" and "Long Hunt"—and if you know some boy who "hates history" you should put those three novels into his path....

But "Roll River" is no boy's book. It is for men and women who think they are grown-up....The book is two novels in one, the first about a woman and her tragic marriage, the second about her nephew and his misshapen marriage....If you have time for only one novel read only the first half of James Boyd's book. It is perfect in itself and Willa Cather could have written it—this story of a man and a woman whose love, so tragically broken....lived after death....The Browser feels too tenderly toward this book to attempt to set down any bare synopsis of its plot.

Ernest Hemingway's "Green Hills of Africa" has started in Scribner's magazine....Hemingway assures us that none of the characters or incidents in the novel are imaginary and if you think it hasn't enough love interest you are at liberty to insert whatever love interest you may happen to have around at the moment. He is trying to write "an absolutely true book"....

In the first installment he remarks that Mark Twain's "Huckleberry Finn" is the best book we've had and all American writing comes from this and there was nothing before and there has been nothing as good since....And he thinks that writing is worth doing—as an end in itself.

The Pulitzer prize people are receiving abuse for their play selections. But "Now in November" is a fine novel. And Audrey Wurdemann's "Bright Ambush" is real poetry. It's her first book and she is the youngest ever to receive the prize. Her hobby is collecting precious stones; which is a nice hobby for a poet. When she isn't polishing stones, she can polish her verses.

Thames Williamson has no trouble finding names for the characters in his novels, but neither he nor his wife can think of a name for their new baby....Arnot Robertson, who wrote "Ordinary Families" is slowly completing a novel. ....And she can't finish it too soon for her admirer.

What's in the Name of Canadian Cities and Towns?

by FRANK H. WILLIAMS

WEYBURN, SASKATCHEWAN

Sir William Whyte, then vice-president of the Canadian Pacific railway, had the honor of naming this town, according to local belief, and he named it for a friend. This was about 1892, according to this story, which is disputed in some quarters.

There is a parish and a village named Weyburn in Norfolk, England, these critics points out, and it was from this source the name was derived, while others declare the proximity of a small running stream nearby, a WEE BURN, is the real origin of the town's name, which was afterward contracted to Weyburn. The latter version is the one generally accepted by citizens.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

THE VICTORY OF STONEY CREEK

On this date (June 5) in 1813 was fought one of the sensational and deciding battles of the war, that of Stoney Creek, not far from Hamilton. An American army, 3500 strong, under command of Generals Chandler and Winder, reached Stoney Creek, the staff being lodged in the Gage farmhouse. All the settlers in the vicinity were taken prisoners in order to prevent any word reaching the British but the invaders were out-witted by Isaac Gorman and Bill Green. The former had got within the American lines by claiming relationship to one of the American officers. He was questioned and allowed to go, but his captors repented of their decision and, thinking that he might have gained some information he had. The 16-year-old lad climbed up the mountain slope on hands and knees and reached Burlington Heights where he gave his message to General Vincent and Colonel Harvey.

Harvey asked permission to make a night attack. It was a complete surprise and a complete success. Reaching Stoney Creek a battle in the dark followed. Companies of the 49th and 8th led by Major Plenderforth, Major Ogilvie, Captain FitzGibbon and Sergeant Major Alex. Fraser fought a hand-to-hand encounter in the dark. Fraser bayonetted or killed seven of the enemy, while his younger brother, a boy of 16, disposed or four others. In the darkness the American generals were lost to their men. The enemy forces scattered in disorderly retreat until they reached Forty Mile Creek. When day broke the British had taken 120 prisoners, including Generals Chandler and Winder, and four guns; but our losses were heavy, 23 killed; 139 wounded and 54 taken prisoners.

The victory was not only emphatic. It was the beginning of the clearing of the enemy from the Niagar peninsula. Before the year ended, Upper Canada in that sector was freed from the invaders and Fort Niagara was in British hands. And all the consequence of brave Billy Green, for had he not given the alarm as he did, the victory of Stoney Creek would have been impossible. The Woman's Wentworth Historical Society have erected a handsome monument on the battlefield, which has been for years a public park.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 5 (A.P.).—The stock market pressed forward again to-day under the leadership of Utilities, Chemicals, Oils and miscellaneous industrial specialties.

American Telephone was a leader, rising more than 3 points to a new high for the year. The list had been hesitant during the morning, but scattered losses were mostly recovered later in the day. Issues up 1 to 2 points included Consolidated Gas, Amerada, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, Eastman, National Biscuit and Western Union. Coca Cola, a high-priced specialty, jumped 6 points to 218. The late tone was firm. Transfers approximated 900,000 shares.

The writing table used by Frederick the Second of Prussia at his Potsdam home, Sans Souci, which disappeared after his death in 1786, was found recently in an auction room, and the German Government has secured it with the intention of placing it in its original position.

Back to Nature

FORT RILEY, Kas. June 5, (CP). Some natives of the Kaw valley flood region didn't welcome rescue to-day—not even out of treetops.

Army officers in a motor boat said they reached two men marooned in a tree south of Ogden, Kas., at considerable risk. To their surprise, the tree-sitters declined to leave.

They said they felt 'safer' among the branches.

MORNING DIPS IN THE OILS ARE RESTORED

Liquors and Other Interlisted Leaders Hold Own Ground.

STRENGTH PREDOMINATES.

TORONTO, June 5 (C.P.). — A broad group of food, utility, and financial stocks appeared on the Toronto industrial board to-day with a general note of strength predominating. Oils and metals continued to lead in volume with prices steady to strong in both. Morning dips in the oils were restored. Liquors and the other interlisted leaders did no better than hold their ground.

Westons sold back to 31 for a loss of 1¾ and minor losses came out for Consolidated Bakeries and National Grocers, while higher prices were posted for Dominion Stores, Canada Bread, Laura Secord, and Lake of the Woods.

Canadian Car, Page Hersey and Steel of Canada stocks all sold off by fractions. Canada Cement Preferred, Gypsum and Dominion Tar had minor losses.

Nickel was slightly off at the close, as was also Consolidated Smelters. Brazilian, C.P.R., and Ford A displayed the same mild heaviness.

MINE LEADERS SHOW ADVANCES

Price Gains Particularly Heavy in God's Lake and Pickle Crow.

SHADED AT CLOSE.

TORONTO, June 5 (C.P.).—Leaders of the various metal groups turned sharply upward to-day with volume and price gains particularly heavy in God's Lake, Pickle Crow, Central Patricia, Buffalo-Ankerite, Eldorado and Mining Corporation. Gains up to 25 cents were recorded but none of the leaders held at their top prices till the close, profit-taking causing a considerable shading in spots. Volume over the board was much heavier.

Central Patricia pushed up to 1.73 and Pickle Crow to 2.65, but both lost a few cents before the close. God's Lake advanced 26 cents to 1.66, holding all the gain but about 10 cents. Gains ranged up to 10 cents for San Antonio, Siscoe, Little Long Lac, Cariboo and McKenzie; Buffalo-Ankerite was up 20 cents.

All the senior golds with the exception of Pioneer, held to the up side. The latter lost about 15 cents. Lake Shore at 554 had a gain of $1. Eldorado Silver advanced 21 cents to 2.01, from which level it receded most of the way. Bear and Castle held gains of 3 to 5 cents.

Insists Redfern Lives In Jungle

MRS. PAUL REDFERN PAUL REDFERN

New hope that Paul Redfern, aviator, missing since a flight over South America in 1927, is alive in the jungle, though badly crippled, was taken by Mrs. Redfern when she received news at her home in Toledo that Tom Roche, German-American adventurer, had seen her husband. Roch produced a battered diary to corroborate the often disbelieved story that the American aviator was still alive. Mr. and Mrs. Redfern are pictured.

composition of a new ministry Friday night.

Mr. MacDonald's withdrawal from the Premiership will probably be based upon the eye trouble from which he has been suffering but it is not expected his services will be entirely lost to the cabinet. He will in all likelihood take over a nominal position and still hold cabinet rank.

Simon to Retire

Noteworthy in the last few days has been the prominence given a report Sir Samuel Hoare will succeed Sir John Simon as foreign secretary. Sir John's retirement from that post is generally agreed upon. Formerly Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal and brilliant diplomat, was considered in line for the post but his youth militates against this probability.

To-day immediate interest centred on the prospects of an Anglo-Irish agreement. Politicians, taking note of the statement of President Eamon de Valera last night that separation of the Irish Free State from the British Commonwealth would not take place during his term of office, speculated if some move to heal the breach would be initiated by the new new cabinet.

At a meeting of the Carnival Association of Germany in Munich the official headgear was a cap with long pheasant feathers.

ALGOMA MINING AND FINANCE

T. Mungovan, secretary of Algoma Mining and Finance Corporation in a progress report under date of May 29th states that following examination of a number of mining properties, an option was recently acquired on 1,100,000 shares of White Horse Gold Mines. To date over 200,000 shares have already been taken up under the option which, if exercised in full will give Algoma Mining control of the company.

The property comprises 37 claims adjoining Jellicoe Gold Mining Co. on the west in the Little Long Lac area. A considerable amount of geological work was done prior to Algoma acquiring the option and this work established the continuation of the main structure of the company across the full width of the property. Early in April a program of diamond drilling was started and to date five holes have been completed with drilling continuing at both ends of the ore zone, which was cut in No. 1 hole. The ore body has an indicated length of 600 feet to date, the majority of which is on the White Horse property. No. 1 drill hole cut a wide zone of low to medium grade ore and work has definitely outlined an ore body varying in width from 6 to 45 feet with average values of $9.90 per ton across a width of 8 feet. No. 5 hole to the west cut a poryhyry dyke that may have an important bearing on the mineralization of the section. The company has over two miles in length along the zone and it will take considerable time to test its possibilities. However, the results obtained already amply warrant the finances expended and the program of further development that has been mapped out.

Women's Auxiliary Meets All Saints'

Miss Lillian Esplen repeated her very interesting talk on the Passion Play at Oberammergau, at the meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of All Saints' Church, holding an open session in the parish hall on Friday evening, with the president, Mrs. F. H. Dawson, in the chair.

After a short devotional period led by the president, a solo entitled "Thanksgiving" was sung by Mrs. B. Cutmore, with accompaniment by Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, and Miss Olive Rome sang, "Dear Lord, Forgive," with accompaniment by Miss Margaret Rome.

Miss Esplen outlined very interestingly the story of the Passion Play and the reverent attitude of the actors. In conclusion, she said: "Never have I seen a crowd leave a church with more reverence than did those who left the scene of the Passion Play after its portrayal." The vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by the Rev. J. D. Paterson, and seconded by Miss Annie R. Johnston.

$48,000 'Sweep' Money Comes To This Country

DUBLIN, June 5 (C.P.)—Seven citizens of the United States each won a fortune of approximately $145,000 from the Irish sweepstakes when Bahram won the Derby at Epsom Downs to-day but only one prize went to Canada—a $48,000 award on the third-placed horse, Field Trial.

The sole Canadian holding a ticket on any of the first three was not identified by sweep authorities because of the Canadian laws. He was known only as "Slim," holding ticket number AV 41,589.

Including consolation awards a total of roughly $140,000 went to Canada out of the big sweep, while the United States, which contributed the lion's share of the receipts, collected about $2,000,000.

MILLBROOK VILLAGE OBSERVES DUAL ANNIVERSARY

KING'S JUBILEE-BIRTHDAY IS OBSERVED IN MILLBROOK

Entertaining and Interesting Program Carried Out by Capable Committee.

COSTUME PRIZES

MILLBROOK, June 5.—(Examiner Correspondence).—All roads led to Millbrook on Monday when the big celebration planned in honor of the King's jubilee and staged on the seventieth anniversary of His Majesty's birth was successfully carried through at the Agricultural Park in the afternoon, and completed with a street carnival at night.

The event was planned through the initiative of Martin B. Chenhall, Jr., supervisor of music in the schools of Millbrook and Cavan, in conjunction with Reeve P. Stinson, and a strong committee, of which Councillor P. I. Bentley was chairman and W. R. Howard, M.A., secretary-treasurer. Indicative of the size of the attendance was the fact that the entire stock of tickets was sold out in the afternoon, and the scores of late-comers had to be admitted through the gates without the necessary bit of pasteboard to show that the admission price had been paid.

Approximately five hundred pupils of the schools of Cavan, South Monaghan and Millbrook took part in the afternoon's program, the parade, colorful with bright uniforms and banners, and enlivened by the music of three bands, starting from the school grounds at 1.30 p.m., proceeding along King street to the station intersection, south on Main, turning then to West street and thence into the agricultural grounds.

Colorful Parade.

Leading the big parade was the Millbrook Citizens' Band, followed by the war veterans; next came the Port Hope Bugle Band, under Lieutenant Wright, heading the local Cadet Corps with their instructor, Lieutenant B. B. Dawson, Cadet Captain Owen McCarthy and Cadet Sergeant Reg. McKnight; the Lindsay Boys' Band with grey uniforms marked by red stripes on trousers, coat cuffs and caps, led the school pupils, each wearing red, white or blue paper caps made to a uniform pattern, and each school headed by two pupils carrying a big Union Jack; the teachers and trustees of the several schools completed the march past.

Arrived at the park, the bands, veterans, cadets, pupils and teachers formed a hollow square about the athletic green immediately in front of the grandstand, where a platform had been erected. Warden P. Stinson acted as chairman, the official opening of the proceedings including the raising of the flag by Cadets Kenneth Kidd and Elwood Fallis, while the people stood with uncovered heads and the massed bands, led by M. B. Chenhall, played three verses of the National Anthem. Rev. H. R. Williams, B.A., read the lesson from I. Peter 2, and Rev. A. L. Sisco offered prayer. The school pupils, under the direction of B. B. Dawson, principal of the Public School, gave the salute to the flag and repeated the pledge, after which Reeve Stinson read a telegram sent to His Excellency Lord Bessborough, Governor-General of Canada, asking that the enclosed cable be forwarded to His Majesty King George. To pay for the congratulatory cablegram each pupil had been asked to contribute one penny. The telegram and reply follow, the one to His Excellency reading:

"We are holding our community jubilee celebration on June 3rd, on behalf of the school children of Cavan and South Monaghan townships and the Village of Millbrook; we desire to have you forword the following cable to Their Majesties, the King and Queen: "The school pupils of Cavan and South Monaghan Townships, and of the Village of Millbrook, extend to Their Majesties hearty congratulations on this Jubilee occasion, as well as our heartfelt expression of sincere loyalty on this auspicious occasion which we are celebrating to-day. I am sending under separate cover a copy of the Jubilee song which will be sung by the pupils, and humbly request that a copy be forwarded by mail to Their Majesties."
—P. Stinson, Reeve.

The reply, received at 10.54 a.m. on Monday, read: "The Governor-General is commanded by the King to ask you to convey to the school children of Cavan, South Monaghon, and Millbrook, the sincere appreciatin of Their Majesties for their loyal greetings. Signed, Secretary to the Governor-General."

Lord Bessborough insisted upon paying personally for the cablegram of congratulation, refusing to accept the money contributed for that purpose by the school pupils; hence this sum will be devoted to some other practical and patriotic use. Three rousing cheers for the King, led by Cadet Captain Owen McCarthy, followed the reading of His Majesty's message, and the massed pupils of the Continuation School sang "Rule Brittania" and "Prayer of Thanksgiving", the Lindsay Boys' Band accompanying, as they also did for the other choruses of the afternoon, the marching and similar events.

Notable Visitor

A notable visitor of the afternoon was Dr. L. B. Williams of Toronto, a former Durham boy born of pioneer parents near Enniskillen, Darlington township, who took moving pictures of the parade, and the entire proceedings; these will be shown locally at a public gathering sometime during this month. Dr. Williams was accompanied by his wife and family. Having travelled all over the United States and Canada, and up the coast to Alaska, Dr. Williams, whose summer home is at Cesarea, decided that his native county offered scenes and points of interest equal to those of other places visited, hence the decision to take 'movies' of Durham. These camera activities' are a purely personal hobby of Dr. and Mrs. Williams, pursued not for any monetary gain, but for the pleasure they derive from the task. The premier showing of reels taken in this county was given recently in Toronto before the Durham Old Boys' Association, at the Art Gallery, over three hundred guests making up the audience; the showing, and accompany explanatory lecture, is given free of any charge for churches through the generosity of the moving-camera owner.

Physical training exercises by the Millbrook Cadet Corps, under direction of Instructor B. B. Dawson; and by the massed pupils of the schools, led by Albert Hill, teacher of Cairo school, were outstanding features of the program, as were also choruses, representative of Canada and the British Isles, by the massed pupils, under Mr. Chenhalls leadership, which included "O Canada," and "The Maple Leaf", "Men of Harleck" (Wales); "The Minstrel Boy" (Ireland); "Scots Wha Hae" (Scotland); and "The British Grenadiers" (England).

Rev. William Simpson, B.A., rector of Cavan, spoke briefly emphasizing especially the personal aspect of a birthday celebration, while that of the King's Jubilee had been solely official. The May-Pole Dance, which followed, given with the utmost of grace and precision by eighteen girls of the senior room of the public school, streamers being red, white and blue, was a highlight of the afternoon's proceedings, and the 'Musical Ride' by 'King's Horses', brought a great hand from the onlookers. Headed by a wee lad, in full major's uniform, on a capering 'horse', the twenty boys participating pranced into the green and went through the famous musical ride which is a notable feature of all horse shows in Toronto and other large centres. The 'horses' had been ingeniously constructed from orange crates, with head carved and colored, and an abbreviated broom-stick for the tail, the boys manipulating their hobby-horses with skill, and keeping remarkably good time to the music.

Cadets marked the course for the 'ride', and each boy carried a standard tipped with a red flag. The concluding number for the afternoon was outstanding—the majority of the pupils from the schools represented, graded according to size, standing in rows and singing, "Land of Hope and Glory", while each held a large colored square of cardboard over the head, making a human copy of a huge Union Jack, and so remaining for the National Anthem.

The local Rebekah Lodge looked after the service of tea to the bands in the dining-hall on the grounds, many remained to picnic, and the younger element enjoyed games of ball, etc., until the hour for the street carnival at night. This began with a parade of those in costume, headed by the bands, while the judges, Mrs. S. O. Shields and Miss Irene Howarth, of Peterborough; Mr. J. A. Wright, of Lindsay, and H. C. Argue, of Millbrook, came to their decisions, which were announced by P. I. Bentley, chairman of the program committee. The winners were:

Best old-time costume, lady and gentleman—Miss D. H. Bannister, and W. R. Howard.

Best comic costume, gentleman—Cecil Wainman; best comic, lady—Marvin Chapman

Best comic costume, boy and girl, High School—Mary Eakins, and Margaret Armstrong; Public School—Nan Fallis and Vernon McInnis.

Best character costume, together—Bobby Ridge and Margaret Foster.

Best comic pair—Wayne Doxsee and Hubert Mitchell.

Best decorated doll-carriage—Lois Wainman; best costume, girl, 6 and under—Jean Smith.

Best decorated waggon — Roy Dawson, Allie Henderson, Jr.; best bicycle—Wayne Doxsee.

Roller-skating race—Yvonne Papineau, Hope Douglas.

Waggon race—Gerald Armstrong, Donald Kerr, Ross Emily.

In the old-time fiddlers' contest, judged by M. B. Chenhall, the placing was—1. Jack Patton; 2.—Bob Todd; 3.—Robert Carr;; 4.—Walter Challice.

A street dance completed a most successful day, music being supplied by the Serenaders' Orchestra. Admission at night was free, a silver collection to defray expenses being taken up; booths on the grounds and at night were operated by the Millbrook Citizen's Band, and netted a nice profit. The event was the initial one of its kind ever held locally, and it is hoped will form the nucleus of an annual District School Day for years to come. Dr. Williams expressed the opinion that it was the finest community day he had ever attended, and with the best singing by massed pupils of his experience.

The schools participating, with their teachers, were — Millbrook Public: B. B. Dawson, L. Orchard, and B. Montgomery (three rooms); Fallis Line, Jean L. Burnham; Whitfield's, Francis Jones; Fairview, Beatrice Jones; Cork, Ruth Staples; Lakeview, Jean Stinson, Marsh, Jean Bothwell; Cavan, R. I. Sutton; Mt. Pleasant, Rob Sutton; Fairmount, Gerald Staples; Donaldson's Corner, L. Reesor; Cairo, Albert Hill; Beechwood, Mary Sharpe; Matchett's, Margaret Brown; Cedar Valley, Gwen Hutchison; Zion, Gladys, Williamson.

The words of the Jubilee Song, composed by Martin B. Chenhall Junior a copy of which was sent by mail to His Majesty, and which was written especially for the celebration on Monday, were sung following the opening flag-raising of the afternoon, making the second and third verses for the National Anthem;; the words are:

"This Royal year we sing,
Glad praises to our King,
And to our Queen;
May health and happiness
Be theirs, our liver to bless;
God keep, 'mid strain and stress,
Our King and Queen.
This Quarter Century
Our prayer has been for thee
Our King and Queen;
May God in answer twine
Our Empire's heart in thine,
May heaven's best blessing shine
This Jubilee."

Great tribute was paid Mr. Chenhall during the afternoon, when Warden Stinson had referred in complimentary manner to his outstanding value in the musical education of the school pupils, and in other ways as a fine citizen. Prolonged applause showed the full accord of the pupils and teachers, and the audience generally, in the sentiments so tactfully expressed by the chairman.

40-HOUR WEEK LIVES ON IN U.S.

Survey Shows Majority of Employers Continue Former Rules.

MAINTAIN WAGES.

By CURTIS R. HAY
(Copyright by The Associated Press 1935)

CHICAGO, June 5 (A.P.)—The 40 hour week and minimum wages live on throughout United States.

Eight days after the United State States Supreme Court threw out the hour and wage provisions of the National Recovery Act, a survey by The Associated Press yesterday showed while in some instances code hours and pay were discarded, for the most part employers have not only continued the former NRA requirements but considered methods to restore their legality. Some went further and announced immediate increases in wages.

From the labor side came however, charges increasing numbers of firms were abandoning the 40 hour week and minimum wages. Labor also asserted through state and city leaders the wage changes—both up and down had been made principally by the "small fellows."

The American Iron and Steel Institute called upon individual units in the industry to maintain minimum hours and wages for the present. Bakers in New England, dress makers in Texas, a California wine producer, retailers in St. Joseph, Mo., and a dozen chambers of commerce have publicly announced the standards must not be lowered.

A LITTLE COMPANY GROWN BIG

IMPERIAL OIL was a little Company in 1880. There was then only a handful of employees. A dozen or so products were the Company's stock in trade.

Today nearly 18,000 Canadian men and women are engaged in making and selling 714 different Imperial Oil Products. So, counting their families, there are about 90,000 people directly dependent for livelihood on this Company and its operations. 90,000 is a lot of Canadians.

Imperial Oil's growth depended upon more than growth in population and demand. Fair dealing, honest value and the ability to meet new needs with new products and new services all played their part. Of course a loyal, capable staff was indispensable. Such a staff was built up by fair and considerate treatment. Good wages, sickness and death benefits, retirement pensions, group insurance, industrial councils—these are some of the measures by which the Company has recognized its responsibility to the men and women in its employ. These men and women have recognized in turn their responsibility to the Company. By loyal, whole-hearted service they have helped it to make better products at lower cost and thus become "a big company."

Feisal Gets No Money But He Fills Trunk With Stones

ARABS BADLY DISORGANIZED DRIVEN BACK INTO THE HILLS WHERE KING SENDS FOR HELP Sought Food, Money and War Supplies, But Only Broken Rifles Come.

DECEIVED HIS WARRIORS

Trunk Filled With Stones Guarded Closely by Feisal's Slaves.

(By T. E. Lawrence).

So they fell back from the level plains about Medina into the hills where they rested, while Ali and Feisal sent messenger after messenger down to Rabegh, their seabase to learn when fresh stores and money and arms might be expected.

Col. Lawrence

The revolt had begun haphazard, on their father's explicit orders, and the old man, too independent to take his sons into his full confidence, had not worked out with them any arrangements for prolonging it. So the reply was only a little food. Later some Japanese rifles, most of them broken, were received. Such barrels as were still whole were so foul that the too-eager Arabs burst them on the first trial. No money was sent up at all; to take its place Feisal filled a decent chest with stones, had it locked and corded carefully, guarded on each daily march by his own slaves, and introduced meticulously into his tent each night. By such theatricals the brothers tried to hold a melting force.

Turks Were To Win

At last Ali went down to Rabegh to inquire what was wrong with the organization. He found that Hussein Mabeirig, the local chief, had made up his mind that the Turks would be victorious (he had tried conclusions with them twice himself and had the worst of it), and accordingly decided theirs was the best course to follow. As the stores for the Sherif were landed by the British he appropriated them and stored them away secretly in his own houses. Ali made a demonstration, and sent urgent messages for his half-brother Zeid to join him from Jidda with reinforcements. Hussein, in fear, slipped off to the hills, an outlaw. The two Sherifs took possession of the villages. In them they found great stores of arms, and food enough for their armies for a month. The temptation of a spell of leisured ease was too much for them: they settled down in Rabegh.

Soon Isolated

This left Feisal alone up country, and he soon found himself isolated, in a hollow situation, driven to depend upon his native resources. He bore it for a time, but in August took advantage of the visit of Col. Wilson to the newly-conquered Yenbo, to come down and give a full explanation of his urgent needs. Wilson was impressed with him and his story, and at once promised him a battery of mountain guns and some maxims, to be handled by men and officers of the Egyptian Army garrison in the Sudan. This explained the presence of Nafi Bey and his units.

Believed Equal to Turks

The Arabs rejoiced when they came, and believed they were now equals of the Turk; but the four guns were twenty-year-old Krupps, with a range of only three thousand yards; and their crews were not eager enough in brain and spirit for irregular fighting. However, they went forward with the mob and drove in the Turkish outposts, and then their supports, until Fakhri becoming seriously alarmed, came down himself, inspected the front, and at once reinforced the threatened detachment at Bir Abbas to some three thousand strong. The Turks had field guns and howitzers with them, and the added advantage of high ground for observation. They began to worry the Arabs by indirect fire, and nearly droped a shell on Feisal's tent while all the head men were conferring within. The Egyptian gunners were asked to return a fire and smother the enemy guns. They had to plead that their weapons were useless, since they could not carry nine thousand yards. They were derided; and the Arabs ran back again into the defiles.

Feisal was deeply discouraged. His men were tired. He had lost many of them. His only effective tactics against the enemy had been to chase in suddenly upon their rear by fast mounted charges, and many camels had been killed, wounded or worn out in these expensive measures. He demurred to carrying the whole war upon his own neck while Abdulla delayed in Mecca, and Ali and Zeid at Rabegh. Finally he withdrew the bulk of his forces, leaving the Harb sub-tribes to keep up pressure on the Turkish supply columns and communications by a repeated series of such raids as those which he himself found impossible to maintain.

No Respect For Turks

Yet he had no fear that the Turks would again come forward against him suddenly. His failure to make any impression on them had not imbued him with the smallest respect for them. His late retirement to Hamra was not forced, it was a gesture of disgust, because he was bored by his obvious impotence, and was determined for a little while to have the dignity of rest.

I asked Feisal what his plans were now. He said that till Medina fell they were inevitably tied down there in Hejac dancing to Fakhri's tune. In his opinion the Turks were aiming at the recapture of Mecca. The bulk of their strength was now in a mobile column, which they could move towards Rabegh by a choice of routes which kept the Arabs in constant alarm. A passive defence of the Subh hills had shown that the Arabs did not shine as passive resisters. When the enemy moved they must be countered by an offensive.

Talk and Do Nothing

Maulud, who had sat fidgeting through our long, slow talk, could no longer restrain himself and cried out, "Don't write a history of us. The needful thing is to fight and kill them. Give me a battery of Schneider mountain guns, and machine-guns, and I will finish this off for you. We talk and talk and do nothing." I replied as warmly; and Maulud, a magnificent fighter, who regarded a battle won as a battle wasted if he did not show some wound to prove his part in it, took me up. We wrangled while Feisal sat by and grinned delightedly at us.

This talk had been for him a holiday. He was encouraged by the trifle of my coming, for he was a man of moods, flickering between glory and despair, and just now dead-tired. He looked years older than thirty-one; and his dark, appealing eyes, set a little sloping in his face, were bloodshot, and his hollow cheeks deeply lined and puckered with reflection. His nature grudged thinking, for it crippled his speed in action: the labor of it shrivelled his features into swift lines of pain. In appearance he was tall, graceful and vigorous, with the most beautiful gait, and a royal dignity of head and shoulders. Of course he knew it, and a great part of his public expression was by sign and gesture.

United Church Will Celebrate Tenth Anniversary On June 9

Commencing, Sunday, June 9, the United Church of Canada will celebrates its 10th anniversary. In all parts of Canada, more than 2,000,000 adherents will take part in the celebrations. In Toronto, where the United church was first formed on June 10, 1925, a monster celebration is being arranged in which past and present moderators will participate. In the layout are shown, LEFT to RIGHT, Rev. T. Albert Moore(immediate past moderator; Principal Edmund Oliver, fourth moderator; Rev. Geo. C. Pidgeon, who was the first moderator of the church; Rev. Richard Roberts, present moderator, and Rev. James Endicott, who followed Rev. Geo. Pidgeon.

Arnold J. Noftall was named as substitute for him during the term of his absence at a minimum salary according to schedule.

A similar request by Miss Burgess for leave of absence was also granted, and Miss McKinlay of Stewart street was appointed as substitute. Her temporary appointment was highly recommended by Inspector A. Mowat.

Miss Pearl Faint and Miss A. A. Howson of the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School staff who have been absent on account of illness, were given further leave of absence until the first of January next, and it was decided that Miss D. M. White and Miss May E. Heasman, who have been substituting for them should continue to do so, and that each be given a salary increase as per schedule from September 1st.

Dr. A. Moir, as chairman of the Board read a communication from the Department of Education intimating that the dental grant to schools is to be discontinud as from April 1st next. Secretary G. H. Thompson stated that the annual dental grant from the government would not exceed $150 per annum.

Attendance Gratifying

In receiving the attendance reports from the Collegiate and Public Schools for the past month, the chairman commented on the high percentages, as being very gratifying.

The monthly reports of the school doctor and nurses had reference to some cases of defective vision, and in that connection Inspector A. Mowat stated, the Kinsmen Club had been very helpful. Already this year, he said, the club had attended over fifty cases.

As a means by which the Board might save upwards of $60, it was decided on motion of Dr. J. J. Craig, seconded by V. J. McElderry, K.C., that with exception of the principal's office in the Collegiate and Inspector Mowat's office at Central School that all school telephone services be discontinued during the period of the summer vacation. The matter was first brought forward at last months meeting of the Board and as a result of that meeting, W. J. Hancock submitted a verbal report which was the basis of the action taken last night.

Following the meeting of the Board, the Property Committee met under chairmanship of Mrs. W. R. Morris, and awarded tenders for fuel requirements for next winter to: Peterborough Fuel and Transfer Company, H. B. Taylor and Sons, Conger Lehigh Coal Company, J. E. A. Fitzgerald, W. J. Nelson.

ST. PAUL'S OPENS UP SUNDAY SCHOOL

New Sunday School in South End for Presbyterian Families.

For several years, St. Paul's Presbyterian Church members residing in the south-end of the city have felt the serious need of a Sunday School for that district. Parents sent their families to the church on Sunday afternoons during the fine weather; when the winters set in, the distance, for younger scholars especially, was a handicap to regularity, and a gradual secession took place. There were churches with Sunday School privileges and open doors in the south-end—Park Street Baptist and St. James' and to these the scholars drifted, a much better plan than having the scholars "scour the streets", though many older pupils still adhered to the church school.

Long-felt Want Fulfilled

Last year the matter of instituting a Sunday School for the benefit of the St. Paul's scholars residing in the south-end was seriously considered by parents and members in that area, to the number of possibly about twenty families, with anywhere from forty to fifty children, who could be accommodated with a Sunday School service each week. The Session was approached, and Dr. Barr was invited, with the Deaconess, Miss Elizabeth Walker, to convass the south districts, and advise on the possibilities of securing a building for the purpose. It was urgent that the spiritual oversight of the future members of St. Paul's be attended to; and accommodation was sought, to be successfully accomplished by a committee of the Session, with Dr. Barr. A dwelling-house was rented, for a nominal sum, from Mrs. Rush—the property is situated within easy reach of almost every family concerned, at 510 George street, a few steps from the Exhibition Grounds main entrance. The rental has been allocated by St. Paul's Church for the first six months, and the school may be self-sustaining thereafter. A few alterations and some redecorating have been carried out, chairs and tables, a piano, and other equipment have been provided, and already five sessions, the first on May 5, have been held.

Forty on the Roll

A visit to the new South-end Sunday School last Sunday disclosed the existence of a live and happy group. Miss Elizabeth Walker is superintendent and conducts the adult Bible Class; James E. Elliott has a class of seniors and intermediates; Miss Anne Young, a class of juniors, Mrs. W. G. Chapin, beginners and primary; Miss E. O. Simpson is pianist; with W. G. Chapin as the secretary. On the roll are 40 scholars and five teachers. The hymns used are provided on cards; and the literature and lesson studies are procured through the Presbyterian Publications, Toronto. Classes meet in the upstairs rooms and downstairs.

Miss Walker in Charge

Under the experienced and tactful guidance of Miss Walker, the South-end Sunday School of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church has made a splendid beginning, and is expected to reach greater proportions necessitating the building of a larger hall and more upto-date accommodation in years to come.

On similar terms Miss Fern Rahmel was also appointed to the Public School teaching staff, appointment being made necessary by the addition of an additional room at King George School.

MACHINE GUNNERS TO BE INSPECTED

Local Company Said to be in High State of Strength and Efficiency.

Lieut.-Colonel J. A. Dewart, M.C., officer commanding, and Major G. R. Scott, medical officer of the 4th Battalion Canadian Machine Gun Corps, are in Ottawa to-day for the annual inspection of B Company. On Thursday they will both be present at the annual inspection of A Company at Kingston, while on Saturday afternoon they will be here for the inspection of C Company (under command of Major James Turnbull), at the Armouries at 3 p.m. In each instance the inspecting officers are to be Major Salmon, M.C., G.S.O.I., and Captain Foulkes, also of Military District 3 headquarters.

It was stated by Colonel Dewart that the competition for the inter-company trophy by the battalion is very keen, and that all three companies are now at a higher state of strength and efficiency than at any other time in the post war history of the unit. Particularly was this true of the Peterborough Company, he said.

Following their inspection here on Saturday afternoon, at which it is expected the O.C.'s of the other two companies will be present, the entire Battalion is to go into camp at Connaught Ranges near Ottawa on June 16.

DAWSON CENTRE OF QUESTIONING

ing a ——— ——— fool of herself in the House of Commons."

Baynes also complained Dawson had not given him an opportunity to discuss a grievance regarding which he wished to see General D. M. Ormond, superintendent of penitentiaries. Dawson had also questioned Baynes, the latter wrote, about an affair in Stony Mountain penitentiary in which a man was killed, and which Miss MacPhail had brought up in the House of Commons.

"Because I would not be a party to discredit Miss MacPhail you resorted to plain threat," Baynes had written concerning Dawson.

Not For Miss Macphail.

On further questioning the inspector said Baynes had told him his original letter written was not intended for Miss Macphail.

"There were conversations regarding Miss Macphail that were not taken down by the stenographer," said McRuer.

"Oh, yes," replied Dawson. "I was listening." Baynes, he said, did practically all the talking.

"But you were making remarks, too," insisted McRuer.

"I would not say that," was the reply.

"It was a monologue, was it?" suggested counsel. "You saw him for two hours and the interview was a monologue."

"I was leading him through his fyle," the inspector said.

"Was Baynes ever punished for making a false charge against you?"

"No," said Dawson.

"You never asked that he be punished?"

"No."

The examination turned to what transpired after Dawson left the penitentiary on the day of the interview to go to lunch. Dawson had seen Warden Meglaughlin.

"If Meglaughlin says you told him 'Aggie has made a——fool of herself,' would you swear it is not true?"

"I will," said Dawson.

"You'll contradict Meglaughlin?"

"Yes."

"Did you say to Meglaughlin, 'I have made a fool of myself today?'"

"I have no recollection of such remarks," said Dawson.

"If Meglaughlin says so, will you deny it?"

"I thing it is very unlikely," the inspector said.

With regard to Dawson's conversation with Dr. Alfred George Hall and a report Hall made upon it, the latter protested Dawson's attitude toward women who wrote to convicts and who were not blood relations.

Protested Investigations.

Hall, said McRuer, had brought up the point it was objectionable to have the women friends of convicts investigated by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

"I said," replied Dawson, "that it was necessary because some of them were no doubt prostitutes."

This had come under his observation several times, said Dawson. Hall had suggested this be done by social service workers, but Dawson did not report the suggestion, believing it to be unnecessary.

Report Closely Checked.

A report made by General Ormond to the Minister of Justice relating to Hall's memorandum of grievances was the subject of close examination. It dealt with the 25 statements of matters taken by Hall, except Paragraph No. Nine, which was Hall's charge Dawson had made disparaging remarks regarding Miss MacPhail.

"Is it fair to say Ormond consulted you relative to the reply to Mr. Guthrie?" asked McRuer.

"I don't think so," said Dawson.

"Have you any recollection whether he did or not?"

"No, I have no recollection."

"Did you see his report before it went to the minister?"

"I did not."

Dawson said there were supplementary documents dealing with that particular phase of the matter.

WIDOW SUICIDES AS TRIAL CLIMAX

and where the murder was committed.

The determined suicide of Mrs. Rattenbury, stabbed and drowned, was the next to last act of as grim a tragedy as the late Thomas Hardy ever staged in his beloved "Wessex" countryside, of which Christchurch and the River Stour were central in the Hardy novels.

The Final Act

The last act will probably be the hanging of Mrs. Rattenbury's 19-year-old lover, whose execution has been set for June 18.

The opening act was the murder of Rattenbury, distinguished architect, who lived for many years on Canada's Pacific Coast and there met Mrs. Rattenbury, who spent her childhood in Kamloops, B.C. Rattenbury designed the British Columbia Provincial Parliament Buildings and many of Canada's great hotels.

The prologue was the engagement of Stoner as chauffeur to the Rattenbury's last November; Mrs. Rattenbury becoming his mistress shortly after; and even before that, long quarrels between the Rattenburys over money matters and the woman's assertion Rattenbury told her she could "live her own life."

Stabbed Six Times.

Late last night, it was learned today, the body of Mrs. Rattenbury, 38 years old, was found in a lonely little backwater of the River Stour, two miles north of Christchurch. She had flung herself into the water with a gleaming knife in her hand, and while struggling with the stream had stabbed herself in the left breast, six times.

Only a few days before Mrs. Rattenbury leaned on the edge of the dock in the Old Bailey before a throng that had struggled and fought to get within the court and had admitted improper relations with the youth 20 years her junior.

Both were accused of the slaying of the woman's elderly husband, struck on the head with a mallet and left unconscious in a pool of blood in the living room of the Rattenbury villa at Bournemouth on the night of March 24. He died four days afterward.

HORSE ATTACKS BOY.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., June 5. —(CP).—A mare, enraged when a small boy petted her colt, attacked him with flying feet and phyicians said to-day the boy may die.

The boy, Willim Leon Hoyt, 13, son of O. V. Hoyt, farmer, was kicked Saturday.

FARMERS FLEE KANSAS FLATS BEFORE FLOODS

Laborers Battle Desperately to Strengthen Hard Pressed Dikes.

10,000 ACRES INUNDATED.

Toll Continues to Mount in Nebraska, Missouri—114 Bodies Found in Mexico.

KANSAS CITY, June 5. (AP).—Thousands of lowland dwellers hastened the evacuation of flood threatened homes and farms to-day as the crests of the water-burdened Missouri and Kaw rivers raced to the junction here. Farmers left for the hills driving their stock before them. Laborers worked desperately to strengthen dikes and railroad embankments.

The crest of the Kaw river flood was about 75 miles west of here, threatening Topeka, while that of the Missouri river—already overflowing in many places along its 400-mile course from Wktvohere to St. Charles, Mo.—was about the same distance to the north.

Residents of North Topeka were ordered to leave when breaks appeared in dykes to the west of the city. The river was expected to reach a stage of 28 feet, seven feet above the floor mark.

10,000 Acres Flooded

At the lower end of the Missouri River between 40 and 50 families fled for their lives as the turbulent stream burst a levee wall and inundated 10,000 acres of bottom land in St. Louis county.

Nebraska's flood disaster toll continued to increase to-day as the Republican river crept back into its banks and the danger of a serious flood along the Platte river decreased.

An Associated Press survey showed 45 recovered bodies and listed 58 other verified and reported dead for a total of 103. The Red Cross, however, reported 50 dead and 86 still missing.

The death toll in Kansas was eight and in Missouri three.

Recover 114 Bodies.

MEXICO, D.F., June 5 (A.P.).—The bodies of 114 victims of the floods which swept down on the nearby village of San Pedro and surrounding communities were identified to-day.

Officials said there was little prospect the exact number who perished in Monday's disaster ever would be known.

Many bodies were taken from the ruins of San Pedro's church, where the greatest death toll occurred, and buried before the official check was begun. Others were believed to have been buried so deeply beneath deoris and mud they never can be found.

Official estimates placed the number of dead at approximately 400.

COMMUNITY HEALTH

A column Conducted by the Department of Public Health, Peterborough, in the interests of Peterborough citizens.

SUNBURN

Perhaps the commonest summer complaint is sunburn. It is an affliction of all ages although children are often more susceptible than adults. Blondes burn more readily than brunettes and are not so much inclined to tan as their darker sisters. Exposure of gradually increasing areas of the body or exposure of large areas in gradually increasing doses is beneficial for everyone and helps promote good health and increased vitality. The present habit of acquiring a sun tan is not only fashionable but also sensible.

Sunburn is caused by the ultra violet rays of the sun which are invisible to the naked eye and are not hot. These rays are present in all sunlight particularly in the summer months.

Exposure of the skin to the summer sun results in reddening which is really a burn, followed by peeling and later, tanning. If one is careless enough to remain in the sun too long, the burn may be severe enough to cause blistering. In either event the result is painful and uncomfortable; in fact it may be dangerous to health due to blisters breaking and becoming septic. After the skin is tanned it may be exposed for considerably longer periods with benefit to the general health of the individual.

Sunshine is necessary for the normal growth of all infants, particularly for the prevention of rickets. The infant should be kept in the open air and sunshine whenever possible. In the winter time he should be taken out for a time each day between the hours of 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. and the sun allowed to shine directly on the face. The sun will not hurt the closed eyes. In young infants the head may be turned to one side, if thought necessary.

Sun baths should be given daily whenever possible. In cool weather the baby may be placed in front of an open window, as the sun's rays are not effective enough through ordinary window glass. On mild days he may be taken out of doors. The clothing should gradually be removed, exposing the hands and feet to the sun the first day for 5 minutes, then arms and legs the second day, and proceeding each day in this manner until the child's whole body is exposed to the sun's rays.

Directions

On the first day expose hands, feet, and ankles for five minutes. On the second day, at the end of the first five minutes of exposure of the hands, feet and ankles, roll the sleeves to the elbows and uncover the legs to the knees, for a second five minutes.

Proceed each day in this manner, uncovering in order the hands and and wrists, feet and ankles, ankles to knees, knees to hips, hips to chest, front and back, chest to neck, front and back. The first day's parts will then have had ten minutes and the newest part always getting but five minutes on its first day uncovered. By the sixteenth day the child gets a sixty-minute bath.

Older children should wear sun suits and be allowed to play for increasing periods in the sun. A light hat should be worn to protect the head.

If adults will be careful to expose the skin for short periods at first and gradually increase the time, they will develop a uniform tanning and derive considerable benefit as the result.

Treatment

Soothing lotions should be used on the inflamed areas. Calamine lotion with the addition of a little menthol is excellent. In severe cases accompanied by blistering it is advisable to consult your doctor who will help prevent the onset of sepsis. Severe burning can usually be prevented by gradual exposure or covering the skin with ointment.

WOOD WAS FUEL ON LAKE BOATS

Days of Stick-Burners on St. Lawrence River Recalled.

KINGSTON, Ont., June 5 (C.P.)—Days of wood depots on the Leeds County shore of the St. Lawrence river, in the Thousand Islands region, were recalled here by John F. Darling, of Lansdowne, Ont., descendant of pioneer Leeds settlers.

Wood depots were established to supply cordwood to steamboats plying the river and Lake Ontario in the middle of the last century. One of them was named Darlingside, after the Leeds pioneer. Depots went out of business later as the fields became cleared and the coal replaced wood on steamboats and locomotives.

Wood was then about the only commodity sold for cash. Timber was rafted at Landon's Bay and taken to Quebec City. There it was shipped to the British Isles.

First sawmills in the district were erected at the outlet of Charleston Lake and what is now known as Lansdowne dock. Parts of Leeds County still supply large quantities of firewood.

FLOOD DROWNS 350 AT MEXICO CHURCH SERVICE

Worshippers Trapped as Wall of Water Roars Through Village.

ONLY SEVEN ESCAPE.

Superstitious Natives Attempt to Block Troops at Rescue Work.

BY CLARK G. LEE

(Copyright, 1935 by the A. P.)

MEXICO, D.F., June 5 (A.P.)—More than 350 persons were officially estimated today to have perished in floods which swept down upon the fertile valley of Mexico, trapping a throng of worshippers at their prayers in the church at San Pedro.

Most of the victims were members of the group gathered in the church yesterday to celebrate the festival of San Pedro's patron saint. Only seven persons escaped from the church.

The neighboring communities of Xochimilco, 12 miles from here; Milpa Alta, San Gregorio and San Pablo also suffered numerous casualties.

Roads Impassable

Torrential rains sent mountain streams roaring out of their courses into the villages below. Within two hours roads were impassable and fields became vast, surging lakes.

Those who escaped from the San Pedro church said the swiftly rising water burst the walls of the structure and poured in on the worshippers before they were aware of the threat to their lives. Later the building collapsed, burying the dead and dying beneath its debris.

Villagers interfered with the efforts of federal troops to extricate bodies from the ruins, threatening to attack the soldiers because they believed the disaster to be an act of vengeance sent from heaven.

Earlier in the day authorities had entered the church, halted the services and arrested the priest. The superstitious Indians insisted the floods were retribution for this interference with their worship.

Eye-witness' Story

An Indian named Juan, resident of San Poy, described the terrifying scene with the assistance of an interpreter.

"I saw a wall of water coming and climbed the roof of a house opposite the church which is at the bottom of a steep street" he said.

"Water swept down the mountain, crashed through the church gates and tore away part of the walls, imprisoning the worshippers, mostly women.

"The water rose rapidly inside the church. I saw the crowd struggling to escape and then heads slowly disappear under the water with clenched fists still visible.

"Finally there were only a few faint shouts in the Indian tongue: 'Nech maca nama,' meaning 'God help us,' and then complete silence except for the rushing water."

LAD WOUNDS SISTER.

TESSIER, Matane County, Que., June 5 (C.P.) — When her nine-year-old brother accidentally discharged a loaded rifle, Germaine Marquis, 11, was struck in the abdomen by a bullet and was seriously wounded. During the same day the home of her father, Alphe Marquis, was burned to the ground.

When Baby Is Fretful, Can't Sleep

There's Generally a Congestion Somewhere

It only requires a small congestion in a baby's intestines, stomach or liver to cause an irritating pressure on the nerves sufficient to make a baby fretful, toss around in bed, stay awake and perhaps cry. Remove these congestions and baby's nerves become quiet, she rests easily and sleeps peacefully.

There are two substances contained in Baby's Own Tablets that have been used for years by many family physicians and baby specialists to remove these common congestions. The dosage in Baby's Own Tablets is correct, and the tablets are safe for even the most delicate infant or child. They are certified free of any opiates or narcotics.

Many thousands of Canadian mothers willingly speak for Baby's Own Tablets. A mother in Wallacetown, Ontario, writes:—"I know I can depend on Baby's Own Tablets to straighten up a peevish, fretful, restless child in a few hours. They promote natural sleep and will not harm the youngest child."

Full directions are given with each package of Baby's Own Tablets for the treatment of fretfulness, sleeplessness, teething troubles, colic, constipation, diarrhoea, simple fevers, colds, croup and other childhood ailments. Baby's Own Tablets are so inexpensive that it is an economy to give these little tablets to all children from infancy to 12 years of age. They are sweet-tasting, easy-to-take as candy. Your druggist has them.

Judge Grants Order Dismissing Action

In the suit of Archibald and Richmond vs. J. A. O'Brien and Mrs. O'Brien, which was entered for trial in County Court, the plaintiffs abandoned the action as against the defendant, J. A. O'Brien.

This morning Emmett F. Sheehy, on behalf of J. A. O'Brien, made a motion for dismissal before the County Judge, and in granting the order His Honor directed that the action be dismissed as against the first named defendant and that the plaintiff pay the costs.

The claim was in respect to improvements made to the former Engelburn Avenue property of the defendants.

Fines Ordered For Parking Offences

Seven local citizens were to-day penalized for infractions of the city traffic by-law, which prohibits angle or double parking in the restricted area, the Magistrate ordering each of the defendants to pay fines of $2 without costs.

Chief Constable Samuel Newhall told the court he intended to enforce the city traffic by-law, and would continue to issue summonses, just so long as repeated warnings continued to go unheeded. He pointed out there had been repeated warnings issued by himself through the press, and by previous convictions recorded against offenders.

The defendants were: William E. Taylor, George Barns, M. L. Latimer, J. J. Morency, E. Braund, George Sorenson, and D. H. Grant.

On the information of Highway Traffic Officer A. E. Hornick, E. J. McCloy of Mimico was fined the sum of $23.75 including costs, for "speeding."

Thursday Night Feature Attraction

Brock St. Summer Gardens—Highly Recommended Coloured Floor Show.

The feature attraction this week at the Summer Gardens, Brock St., will be an All Coloured Floor Show starring Helen Moxley, Blues Singer, who has sung for such outstanding bands as Cab Calloway, Duke Ellington and Jimmy Lunsford. Miss Moxley was also the star of the Cotton Club Revue at the Cotton Club in Harlem, New York City.

Frank Brown, the Rhythm King, one of the best coloured dancers to visit this country will perform on the same program.

Teddy Braithwaite, who is considered the finest juvenile dancer to perform in Canada, will merit your applause when you see him perform many of the tricky steps he danced with Jimmy Lunsford and his famous Coloured Band at the Palais Royale in Toronto this spring.

This entire floor show has appeared at the Silver Slipper in Toronto and comes to the Gardens highly recommended as a first class singing and dancing show. Every Thursday at the Gardens will be Vaudeville night. Watch for next week's announcement of our Thursday night Amateur Show. Anyone with talent either singing, dancing or musical, please get in touch with Andy Rutter at the Summer Garden any morning or evening.

Magistrate's Court

Following hearing of a charge of common assault against Henry Gordon on the complaint of Mrs. Childs, acting on behalf of her son, Kenneth Childs, the case was dismissed. W. J. Arthur Fair represented the defendant.

A third case which came before the magistrate yesterday afternoon related to a charge of unlawful possession of homebrew beer, against George Holland of Galway township was adjourned to June 7. Charges were laid by Corpl. T. J. Woods of the R.C.M.P. detachment at Lindsay.

Another large docket was disposed of this morning. George Maguire and Harold Sykes, described as transients, were convicted of drunkenness and were ordered to pay fines of $15 and $4.50 costs each or serve 15 days "on the hill" in default. With reference to Maguire, the Chief Constable told the bench, "he is another of those drunken beggars Your Worship, who jams his foot in people's doors when they refuse to give him food or money. This type of offence is getting to be too prevalent and must be stopped.

Two charges of common assault against Max Vincent, formerly of Park Hill Road, were withdrawn with consent of the Crown, and at the request of the complainants, Mrs. Marion Vincent and her sister, Miss May Payne. W. J. A. Fair for the defendant, said that Vincent and his wife had entered into a separation agreement.

Reginald Hills declined to elect or plead to a charge of conversion and theft of the sum of $3.50, and the case was adjourned to Wednesday next. The complainant is E. A. Metcalfe.

West Hart, butcher, of Havelock, surrendered to bail on a charge of being intoxicated while in charge of a motor truck, to which he entered a plea of "guilty" on Saturday last, and was sentenced to 15 days' imprisonment. Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., pointed out to His Worship before sentence was imposed that even under favorable conditions motor trucks could be said to constitute a public menace, but added to that the fact that the accused was drunk while in charge of such a vehicle, was a condition which warranted severe punishment.

Jus after being arraigned before the Magistrate on a charge of wilful damage, a local young man collapsed in a faint, and upon his recovery learned that the complainant, H. B. Rye, with consent of the Crown, had withdrawn the charge on the ground that it was laid under the wrong section of the Code.

JOHN PENROSE PASSES IN CITY

Former Railway Man and Grocer Died After Very Short Illness.

WELL-KNOWN BOWLER.

John Penrose, known to a wide circle in this city as a grocer and a former railway man, died after a very short illness at his home, 546 Sherbrooke Street, yesterday. He was 71 years of age.

Mr. Penrose had conducted his grocery business on Sherbrooke Street for the past 21 years. Previous to that, he had spent 38 years in service with Grand Trunk Railway, now the C.N.R. He was born in Mariposa, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Penrose, and came to this city 37 years ago.

The deceased was a popular member of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club and was long active in the Curling Club. He belonged to the Woodmen of the World Order and was a member of Knox United Church. If he had survived, he and his wife would have reached their fiftieth wedding anniversary in January, 1936.

Besides his wife, two sons, William Roy and Roland, and two daughters, Mrs. Robert Dolby and Mrs. Alfred Spicer, remain. One brother, Byron Penrose, resides in Duluth, and a sister, Mrs. H. Harmon, remains in Hensall, Ontario.

The funeral will be held on Friday, a service at the house at 2.00 p.m. to be followed by a service at Knox United Church at 2.30. Interment will be made in Little Lake Cemetery.

TORIES PREPARE TO REVISE LISTS

Executive and Ward Chairmen Hear Party Organizers.

MEETINGS PLANNED.

Conservative executive members and ward chairmen and workers made preparations for placing as many names as possible on the voters' lists before the present revision is concluded, at an organization meeting held in the Water Street committee rooms last night, with the president, Morley Smithson, of Otonabee, in the chair.

A. H. Birmingham, one of the Provincial organizers, and Major-General Garnet Hughes, organizer for this district, were present and addressed the meeting, as did Mrs. Howard Fallis, J. F. Strickland, K.C., ex-M.L.A., and W. H. Bradburn, ex-M.L.A.

It was arranged to have ward committees meet in the near future and notices as to the dates are to be issued at once.

Mr. Birmingham stressed the fact that rural voters could not be sworn in on election day, as was formerly done, and that no names, either urban or rural, could be added to the lists after the revision proceedings were complete. Persons who came of age after the revision was closed would not be eligible to vote at the coming election, the organizer explained.

8-HOUR DAY BILL IN LAST STAGES

Final Reading of Measure Expected to be Moved in Senate To-day.

WORKS PROGRAM ON LIST.

OTTAWA, June 5. (CP).—Approval of amendments made to Senate Banking and Commerce committee will be sought to-day in the Upper House on motion to adopt the committees report. Third reading of the measure is expected to be moved following concurrence in the changes.

The main amendment affects the railway running trades. It provides these employees shall come under the provisions six months after the act receives Royal assent, rather than on March 31 next as specified in an amendment passed in the Commons. Other industries will come under the bill three months after Royal assent.

Bills for a Government public works program and amending the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act are on the order paper for second reading. The amending measure is to enable the minister of Labor to expedite naming of a board of conciliation in strikes or lockouts on complaint of intimidation or discriminattion.

In the Senate Banking and Commerce Committee, the minimum wage bill will be under further discusion. The measure for an extension of time to commence construction of a tunnel from Sarnia to Port Huron, Michigan, will be before the railways and telegraphs committee.

Little likelihood exists of the bill of T. L. Church (Con., Toronto East) to compel newspapers to publish names of their shareholders being considered during the day by the banking and commerce committee.

HAMILTON, Ont., June 5 (CP)—As one stamp collector to another, His Majesty and H. H. Mockler have been exchanging tokens in the past few weeks. Mr. Mockler, knowing the King is an arden fan, sent him first-day covers of the Silver Jubilee issue, together with Diamond Jubilee covers of Queen's Victoria's reign and the 1908 issue of King Edward and Queen Alexandria's Jubilee. His Majesty replied, personally thanking Mr. Mockler for the stamps.

SYNOD OBJECTS TO R.C. DEMAND

Anglicans Claim Tax Change Will Cause Injustice to Majority in Province.

URGE NO CHANGE BE MADE.

KINGSTON, June 5 (CP)—Vigorous protest over additional privileges being accorded Roman Catholics in regard to the separate schools tax system was voiced at yesterday's session of the Anglican Synod of the Diocese of Ontario.

The resolution, moved by Very Rev. Dean W. W. Craig, St. George's Cathedral, and seconded by Rev. A. E. Smart, St. John's Church, Portsmouth, was as follows: "That the Synod of the Diocese of Ontario, having learned the Catholic Taxpayers' Association has petitioned the Ontario Government to extend privileges already conceded them in the matter of separate schools, places itself on record as wholly opposed to any such extension, and bases its opposition among other reasons, upon the following:

1.—"The public schools of Ontario are required by law to provide accommodation and education for every child in the province between the ages of five and 21 years of age, irrespective of race, or creed. They are constituted so as to protect all children from interference with professed religion.

2.—"The separate schools exist for the express purpose of teaching the Roman Catholic faith over and above standards of general education. They are sectarian schools.

3."Roman Catholics have been given full liberty to support and maintain these sectarian schools by voluntary allocation of their school taxes for that purpose.

Cause Hardship

4.—"To change from this system of voluntary allocation of taxes to a system of obligatory division of taxes on the basis of relative population or school attendance will cause injustice and hardship to the large proportion of the people of the province who are not of the Roman Catholic faith.

5.—"The legislation whereby separate schools at present exist in this province has constituted the Roman Catholics a privileged class. They are enjoying privileges which are conceded to no other single religious group in the province. The demand now made is therefore not to be interpreted as a demand for rights wrongly withheld, but for further extension of special privileges in addition to these hitherto generously conceded. Such extension would cause injustice and bitterness to all other classes of the community.

6.—"We believe that children of Ontario will develop into better citizens with less dissension and greater unity of fellowship and purpose if they are permitted to obtain their education from one system of common schools.

"In view of above and of other considerations, we respectfully urge upon the Government of Ontario that no legislation shall be passed extending present generous privileges which were conceded Roman Catholic separate schools in a final settlement made before Confederation."

Charity drives have become so frequent in England that signs reading "No Requests for Charities" are appearing on houses.

Ten thousand took part in a recent anti-Catholic demonstration during the civic reception in Edinburgh, Scotland, to members of the Catholic Young Men's Society, and one man was arrested for jumping on the running board of the Prelate's car.

THE END IS NEAR!

Travel Club Members Will Soon Be Basking in the Glorious Sunshine on the Coral Beaches of Beautiful Bermuda. Help Your Member, Vote To-day!

SATURDAY NIGHT Closes the Highest Remaining Vote Offer

Saturday night will see the end of the high remaining vote period of the Travel Club. Travel Club members request the co-operation of their friends who have promised their help by making good their promises, this week while the votes are still high. Never will the votes be higher than they are right now. So many people have promised to help the candidates that it will be difficult for members to make the rounds the last week and therefore, those who really wish to help, will call at the Travel Club office and leave their subscriptions, they will be greatly assisting their chosen ones. The contest is very close with very little between the candidates in the way of subscriptions. Possibly anything from one to five subscriptions would make a marked change in the standing as it appeared last week. It will be a fight for the leaders to hold their positions against a number of the other members who are determined in their efforts to be among the Bermuda travellers when they boatd the private Pullman car that will take them to New York City. After a glamorous stay in New York the party will sail on board the magnificent "Queen of Bermuda" for that sunny land, Bermuda, more than seven hundred miles out in the Great Atlantic ocean. Life will be just like a pleasant dream in this semi-tropical land. It will be a trip-of-a-lifetime and those who are elected will have memories of the trip that will never fade.

SCENES OF THE LAND OF PERPE TUAL SPRINGTIME, BERMUDA

WINNERS

Will Sail on June 29th—Private Pullman Car From Peterborough

The S.S. "Queen of Bermuda", that stately monarch of the deep with her comfortable and luxurious quarters will delight the members of The Examiner's Travel Club party as they majestically sail out of the harbor of New York and the ladies begin to adjust themselves to their ocean home. Two golden days and nights will be spent on board this great ocean liner between New York and Bermuda. Deck sports, swimming in the beautiful tiled swimming pool, dancing, social evenings and mingling with interesting people from different parts of the world, will make life on board the S.S. "Queen of Bermuda" pleasant from the minute the hawser is loosed from the dock at New York until the "Queen" comes to rest in the harbor of Hamilton, Bermuda.

HELP THEM WIN

The loyal helpers of members are doing their utmost to put their candidates in line for these grand trips. Never before has such a golden opportunity presented itself in this district and well do the participants realize what a wonderful opportunity the Travel club offers them. It will take votes to win the trips and believe us when we say that the members are losing no time these days in digging up every possible vote. Their friends are helping too. If you have not already voted for someone, do so before this week is out and know the joy of helping one of the ladies realize her great ambition to visit Bermuda, "The land of the lily and the rose".

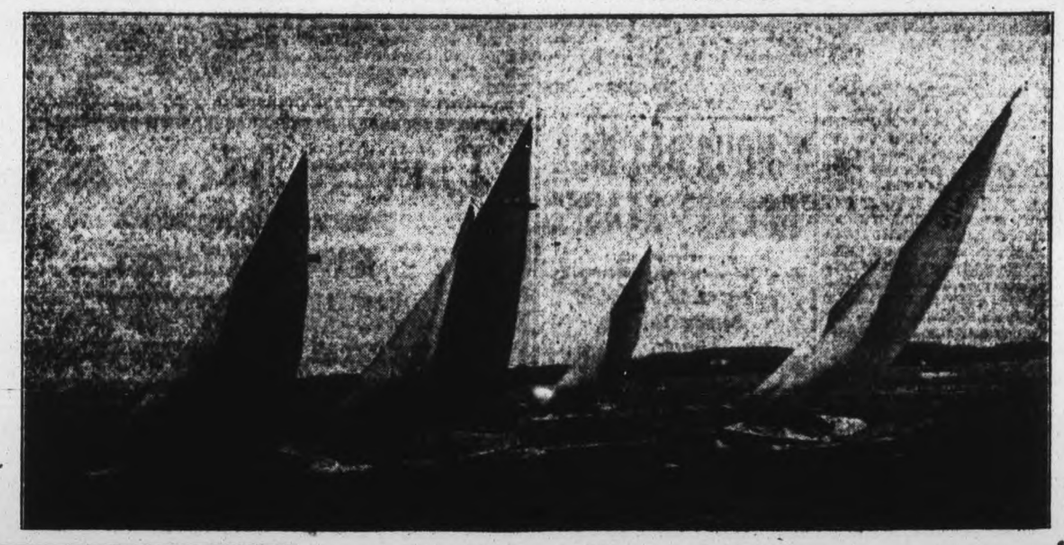
VOTE! VOTE! VOTE!

The glory of winning will be shared by the districts represented by the leading ladies. It will certainly prove the spirit of loyalty if "your" member is chosen to take part in the greatest Travel plan that this section of Ontario has ever witnessed. You can help to put your members over by making certain that your votes are cast to their credit. If you have not already voted for your district member, do so without further delay. Only two weeks remain for your favorite to realize her ambitions in respect to the Travel Club campaign. She has gone out, travelled through the district in which she lives, called on you, has possibly secured a subscription or has secured a promise from you in that you would give her a renewal or a new subscription before the contest ends. Don't delay—votes will be lower next week. Your idea has possibly been this, that you would hold your subscription until the last week, when you thought it might mean the most to your favorite; but, as we told you at the start of this campaign, votes would be highest during the first period of the Contest and we mean exactly that, votes will be lower next week than they have been all through the entire campaign. Help your contestant this week.



IT'S REALLY CLOSE

Club members and subscribers who are backing the candidates would be more than surprised if they knew how really close the race is for the Bermuda trips. The leadership has not changed to date, but that does not necessarily mean that she is safe from the rest of the contestants. Several others in the contest are very, very close. It will be interesting to see the end of the Club. The difference in the standing between members of the Travel Club is very small, and while more than one candidate has a splendid chance of getting herself into first place we certainly believe that the contest is still a contest to all. It is by no means a certain race for anyone and much activity is expected between now and the final day.

Subscribers

Subscribers, you who have not yet voted for one of the Travel Club girls, have you stopped to realize that you will soon be renewing your subscription anyway. Have you stopped to realize just what it means to these ladies who are struggling hard for votes to receive your help? Do you realize that it is not going to cost you one penny extra to do someone a favor? Why wait until the contest is over and then pay up your subscription? You can bring a little gladness to someone by merely paying your subscription in the usual way and casting your votes in favor of a member. The Club will soon be past history and it will then be too late to vote. It is of course up to yourself, but if you help one of these ladies you are nothing out, and if you enjoy seeing others happy, just pay your subscription in favor of one of these girls and we can guarantee you a pleasant sight. "Yes", said one of the members, "It's like a ray of sunshine on a dismal day, to have someone call you up and tell you that they would like to help you by giving you their renewal to The Examiner". Only those who stop to think it over can realize how hard these girls have worked for the trips.

The opening devotions included the hymn "I love to Tell the Story" and the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison. A miscellaneous program followed with splendid instrumental selections and a fine reading by Mrs. McGregor. Guitar music played in their usual excellent style by Mesdames Moynes and Turner was much appreciated, while a pleasing feature of the program was a group of cowboy songs by Master Joey McMahon in cowboy costume. Two sacred duetts "The Peace that My Saviour Has Given" and "Beneath the Cross of Jesus" were sweetly sung by Margaret Smart and Hazel Palmer, while Mesdames J. Reeves, Newson and McNaughton, also sang in duett "List to the Voice" and "The End of the Road." Another much appreciated contribution was the vocal solo by Marion Wood, and an innovation was provided in the selections on violin and mouth organ by Messrs. George Rutherford and Herschel Welbourn. An interesting contest was heartily entered into by all and a jolly social time concluded with the service of refreshments by Mrs. Oliveson and her capable committee. A sincere motion of appreciation was tendered the hostess and all contributing to the evening's entertainment, after which the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" brought the meeting to a close.

ROBERTA'S CHAT

A column conducted by a reader of The Examiner for her other reader friends. Address all mail to Roberta in care of The Examiner.

My heart's wound up, just like a watch,
As far as springs will take—
It wants but one more evil turn,
And then—the cords will break.
—Hood.

Dear Friend:

Have you ever come to the breaking point? You feel, that is just one more bad thing comes along, you will go to pieces.

Every day you've gone on doing your best, having first one disappointment, and then another, until life becomes a rather dread business. Never enough money, and you do so hate counting pennies, very little pleasure, and you wonder if it will ever end.

Then suddenly things begin to change, a little here, and a little there, and even you (who have been putting hope into one and all) someone even lets you do something you've always wanted to do.

You feel as if you are walking on air. You are not out of the woods yet by any means, as far as debt is concerned, but the blessed relief of having something to depend on, something to look forward to, with the hope, that it will steadily grow better. How thankful you feel, and inside of you, how unutterably tired you are. It has been such a strain, and you hope that, never again will you have such an experience.

So, if you feel that you have come to the end of your tether, hold on a little longer, and look for a change, for it is on the way. You have been brave so far, so don't give up when you are in sight of what you have striven for. Good luck to you.

From
ROBERTA.

ONTARIO STRAWBERRIES ARRIVE ON MARKET

ST. CATHARINES, June 5.—The first Ontario strawberries appeared on the city market yesterday, possibly the earliest here. The copious rainfalls and warm sunshine brought on the berries very quickly, making them large in size, and growers say the yield will be very heavy. The canning factories have contracted for considerable part of the crop in this section at good prices, according to reports from growers.

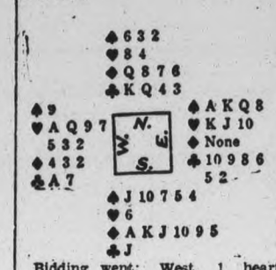
REASONING OUT A GRAND SLAM

No matter what method is employed for showing partner specific holdings, often there are hands dealt which require partners to reason out the cards held by partner to justify certain acts. Mrs. Mary Ransom, who sat West as declarer, one of New York's popular teachers, and her unnamed partner, had to do plenty of reasoning to reach a grand slam on their holdings, even if South unwittingly helped them by bidding diamonds, enabling East to show no losers of that suit.



Bidding went: West, 1 heart (after South's pass); East, 1 spade; South, 2 diamonds; West, 3 hearts, to force; East, 4 diamonds, showing good trump support and no diamond losers; West, 5 hearts, claiming ability to make 5-odd on what East had shown already.

East understood partner's message. It read something like this: "Partner, I made an opening bid of only 1 heart, showing no immediate thought of slam possibilities. Your voluntary bid of 1 spade and your subsequent showing of trump strength and absence of diamond losers leads me to believe that at least 5-odd should be made. If you have more strength than would justify your acts, bid accordingly, but otherwise pass." Three solid spade tricks, three trump honors, in addition to void diamonds and his honest spade bid, justified East's jump to 7 hearts.

The opening lead was a trump, to attempt cutting down East's ruffing ability. The 10 of hearts held the trick in dummy (even if the new law calls the declarer's partner by that term, instead of the briefer one of "dummy", the exposed hand is still the "dummy", it would be laughable to call it "the hand of declarer's partner"). Three spade tricks were taken in dummy, trusting that the holder of the single missing trump also held at least three spades. On them West let go her low club and a diamond.

A club was led, giving declarer access to her hand She led a diamond and dummy ruffed (declarer's partner had nothing to do with the process, but dummy supplied the trump for the declarer to utilize). West used her 9 of trumps to ruff dummy's last spade and dummy's last trump was used to ruff declarer's last diamond. Another club was ruffed with West's Q, then her ace picked up the last missing trump, giving her 7-odd.

Be Beautiful

By GLADYS GLAD

Madame Du Barry, that famous French beauty, whose powerful and destructive influence helped to bring about the downfall of the kings of France, was a firm believer in the use of cosmetics. According to Janet Gaynor, who knows her history as perfectly as she does her histrionics, du Barry studied the art of makeup as minutely as a statesman would a political speech. Du Barry wielded her cosmetics most skillfully in her day. And if she were not now a subject for biographers, she probably could give some timely tips to modern girls. For many women of today are not as skilled in the use of cosmetics as they might be.

Personally, I think that one of the main reasons why so many women's makeup lacks subtlety and artistry is because of the artificial and improper lighting by which most of them apply their cosmetics. Few damsels pay much attention to the lighting arrangements when making up their faces. As a result, their makeup never can bear close scrutiny. Actresses, whose stock in trade is beauty, invariably apply their cosmetics under the most brilliant of lights. They realize that a dim light is extremely deceptive and flattering, as it softens and tones down the crudest and most garish of makeup. They, therefore, avoid dim lights.

Day, Evening Lights Differ

Of course, in the daytime and in the evening, proper lighting effects differ. For daytime makeup, your mirror should be placed between two consecutive windows, if possible, so that the clear light of day falls full upon your face. If this is impossible, use a small hand mirror in front of your window. At all events, be sure to take a good look at your face in the betraying and penetrating daylight before you venture out of doors.

When applying makeup for evening wear, you should be directly beneath the clear, revealing light of a strong electric bulb, so that the light reflects clearly upon your features. The best arrangement is to have the light directly over your mirror, unless you have a special makeup lamp. And take care that the light falls evenly on both sides of your face, else you may tend to apply your cosmetics more generously to the shadowed part of your face than to the well-lighted portion.

Thorncliffe Has Good Season

Appointment of Dave Barry to Orpen Controlled Tracks Popular With Fans.

SMYTHE OUT TO WIN.

THORNCLIFFE closed up shop last evening after a very successful session and the racing scene shifts over to Long Branch this afternoon where A. M. Orpen will play host to the public for the next seven days. Last Saturday Thorncliffe had a mob of over twelve thousand people in the grounds and frequent police patrols kept bookies and gamblers on the go as fine weather attracted hundreds of hangers on to the area adjoining the race track. Crown and Anchor games broke up swiftly as police approached. Police reported that the motor traffic was the heaviest in the history of the track.

They expect great things from this horse called Imadud at Long Branch this week. He is in grand form and just raring to go. Bald Crest has been getting in the money quite frequently lately but has not been able to win. He will crash into the winning column any day how so be on the lookout. Plain Ben is also coming around slowly but surely, and will probably win one of Mr. Orpen's lucrative purses. Tom Clark will again be in the starters stand at Long Branch and also at Dufferin which follows one week later. This is his third year in that important position and he is getting better all the time, until today he is considered one of the best in the business.

LONG BRANCH is the only track in Canada where they give you the prices that the Daily Double will pay before the second part of it is run. This comes over the loud speaker system as does the running account of each race. Another feature of this track is that on a rainy day a person may buy a ticket in the mutuels and go and witness the race in the grandstand and if successful, go down and cash, without ever going out in the open or getting a single drop of rain. This is the only track in America that we know of where this can be done.

This is just in keeping with Mr. Orpen's policy of the customers come first. The appointment of Dave Boyle of Woodstock as assistant racing secretary and steward on all the Orpen controlled tracks made a big hit with everybody. Another Canadian in a job that was filled by American imports for years. We told you last week that now that Conny Smythe is back from Europe his stable would start to function. Well Lady Marlboro won his first purse for him on Monday, but this is just a starter. Direct Hit and Shoeless Joe are two well charged guns he has to shoot with yet. Jockey George Watson has arrived from Rockingham and will be a welcome addition to the none too strong riding colony. He is a full fledged jockey.

LEAFS DEFEAT ROCHESTER IN SERIES OPENER

Victory is Toronto's Sixth Over Rochester in Seven Games.

ORIOLES GOING UP.

Albany Senators Chalk Up Second Strainght Victory Over Syracuse Chiefs.

(By the Associated Press).

The hottest pernant race in years goes on in the International League with the teams continuing to shift their standings in the battle for play-off and pay-off first division.

The Buffalo Bisons, who were idle yesterday, their game with the Montreal Royals being postponed because of wet grounds, still lead the parade, being two and a half games ahead of Montreal and Baltimore Orioles, who are tied for second. Close behind the first three are the Toronto Maple Leafs, Newark Bears and Syracuse Chiefs, five games separating the sixth place Chiefs from the first place Bisons.

Back in First Division.

Tuesday Toronto hopped back into the first division by taking advantage of John Berly's wildness to beat Rochester 5 to 2. Berly issued three walks and hit three batters. This plus a mixup between Carey and Mills on a fly ball gave the Leafs four of their five runs. Whitey Hilcher, Leaf hurler, was nicked for nine hits, but was stingy when men were on the paths.

The Albany Senators chalked up their second straight victory over the Syracuse Chiefs, and their third in a row last night, scoring twice in the tenth inning to win out 6 to 4. Eddie Ohocki's double after Bud Hafey had singled scored the deciding run. Dutch Prather added another two - base hit, scoring Chihocki for good measure.

Bears Succumb.

Newark and Baltimore battled way into the night before the Bears succumbed 13-9. Five Newark and three Orioles hurlers saw action in the slugfest. A total of 27 hits were made by the two teams, including six homers. George (Pooch) Puccinelli added two more home runs to his collection and increased it to 22, Vince Barton and Eddie Mayo got one more each for the Birds, and Don Heffner and Fern Bell connected for the Bears. With their defeat the Bears dropped out of the first division, while the victory of the Orioles moved them into their tie for second with Montreal.

Dizzy-Daffy Dean Meeting Rocky Road

DEAN WALLOPED BY BUCCANEERS FOR 9-5 VICTORY

Onlookers Separate Dizzy and Joe Medwick in Fight on Players' Bench.

CUBS GET 10-2 WIN.

Red Sox Beat Washington 3-2 and Browns Win From Chisox 11-1.

By Andy Clarke
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

The primrose path of the brothers Dean has turned to a rocky road.

The cocky pair who have carried the uncomplimentary cognomens of Dizzy and Daffy to high prominence in the National League have found that big league ball players have little consideration for their reputations.

Last year they hung up imposing records and topped them off with brilliant world series accomplishments, but this year things have been different. Dizzy so far has won six and lost five; Daffy has won five and lost four.

Yesterday Dizzy was soundly walloped by the Pirates and the Cards, striking to overhaul the Giants, were defeated 9-5. In the fifth inning, after they had returned to the bench, Joe Medwick criticized Dizzy's constant use of a slow ball which, he averred, was duck-soup to a good batter. Dizzy told Medwick what he thought of him and the two assumed warlike poses. They were advancing on each other when other players stepped between them. Dazzy, it was noticed, was one of the first to rush to his brother's side.

Cy Blanton pitched for the Pirates in defeating Dean and the Cardinals yesterday and the win brought the Pirates within half a game of the St. Louis team.

Cubs Get 10-2 Win.

In the only other National League game, Gabby Hartnett led the Cubs to a 10-2 win over Cincinnati by hitting a homer, a triple and a single, driving in six runs and scoring two others.

St Johnson, on the mound for the Reds, abdicated after Hartnett clouted his triple with two on in the sixth. Each team collected 12 hits, but the Reds left 12 men on bases.

In the American League Boston Red Sox defeated Washington Senators 3-2 and the Brown took the White Sox into camp by the overwhelming score of 11-1.

Wesley Ferrell kept Washington's nine hits well scattered to chalk up his eighth victory of the season, while Burly Bump Hadley, also allowing nine hits, was described with his fifth defeat.

Jimmy Dykes Injured.

The White Sox lost more than the ball game, for Jimmy Dykes, energetic little manager, was escorted off the field with a sprained ankle. Dykes, who was playing second place in place of the injured Hayes, regularly in that position, was injured when he collided with Jack Burns, who was stealing second.

The defeat dropped the fading White Sox back into third position behind Cleveland Indians.

KEENE HURLER STRIKES OUT 14

Marilyn McCarthy Adds to Strikeout Total as Villagers Beat C.G.E. 8-5.

ALLOWS EIGHT HITS.

Keene's tiny hurler, Marilyn McCarthy pushed her strike-out total for two games up to thirty last night at the Bowl when the village team beat the C.G.E., 8 to 5, in the neatest tussle played so far in the City and District Softball League. A large crowd of fans thrilled to the sterling performance of Marilyn who sent fourteen batters out swinging, three of the falling in order in the second. She walked seven and was touched for eight hits.

Helen Newson made her debut for the season on the mound for the C.G.E., and pitched a splendid game. She allowed nine hits, struck out five and passed one. Her teammates played a vastly improved game in the field and except for a little dumb base-running looked as good as the opposition. Mary McCarthy played third and despite the newness of the position turned in a good performance. Her sister had her number at bat, however, fanning her twice, while the two long flies from her bat were scooped in by the Keene outfielders. Isobel Nelson's running catch of one of the latter in the last of the ninth was the feature play of the game. Roberta Gainor engineered a double play for Keene in the fifth when she took Snowden's fly and caught Sanderson off first.

Irene Short hit a clean homer into deep centre, while her teammate, Marilyn McCarthy, added another. Grace McCarthy had a double. Dot Byers and Winnie Snowden both poled out triples for the losers, while Mary. English hammered a double, went to third on an overthrow and stole home when the pitcher turned her back.

The playing for the week in the senior section which has seen all of the teams in action, indicates that Keene and Westclox are the top-notchers although the former team is handicapped owing to the fact that they have only one pitcher. C.G.E. has dropped their first two but are still very much in the race and on a par with Bailieboro. The last named team needs practise badly and could stand another pitcher.

LARGE CROWD AT BAILIEBORO

BAILIEBORO, June 5.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—About two hundred people attended the annual field day held on the local athletic grounds on Monday afternoon.

The field day this year was sponsored by the local girls' softball club instead of the athletic association as it has been in past years and the crowd present was most encouraging to the local management.

The first event was a softball game played between the Bensfort boys and the local lads, which resulted in a win for the locals by the close margin of 13 to 11. The teams lined-up:

Bailieboro—M. Wood ss, K. Dawson 1.f., S. Johnston 3b, G. Dean 1b, T. Johnston cf and p, L. Jewison, r.f., H. Lang, c, G. Anderson, p., rf., H. Dean, 2b.

Stewart Hall Beaten 27-5.

The second game took place between the local school girls and Stewart Hall girls, and resulted in a win for the local 27 to 5. The game was a one-sided contest throughout and although the visitors were a heavier team the local girls had a field day throughout. The teams line-up as follows:

Bailieboro—H. McMahon p. Hilda Thompson 2b, B. Bullock 2b, A. Falls ss, Evla McMahon c, D. Kennedy lf, Eileen Thompson 3b, E. Gainer r.f., Elva Jewison, cf, P. Smith, cf.

Garden Hill Wins 9-6.

The boys' hard ball game between Garden Hill boys and the locals resulted in a close contest which, during the first few innings, showed a good brand of ball. The pitching staff for the locals was weak, however, and the visitors took advantage of the easy offerings and won the game 9 runs to 6.

The teams lined-up:

BOYS! Here's the way to earn your own C·C·M· in a few weeks

THE number of merchants, factories and offices having parcels and messages delivered by bicycle is growing all the time. In Toronto alone there are more than 10 thousand bicycles being used for delivery purposes. Openings are constantly occurring for boys with bicycles. A bicycle delivery job pays good money, and you can earn your own bicycle in a short time. Thousands of boys have earned their own bicycles.

Perhaps there is a merchant in your very neighborhood who needs a boy with a bicycle, or maybe there is one who is not delivering by bicycle, but who could be persuaded to do so if you pointed out to him that delivery by bicycle is far cheaper than delivery by motor truck or horse. Keep your eyes open and land a job. Most C.C.M. dealers will be glad to let you have a C.C.M. bicycle on easy payments.

Any C.C.M. Men's or Boys' model, with the addition of a parcel carrier, makes a good delivery bicycle. Because of the increased use of bicycles for delivery purposes, the front forks and front hubs of regular C.C.M. models have been made even stronger.

A well-loaded C.C.M. runs so smoothly, steers so easily, rides so comfortably that you can make better time on it. And C.C.M.'s durable enamelling and chromium-plate over 20-year nickelling stand all kinds of weather. There are other C.C.M. features, too, such as Straight Line Drive, Triplex Hanger, powerful C.C.M. Hercules Coaster Brake, Frames of seamless steel tubing, Endrick Rims, rustless steel Spokes, Dunlop Fort or Dunlop Imperial Tires. 4tH

FORMER PETERBOROUGH BOY RETURNS IN WRESTLING GARB

Walter Parnall Throws Don Petroff in 17 Minutes of Semi-final Bout—Masked Marvel Vanquishes Bull Findlay in Final—800 See Show.

Walter Parnall, former Peterborough boy, returned to town last night in the pro wrestling show in the Armouries and won his bout to the cheers of the crowd. It was the semi-final and he threw Don Petroff, 210-pound Russian, in 17 minutes. Nearly 800 fans saw three lively bouts staged by the Toronto Cadillac A.C. with the Masked Marvel winning the main event over Bull Findlay of Detroit, and the preliminary affair going the limit to no decision.

Staged by Promoter Ivan Michailoff, the card proved a success, judging from the reaction of the fans. Jack Forbes, Ontario Athletic Commission referee, handled all bouts, with Fred Scates announcing and Nagel Phelan timekeeper. The Rangers Band supplied music before the show and during intermissions.

Johnny Gyroffy, 205-pound Hungarian, opened the card against Jack Marvin, of Nebraska, weighing 215. The latter was replacing Jack Pearl who was unable to go on from a previous match. They went 30 minutes without a decision or fall, but Gyroffy was clearly ahead in the minds of the crowd. He was the popular one and showed greater versatility in holds while Marvin went in mostly for rough stuff and baiting the spectators. Several times he had the Hungarian in a bad way with dirty tactics but the other would come back strong and weaken him with legitimate punishing holds and he had the American on the defensive the last while.

The semi-final saw Don Petroff of Russia tackle Walter Parnall 220-pound St. Catharines' grappler —former local resident. It was a 45-minute bout with one fall deciding, and Parnall won in 17 minutes. Popular from the start, Walter appeared afraid of the roughhouse Petroff at times, crawling under the ropes for protection, and this—along with questionable tactics by him at times—had many of the fans veering in favor of the other. Both were fast for big men and mixed it up from the start in and out of the ring. Parnall's strength and use of torturing holds had the other softened up before long and when he hit him with two wicked flying tackles and pinned him with a crotch-hold and hard body slam, his supporters cheered heartily, though there were a few boos aimed at him too as he left.

The Masked Marvel, scaling 218 pounds, proved too tough and experienced for Bull Findlay, 242-pound Detroiter, in a lively main bout. He gained the first and third falls, the last one comparatively easily. They roughed it up fast and furiously at the start with the fans yelling for his blood. He slammed Findlay early and kicked a field goal on his ribs with Referee Forbes warning him repeatedly for foul wrestling. The maddened Bull finally evened it up with a rough return rush that had the masked one ducking for cover and the crowd roaring approval. However, he came back later to nearly ruin the ring with a vicious slam of Findlay and then tied his feet in the ropes in a corner and pummelled him around till Forbes pried them apart. He had the Detroiter about pinned once but fell for the old gag of the other grappler slapping him on the back and got up thinking it was the referee. A crotch-hold and slam pinned the weakened Bull to the canvas in 16 minutes and Findlay, who had taken a lot of punishment, had to be helped out of the ring.

The second session of these behemoths was a humdinger with both fighting furiously from the bell. The Bull came out in vicious style and bounced the startled Marvel all over the ring with headlocks and slams. Both got in some punishing scissors and hammer-lock holds but Findlay was on top all through and the fans nearly brought the roof down at the fast, rough action. The masked matman got in a dizzying airplane spin and bodyslam but Bull wriggled free and they mixed it hard with Findlay gluing his rival's shoulders to the floor suddenly with a back-flip after a roof-shaking nine minutes. He was cheered to the echo as he strode from the ring.

The final fall was disappointing, both for its brevity and for the winner. The Detroiter started it with a flying tackle that missed and they grappled hard with some dirty holds and knee-ing and elbow-smashing going. They both got in a hard bodyslam and as Findlay jerked the Marvel up for another, the latter clamped a scissors on him. It unbalanced the Bull and he flopped to the mat with his opponent jumping on him fast to hold his shoulders flat and get the fall after just three minutes. The crowd booed the victor as they started for the exits.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!
By ALEX J. MORRISON

Number 626

An uneven lie invariably upsets the average player so that he misses his shot. The downhill lie where the ball is much lower than the feet is particularly confusing.

The ball generally goes too far to the right of the intended line. A powerful swing seems almost impossible. The best thing to do is to figure that you'll get a fade or slice from such a lie and allow for it in your stance.

Place your feet so that a line drawn across your toes points decidedly to th left of your intended line of play. Have your stomach facing the green. Open the clubface in addressing the ball. This will help you to raise the ball.

Swing easy and keep your chin pointed back of the ball until after impact. Follow this routine and your ball will be mighty close to the desired line most of the time.

ELECTRICS PUT OUT OF RUNNING IN SEMI-FINAL

Winners Take Advantage of Disorganized Losers With Smart Goals.

WINNERS MEET PACKERS.

A surprise goal in the early stages of the White Soccer Challenge Cup, last night, by Stan Clark for the Brinton took the fight out of the Canadian General, before a good attendance of spectators. The Carpet Makers won four goals to one, and now meet the Canada Packers in the final. Bert Wade appeared for the winners, at inside right, and his experience was a steadying influence on the younger element, along with stragetic movements when in front of goal. George Blowers, was best back, on the field, while Robb, C.G.E. and Jones, respective centrehalves, were brilliant throughout. Stan Clark scored the four goals and now leads the goal scorer's column.

Overshadow C.G.E.

The spin of the coin fell against the Electric boys and they were put on the defensive through the effective combination of the Carpet forwards that worked right in upon the over-worked full backs. Robb broke up a dangerous attack to send his front rank into the Brinton area where Quinn missed the upright. Mid-field tactics held away for a while, until a surprise goal by Stan Clark from an over-head drive that completely baffled the custodian, who was unable to see the ball in flight through the sun, until it dropped in below the cross-bar. After five minutes play, in which the C.G.E. endeavoured to get the equaliser, the half backs failed to check the offensive tactics of Tarkington and Wade on the left, the latter coaching the younger boy to perfection. A timely pass out by the outside left to Wade resulted in the inside left making a splendid opening to S. Clark, in between the full back, as he ran in to connect with a lightning drive.

On Brinton receiving a spot kick, Stan Clark rattled a hot drive into the far corner where Bolton saved but not enough to prevent a counter being registered. Time after time, the C.G.E. halves would travel along with their attack into the opposition goal but failed completely in front of goal, against a positive defense put up by Westwood and Adkinson. From a long shot by Menzies on the extreme right, Bolton pulled down his shot but let the ball roll out to the Brinton center man who touched it into the net. Brinton Athletic 4, Canadian General 0.

Keen Tactics Prevail

On resuming, a re-arranged team of the C.G.E. didn't realise its objective. Murduff and Darling being the most prominent through their close - passing combination that proved uncomfortable for the full backs. The inside man lifting the sphere over to Quinn who shot it over the bar. At the other end, Adams at outside right, made things interesting with his deadly centres across into goal. Bolton fisting his efforts out of danger. Then Keith would send stinging low grounders across the front of goal. Blowers being the stumbling block to their objective. Dilatory play resulted thereafter, with the half back divisions nullifying any progress by the front ranks. On a break away by Darling along the wing, he slipped the ball back to Padgett who lifted the ball into goal where Lovett picked the inside of the upright. A little later Burgess dribbled his way through the full backs but witnessed his effort slip past the outside post. He followed this performance up with clever manouvering but the full backs were tackling keenly. For the remainder of the period, the C.G.E. were more dangerous and more effective in midfield but terrible in front of goal whenever it came to scoring goals. Brinton Athletic 4, Canadian General 1.

Soccer Notes

Deloro will not have a soccer team this season. Many of their players are now playing in other parts of the province. Business is not so bright as usual, thereby resulting in the executive not having men to constitute a team. Jack Hart, senior, was in the city yesterday and handed over the White Challenge trophy to the local soccer executive.

A special practice game is scheduled for the Canadian General players on Thursday evening on King Edward Park All players are requested to make an appearance so as to practice shooting and ball control.

There is no game scheduled for Saturday, owing to the Scots match in Toronto. Many of the fans are attending.

SPORTS
Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two DAY BY DAY
(By C. J. P.)

The pro grapplers came to town last night with a rousing show in the Armouries. Something like 800 fans encircled the ring and gave the tonsils the best workout they've had since our junior Petes lost out in the O.H.A. semi-finals. Three lively bouts were run off, the first a no-decision non-fall affair, the second seeing Parnall beat Petroff, and the final going to the Masked Marvel over Bull Findlay. There was a ready made hero and villain in each bout and everything ran along smoothly. The Rangers put on a good card and the fans seemed satisfied. We think they'd go for about one pro rasslin' show a month here.

* * * * * *

Johnny Gyroffy rated a win in the prelim setto over Jack Marvin. "Nebraska", as the folks called him, was strong and dirty but didn't seem to know much about grappling holds and Gyroffy had him beaten seven ways for Sunday on technique. He was popular too. The big westerner either had a skin thinner than you usually associate with matmen or else he was a good showman—anyway he fought as much with the crowd (who loved it) as he did with his ring opponent. He was good in his line but we still lean toward Alex Kasaboski, the best goat-getter of crowds we've seen here.

* * * * * *

The semi-final was between Don Petroff and Walter Parnall. And we find out just before they start that Parnall is a former local lad, who worked at the C.G.E. A number of folks greeted him before he went on. Case of local boy making good and returning in triumph. But it was not all duck soup and this Petroff chappie had him wishing at times he was a long way from his former home town. Parnall proved rough and alienated the affection of some of the fans but that's nothing in a rassler's young life. He wore Petroff down to a mere half ton or so and then pancaked him into the resin for a fall. Both men were surprisingly fast for their bulk.

* * * * * *

Our old pal—minus his hooded manager—the Masked Marvel went on in the main event and took one Bull Findlay of Detroit over the jumps to gain two out of three falls. We had the impression that the guy with the sock over his mug could knock the bull out of Findlay any day in the week, though the latter was powerful enough. Too experienced for him, that's where the Marvel had the edge. They had the fans roaring most of the way—with some dude earnestly entreating the Marvel to "play cricket with him"—and that second fall was a wow, not to mention a whiz. The final fall was too fast, most folks just settling down for it, and also the wrong gee won. But it was a pretty fair card all through.

Up at Central last eve, Lillico Motors snapped their losing streak off by copping an 11-6 verdict over Omemee in men's softball. Quite a crowd on hand and it was a nifty struggle. Freddy Elliott and Tommy Parsons were the flingers and hurled about evenly all through, hits, strikes and walks being about split. And the fielding was about the same. How come the score then? Well, Herb Payne's crew came through with some timely bingling to have an edge and they shone defensively in some tight spots—a double-play one time doing 'em the world of good and affecting the O's like paris green does potato bugs. It's certainly Omemee's turn now to start winning. No game tonight but Hood and Cummings meet Fashion-Crafts here Thursday eve.

The gal softballers dished up a piping hot tussle over at the Bowl last glooming with Keene nudging out an 8-5 verdict over C.G.E. The latter team played improved ball and had good twirling from Helen Newson but the Keenesters were nearly invincible behind ace flinging by Marilyn McCarthy. This petite pitcher fanned 14 to run her strikeout string to 30 in two games. She's the only hurler her team has but they're not suffering any as long as this young lady continues to chuck 'em in like this. She also clouted a homer for good measure. C.G.E. goes to Keene on Thursday while Bailieboro clashes with Westclox here Friday eve.

The Petes play in Belleville tomorrow night, the game being pushed ahead one day owing to counter attractions there Friday. An exhibition game between Johnson Motors and the N'Yawk Terriers—a colored outfit—is being arranged for Riverside Park Saturday at three bells. Knotty says he'll use three pitchers, Lepper, Scriver and Smoke. "We'll have an Indian and some Negroes this Saturday," he said, "and we had some clowns over there last Saturday." More about it tomorrow.

Tri-County Lacrosse League games tomorrow (Thursday) evening are: Lindsay at Millbrook, Norwood at Port Hope, and Dinty's Inn at Auburn. This latter contest is the first meeting of the season between the two local entries in this loop. They'll play at 6.30 in the Auburn Field and it should be a humdinger. Auburns have started off like a blazing building and knocked over Norwood twice and Lindsay once, mixing good lacrosse with a bruising style of play that has the fans tickled and the other squads worried. This independent circuit is proving popular and is a real boost for lacrosse in the district. With short trips and little expense the clubs are operating on next to nothing and charging a like amount for admission.

"Smut" Veale Named 1935 Hamilton Coach

HAMILTON, June 5 (CP).—Hamilton Tigers, champions of the Interprovincial Football Union, have named Fred "Smut" Veale as coach of the club for 1935.

Following announcement yesterday that Johnny Ferraro, coach and star backfielder of the club last season, was severing his connection with the club, the executive held a lengthy meeting last night and made definite declaration this morning with Veale named as head coach.

The new Bengal mentor started his football career with Kingston Collegiate Institute, going then to Queen's University, where he starred as outside wing for four seasons. Coming to Tigers then, Veale played outside wing with the Interprovincial team for six seasons before retiring from active participation.

St. James' Juveniles Win In Free-For-All

In a wild free-for-all Church League softball game yesterday, St. James Juveniles took a 34-21 decision over All Saints, proving the heavier hitters and better fielders. Frequent changes in the Anglican line-up marked the brawl with a number of pitchers used. Leether, Watson, and Drysdale led the hitters with two homers each in their collection, while A. Lacey and Mills were best for the losers. The teams:

MOTORS TAKE TOUGH BATTLE FROM OMEMEE

Both Teams Show Improved Style as Lillico's Get 11-6 Decision.

STARR AGAIN STARS.

Lillico Motors and Omemee played a snappy game of softball last night at Central with the former coming through with a well-earned 11-6 win. It was a hard fought battle all the way with the boys from Omemee displaying a much better brand of ball than in their previous efforts but despite this went down to defeat at the hands of the scrapping Lillico men, who also showed an improved class of ball.

Elliott, on the monud for the winners, had the visitors eating out of his hand most of the way and although he was hit hard upon occasions bore down when necessary and breezed home to a fine victory. T. Parsons, hurling for the O's also went well with the exception of the enghth stanza when he was touched for six hits and four runs by the hard driving Motor crew to lose himself a game that had been close throughout.

Starr Again Stars.

Starr again was the spark plug of the orange-clad gang, collecting three hits out of four times up and playing well in the field, while the rest of his mates each drove out at least one hit. For the villagers Adam, Pogue, Brooks, and F. Parsons all connected for three blows and although they outhit the winners could not connect when hits counted.

In the field Lillicos completed the only double-play of the game in the first of the sixth and it was a dandy. With a man on first Rehill smacked a line drive over short but Starr went up after it, snagged it with one hand and threw to first to double the man off the bag and spike a promising looking Omemee rally.

The teams:—

CARNERA DEADLY SERIOUS TRAINING FOR JOE LOUIS

Has Heart Set on Regaining "Heavy" Title—Will Meet All-Comers to Reach B aer — Curtains if Negro Wins.

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1935, by Central Press Canadian)

NEW YORK, June 5—Primo Carnera has pitched his training camp at Auburn, New York, and has commenced training for his fight with Joe Louis, the "Dark Dynamiter," at the Yankee Stadium late in June.

The Italian giant is mightly serious about this battle.

A large number of boxing experts have promised that Louis will knock him into the middle of September. Primo realizes that if this happens, his day as a heavyweight contender is done.

And, strangely enough, the huge, simple chap, who found little glory, or money in the heavyweight title during the short time he held it, now wants that title back more than he wants anything else on earth.

He feels that accident robbed him of any chance he might have had of successfully defending his title against Max Baer, the accident of a turned ankle in the first round of their battle a year ago. Some scoffed at Primo's tale of the turned ankle at the time, but the long surgical treatment he underwent after the fight indicates that he must have been injured.

Is Working Hard

He gave a demonstration of great gameness that night, always trying to carry the fight to Baer, and he had obviously convinced himself that he might have won had he been able to move around better. He also thinks he was handicapped by the absence of Bill Duffy from his corner, as well as from his training camp, and no matter what anybody else thinks, old "Satchel Feet" will have to be licked again by Baer before he concedes Max's superiority.

Carnera went to Hot Springs, Ark., some weeks ago and put in some hard licks climbing hills, playing golf, taking the baths, and in general laying a foundation for the stiffer work of a training camp, a system that Jack Dempsey used to follow.

He returned to New York in much better physical condition than he has been in a long time. Carnera is no different from any other fighter in that he dislikes training. But Bill Duffy is with him again, and the fistic fancy concedes that Duffy knows how to get a fighter ready, especially Carnera. He works some sort of spell over the big man.

The boxing experts who have been freely predicting a knockout of Carnera by Louis, may be surprised to learn Duffy's opinion of the matter. He went to Detroit to see Louis fight Natie Brown, and he thinks 'the Dark Dynamiter" is just what the doctor ordered for Primo. He admits that Louis is a great young fighter, that with more experience he may be one of the greatest the game has ever known.

But Duffy thinks the young fellow's style is exactly suited to Carnera. Louis is a short puncher. Duffy does not believe a short puncher can reach the towering Carnera's whiskers. A rook thrower, like Baer, is more dangerous to Primo.

The writer has never seen Louis in action but from what all the veteran boxing men, and boxing writers who have seen him say, the boy must be a phenom.

Nate Lewis, old time manager and promoter, of Chicago, who has seen Louis develop from an amateur, and who was in New York for the Ross-McLarnin fight, said to us:

'I have to laugh when I hear talk about Louis' lack of experience as compared to Carnera. Louis has had perhaps 150 fights, amateur and professional. There isn't a twist or turn of the game he doesn't know right now. He is the greatest natural fighter I've seen in years.

"He has been amazingly well schooled. He never makes a mistake. He can knock a man out with either hand. He is ice cold, shifty, crafty, and deadly. Wait until you see him, that's all.

When a man of Lewis' judgment talks this way, you must listen to him.

Carnera is not a great puncher. He is more of a mauler. But he is tremendously rough, very fast for a big man, and has a good left hand. When he was a mere tyro, he fought George Godfrey, then accounted the best of the Negro heavyweights, and was given George a beating when "the Black Shadow" fouled out.

Since then Carnera has had scores of battles, and for three years has been among the top notch heavyweights of the world. If Joe Louis can beat him, then Joseph must be quite a fighter.

According to Louis Soresi, Carnera's manager, Primo is in a much different mood than when he trained for Baer. The Italian is inclined to be very temperamental, and likes to have things his own way, and his own way is not always the best way for a gladiator.

But, Soresi says that since his defeat by Baer, the giant has been a changed man, thinking only of his future. He is earnest and tractable, and goes through every detail of his training with great sincerity. He wants that heavyweight title again, perhaps realizing its possibilities now that it is gone from him, and he is anxious to fight every man that stands between him and Baer, beginning with Louis.

ST. JAMES' WIN

St. James Juniors hammered out a 28-13 win over Trinity in a Church Softball League game last night, scoring 12 runs in the sixth after Trinity had made it a battle 'till then. Morrow, making his pitching debut, was batted hard this stanza. Todd on the other mound received better support. Gates, Huffman, Wood and Todd led the hitters. The teams:

Trinity: Parker, lf; Gates, c; Kelly, 3b; Morrow, p; Cranfield, 2b; Gadd, cf; Huffman, 1b; Martin, rf.

O With the sudden death of John Penrose, the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club has lost one of its most loyal members and supporters.
O Bowling in a regular schedule game last night against Walter Oke he played the game right up to the finish.
O He was for many years a member of the Curling Club and in both of these (his favorite sports, he played the game as a true sport.
O On or off the green he was always the same; winning or losing it made no difference, he always came up smiling.
O Three years ago he formed the famous Penrose rink composed of his two sons, Rollie and Roy, and his grandson, Jack.
O He was a real sport, a true gentleman and a kind husband and father.
O The sympathy of the entire Bowling Club is extended to the members of the bereaved family.
O Out of respect, and in honor of the late Mr. Penrose, the flag at the Lawn Bowling Club will be at half mast until after the funeral

MARY HUNTER ELIMINATED IN GOLF PLAY

Mrs. Gooderham and Mulqueen Favored to Reach Finals on Friday.

MAJOR UPSETS.

HAMILTON, Ont., June 5 (C.P.).—The rest of Ontario took a crack at Toronto's four challengers for the Ontario women's golf championship in the quarter-finals to-day at Ancaster. Hamilton's defending champion, youthful Mary Hunter, is already out of the way.

The Glendale girl was eliminated in the first round yesterday by Katherine Bishop of Brantford, 3 and 2, leaving Mrs. E. H. Gooderham and Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen, both representing the Toronto Golf and Country Club, favorites to meet in the final on Friday.

Faces Miss Bishop.

To-day Mrs. Gooderham, the qualifying medallist, faced Miss Bishop, while Mrs. Mulqueen hooked up with Mrs. G. Shuttleworth of Glendale, one of Hamilton's remaining hopes in the championship flight. Mrs. Gooderham played impressively yesterday in defeating Katherine Christie of Lambton, 4 and 3, and Mrs. Mulqueen seldom was in danger as she eliminated Mrs. Douglas Weld, a clubmate, 3 and 2.

Other quarter-final matches brought together Caroline Mitchell of Kingston and Mrs. E. W. Whittington of Toronto in one bracket, and Mrs. C. S. Eddis of Toronto Rosedale and Mrs. C. Close of Hamilton in the other.

Major Upsets.

Miss Mitchell scored a major upset in the first round by defeating Isobel Pepall of Lambton, one up, and no less unexpected was the 3 and 2 victory of Mrs. Close over Mrs. J. A. McDougald of Toronto, a former champion.

But Mrs. Whittington had the hardest time of all, winning on the 19th hole from Miss Douglas McIlwraith of Hamilton. Miss McIlwraith went to the 18th tee one up and lost the hole when Mrs. Whittington sank an eight-foot putt for a birdie. The Toronto star captured the match on the first extra hole.

All Saints' Clinch Play-Off Position

All Saints' clinched a Juvenile Church Softball League playoff berth last night by knocking over Trinity, 23 to 7, to keep their winning streak intact. Trinity showed sportsmanship by refusing to default when the other team wasn't at full strength by 6.30 o'clock to start. The losers put up a real battle, but leaving 14 runners stranded. All Saints' had the breaks and better fielding. Hill hit two homers, with Leether, Kennedy and Davern also getting four-baggers. Smith and Smoke went good afield. The teams:

Trinity: Smoke, ss; Deering, 3b, c; Vallery, 1b; Davern, p; Ward, c, 3b; Patterson, 2b; Fowler, cf; McBain, cf; West, lf; Brown, rf.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

By HAROLD FRAZER

CHAPTER 43

The gypsies migrated to Kentucky, keeping abreast of the warming weather days, there to make early camp on the outskirts of Louisville and gathered with other tribes. They settled in the woods away from the town, each tribe in its own particular spot where the grass was considered the greenest or the water the clearest; yet collectively they had a stand on the roadway leading into town where they sold baskets and woven furniture; wood carving and gypsy trinkets; hammered silver and brass. There were several fortune telling booths. Gitza and Reba danced and half a dozen other young girls. Anica and saucy young Merla told fortunes. Some of the men wrestled. Voda and Honey joined other groups, altogether making a tiny circus of five bears, attracting the children from town and extracting their pennies. In fact, it was quite the thing for the town folk to say "Let's go down to the gypsy stand and have our fortunes told—" or "Let's go down and see if they have that tray finished I ordered—" or yet again, "Let me show you the pictures one of the gypsies paints. They're the loveliest things you ever looked at—" So it was easy to see why this was a good spring camp for the gypsies.

The canvases of the Dummy sold readily, for surely when one lets his heart flow through the paints, people will stop and look and look again and buy. His easel stood in the shadow of Girtza's van, on the side of which he had painted the dancing figure of Consuelo. So when his courage lessened or his fingers grew tired he had only to look up at her smiling down at him and, renewed, he could work again.

But as the weeks passed the magic of the picture changed and when he looked up his gaze would linger and he could not get back to work. He seemed to be searching, searching for something that was always just out of his reach. Time and time again he would awaken in the night with the feeling that he had seen a picture he must paint but the actual vision of it eluded him. Then one morning he took down the half finished piece from his easel and put up a clean canvas and began to work. He had found what he sought and his steady fingers began to brush into form this picture that now stood so clearly in his mind.

"That Dummy is the crazy one to always be painting that no-good gypsy slut who ran away," Anica remarked, but the others paid no attention to her. Anica was bitter these days and could not keep her dark eyes off Marcu, though she knew that her love was as hopeless as it is to be young again when one has passed middle age. Ah now, if she was young, Marcu would be falling in love with her, no doubt of that, but what gypsy chav will look with desire upon a woman who is past 40 and who is too fat and not as quick or as graceful as she used to be. Because she realized the futility of her love and because she was not yet ready to admit defeat, she was cross and spiteful and constantly nagging and Girtza would undoubtedly have beaten her if he had not been so contented.

In the busy days of the camp and the stand, Girtza was happy. He kept a watchful eye over his tribe and he was content to see that all went well with them. Together he and Marcu and one of the others, or just he alone, would make long forays into the country to the different breeding stable, trailing with them their own horses to offer for sale or trade. Ah, he loved it, this sight of fine blooded horses and he loved to try to make a trade against odds and would laugh afterwards if he had put something over on a gorgio in a deal. Ah, that was sport. He would return back to camp, proud of his trickery, and plan where the next day he might trade the filly he had gotten the month before and had fatted and made sleek and fine looking. He was glad of the deep grass about the camp, for it quickly put on a good coat where a shaggy one had been and grew fat over lean ribs and promised good points where bad ones were. Ah, now that was the way the gypsies fooled the gorgios—those who could be fooled.

He also had bargained for half a dozen milk cows, their udders fat and heavy. Ah, this was a good winter for his people. There were new tents purchased and wagons repainted. The women sang at their work, plump arms heavy with jewelry and there were new babies coming, the result of languid summer days. Yes, here was happiness and his own heart responded—all except for that secret place which would never be healed when he thought of his daughter, his little one, who had gone away.

He remembered other winters which had not been so good, when there had been neither food nor money. Now take that winter when he was a lad back in the old country near the Danube. The tribe had been snowed in for four long months and all but a few of them had starved and tragedy walked unmasked and they saw her face too often. Ah, it was a bad time and the gypsies thought surely they would never be able to sing again.

But spring had come at last. There was warmth and food and the meeting with another tribe and it was strange how quickly the flesh grew on their bones and they sang and danced and little showed the suffering and grief of that long winter.

Yes, how good it was here in the grassy fields. Money could be made and his greed for horse trading satisfied.

They were camped just beyond the property of a man named Willowby who owned a breeding farm and it was there Girtza had seen a particular little mare he much desired, but so far he had made no progress in trying to make a trade. The man Willowby was willing to sell the mare but his price, to Girtza's figuring was exorbitant and he would not consider any of the gypsy's horses for trade. Now this filly Girtza had been fattening and grooming for a month, perhaps it and that little black mare plus the colt might interest this Willowby. The colt had good points, the filly was more than promising and the mare had won two races—minor ones out of the state but nevertheless she had won, so Girtza set out alone leading the horses.

He found the man at his stables and greeted him.

Willowby glanced at the three horses and smiled.

"Well, gypsy, I see you're back again. Still want Flying Girl?" the name of the little mare.

"My friend," began Girtza, "you will never be able to resist the offer I have to make this time. This filly, little over a year old, but lock, my friend, at her stance. A fine promise, eh, what? And this colt has the legs of a runner and the mare, now this mare has won two races already and both of them she has won—"

"Not the Derby?" laughed Willowby, lighting his pipe and leaning against a tree. "No, thanks, gypsy, I'm not interested. The filly is squat with a wild eye. The colt is a gangling with bare promise of anything other than a stomach for oats and the mare—well, her dam was probably pretty good, but her sire was a work horse—and in those races she ran, were there other runners? No, gypsy, you'll have to have something real to offer before I'll sell or trade with you."

Girtza shrugged his shoulders. He was not offended.

"Ah, my friend, you know horses. Still there is quality in these three—perhaps you have something else besides the Flying Girl, eh, you might want to trade?"

"I've no use for your horses. There are some you might fool with your offer but it happens there are two things I know and I doubt if you could trick me on either—one, horses, the other good paintings. Sounds like boasting, doesn't it, but from the time I was a kid my father, old Colonel Willowby, one of the best racing men in Kentucky in his time, taught me the fine points of horses; the otner, the painting. I suppose I was born with. They're both my loves. Part of the time I live down here and part of the time I spend with my galleries and collections in New York and Detroit." He tapped his pipe against the tree trunk, wondering why he was telling a gypsy this. "By the way," he adde, "a friend of mine was showing me a canvas which he said he bought at the gypsy stand on the highway. The work was unusually good. By any chance do you happen to know anything about the artist?" He refilled his pipe and lighted it.

For Thursday, June 6

A prosperous and progressive day is the augury made from the predominant planetary configurations. A surprising or novel slant may heighten the interest and contribute to the movement of important affairs into channels of profit with the fulfillment of cherished plans. Contact with those in high places is seen increasing the fortunes and enhancing personal prestige. Employment is favored and also deals with combines and secret societies are profitable.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a progressive, profitable and pleasant year with much contributing to personal as well as business gratification and prosperity. Contacts with those in power, expansion of the fortunes and enhanced personal popularity are shown, but in all do not be too lavish in expenditures and sign papers with care.

A child born on this day may have unusual talents. These may launch it in places of conspicuous importance, which it will hold by its popularity and good fellowship.

PUBLIC SCHOOL CADETS GIVEN MERITED PRAISE

Queen Mary Cadets Are Awarded the Denne Trophy by Inspecting Officer.

SNAPPY APPEARANCE

Work Showed Conscientious Pride in Their Cadet Efforts.

"I have been highly pleased by the showing the cadets made during their inspection parades today," Captain C. Foulkes, general staff officer of Military District No. 3, said yesterday afternoon as he concluded his inspection tour of the six public school cadet company's in the city. "Their work showed a conscientious pride in their cadet efforts. I am sure they have gained something from their work which will help make them good citizens."

Declaring they had made the best general showing of the day, taking into account appearance, turnout and other factors, Captain Foulkes announced award of the highly-prized Denne cadet cup to the Queen Mary corps for the coming year. The cup was in possession of King Edward School last year.

Turnouts Good

"On the whole I found the turnouts of cadets good wherever I went," the inspecting officer stated. "The boys looked well with their shoes and buttons polished and their uniforms tidy. If I were to single out any particular feature of their work I should mention the physical training displays. They seemed to have gotten wholeheartedly into the spirit of it. And it was not an easy task choosing between the corps in selecting the best."

Public School Inspector A. Mowat accompanied Captain Foulkes on his tour. The tour commenced at nine o'clock in the morning with inspection of the Central School corps and reviews of the King George and Queen Alexandra units followed during the morning. King Edward, Prince of Wales and Queen Mary schools were visited in the afternoon, the victorious Queen Mary corps being the last on the list.

The proceedure at each inspection followed along conventional lines. On arrival of the inspecting party, the general salute was presented. The lines were then inspected and the cadets proceeded with the march past and return. At each school, the cadets drilled in their company units and, in most cases, the entire corps participated in the demonstration of physical training. The finish and precision the youngsters displayed was product of weekly drilling throughout the fall, winter and spring months.

Corps 50 Strong

The Queen Mary corps was 50 strong. Instructed by Lieut. E. G. Wagar, the corps was under the command of Cadet Capt. Rudell Crary. Cadet lieutenants Jack Merritt and Jack Robson were in charge of the two platoons which comprised the company.

Instructed by Lieut. C. D. Munro, the Central corps was commanded by Cadet Captain Gerald McKinnon. Second in command was Lieut. Bill Hall and Cadet Lieutenants Norman Millen and Edward Copperthwaite were in charge of the platoons. Fifty-five are enrolled in the Central corps.

G. O. Northey's corps at King George School was in charge of Cadet Captain Cecil Ferguson. Lieutenants in charge of the two platoons were Don Perks and George Hawkes while Edward Partington served as the corps sergeant major. The corps was 50 strong.

With 52 boys on parade, the Queen Alexandra corps was commanded by Cadet Captain Alvin King. Second in command was Cadet Lieut. R. Parnall and Cadet Lieutenants Ken Brown and Edward Pinn comanded the platoons. Instructor F. H. Dearborn trained the company.

Largest Corps

The Prince of Wales School had the largest corps with a total enrollment of 83. Due to absences and the fact that some of the smallest boys had been excused from the inspection, the parade turnout was only 67, however. Instructed by Lieut. E. R. Frost, the company was under command of Cadet Captain Steve Csumrik. Platoon commanders were Cadet Lieutenants Christy Mason, Gordon White and Max Williamson and the corps sergeant major was Harvey Cheel.

With 74 boys enrolled, the King Edward corps was the second largest. Captain Don Crawford trained the company. Commander was Cadet Captain Jack Mackness with the platoons in charge of Cadet Lieutenants Ken Moffatt, George Watson and Max Grose. Company sergeant major was Harold Blondin.

FROM A SULKY TO THE PULPIT

Evangelist Tells Y. M. C. A. Audience of His Reformed Life.

HAPPY YET POOR

"From a sulky to the pulpit" is the condensed story of the career of T. J. Ellis, formerly of Chesterville, Ont., who spoke last night before a near capacity audience at the Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Ellis, who was introduced to the audience chose the subject "Two ways of Life; the Good and the Evil" to speak upon making a testimony of his own career and life; he who had once lived in evil ways and who now lived with the richest blessing of one, whose whole being is wrapped up with the Master. By telling of his own life, he produced the remarkable comparison between one who has lived in the deepest depths of sin and yet remained restless and unhappy and one, who came to follow the footsteps of the Saviour and who becomes blessed with happiness and peace of mind.

"I am uneducated and was an infidel but I have God's Holy word as an authority to speak to you tonight," declared the speaker. "I cannot tell you about the terrible state of one who is apart from God, but I thank Him for showing me the light of day, of the Saviour crucified. To-night I just want to lift up that wonderful Saviour before your eyes and tell you of his goodness and mercy.

Happy Yet Poor

"Years ago I was in comfortable circumstances but now I haven't a cent not even furniture for a room but yet I am happy. I was born in Dundas County near Chesterville. For 23 years I lived in Chesterville. At first I conducted a flourishing grocery business. Later I became taken up with race horses and was entirely wrapped up with them. I went all over the country, to Boston, New York, different places on this great continent with a string of the finest race horses. I became a racing promoter, I rented race tracks and put on shows. I gambled to the fullest extent. He went on to describe how he had purchased the race track at Chesterville for $11,000 and had also bought the Brockville and Prescott race tracks and formed a racing circle. In 1922 he brought before the public the greatest aggregation of race horses ever seen before. He became wrapped up by the fascinating lure of racing.

"On Sundays I raced horses," declared the speaker. "On Saturday nights I hired trucks and went around city streets and advertised the racing that was to take place the next day,—Sunday." The speaker then described the inner working of the race tracks and how it was impossible to beat the combination of luck and the dishonesty of many men associated with some race tracks.

"Horse racing is a great gamble. One has to be mixed up in it for years before he can understand the underhand work that goes on. I knew all the modes of the game," said Mr. Ellis. "All this time, when I was working for the devil and in the thickest of gambling, yet I was looked up to by the people of Chesterville and elsewhere. I was on the Board of Education and the town council and had other trustworthy posts placed upon me, but all the time I was fooling them and taking their money. I even came to Belleville and Picton and raced. I was paid $400 to come from Picton to Belleville for one afternoon with my string of horses for an exhibition.

Laid Low With Sickness

"A few years later I was laid low with sickness and for five years I didn't work and was in bed most of the time. All my life savings disappeared, in hospital bills and keeping the family. I had contracted pernicious anaemia, that dreadful incurable disease. Near the end of five years, I was taken to the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal. They said I was incurable, the disease had gone too far. I was left to die. I couldn't live with my blood that thin. Dr. Winowt, the famed doctor of Boston, found liver extract relieved pernicious anaemia. He discovered that the marrow of the bone in the body, that manufactures red blood cells the functioning part dies, when anaemia becomes pernicious. I was in this state. I was brought back home and left to die.

"One day I prayed to God to cure me of this awful disease and friends I am here to-night to tell you, that I got up out of my bed and walked shortly after. I wasn't cured in a day. It took months for me to become strong again, but as soon as I could I went out and preached the gospel and told of my wonderful story and tried to win souls for the Great Physician.

"A few months after I went to the Royal Victoria Hospital, and the Civic Hospital at Ottawa and was examined. No trace of pernicious anaemia was found in my blood. Mr. Ellis proved that he had had the disease by showing a written statement from the Royal Victoria Hospital telling, that he had been a patient there with that dreaded disease pernicious anaemia. He also showed proof that he is now showing no trace of the disease.

"That's what God did for me and I want to bring to you by this transformation His wonderful love and healing power."

NORTH ONTARIO'S GRAND OLD MAN JOHN BIRCH AT 112TH MILESTONE

Veteran of Crimean, Franco-Prussian Wars Still Active —Suffers Only Deafness.

CAME OUT IN 1866.

NORTH BAY, Ont., June 5 (C.P.)—A man who would have been too old for conscription during the American Civil War yesterday celebrated his 112th birthday at Nipissing Junction, near here.

John Birth, born in Sebastapol, Russia, June 4, 1823, is a veteran of the Crimean and Franco-Prussian Wars, and lays claim to the title of the oldest white man in Canada.

The centenarian was active as recently as 1928, when with 106 birthdays behind him, he decided to call it a day and retired to the home of his son Adam. To-day, his only ailment is deafness, caused by influenza in 1922.

His voyage to Canada in 1866 took six weeks by sail. John Birch, then 43 years old, describes himself as "just a kid when I made the trip."

He was accompanied by his wife and eldest daughter, now Mrs. J. Balcolm, Windsor, Ont.

Pembroke, Ont., was the first Canadian home of the Birch family, and it was here the Russian settler took his oath of allegiance to the British flag. In 1890 the family moved north and settled in the Nipissing Junction district.

On the occasion of his 111th birthday, Mr. Birch visited his former home where he was the central figure in a family gathering.

Never Wore Glasses

"The grand old man" as he is known throughout the Nipissing district, astonished the gathering by threading a needle. In all his 112 years he has never worn glasses and fers to them as "nonsense."

Mr. Birch admits he has smoked a pipe since he was nine, with no apparent ill effects. He has never smoked cigarettes or cigars.

The only explanation he can offer for his extraordinary longevity is "I guess they have no room for me in heaven. God will send for me when there is room, and I'll be glad to go."

"I've been long enough in this world," he added.

Mr. Birch has five daughters, Mrs. A. Balcolm, Mrs. Joe Morissey, Nipissing Junction; Mrs. S. Clayton, Sudbury; Mrs. J. Giroux, North Bay; and Mrs. J. Smith, deceased; three sons, Adam and Joseph, Nipissing Junction; and Anthony, address unknown.

He has 28 grandchildren, and one great great grandchild.

Those Senators

WASHINGTON, June 5 (CP). Dr. Donald A. Laird, Colgate University psychologist, suggests some United States Senators have "cerebral anemia" from gorging. Their brains aren't in shape for their work.

To-day Dr. G. W. Calver, attending physician to Congress, replied:

"A Senator's got to be polite," he said. "If he has to take a constituent to lunch, he's got to be a good fellow. He orders a big lunch for his visitor and then has to eat the same to make the guest feel at ease."

A Kabuki troupe, consisting of 50 Japanese members headed by the famous Kabuki actor, Kikugoro, will visit America next spring.

The spring flow of 23 rivers in White Russia is being studied to ascertain the power resources of Soviet Russia.

Runs Away From Fortune Fears K.K.K. Vengeance

OMAHA, Neb.—Daniel Young, 60, itinerant negro preacher, has been running away from a $250,000 oil well fortune since last January but to-day he weakened and allowed George D. Pollock of Dallas, Tex., to act as his attorney. But Young still insists he is not the missing heir, Cabe McElroy, who fled from Texas 40 years ago when he thought he shot a Ku Klux Klan member. He is still positive he will not return to Texas except by proxy, although an Omaha police official promised to act as bodyguard to the southern state and assured him a safe exit. C. L. Lee, Henderson, Tex., negro, and boyhood friend of McElroy, already has identified Young as the missing heir.

FAMOUS LEADER CANADIAN CORPS DIES IN ENGLAND

Hero of Vimy Ridge Well Known in Dominion as Gov.-General 1921-26.

HEART VICTIM AT 72.

Received Honor For Revamping Metropolitan Police—No Heir to Title.

THORPE-LE-SOKEN, Essex, June 6. (C.P. Cable) — Staunch warrior in war and in peace, Field Marshal Julian Medworth Byng, first Viscount Byng of Vimy, first commander of the Canadian Corps in the Great War and later Governor-General of Canada, died at 2 o'clock this morning. He was 72 years old.

Death visited one of the Empire's most dogged and gifted of fighters after a last-chance operation. Byng had been failing in health in recent years. He returned only a few months ago from another cure journey to Canada and California.

He developed acute abdominal symptoms on Tuesday afternoon, said the official bulletin, and these made an immediate operation imperative.

The operation was performed yesterday. "Unhappily, heart failure followed," said the bulletin, and the field marshal died in the early hours of today.

Byng, a soldier all his life until he was summoned first to the Governor-Generalship of Canada and then to reorganize the Metropolitan Police of London had the hearty respect of the Empire's foremost military men, among them that great civilian-soldier the late Sir Arthur Currie who succeeded Byng in command of the Canadian Corps.

FRESH HEARING OF DEWAR CASE GIVEN APPROVAL

Belleville Man Asks $1,000 Damage From Hastings Registrar of Deeds.

OVER CAR ACCIDENT.

TORONTO, June 6 (C.P.) — New trial of an action in which Charles V. Symons, Belleville, Ont., merchant, claimed $1,000 damages from Robert Dewar, also of Belleville, for injuries received in a highway accident, was approved to-day by the Ontario Court of Appeal in a judgment delivered at Osgoode Hall.

Symons was a passenger Feb. 26, 1933, in an automobile owned and driven by Dewar, Registrar of Deeds for Hastings County, near Fraserville, a rear tire of the car blew out and the car turned over three times and landed in a ditch.

Action Dismissed Once

Mr. Justice McFarland who tried the case, found the automobile was in fair condition and was not driven negligently, and dismissed Symon's action.

The Court of Appeal held the real issue was whether or not Dewar, on being warned of a defect in the tire, was negligent in not bringing the car to a stop and investigating to ascertain the cause of the bumping of which there had been complaint.

VOLVEY MURDER HEARING OPENS AT CORNWALL

Farmer Tells of Accused, His Hired Man, Being Absent 5 Nights.

VICTIM ILL IN HOSPITAL.

Found Farm Hand Once at Volvey Home in Kitchen—Widow Involved.

CORNWALL, Ont., June 6 (CP). — A joint charge of murdering Louis Volvey, 55-year-old farmer of Benville, 17 miles north of Cornwall, to-day faced his wife, Mrs. Viney Belle Volvey, 28, and Clarence Cameron, 28, a transient. The couple are alleged to have caused the death of the farmer April 22.

In addition to the murder charge, Cameron faces a charge of perjury arising out of evidence he gave at the inquest two weeks ago.

Mrs. Volvey, dressed in sombre black, sat in court with head bowed and eyes closed directly behind the man with whom she is accused of killing her husband. Cameron, neatly dressed, seemed quite at ease in the court room, although he shifted uneasily from time to time.

Magistrate D. G. McDonell presided, Crown Attorney J. G. Harkness, K.C., prosecutor, and G. I. Gogo, K.C., appeared for the accused.

Defense Protests.

AUTO SMASH-UP CLAIMS 3 LIVES

Two Girls Die Instantly, Man Succumbs Later, Another Seriously Hurt.

NEAR KINGSTON.

KINGSTON, Ont., June 6.—(CP). —W. Ray Baker, one of the occupants of the car in which two young women, Ada Florence Webber 23, and Sadie Quick, 26, were instantly killed last night, died this afternoon in the Kingston General Hospital.

The fourth occupant of the car, A. Robinson of Ottawa, was in a serious condition in the hospital, but hopes were entertained to-day for his recovery. Baker had been almost completely scalped and suffering internal injuries.

The four people were in a car going west on the provincial highway west of Westbrook, about 10 miles from Kingston. As they turned to pass a transport and trailer another transport sandwiched the car between the two trucks.

The car was crushed and the two young women were believed to have been instantly killed. Dr. Munro of Odessa and Dr. Lindsay of Kingston were summoned and the injured men removed to hospital.

From the condition of the car it seemed almost miraculous the two men were not instantly killed.

ALL THREE COMMANDERS OF CANADIAN CORPS DEAD

OTTAWA, June 6. —(CP)— The death of Viscount Byng of Vimy removes the last of the commanders of the Canadian Corps. Of these, two were regular soldiers, one—the late Sir Arthur Currie—a citizen-soldier.

The Canadian Corps was formed in September, 1915. Major General E. A. H. Alderson was promoted to command.

In May, 1916, command of the Corps passed to General Sir Julian Byng. Under him the Canadian Corps was increased to four divisions. He held command for about 14 months when, promoted to the third army, he was succeeded by Sir Arthur Currie.

All three are now dead.

FUTURE LINERS MAY NOT EXCEED PRESENT SPEED

Surpassing of Normandie's Record Unnecessary Rather Than Impossible.

BE FEW 80,000 TONNERS.

Majority Passenger Ships of 30,000 Tons For Comfort Without High Cost.

By Ronald Dixon

(Associated Press Staff Writer).

NEW YORK, June 6 (A.P.).—The men who direct the trans-Atlantic steamship lines predicted to-day future ships may not greatly exceed the mighty Normandie in size or speed. If they do not, the executives agreed, it will be because the increase is unnecessary rather than impossible.

Two Outstanding Types.

Blended together, their views show the passengers of the future crossing the North Atlantic on one of two types of craft already well defined.

For the man who desires the best or must make haste, they predict 80,000-ton express liners like the record-breaking Normandie will span the sea in approximately four days. Two ships will suffice to handle one line's luxury traffic, for they will have the size and speed to maintain weekly sailings, regardless of weather.

For the man who wants solid comfort without high cost, willing or even eager to spend a couple of days longer on the ocean, fleet of cabin ships will be shuttling steadily between New York and European ports. The composite picture shows them to be mostly 30,000-tonners.

Planes To Boost Travel.

Heiri Morin de Linclays, general manager of the French Line in Canada and the United States, said air travel was "inevitable," but instead of becoming a serious competitor, "will doubtless serve greatly to stimulate all desire to travel; it will increase travel."

Cunard White Star, which is building the Queen Mary, definitely planned the ship to carry one-half of the line's express passenger business.

"Economy is the prime consideration" explained H. P. Borer, the company's general passenger manager in this country.

CHURCH'S BILL UNDER BARRAGE BY OPPONENTS

Measure to Force Publishing of Newspapers' Shareholders Labelled "Discriminatory"

GRAHAM LEADS ATTACK.

Toronto M.P. Claims Public Entitled to Know Who is Agitating For Rail Merger.

OTTAWA, June 6 (CP)—Opponents of Thomas L. Church's bill to compel newspapers to publish names of their shareholders to-day launched a vigorous attack against the East Toronto Conservative member's measure, claiming it was "discriminatory" and "unjust."

Almost at the outset the measure, before the Senate Banking and Commerce Committee, met with an amendment to kill it moved by Senator C. C. Ballantyne (Cons., Montreal), and Senator A. D. McRae (Cons., Vancouver). The amendment was not voted upon in the brief discussion but stands for decision whenever the bill is taken up again.

Burden of the amendment was the preamble of the bill had not been proven to the satisfaction of the committee, "the committee having arrived at the decision that the passing of this bill would not be in the public interest."

Six Senators Lead Attack

Rt. Hon. George P. Graham (Lib., Brockville), Senator McRae, Senator Ballantyne, Senator Louis Cote (Cons., Ottawa), Senator J. P. B. Casgrain (Lib., Montreal) and Senator Lorne C. Webster (Cons., Montreal), led in the attack.

A telegram was read from The Canadian Daily Newspapers Association protesting against passage of the bill on the grounds that it is discriminatory and unjust and constitutes an interference with the freedom of the press that has never been called for by any responsible body of public opinion."

"This bill wants newspapers treated in an entirely different way than you want other people's property treated," Senator Graham declared. The measure had originated in a desire of one or two people only "to find out something about their neighbors."

Already there were ample provisions to prevent a newspaper from doing anything contrary to the public weal. It was not a crime for a newspaper proprietor to own two newspapers any more than it was for a man to run two or three busi-

The committee, meeting under chairmanship of Senator Charles E. Tanner (Cons., Halifax), decided the measure was not in the public interest.

Ralph Portsmith Cavan Farmer Is Held By Police

Portsmith, Former Resident Of Peterborough, Is Said To Have Discharged Rifle Accidentally When Norman Blair Refused To Leave His Farm.

BLAIR WAS DISCHARGED ON WEDNESDAY RETURNED AND TRIED TO BREAK INTO HOUSE

Bullet Struck Man Between The Eyes, Killing Him Instantly—Constables Carey And Thompson Of Bethany Are Investigating The Shooting.

Norman Blair, 28, stated to be a former resident of this city, was shot and instantly killed today at the farm home of Ralph Portsmith in Cavan Township near Manvers border.

Portsmith who was lately employed at the Quaker Oats plant here called police and said he had accidentally shot Blair after he had attempted to break into the house. He was placed under arrest.

Blair was shot while standing in the woodshed at the Portsmith home, which is located at Lot 1, Concession 12. The bullet struck the hapless man between the eyes and ploughed through his skull causing instant death.

Discharged Wednesday

Police information is that Blair who had been working for Portsmith was discharged Wednesday and taken to Peterborough by Portsmith, but it as said that Blair returned during the night and made repeated attempts to break into the house claiming that Portsmith had some clothes of his.

Today Portsmith, again driving the man out, backed him from the door at the point of a rifle. The gun was discharged by accident, Portsmith claimed.

Constable Walter Thompson of Bethany was notified, and word sent to Cobourg, after which Provincial Constable William Carey of that detachment proceeded to the scene of the fatality to investigate.

Coroner Called.

Dr. Hamilton of Bethany examined the body, and called Coroner Dr. Turner of Millbrook. The latter ordered the remains to Reynold's undertaking parlors at Bethany for a post mortem examination and decided that an inquest would be held.

While inquiries here failed to disclose the dead man's supposed connection in Peterborough, it was learned that Portsmith, with his wife and family, lived at 478 Elm Street until a year ago. Last year

WEIGHTS BILL TO BE SPEEDED

Government Public Works Bill Expected Before Senate To-day.

DISCUSSED ON FLOOR.

OTTAWA, June 6 (C.P.)—The Government Public Works Construction Bill is expected to be discussed to-day in the committee stage on the floor of the Senate. Both political parties have agreed to this procedure rather than send the measure to the over-worked Banking and Commerce Committee.

Efforts were being made by the Banking and Commerce Committee to complete consideration of the Weights and Measures Bill, imposing increased penalties for short weights, in time to report to the House at its afternoon sitting.

The bill was the first piece of business taken up by the committee on reconvening. If the measure achieves the progress anticipated, the committee may turn its attention to one of the other bills on its agenda. One of these is the amendment to the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act enabling expeditious appointment by the Minister of Labor on a board of conciliation in strikes or lockouts on complaints of intimidation or discrimination. The other is the measure of T. L. Church (Con., Toronto East) to compel newspapers to publish the names of their shareholders.

In the Private Bills Committee, the bill respecting the Portage La Prairie Insurance Company, Portage La Prairie, Manitoba, was taken up. Changes in the provisions governing entitlement to vote for directors are sought.

HAVANA, June 6.—Eight "Mango Peddling" kidnappers held Antonio San Miguel, aged Cuban millionaire, and three servants to-day, while a small army of police and soldiers searched for them.

San Miguel, 78-year-old former senator and newspaper publisher, was seized yesterday while being driven to his luxurious country home in the Vibora suburb.

The abductors also carried off his bodyguard, Moedesto Inglesias; his chauffeur, Constantino Prieto, and his valet, Simon Artina.

Two children, a 14-year-old boy and his 11-year-old sister, only witnesses, told authorities the kidnappers used a wagon piled high with mangoes to mask their activities.

A reliable informant said the millionaire received a letter some time ago threatening him with kidnapping unless he paid a sum of money. He was said to have complied with the demand.

ROAD TO LINDSAY NOT SUPPORTED COUNTIES COUN.

Council Does Not Favor Asking Government to Assume More Highways.

LITIGATION COSTS.

Hope For Some Settlement in Bridge Controversy This Week.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, June 6.—A Victoria-Haliburton proposal that the county road through Durham from Newcastle to Lindsay be assumed by the government as a provincial highway, failed to gain the approval of the Roads and Bridges committee of the United Counties yesterday afternoon.

"I don't think we should ask the government to build roads at the present time," Reeve George Annis, Darlington, said: "Some one has to pay for them."

Reeve Norman Green, Cartwright, remarked that Lindsay was concerned only about its own interest.

"They want to draw trade from the south. The only question with us is whether we need a provincial highway south from Lindsay."

The committee declined to support Lindsay's petition.

Cobourg's objection to paying any part of the cost of the 1934 road ditching along provincial highways was laid on the table for further information as to whether the federal government purposed making a special appropriation to relieve municipalities of an expense levied against them without their consent but with a vigorous reaction of opposition and resentment.

TRAVEL CLUB CANDIDATES ARE TRYING TO BETTER POSITIONS

Great Rush is Expected as Closing Hour for Club Approaches.

SUBSCRIBERS CAN HELP

Just one week from this coming Saturday will see the close of the greatest newspaper travel plan ever to be sponsored in this section of Canada. The Travel Club of The Examiner will soon be past history but between now and the closing day the keenest of competition is predicted, not only among the candidates, but by the subscribers who are backing their favorites. Telephone calls come in daily seeking information about the different candidates. The office of the Travel Club was a busy place last Saturday as the many out-of-town supporters called to deposit their free votes in favor of the members of their choice and this Saturday will no doubt see a greater activity because after this week the Club will be in the home stretch and many are casting their votes before the vote schedule takes its final decline.

This week votes much greater than next week and those who are contemplating voting for a club member are well advised to do so this week if possible as the loss of a few votes may just be the means of a candidate losing out on a trip. This is the last week of the Special

MARKET DECISION REACHED BY HASTINGS AREA FARMERS

Decide to Market Hogs, Dressed Weight, Rail Grade, at Hastings Meeting.

LARGE ATTENDANCE

HASTINGS, June 6.—(Examiner Correspondence).—To market hogs dressed weight rail grade was the decision reached by the farmers of Hastings district at a meeting in the town hall on Tuesday night. Walter M. Powlds was chairman and the speakers were Messrs. Gordon Mathews of Peterborough, manager of Canada Packers plant in that place and Mr. Gordon, who is government grader station in Peterborough.

Mr. Mathews, in opening his address, stated it was the sixth of a series of meetings held to educate the farmer on rail grading. Hog grading is not a new thing, it has been in force since 1922, but rail grading is new.

Two years ago every country in the world was shipping bacon to England. In 1932 an agreement was made with England at Ottawa whereby Canada was allotted 50,000 hogs a week, other countries were also allotted a certain quantity. As a result of England controlling the supply and demand prices jumped from 3½c to over 8c in less than six months and has stayed around the latter figure. The Ottawa agreement expires in 1937; after that there is no telling where the surplus will go.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

While potatoes were steady, butter and cheese prices were easier on the Montreal dairy and produce markets yesterday. Eggs were again firm.

At the weekly auction held at the Montreal Board of Trade, 769 boxes of No. 1 Quebec butter sold at 20½ cents per pound, the highest bid. Dealers were quoting current grass makes as high as 21 cents per pound, while other quoted No. 1 as low as 20½ cents. Lots to retail trade were quoted at 22 cents for solids and 23 cents for prints. CHICAGO GRAIN

General belief the United States Government crop report Monday will show larger yields probable than unofficial estimates would indicate tended to ease wheat prices yesterday.

A good deal of notice, too, was taken of trade statements that in addition to prospects the 1936 domestic wheat harvest will be in excess of home needs, it is probable decidedly less wheat will be fed to live stock the coming season, perhaps not more than 50,000,000 bushesl. Last year, approximately 100,000,000 bushels of wheat in the United States went into use as live stock feed.

Wheat closed easy at the same as Tuesday's finish to ⅜c lower, July 83⅝c to 83⅜c, corn unchanged to 1¼c higher, July 80⅝c to 80⅜c, oats—¼c off to ¼c up, and provisions varying from 2c to an equal gain.

UNITED KINGDOM BUTTER-CHEESE

OTTAWA, June 6 (CP)—Butter was steady and cheese quiet on United Kingdom markets this week, according to a cable received to-day by the Department of Agriculture.

Quotations:

Butter.—New Zealand, 82 to 83 shippings per cwt (18.08 to 18.30 cents per lb.); Australian, 79 to 82 shillings per cwt. (17.42 to 18.08 cents per lb).

Cheese.—New Zealand, 43 shillings to 43 shilling 6d. per cwt (9.48 to 9.59 cents per lb). Canadian unchanged, 58 to 62 shillings per cwt. (12.78 to 13.67 cents per lb).

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping poinb—Wheat, 78c to 80c; oats 28c to 31c; barley, 38c to 40c; corn, 54c to 56c; rye, 38c to 40c; malting barley, 62c to 66c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, June 6. — Lacking the stimulus of export demand wheat prices drifted through an aimless trading session on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday. At the close the price of the lone July future moved within a range of half a cent to close with a gain of ⅛c at 83⅝c.

Liverpool again showed strength, but only in distant months. July finished ¼d lower, Buenos Aires was 1c to 1⅛c lower at noon. Chicago was weak also. Cables from Liverpool confirmed a better business in Canadian wheat and improved Continental demand.

Trading in cash wheat was slow, with a slight demand for No. 4 Northern.

Wheat taken in at country points on Tuesday totalled 202,000 bushels, compared with 402,000 bushels on the same day last year.

There was little activity in cash coarse grains. Another advance of five cents in flax featured the coarse grain futures market.

COMPANIES ACT CHANGES COME BEFORE HOUSE

New Stipulations Regarding Prospectuses Made to Protect Investors.

DISCUSS TAX OVERLAPPING

Bill Hinted to Exempt Indemnities to Members From Income Tax.

OTTAWA, June 6 (C.P.)—Amendments to the Dominion Companies Act now before the House of Commons are based on the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Price Spreads and Mass Buying.

They were introduced yesterday by Hon. C. H. Cahan, Secretary of State, and to-day the House proceeds with another phase of the Price Spreads Report, the setting up of a Dominion Trade and Industry Commission. Prime Minister R. B. Bennett will propose a resolution preliminary to the introduction of a bill to constitute the Tariff Board such a commission.

Changes in the Companies Act make new stipulations regarding prospectuses, designed to protect the investor.

The powers of directors are restricted in the matter of setting aside as distributable assets part of the consideration received for the issue of no-par value shares. No par-value shares will still be allowed, however, with these restrictions.

Heavy penalties are imposed upon directors of a company who speculate in the shares and other securities of that company.

Operations Restricted

Another new section provides that the operations of a company are restricted to the objects ond powers expressed in the charter. If any company, in the opinion of the Secretary of State, carried on any business not within the scope of its charter, it may be wound up under the provisions of the Winding Up Act as if it had become insolvent.

The consideration received by the company for any shares issued and allocated must be adequate, the bill provides.

More extensive and definite information in the published balance sheets of the company is provided. The balance sheet must disclose all payments made by the company to its directors, officers, counsel and attorneys.

The section which forbids declaration of dividends when a company is insolvent or which impair the capital of one company has the following added, "In determining the solvency of the company

ROAD TO LINDSAY NOT SUPPORTED

to conider equipping a mall ward in the new House of Refuge where sick inmates could receive nursing attention.

It is understood that Ontario County provides this treatment in their House of Refuge at Whitby by engaging a nurse on their staff. The hospital charge to the United Counties is $1.75 a day for such indigent patients, as compared with about 60 cents as the daily cost of maintaining inmates at the local House of Refuge.

Two of the local institution's wards who have been temporarily transferred to Lakefield have required hospital treatment at the expense of Durham and Northumberland.

A Cost of Litigation

Another expense came home to roost in the red column of the cost of unscrambling the old inter-county bridge assessment, when Reeve C. G. Mercer, chairman of the Finance Committee, read an account from Long and Daly, Toronto lawyers, for $150, their fee for rather inconclusive advice as to whether the special Act of 1905 had been superseded by the Highways Improvement Act.

Legal costs already incurred by F. D. Boggs, Counties solicitor, amount to $100; application to the government must be accompanied by $150, bringing the present prospective total to $700, and that's not all, according to Warden Stinson; who said Tuesday night that, if Durham succeeds in its bridge assessment claim against Northumberland, there would be "nothing left for anyone."

This family disagreement has not been settled yet, but it is expected that something definite will be accomplished this week.

Auditors' Report.

The financial position of the counties on December 31, 1934 was summarized as follows in the auditors' report by Oscar Hudson & Co., Toronto:

Deficit of the counties on December 31, 1933, was $85,128.28.

Counties' income for 1934 was $407,717.68.

Expenditure in 1934 was $393,060.79.

Deficit on December 31, 1934, was $70,471.39.

"The indebtedness to the Bank of Toronto for loans at December 31, 1933, amounted to $115,000 and at the end of the fiscal year 1934 was $109,000. The rate of interest is now five percent. The deficit was reduced during 1934 by approximately $15,000, and the year's operations on the whole have been more satisfactory than the budget forecast. The most serious item of expenditure, where the budget has been exceeded, is in the matter of the administration of justice over which, we presume, your council have little or no control.

The House or Refuge buildings were destroyed by fire and the sum of $34,000 has been received from the insurance company in liquidation of the damages sustained.

The following municipailties omitted to make return to the warden in respect to moneys paid to the counties' treasurer during the preceding year: Alnwick, Cartwright, Hamilton, Hope, South Monaghan, Percy, Campbellford, Hastings, Millbrook, Newcastle."

The auditors noted a reduction in expenditure on high and continuation schools, and again urged close investigation to ascertain why any Northumberland and Durham pupils attend schools outside the counties.

Weddings

COWARD—THOMSON

KEENE, June 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at Knox Presbyterian Manse, Keene, on Saturday afternoon, June 1, when Kathrine Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomson of Otonabee was united in marriage to Mr. Edwin John Coward of Port Hope, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Coward of Otonabee. Ceremony was performed by Rev. A. J. Preston.

The bride was a picture of girlish charm, attired in a gown of pink crepe with large white hat and white accessories.

The bridesmaid, Miss Nellie Thomson, sister of the bride, was gowned in yellow organdy with white accessories.

Mr. George Coward of Otonabee, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

After the ceremony a dainty supper was served at the home of the bride's parents, where immediate friends and relatives of both families were present.

Amid showers of confetti and good wishes the happy couple left for a two weeks' trip through Northern Ontario, the bride travelling in a French blue suit with matching accessories.

HANCOCK—NORTHEY.

LAKEFIELD, June 6 (Examiner Correspondence). — Wesley United Church, North Smith, was in gala attire on Saturday afternoon, with apple and cherry blossoms combined with tulips, in a symphony of pink and white. The occasion was the marriage of Margaret Ethel Northey, only daughter of Mrs. Albert Northey and the late Albert Northey, was united in marriage to Arthur Thomas Hancock, second son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J .Hancock, Concession 2, Smith. Miss Mary Nicholls played the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Allan Northey, wore her mother's wedding gown and veil. The gown was of French silk crepe in ivory tone trimmed with satin and lace and seed pearls. Her silk tulle veil was combined with beautiful lace worn in Juliet cap style and extending over the train of the dress. She carried a sheaf bouquet of Briarcliffe roses and lily of the valley and gypsophila. She was attended by her cousin, Olive Northey, who wore a becoming frock of baby pink crepe with a Princess Marina white cap and a shoulder veil and carried a sheaf bouquet of Lassie carnations. The groom was attended by Cecil Hancock. Rev. T. M. Wesley of Camborne, a former pastor of Wesley Church, performed the ceremony under a floral arch of pink and white cherry blossoms with a bridal bell. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's brother, Northolme Lodge. Mrs. Albert Northey, the bride's mother, wore a mauve voile frock with white hat and wore a corsage bouquet of lily of the valley. Mrs. Hancock, the mother of the bridegroom, wore black crepe with lace trimming and also wore a corsage bouquet of lily of the valley.

The groom's gift to the bride was a mirapak travelling bag, to the bridesmaid a silver bracelet, to the organist a brilliant dress clip, and to Messrs. Cecil Northey and Roy Hancock, who acted as ushers, leather bill folds. The gift to the best man was also a leather bill fold. The reception was held on the lawn of the beautiful home, and the perfect weather and delightful surroundings made it a picturesque social event. The house decorations carried out the pink and white color scheme used so effectively in the church. The bride's table was centered with the decorated wedding cake and the second table with a silver basket filled with late spring blooms.

The guests numbered almost sixty persons, and when the bride and groom drove off in a shower of confetti, they were given a royal send-off. The bride travelled in a navy tree bark crepe with swagger coat, taffeta-trimmed matching hat, and navy accessories. After a short trip to Western points, Mr. and Mrs. Hancock will reside on Concession 2 of Smith.

The wedding gifts, which were very numerous and beautiful, were evidence of the popularity of the young couple amid a very wide circle of friends. Several handsome cheques were among the gifts.

Cavan

On Tuesday afternoon, Cavan Women's Institute entertained at afternoon tea, from three to six, at Mrs. Lloyd Sutton's home. Tea was served from small tables arranged with vases of tulips and lilies of the valley on pretty cloths. Tea was poured in the living-room by Mrs. R. S. Staples and Mrs. M. Sutton and in the dining-room by Mrs. W. Nill. Upwards of one hundred ladies were served. The social gathering added slightly more than twenty-five dollars to the institute treasury.

THE MARKETING ACT.

Attacks upon the National Products Marketing Act are easily understood, inasmuch as it is impossible to expect unanimity among the producers in any particular field, and the minority is certain to resent the compulsory enforcement of the regulations.

At the same time, however, it must be remembered that the act does not come into effect in the case of any product until the majority of the producers affected desire a board established, and that unless such boards have power to compel a complete compliance with the regulations the whole scheme cannot hope to succeed.

Where such marketing plans have been launched on a non-compulsory basis it has been the experience in practically every case that the farmers who refused to participate in the scheme have profited at the expense of those who did, and that this condition ultimately killed the whole thing.

It is significant that Hon. W. R. Motherwell, former Minister of Agriculture in Mr. King's Cabinet, and presumably more in touch with farming and marketing problems than most men in Parliament today, disagrees with his colleagues, who have been assailing the compulsory features of the marketing legislation.

It was nonsense, he told the House the other day, to claim that a minority of ten should dictate to a majority of ninety; in other words, that if the bulk of the producers desired to take advantage of the Marketing Act it was up to the others in the same field to fall in line.

Certainly if they do not the scheme cannot be effective in assuring orderly marketing and better prices.

RURAL MAIL CARRIERS.

The Federal Government has got around to the point of promising, in the case of rural mail carriers, that they shall be placed on a mileage pay basis "as soon as the finances of the country will permit."

This is an old crusade with The Examiner, this question of fairer treatment for the men who carry our rural mail, and there is some satisfaction therefore in the announcement that their claim for consideration has finally been admitted, even if action to change the system is a matter for the future.

The contract system, we have maintained, during the regime of two or three different federal administrations; has never been satisfactory to the rural mail carriers, even if it has been more economical than any other method.

There has been no assurance of continuity of employment because at the end of each contract period there has been keen competition, resulting in the price paid for the service being slashed beyond all reason, and in men who had done their work most thoroughly finding themselves shut out by others who fondly imagined that they could do the job for less money.

The Examiner has always argued that these rural carriers should be paid a reasonable wage, and that they should be given the assurance that so long as their work was efficiently done they could count upon being retained in the postal service.

We are glad therefore to know that the reasonableness of that contention has at last been acknowledged, and that at some time or other the mileage pay basis is to be established.

In the meantime, as the Globe points out, there will be "no immediate relief for their purses punched in the annual battle to decide who can eat the least food, wear the oldest clothing, drive the cheapest car —and win the contract."

ABOLISHING THE LEGISLATURE.

Doubtless tired of the suggestions that have more than once been voiced recently that the abolition of county councils would be a useful step toward economy in public affairs, the members of the County Council of Huron, meeting at Goderich, have decided that the best defence is a good offensive.

They have, in short, resolved to carry the war into Africa.

Thus we find the county legislators unanimously passing the following resolution:

"That this County Council, with other similar elective bodies in Ontario, unite in requesting the Imperial Parliament of Great Britain to amend the British North America Act so as to provide for the abolition of provincial legislatures in the Dominion of Canada, on the ground of economy, so as to bring relief to the taxpayers and have our public business conducted as in the Old Land, and that this resolution be sent to all county councils in Ontario."

This resolution, while it is not likely to get anywhere, will at least cause some interesting discussion as it goes the rounds of county councils in the province.

After all, it only puts into words what doubtless a good many people have been thinking, namely, that we might be better off in Canada if the continual constitutional clashes between provincial and federal administrations could be avoided, and if at the same time the expense of nine provincial governments, duplicating federal services in many cases, could be saved.

However, we are yet a long way from achieving such a reform, and even the Huron County Council is not likely to get us very far on the way to the goal.

THE WORLD WHEAT SITUATION.

Some interesting information on the world wheat situation comes to hand in the monthly statement of the Royal Bank of Canada, which shows that world shipment of wheat from August 1, 1934 to May 13 of this year amounted to 413 million bushels slightly less than the total of 414 million bushels for the same period of the previous crop year.

In the current total shipments from North America (largely Canadian) have fallen off to 127 million bushels as compared with 178 millions in 1933-34.

Shipments from Russia were 24 millions smaller, and Russia has been but a negligible factor in the wheat export situation this year.

These reductions were offset, however, by increased shipments from the southern hemisphere, for since the beginning of the season the Argentine has shipped 149 million bushels as compared with 101 millions last year, and Australian exports have mounted to 91 million bushels against 70 millions in 1933-34.

The total world requirements for the crop year were placed at 544 million bushels, so that with shipments to date amounting to 413 million bushels, a balance of 131 millions remains.

The world demand for wheat has continued relatively small, and with continued pressure of southern supplies of cheaper grains, the spring expansion of Canadian shipments that usually follows upon the opening of navigation on the St. Lawrence River has not materialized.

Broomhall has now reduced his estimate of the total probable shipments from Canada to 200 million bushels, which compares with actual shipments of 195 million bushels in 1933-34.

However, to reach this total shipments during the remainder of the season must be considerably accelerated, and must average about 5½ million bushels each week.

On this basis the carry-over on July 31 will amount to nearly 170 million bushels, which, while substantially less than the 203 million bushels on hand at the beginning of the year, would represent a reduction much less than that achieved either in the Argentine or in Australia.

SELF-SUFFICIENCY SUICIDE.

In connection with the proposal of the Washington administration to summon another international economic conference with the object of reducing customs tariffs and bringing about currency stabilization, it is interesting to have the opinion of the British National Liberal Federation on these and other questions which, remaining unsettled, must continue to paralyze world trade and prolong the period of business depression.

The federation recently issued the following statement on this subject:

"This council reaffirms its conviction that the only way in which the peoples of the world can enjoy the plenty and prosperity that are within their reach is by the unfettered interchange of goods and services. The experience of the last few years has demonstrated the failure of the methods of protection and national self-sufficiency, both in this country and throughout the world. It is now clear that the breakdown of international trade and of the world's monetary system is largely due (a) to the refusal of the creditor nations to accept payment in goods and services from their debtors; and (b) to the action of nearly all nations in pursuing an unattainable self-sufficiency by the ruinous methods of quotas and exchange restrictions.

"The increasing gravity of the economic and financial situation which has thus been brought about is creating a condition of danger both national and international. The situation visualised by the great experts of all nations who drafted the agenda of the World Economic Conference is in process of realization. They predicted that the consequence of the efforts of the nations, including our own, to become increasingly self-contained would be that the international financial system would be shaken to its foundations, and the standard of life so greatly reduced that social order could not be maintained. There has been a noticeable deterioration of the standard of life in all countries during the last few years.

"In these circumstances, it is the duty of the Great Powers, and particularly of the great creditor nations—England, America and France—to consult together in order to apply whatever remedies are within their power: (1) to remove the barriers which are causing the breakdown of trade; (2) to stabilize their currencies, and (3) to assist in creating that atmosphere of international friendship without which the threatened world breakdown must be inevitable."

The United States is said to be moving in the direction of endeavoring to bring about international agreement on tariffs and currency because of the belief that another economic crisis affecting most of the nations looms in the offing. It is held by some observers that the process of recovery which has been carried forward at a moderate rate is due to slow up at a comparatively early date, and Washington, it is believed, hopes to forestall such a development by cutting down present barriers to international trade and business and thus permitting a resumption of some of the exchange which formerly took place.

One thing is certain: there can be little hope or expectation of any general recovery until joint action is taken to rid trade of at least some of the restrictions which have been imposed by most of the world's countries in the thoroughly fallacious belief that the way to recovery lies in self-sufficiency. The world at large must get away from the notion that through each country living to itself as much as possible prosperity will be regained. Continued failure to realize this simple truth can only have the effect of prolonging present difficulties and possibly aggravating them to a greater extent, with resultant loss all round and a further decline in the standards of living. —Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

An organized drive against the new amusement tax is under way, but there are no present indications that the campaign is likely to succeed.

Mr. Hepburn is looking for some cheap money, and in that respect the Government is very much like the rest of us.

Judging from reports from Ottawa, no one could truthfully say that this is not a fighting Government, at all events.

Perhaps one explanation of the trouble may be that apparently Inspector Dawson does not know much more about prison administration than does Miss MacPhail.

The city of Ottawa has already served notice that it does not propose to feed the hunger marchers when they arrive at the capital. The "Welcome to Our City" sign is evidently to be removed for the present.

ALTRUISM

To Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir.—Some think they cannot be altruistic on account of environment, in connection with other hindrances. This thought is not correct, for all can, to a certain extent, be an instrument bringing help and blessing to others, notwithstanding the various hindrances of different kinds. The ways and means of being helpful to our fellow man are many. None need to be discouraged on those lines. It is ours to find out the way of being helpful apart from handicapped conditions, and not dwell much on what we think the other can do. Let us spurn egoism and freely and heartily do our part in helping and blessing mankind. The following poetical lines are suggestive:

A traveller, through a dusty road,
strewed acorns on the lea,
And one took root and sprouted up,
and grew into a tree.
Love sought its shade, at evening time, to breathe its early vows,
And age was pleased, in heat of noon, to bask beneath its boughs,
The dormouse loved its dangling twigs; the birds sweet music bore,
It stood a glory in its place, a blessing evermore.

A little spring lost its way amid the grass and fern;
A passing stranger scooped a well,
where weary man might turn;
He walled it up, and hung with care a ladle at the brink;
He thought not of the deed he did,
but judged that toil might drink:
He passed again, and lo! the well
by summer never dried,
Had cooled ten thousand parching tongues and saved a life beside.

A dreamer dropped a random thought—'twas old and yet 'twas new—
A simple fancy of the brain, but strong in being true.
It shone upon a genial mind and lo! its light became A lamp of life, a beacon ray, a monitory flame;
The thought was small, its issue
great: a watchfire on the hill,
It shed its radiance far adown, and cheers the valley still.

A SONG OUT OF DRUDGERY

Lying awake in the heart of the night, I hear a clock ticking in the room....Tick, tick, tick, tick—once a second, sixty times a minute—tick, tick, tick, tick—sixty times sixty times an hour....Regularly, at precise intervals of time, the clock ticks....An endless, dull and unpoetic routine of sound. Just that. Nothing more.

But as I lie awake in the night, listening to the tick of the clock, I notice something. I hear a rhythm in the sound....It is no monotonous tick-tick-tick-tick-tick-tick-tick. Instead it has a rise and a fall in it. It goes tick-tick-TICK....tick-tick-TICK....tick-tick-TICK. It skips, it breaks, it changes....In its small way that clock makes music. As does the drip of the rain from the roof. As does the roar of the wind in the storm. And the click of the train wheels on the track. And the crickets in the garden of a summer night. Or the creak-croak-croaking of the frogs in the nearby pond.... All these make a rhyth out of what might be boresome sound.

But do they?....The rhythm is not in the tick of the clock, the drip of the rain, the click of the wheels. It is in my own ear. Despite myself, not intending, I do it. I break up these sounds and put them together differently. My ear takes dull routine and makes a little song of it.

And why should not I or any other man—or any woman—be as wise as that? Why not, indeed?... I have seen smiles on the faces of humble women burdened with drudgery. I have seen old men, and poor, with a glow of happiness about them. I have seen them living gladly, beautifully, gently independent and scorning any man's pity... Making out of the dull routine of THEIR lives a quiet little song. There is no melody in the sluggish repetition of their days, but there is music in their own hearts and they live it wisely, strongly, inspiringly....Out of a heap of refuse, a small flower blooming. Out of drudgery a triumphant spirit. Or, strange, unconquerable man!

A Thought

When you can feel God bless you,
From your very heart of heart,
Toward friend and foe and stranger,
No matter what the smart,

When you can serve and love them,
No matter what their guile,
You'll find, I'm sure, that many
Will be glad that you're worthwhile.

One Minute Pulpit

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

There is a vast deal of nonsense talked about a great many things connected with the life of men today. We hear on all sides laments about the horrors of modern life, of the terrific stress we are under, of how the strain of the life of this age is breaking us down. The great question of how to live the life of modern times is discussed—and discussed too much.

In the first place, which life of modern times? Because there are a great many of them. There are those who lead hectic existences, yes—there always were—Napoleon, and Mary Queen of Scots, had pretty jumpy existences, and in the nice quiet era of our national life T. P. Barnum was not exactly noted for repose—and there are also many who lead as cloistered lives as medieval hermits.

I know one American business man—a successful one, too, and they are the ones who are always supposed to be ruining their health in the strain of modern life—who spends most of his days placidly taking and developing motion pictures for his own private pleasure. And plenty of people whose whole life is centered around the quiet business of collecting stamps.

Idle Must Be Cared For

When Huey and Father Coughlin establish that fair land of promise, they are going to have to remember the great army of people who don't give a darn about politics, who know nothing about doing anything useful, but whose only interests are in collecting first editions, or playing chess, or improvising on the piano. Those people are independent financially now, but when you divide up all the money you are going to have to find a place for coin-collectors and checker-players in the Socialist state.

Another thing we hear a great deal about is the poor people who are sick because of their unconscious minds. They can't control their unconscious minds so they have to keep on being sick. So the argument goes.

I wonder. Maybe we could do a good deal with our conscious minds, which we can control, if we tried. I ran across some advice Dr. Johnson gave Boswell in this connection, which strikes me as pertinent:

"You are always complaining of melancholy, and I conclude from those complaints that you are fond of it. No man talks of that which he is desirous to conceal, and every man desires to conceal that of which he is ashamed. Do not pretend to deny it: Manifestum habemus furem; make it an invariable and obligatory law to yourself, never to mention your own mental diseases; if you are never to speak of them you will think on them but little, and if you think little of them, they will molest you rarely. When you talk of them, it is plain that you want either praise or pity; for praise there is no room, and pity will do you no good; therefore, from this hour speak no more, think no more, about them."

What's in the Name of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

COBOURG, ONTARIO

The beautifully located town on Lake Ontario first was named Amherst, in honor of Gen. Jeffrey Amherst, commander-in-chief of the British forces at the capture of Louisburg in 1758

The town's name, however, was changed to Cobourg when announcement was made that Queen Victoria was to wed the Prince of Coburg-Gotha. For many years it was known as a university town, for Upper Canada Academy, founded in 1832, had acquired a desirable reputation as a seat of learning. In 1841 it became known as Victoria College, but surrendered its name when it was amalgamated with the University of Toronto and moved to

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

TWO CANADIAN IMPERIALISTS

On this date (June 6) many years apart two great Canadians passed from the human scene—Sir John A. Macdonald in 1891 and Colonel George Taylor Denison in 1926. Sir John was not a native Canadian—he was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1815 but he became the father of the Canada of today. Denison was born at Toronto, of Loyalist stock, on his maternal side, and he was more an Imperialist than a Canadian. John A's dream was the creation of a Canada which would be a nation within the Empire; indeed, at the time when the terms of confederation were being finally drafted, he urged that the new country should be called the Kingdom of Canada, only to be convinced against his will by a colonial secretary, that the word "kingdom" might offend the temperament of the United States. Colonel Denison, though a native Canadian, was one of the foremost advocates of imperial federation. He would have been content with representation of Canada at Westminster and the continuance of Canada in a subordinate position, for there could not be two mistresses in the one house. Under his scheme of federation Canada must have always been the junior partner.

The difference between the two men was clearly marked in a letter written by Sir John thirteen months before his death: "I am very desirous that the connection between the mother country and the colonies shall be drawn closer and that the large groups of colonies should assume by degrees a position less of dependence and more of alliance. I am total disbeliever in the practicability of colonial representation in the imperial parliament. There is no necessity for such a representation. The great objects of common defence and preferential trade can be arrived at by treaty arrangement." So that Macdonald was somewhat of a prophet, but whether he would have approved of the practical independence given by the Statute of Westminster is to be doubted. The doughty colonel would undoubtedly have held up his hands in horror at the constitutional changes which have come in recent years, but which have in no sense weakened the loyalty of Canadians to King and Flag.

Popular Astronomy

BY ANDREW JACK.

THE NEAR PLANETS

During the past month of fine clear nights, the brilliant planet Venus, over the western horizon 9 to 10 p.m., has passed from right to left through the constellation Gemini, the Twins. By the end of June, Venus will be near Regulus, the brighest star of Leo.

The largest planet, Jupiter, is now south at dusk. It was exactly on the opposite side of the Earth from the Sun on the tenth of May. Thus it is in the sky all night because it is "in opposition." We can never get a face view like this all night of Venus or Mercury because they revolve in orbits nearer the sun than ours, and can be seen only evenings or mornings, over the Earth's shoulders.

Those who have glasses should try to see some of Jupiter's four most visible moons. These tiny points of light are always in one plane, and their rapid shifts from side to side even during a few nights is interesting to watch. Try also the star next to the right of Jupiter (Alpha Librae) which has a small companion. Jupiter has apparently been backing west towards A. Librae.

Arcturus is up halfway from Jupiter to the big Dipper overhead. The distinct constellation Scorpio is at the lower left of Jupiter now. Away over East the brightest star is Vega in Lyra.

The red planet Mars is west of and higher than Jupiter and now shows a shift south east from level on the right of star Gamma Virginis where it has been "stationary in opposition" for two months.

G. Virginis is to us just one ordinary star, but it is a celebrated binary to astronomers. The eccentric orbit of the companion has been plotted and it is completed in 185 years.

From now on observe Mars' true progress down and east towards Spica. Mars' apparent reverse motion in that region was mentioned on the 26th April in these monthly notes.

It was Johann Kepler (1571-1630), a genius who solved this problem, working upon the records of exact observations left by the Dane, Tycho Brake (1546-1601). He dispelled the idea of the Middle Ages, a universe with the Earth for centre and with planets performing loops to conform with that conception. He established on a firm foundation the theory of the Sun as the centre of our solar system, advanced by Copernicus and Galileo.

Mars completes its orbit next outside of ours in 687 days and as ours takes 365 days, we traverse more angle in any given time. Thus at opposition Mars seems to stand still and even to go backward as viewed by us against the very remote background of the stars from our position on the inner circuit, although in reality, as from the Sun we are both going in the same direction eastward. The Earth gets ahead of Mars and then chases it till the next opposition, a "synodic period" of 780 days. Mars' orbit being eccentric we happen to be nearer now than in ten years past and at the next two oppositions we will be closer still.

The Lowell observatory at Flagstaff, Arizona, specially equipped for planetary observation, recently reported some cloudy weather on Mars. But it is because there is so little atmosphere or water vapour there to hinder watching the surface markings, that the length of the day of Mars is known with exceptional exactitude, 24 hours 37.4 minutes.

By contrast the day of Venus is not agreed upon because it is wrapped in so much cloudy atmosphere. Its year is 224.7 days and it is nearer the size of the Earth than any other planet.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, June 6 (AP)—The metals and scattered specialties made the best showing in to-day's quiet stock market.

Some of the oils, steels and utilities were inclined to hang back under profit-taking, but the list on the whole gave a fairly good account of itself.

Coca-Cola and Owens-Illinois Glass got up around 4 points each, U.S. Smelting gained 2 and advances of fractions to a point or so were registered by American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, Union Pacific, American Locomotive and National Biscuit. The late tone was steady. Transfers approximated 700,000 shares.

Bitter Medicine

SACRAMENTO, June 6 (CP)—When escaping convicts steal the clothes of prison board officials and the Warden, that's just too bad for the officials, the Assembly Ways and Means Committee has ruled.

Warden James Holohan of San Quentin and Joseph Stevens and Warren Atherton, prison board officials, filed claims totalling $202.75 for suits and hats which they claimed were ruined when a desperate, but unsuccessful, break from the state prison was made early this year by four convicts.

GOLD ISSUES TAKE 'BUMPS'

Silvers Present Firmer Front Although Doing Little Better Than Holding Ground.

CLOSING TONE SOFT.

TORONTO, June 6.—(CP)—Gold shares took the bumps on the mining section of the Toronto Exchange today and base metals were barely firm. Silvers presented a somewhat firmer front but did little better than hold its ground although New York silver listings were buoyant for a time. While losses in the secondary golds were not important, stocks were in supply at prices under those ruling in the previous session.

Bralorne dropped to a new low for the month at 5.20, down 55 cents and Pioneer at 9.85 was down 30 cents. Lake Shore and McIntyre weakened $1 to $1.50 each and Teck Hughes slipped back a few cents.

God's Lake, Central Patricia, Pickle Crow, Siscoe, and McKenzie, all sold down, losses ranging from 5 to 10 cents. Big Missouri scored a net rise of about 5 cents and Sheritt, Hudson Bay and Pend Oreille registered narrow advances. Silver leaders displayed only moderate activity at steady prices.

RALPH PORTSMITH HELD BY POLICE

it was stated the family lived on River Road, and two months ago Portsmith rented the small holding on which he had recently been living in Cavan Township. He continued with his employment in the macaroni department at Quaker Oats, Limited, until the 29th of last month.

Portsmith's mother, Mrs. M. J. Portsmith, lives at 161 Antrim Street, while other relatives in this city include a sister, Mildred Portsmith, and two brothers, Elmer and Roy Portsmith.

Little is known of the affairs of the Portsmith family by their former Elm Street neighbors, and no one could be located who had ever heard of Norman Blair having any connection with the family.

Mrs. L. M. Buckley of 482 Elm Street, who lives next door to the empty house in which the Portsmith family lived, described them as being "quiet, decent people." Mrs. Portsmith, it was stated, was formerly Dorothy Townsend, a "Home" girl. The couple have seven children, the eldest being 9 years of age.

The inquest has been set for June 1 at 7.30 o'clock p.m. in Bethany.

WATER LEVELS AT RECORD LOW.

OTTAWA, June 6.—(CP). —The hydrographic service of the Department of Marine to-day reported water levels during May at Montreal Harbor were at a record low for the last 75 years. The water was 36¼ inches lower than May 1934.

New York Passes

NEW YORK, June 6 (CP)—Under the official gaze of Mayor F. H. Laguardia, police will dump into Long Island Sound two tons of slugs collected in Independent Subway turnstiles.

The collection represents a loss to the system of $31,000 during the nearly three years of its operation—New Yorkers dropping the lead, tin, tin aluminum, brass and even linoleum discs into the turnstiles at the rate of 1,575 daily.

They Are Really Police Dogs Now

Royal Canadian Mounted Police have now added highly trained German shepherd dogs to their roster. The dogs will aid the Mounties in tracking persons lost in the bush country. Lux, an 18 months-old pup, who has the distinction of being the first tracker to be on the R.C.M.P. payroll, is shown with his Mountie pal, Constable W. H. Billington, of Regina.

PIETRI UNABLE FORM CABINET

France Enters Third Day Without Ministry as Fifth Minister Fails.

THREATENING SITUATION.

(Copyright, 1935, by The Associated Press.)

PARIS, June 6.—A fifth political strong man failed to-day in efforts to gather together a government which might guide France through her present financial crisis and the nation entered its third successive day without a cabinet.

Last night gave threat of street disorders, more gold reserves were withdrawn to-day from the Bank of France, and huge sums in government bonds fall due in nine days.

Francois Pietri, fifth man to be assigned the Premiership by President LeBrun within five days was forced to report to the President he could not form a government.

After Pietri's failure, President LeBrun called in Fernand Bouisson and asked him, for the third time, to try to organize a government. But Bouisson refused.

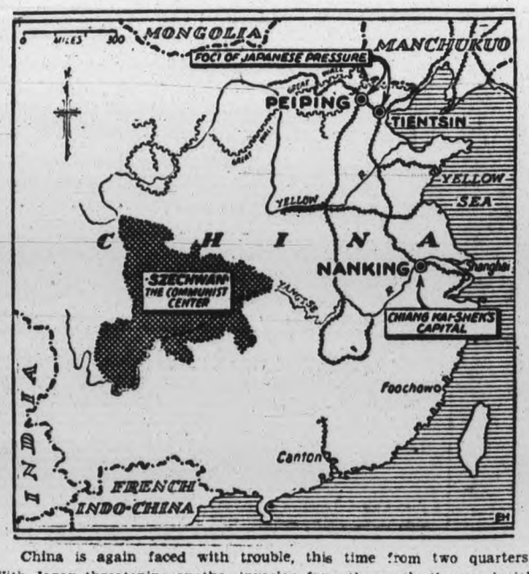
TWEEDSMUIR CHAPTER

TORONTO, June 6 (C.P.)—One of the first organizations to give official recognition to the title bestowed upon Canada's next Governor-General is the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, which reports formation of a new chapter in Toronto, to be known as the Lady Tweedsmuir Chapter.

China Torn By Internal Strife



China is again faced with trouble, this time from two quarters. With Japan threatening another invasion from the north, the provincial war lords in the provinces opposing Chiang Kai-Shek's attempt to extend the influence of his National government, and the concentration of Soviet China in Szechwan, China, is caught between the devil and the sea. The Communists' red army controls a very rich province, and nearly one-sixth of the population of China are gradually becoming Sovietized. Meanwhile, Japan is attempting to force China to her knees by threat of invasion.

A Good Sign

SARNIA, Ont., June 6 (C.P.)—The Township of Sarnia is considering carrying wind insurance. The decision was made when it was found only one of the farmers whose property was damaged during the cyclonic storm of last week carried wind insurance. It is proposed the township carry its own insurance.

NORANDA MINES.

Noranda Mines directors are scheduled to meet to-day, when action will be taken with respect to the mid-year dividend. Where the meeting is to be held is not known. The special meeting of the board is also scheduled to give consideration of the permanent listing of the company's stock on the New York Stock Exchange.

CONS. SMELTERS.

Directors of Cons. Smelters are understood to be meeting in Montreal next week when it is expected that consideration will be given to dividend payment to shareholders covering the first six months of the current year. A definite date for the meeting has not been given. Last year Smelters announced a payment of $1 a share for the first half, and it is expected that a similar disbursement will be made for this year. In the second half a dividend of $1 plus a bonus of $1 was paid, making a total of $3 for the whole year.

BUFFALO ANKERITE.

Production at the Buffalo Ankerite Gold Mines for May established a new record when slightly over $89 000 was recovered as compared with $76,000 in April. The 500-ton mill is currently handling 425 tons daily and it is expected that the full capacity will be reached later this month or early in July. Some new mill equipment has been delivered to the property, and its installation is believed to be a matter of a few days.

CENTRAL PATRICIA

Establishment of a new monthly high record for the mine, May production at Central Patricia Gold Mines amounted to approximately 2,000 ounces which based on $35 gold had a value of $70,000 according to an official of the company. While tonnage figures are not available, taking the average daily rate of 112 tons, the mill handled 3,472 tons during the period. Recently there has been some talk of a dividend from the company and it is expected that officials will take action along this line early in the fall. The company is in an excellent condition and with the increased milling capacity bringing about higher production monthly, the current year should be very gratifying.

On the Springer group of claims the shaft has been sunk by hand steel to a depth of 30 feet will be resumed by power. The head frame for the shaft is being erected at present.

McINTYRE

McIntyre Porcupine Mines have made a new gold discovery on their own property adjoining the O'Leary Malartic, which they hold under option in the Mud Lake section, Quebec. According to reports from the field, the vein is said to be 20 feet wide in places and is located to the west of the original discovery and present workings. No assay results are available as yet.

INDUSTRIALS SHOW SOFTNESS

Oils, Metals, Banks and Foodstuffs Fall Back on Declining Market.

15,000 SHARE VOLUME.

TORONTO, June 6.—(CP). — A fluctuating industrial share market turned definitely soft late this afternoon to give the board a preponderance of recessions at the close. Walkers Common and Westons were the outstanding weak issues, the former slipping a point to 23½ and Westons 2 to 29. Oils, Steels, Banks and the Foods fell back. Volume was undersized, only about 15,000 shares changing hands.

While Walkers weakened, Distillers Seagrams held firm at 15½. Canada Malting eased more than a point. Nickel eased off a fraction and Consolidated Smelters lost a point or more.

The Oils remained unchanged except for losses of ⅜ to ½ in Imperial and International Petrolemum. Recessions ranged up to 1½ for the bank issues. National Steel Car dropped a point or more and Canadian Car Pfd. ⅜.

Quebec and British Columbia Power stocks moved ahead and in the miscellaneous section higher prices ruled for Goodyear Pfd., Harding Carpets and Imperial Tobacco.

CHURCH'S BILL UNDER BARRAGE

nesses in the same line, Senator Graham said.

"If you pass this Bill I will more and more provisions which would impose a penalty for publication of an editorial for which remuneration had been received without marking it as an advertisement. "We are trying to make criminals out of these owners under the guise of a Post Office Act amendment," he added.

Senator Webster said the press was "head and shoulders" over any other industry.

Mr. Church, father of the Bill, declared it was a most misunderstood measure and was in the public interest. New York newspapers published names of their shareholders, he said, and this step had been taken, he claimed, after electric electric railways in New York State began buying up newspapers to influence public opinion.

People Entitled to Knowledge.

There was a proposal in Canada for Union Government, he added. The public should know who was behind the agitation for amalgamation of railways. The public were entitled to know the identity of owners.

Conditions in New York State were entirely different from those in Canada, Senator Graham said, and there was no occasion for this Bill in any way.

Senator Murdock, sponsor of the Bill in the Upper House, said there were two instances in London, Ont., and Montreal. The people in London and Montreal were entitled to know who was "dishing up" editorials in newspapers operating as Liberals in those cities.

Restricted Area For Tuberculin Tested Cattle Suggested

COUNCIL ASKED TO PASS MOTION UNITED COUNTIES

Restricted Area Given Much Support When Placed Before Council.

MILK QUALITY FACTOR.

Growing Tendency in Toronto to Demand Milk From Accredited Herds.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

COBOURG, June 6.—A proposal that Northumberland and Durham be included in the restricted area for tuberculin tested cattle with York, Ontario, Peel and Halton, suggested by Hon. Duncan Marshall at the Holstein Breeders' Association field day at Woodbridge Saturday afternoon, was recommended to the council of the united counties by several prominent dairymen last night.

The plan was supported in brief addresses by J. B. Reynolds of Port Hope, professor emeritus of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, and Mackenzie Rutherford, Haldimand, after it had been advocated by A. A. Martin and E. A. Summers, representatives of the Department of Agriculture respectively for Northumberland and Durham counties.

The project was referred to the agricultural committee of the council for their deliberation, and although it was put forward half way through the busy June sessions it is likely to be thoroughly discussed.

Professor Reynolds told the council that the Minister of Agriculture had promised the Holstein breeders that the government would undertake the work of interviewing and canvasing the farmers of Halton, Peel, Ontario and York counties, on the question of making that section of the province a restricted area.

Farmers Must Consent

Conditional to the government's further action, Prof. Reynolds said, all owners of cattle must be consulted and at least two-thirds of them must agree to submitting their herds to the tuberculin test.

"We propose to you that this area be extended to include Durham and Northumberland," Prof. Reynolds stated. "That in brief is the purpose of our presence here tonight. If your agricultural committee passes favorably upon it, and the council approves it, the request could then be forwarded to the Hon. Mr. Marshall."

Mr. Summers informed the council that the accredited area scheme had been held up in eastern Ontario by the expenditure of all the money which had been set up as a fund for this purpose by the government. Maximum compensation to owners of cattle that were found to be "reactors" to the tuberculin test was $150 for purebreds and $60 for grades.

An advantage of the restricted area system, Prof. Reynolds urged, was that it accredited all cattle in that area. Buyers from the United States accepted such cattle without further testing for tuberculosis.

Milk Quality Factor

"Mac" Rutherford said he was keenly interested in the plan as a milk producer. There was a growing tendency in Toronto to demand milk from accredited herds, and many of the dairymen of the united counties shipped to the Toronto market.

"If Toronto was to buy milk from accredited herds there would be a disadvantage to the owners of grade cattle in the fact that they might have to come under the "supervised plan" which does not provide any compensation at all for grade cattle rejected by the test. But if the counties became a restsicted area, then the grade cattle men would share in the government's compensation."

The little group of dairymen reminded the council that appeal had been organized on short notice, that nobody was bound by the council's request to the Department, that consent finally rested with the farmers themselves, and that it was essentially in their interest to adopt a plan that was already in effect in Prince Edward county.

Mr. Rutherford pointed out that the twin counties formed a natural unit to be added to the group outlined by Duncan Marshall, and that Rice Lake, the Otonabee and the Trent Rivers formed eastern boundaries that would naturally isolate the cattle of Northumberland.

Agriculture Night

The council devoted several hours last night, to the subject of agriculture, and allotted three hours this morning for the House of Refuge building committee to complete their report.

Mr. Martin and Mr. Summers reviewed some of the main features of the work they had carried on last year, asked for a renewal of the council's grant of $100 to each county for junior farmer work, especially, and endorsed the Quinte Seed Fair's request for a grant.

"Last year there was not one registered seed grower in Northumberland," Mr. Martin said. "But, quite a number of your farmers bought registered seed grain at the Fair, and have sown it this season. That is one direct result of the seed fair that was held here last winter."

Mr. Martin said the winter short course at Campbellford during the winter attracted 43 girls and 37 boys. This course in agriculture and domestic science was a fine success.

Another project was the anti-Warble fly campaign in Hamilton township this season. With the municipal council's assistance 300 pounds of powder were purchased at 50 cents a pound. Mr. Martin said he expected excellent results from this effort. He suggested that it might be extended throughout both counties next year, possibly with the help of the counties council in purchasing the powder for treating cattle.

Appeals For Cheese Industry

Referring to the dairy industry Mr. Martin said there was a marked difference between these two counties. Northumberland has 27 cheese factories and Durham has none.

"The make of cheese has been declining because the price has not been holding up. If the manufacture of butter increases we will have to go on the export market. The protective tariff is enabling us to produce all the butter our people consume, but by turning to butter making and away from the manufacture of cheese we are going to have more butter than we can consume. If that happens our price is bound to drop from five to seven cents a pound. Our cheese commands a premium in the world markets, but our butter is not so well regarded. So I think that you should try to give every possible encouragement to the cheese factory patrons so that our factories will be kept operating as much as possible.

Fruit Industry Crippled

Perhaps you all know that the fruit men throughout Northumberland have been hard hit. The damage from frost last winter was almost as serious as during 1933-34. I am afraid almost all trees more than twenty-five years old will pass away in a few years. These losses have crippled a great many of our farmers and has affected others in Durham county."

A Durham Report

E. A. Summers of Port Hope, representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture in Durham county, reviewed the fine success of the boys' club work in the county last year. The potato club comprised 26 boys; there were 17 in the grain club and 13 enlisted in the swine club. In addition to this high standing of the Durham boys in the provincial competition in judging potatoes and swine, the grain team won $24 of the available $25 at the Quinte Seed fair held here last winter. They also took home 15 bushels of grain.

The Warble fly campaign in Hope, Cavan and South Monaghan had been actively supported, and Mr. Summers said he expected that the work done by the farmers should go a long way to stamping out this pest.

NINE CONFIRMED NORWOOD CHURCH

Bishop Beverley Officiates at Ceremony in Christ Church.

NORWOOD, June 6 (Examiner Correspondence). — A class of nine received Confirmation by Bishop Beverley of Toronto on Wednesday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. The Bsihop's inspiring message to the candidate was: Be constant in prayer, regular at church and communion services, study God's Word each day, and be ready to give service at any time.

The Bishop stressed that Confirmation was not the end, but the beginning of a Christian life, and that Sunday was given to us for rest and for worship of God.

Those who were confirmed were: Misses Rita and Edith Andrews, Dorothy Buck, Madeline Clements, Messrs. Edward Chamberlain, Edward Baskin, James Baskin, William Thompson, Arthur Bitten.

Arthur Bitten and Miss Rita Andrews were presented with Service Books for obtaining the highest marks in the test and regularity at the class.

Rev. Mr. Worrall, rector, assisted in the service.

PRESBYTERIANS PICK McKERROL

Rev. Dr. T. Wardlaw Taylor of Goderich, Clerk of the Assembly, had submitted his report, but Rev. W. O. Mulligan of Montreal demanded the names of Rev. Dr. A. M. Hill, Verdun, Que., and Rev. Dr. Samuel Davies, Smith's Falls, be added.

"It's a straight vote of want of confidence in your Business Committee," said Dr. Taylor, after stating he had never known the event to take place before.

Suggests Change

Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of Peterborough charged parity between number of ministers and elders on the committee had departed, and he gave notice of motion of a change in the body.

Eventually, the Business Committee report was re-read, and Dr. Mulligan's motion to add the two names was defeated.

Choice of the new Moderator was made after Rev. Dr. J. S. Shortt of Barrie, Ont., retiring Moderator, preached his farewell sermon as ranking head of the denomination.

Declaring suggestions for a change in the social order should not go unheeded, Dr. Shortt emphasized, however, they should be considered wisely. He paid tribute to the founders of the Church and stressed the need for a spirit of brotherhood in the world.

Commenting on his tenure of office, he said there were extra duties because his predecessor, Rev. H. R. Grant of Port William, had been ill for a great part of his Moderatorship.

The retiring Moderator said he had travelled from coast to coast, had spoken in every Capital city, and attended the meeting of every Synod except that of the Montreal and Ottawa Synod, which was in session at the same time as the British Columbia body.

Paying tribute to ministers of the Church, Dr. Shortt described them as "a very fine lot of men, a fine lot of fellows all across the land." He praised also the wives of the ministers.

CAMPBELLFORD

Orioles, Easy Prey For Grills' Hawks

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, June 6.—Mrs. Ed. Grill's 'Hawks' swooped down on Owen Hendy's 'Orioles' at the school grounds on Wednesday evening and simply ran away with the game. The official score-keeper's record showing 31-12 in favor of the larger birds. Even at that the crowd had lots of fun and regardless of the one-sided score there were plenty of thrills especially when Elsie Connor made the home-run.

This was the first time out for the losers, but there is some real good material in the ranks and they may just spring a surprise when they meet the Lillian Bush team on Friday evening. The line-up: Hawks, Pat Poulton, c; Peggy McArthur, p; Helen Montgomery, 1b; Goldie McArthur, 2b; Margaret Grills, 3b; Maisie Scott, rf; Mary Ellis, cf; Viola Flint, ss; Bernice Black, lf.

HASTINGS

Cobourg Road Nine Beaten By 4-3 Count

HASTINGS, June 6.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Elgin nosed out Cobourg Road, 4 to 3, in ten innings in a local softball fixture before a big crowd this week. These two rural squads put up the best display of softball ever played on the local diamond. It was the "Roaders" first appearance and they sure served notice that they will be a tough team to take. The win put Elgin out in front with two wins and no losses.

Gordon Gibson on the mound for the losers held Elgin to three hits until the ninth inning, his teammates got one in the second, eighth and ninth, to give him a lead of three to nothing, to face Elgin in their last trip to the plate. M. Scott, the first batter, hit a double to centre, stole third and came in on a play at first. G. Richardson got on on an error and crossed the plate ahead of Fleming when the latter poled a homer to right. Elgin fans went wild when the count was tied up, forcing an extra inning. The "Roaders" failed to connect in their half of the tenth. J. Preston's single and Fitzpatrick's error gave Elgin their million dollar run.

Richardson struck out two and Gibson four, the latter issued three walks, all to J. Preston.

FAMOUS LEADER CANADIAN CORPS

grasp that the eager volunteers from the Dominion welded into an individual corps would be a striking force of unshakeable determination.

Genial with reserve, courteous to a fault, Byng of Vimy performed his duties and never followed those other leaders whose jealousy or honest disagreement with superiors found vent in statements or autobiographies.

He was called to the western front a few weeks after the opening of the Great War; he was perhaps the last man in history to wage invaluable cavalry campaigns that now find no place in major warfare; he was the genius of the triumph of Vimy Ridge, when a hundred thousand Canadians under his leadership overran that vital height of land on Easter Monday, 1917, in the only major success of a much-promising general offensive.

Byng after that was promoted commander of the Third Army, which had support of the Canadian corps, and saw his Cambrai campaign, one of the most brilliant military conceptions of the entire war, neutralized for lack of troops and support.

He was promoted General after that effort late in 1917, and in the spring of 1918 his Third Army hung on grimly in the teeth of the last great German offensive, modeled on Byng's own Cambrai strategy. He was ready in the final allied drive, behind the ground-breaking Canadian advance to Mons.

In peace, the soldier was denied the seclusion he sought.

Becomes Governor-General.

He gladly, however, accepted the Governor-Generalship of the Dominion August 2 1921, and all went well until 1926, when Byng unwittingly became the centre of one of Canada's gravest constitutional issues. That was when Byng accepted the resignation of W. L. Mackenzie King, but instead of acquiescing to the Liberal leader's suggestion Parliament be dissolved, called upon Arthur Meighen to form a government, the Conservative Ministry being overturned within short order and the Liberals gaining a majority in the subsequent elections. Despite the gravity of the constitutional issue, the refusal of the Governor-General to follow the retiring Prime Minister's advice, for Byng personally both parties retained the highest respect, and, as Byng said, "No matter what I do, I shall be wrong."

Revamps Police Force.

He left Canada "a tired old man" late in 1926, but he was again called upon, this time to fix up the Metropolitan Police. Bribery and collusion charges had threatened to bring that fine force of men into total disgrace, and Byng was considered the best man to remedy the malady. He worked again for three years when his task was finished and the credit of the Force was again fully established.

Since 1931, Byng and his wife, always at his side, tried to enjoy the retirement so often delayed. Failing in health, he made numerous sea voyages, chiefly to California and Canada's Pacific Coast.

He was, of course, the recipient of many honors from the British and foreign Governments, he was thanked by Parliament for his "distinguished services," and awarded a grant of $150,000.

There is no heir to the title.

COMPANIES ACT BEFORE HOUSE

for the purpose of this subsection no account shall be taken of any increase in the surplus or reserves of the company resulting merely from the writing up of the values of the assets of the company."

Two of the bills embodying provisions of the budget were passed by the House yesterday. They amend the income war tax act and the customs tariff. The tariff changes were few but income taxes on higher incomes were increased.

Duplicate Taxes Scored.

A number of members protested the continuation of duplicate taxation of corporation profits and shareholders' dividends as personal income, and Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, agreed this should be changed. He said the practice had prevailed for many years, however, and could not be done away with in the present condition of the country"s finances.

Mr. Rhodes expressed the opinion a provincial income tax would be perfectly legal when T. L. Church (Cons., Toronto East) objected to the proposed provincial income tax in Ontario and questioned the legality of such a levy. Mr. Rhodes said he hoped the question of overlapping in taxation fields between Dominion, provinces and municipalities would be straightened out soon. The Government had placed it on the agenda for the conference with the provinces last autumn which did not materialize.

Tax Exempt?

The delicate question of income taxes on the indemnities of members of Parliament was raised, and it is possible a Bill may be introduced to exempt these indemnities. Opposition members suggested it, and Mr. Rhodes said he strongly favored it, but thought it should be done by a new Parliament, as it might be suggested members were legislating for their own benefit. A. W. Neill (Ind., Comox-Alberni) said this difficulty might be surmounted by making the exemption only applicable to a new Parliament and Mr. Rhodes promised to take the matter up with the Cabinet.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and Liberal Leader Mackenzie King joined in expressing a desire to speed up the business of Parliament and end the session. Mr. King asked for a definite date when the Grain Board resolution would be discussed and Mr. Bennett fixed Monday for that purpose.

A new attempt to increase the monetary use of silver was launched yesterday by Thomas Reid (Lib., New Westminster). He gave notice of Bill to compell Bank of Canada to buy not less than $1,61,882 fine ounces of silver each year for redemption of notes. A previous Bill by Mr. Reid to accomplish the same object had been ruled out of order.

ACTION NOT BINDING SOLICITOR'S RULING

Agreement Entered Into With Adjustment Bureau is Held Not Binding.

COBOURG, June 6.—The Canadian Adjustment Bureau's $1020 account against the counties council for collecting the $34,000 insurance payable to the counties for the loss of their House of Refuge last December is not binding on the present council, Col. F. D. Boggs, solicitor, stated to the council last night.

His complete report on this point of the authority of retired administrators will be presented today.

"What action does the council wish to take in view of this opinion?" Warden Stinson enquired.

"Let the Bureau take the action," Reeve N. Green, Cartwright, remarked, and the council adjourned on the next motion.

After his term of office had expired in January, Wilbert Davey, Warden of the counties last year, signed the agreement with the Bureau on January 3, instructing them to proceed with the collection of the assurance on the basis of a fee of 3 per cent.

Warden Stinson and other members of the council objected this week that the insurance company had not disputed payment, that the counties solicitor could have performed the duty of applying for the insurance, and finally that the members of last year's House of Refuge Board of Management were municipally defunct, the Warden having retired, and the two other members having been defeated at the polls.

CRIMINAL CODE RULING UPHELD IN PRIVY COUNCIL

Gives Canada Right to Bar Appeals in Criminal Cases.

SAME FOR FREE STATE

Quebec Coal Corporation's Petition to Appeal Combine Conviction Dismissed.

LONDON, Eng., June 6 (C. P. Cable).—The judicial committee of His Majesty's Privy Council today delivered two judgments which in effect mean that Canada has the right to bar appeals to the Privy Council in criminal cases, and that the Irish Free State has the right to abolish appeal to the Privy Council—the King—in all cases.

Months of Discussion

Lord Sankey, Lord Chancellor, delivered the judgments which followed months of argument before Their Lordships of the judicial committee on cases of far-reaching constitutional import. The Canadian decision confirms the existing Canadian Criminal Code which does not recognize the right of appeal in criminal matters.

The Irish decision is that the Free State, since passage of the Statute of Westminster which formally recognizes the right of self-government and the equality of Dominion Parliaments with that of the United Kingdom, is entitled to disregard that article of the previous Irish Free State constitution which preserved the right of appeal to the King.

Specifically, the Privy Council first dismissed the petition of the British Coal Corporation of Quebec for special leave to appeal against a Quebec court decision which convicted the corporation, along with others, of an illegal combine to maintain prices, and fined the corporation.

Secondly, Their Lordships dismissed petition for leave to appeal from an Irish Free State decision that was made a test case.

The two petitions were linked together by Their Lordships as both involved the issue of the right to appeal from self-governing Dominions, one of which, Canada, retains the right of appeal to His Majesty in all other than purely criminal cases.

Dealing with the petition from the Province of Quebec, Their Lordships' decision as read by Lord Sankey said: "The appeal, if special leave is granted is from the decision of a Canadian court and is to secure a reversal or alteration of the order of the Canadian court. If it is successful its effect will be that the order of the Canadian court will be reformed accordingly.

Matters of Canadian Concern.

"The appellant and the respondent in any such appeal must be Canadian subjects or persons who have submitted to the jurisdiction of the Canadian courts. Such appeals (criminal) must be essentially matters of Canadian concern, and the regulation and control of such appeals would thus seem to be a prime element of Canadian sovereignty as appertaining to matters of justice.

"Their Lordships see no valid reason since the statute of Westminster, why the power to regulate or prohibit this type of appeal should not be held to be vested in the Dominion Parliament."

DOUGLAS LISTS SNAGS IN PATH

question because banks issued cheques which were neither Dominion nor Bank of Canada documents yet operated the same as money.

Noting the money problem was rising in many quarters of the globe, Major Douglas said it had secession possibilities unless conditions were altered. He noted "disintegrating influences evident all over the British Empire, Spain Southern Germany and the Western United States."

The best means of combatting this condition, he declared, was establishment of a satisfactory financial system. The condition existed in Alberta.

"In regard to the Province of Alberta," said Major Douglas, "it appears to me to be evident that little which is effective can be done to relieve the economic difficulties which exist unless a departure is made from methods which were moderately effective in the past but are no longer suitable to conditions which have changed fundamentally

What Must Be Done?

Major Douglas said Alberta either must:

"Surrender to interests whose legal position is doubtful and whose power, though admittedly great, is neither impregnable nor free from attack in quarters outside Alberta";

Or adopt "measures designed to free the Province from external control."

To free the Province from external control—"might mean temporary difficulties in regard to import of articles not produced in this Province, a certain amount of political conflict with the Dominion Government and a good deal of misrepresentation as to the action and policies which accompanied this general attitude."

But, Major Douglas added, "It would be possible to minimize the unemployment problem in the Province, increase the general standard of living of the whole population and embark on a systematic development of the resources of the Province on a scale otherwise unattainable."

Before any social credit scheme could be made effective in the Province, said Major Douglas, accumulation of a large amount of foreign exchange to permit trade in foreign goods was essential.

VOLVEY MURDER HEARING OPENS

had been switched to the court house.

When Crown Attorney Harkness expressed his regret, Mr. Gogo exclaimed: "You don't need to apologize.I'm going to report you to the Attorney General. Your conduct throughout this whole proceeding has been insufferable."

"Go ahead and report then," retorted Mr. Harkness.

The first witness, Alex Duncan McPhail, farmer, living one concession behind the Volvey farm, was called.

McPhail told of giving Cameron a job for his board and tobacco April 2. The itinerant farm hand was supposed to sleep in the house, but he was absent every night from the 3rd to the 8th, returning each morning about six o'clock, the witness said. Volvey was home from the hospital on the 8th or 9th and Cameron slept at McPhail's after that, he said.

"Did you ever see him in Volvey's house?"

The witness said he saw Cameron in the kitchen once when Cameron did not report for work one morning and McPhail went to the Volvey house to find him.

This was about April 5 or 6.

On the night of April 22, Mrs. Volvey called at his farm and told him her husband had fallen down stairs and she thought he was dead.

Said He Visited Farm Earlier

McPhail said he and Ronald Duncan McPhail went to St. Andrew's for a priest and Cameron went over later with them to Volveys. Cameron had been at his farm earlier in the night witness said.

Cross examined by Mr. Gogo, McPhail admitted his recollection of dates might have been "partly guess work" and he could not say where Cameron slept early in April.

The night Mr. Volvey was found dead, Cameron was in your house, so far as you know?"

"Yes."

The witness said from what he saw of the position of the body Volvey apparently had fallen down stairs backwards.

"That's what it looked like," he added.

Showed Up Each Morning

Michael O'Neill, farm laborer, employed by Alex. Duncan McPhail, declared Cameron did not sleep in the house after the second night he was first seen on the property. He used to come back about 6 a.m., the witness said.

"How long did this staying out continue?" asked the Crown Attorney.

"After Mr. Volvey came home he slept at our place."

"Every night?"

"Yes, until April 15, when he left."

O'Neill said Cameron had shown him some pictures, one of Cameron and Mrs. Volvey, and her brother George, and another of Mrs. Volvey alone. Cameron had also shown him a handkerchief and a letter signed with the initial "V.V."

"What about the handkerchief?"

He said he got that from Mrs. Volvey for his birthday.

The night of April 22 Cameron left the house about 7.30 or 7.45 and said he was going home. I went to bed and was there until 10.30, when Mrs. Volvey came over and said her husband had fallen downstairs. Mr. McPhail told me to go over while he went for the priest."

Razor Given to Cameron

While he was at the house before the priest arrived Cameron reached the house and Mrs. Volvey applied a bandage and some iodine to a wrist he had sprained, O'Neill testified. A few days after the tragedy, O'Neill said, he asked Mrs. Volvey to give him arazor belonging to her husband, and she replied she had given it to Clarence Cameron. He identified the razor produced by the Crown Attorney.

Dr. M. J. Sproule of Cornwall who was called to the Volvey home the night of April 22, described seeing the body at the foot of the stairs, sitting in a corner of the house with the knees bent upwards towards the head. The man was dead.

"Just going over the body superficially, I thought he died of a broken neck," Dr. Sproule said.

Mr. Gogo cross-examined Ronald Duncan McPhail referring to Louis Volvey.

"You were present when his own son choked hi m,weren't you?"

"Yes."

"And he would have choked Louis Volvey to death if it hadn't been for a man named Omer Aube?"

McPhail recalled that Louis Volvey had just ordered the son, Danny, away from the house and not to return. McPhail placed the date towards the end of February.

Mr. Gogo immediately applied for an adjournment because of pressure of other business he said he could not postpone. By arrangement among counsel, the hearing was adjourned until next Friday.

FIRE MARSHAL'S OFFICE IS UPSET

overdue," said Mr. Roebuck. "Mr. Heaton was superannuated on reaching the age of 60 almost four years ago but his services were continued since then without any apparent attempt on the part of the former administration to select a suitable successor.

"Further, extremely poor judgment has been exercised in the selection of men to act as fire inspectors. Political considerations seem to have been uppermost in the minds of those responsible for the appointments. The majority of appointments appear to have been made without any regard as to whether the men had the necessary qualifications or not."

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The annual meeting of the local W.C.T.U. met yesterday to conclude the past year's work and to elect its officers for 1935-6, with the usual quota of members in attendance.

The chair was taken by Mrs. J. H. Rowe and the meeting was opened with the hymn, "O Rouse Ye Christian Workers," and prayer offered by the presiding officer.

The scripture lesson was chosen from the 107th Psalm, and read by Mrs. E. Wand, after which Mrs. G. K. Tyler offered earnest prayer.

The business session opened with the minutes of regular and executive meetings, by Mrs. Bert Manning.

Discussion re prizes being given in the scientific posters made by public school children, resulted in the decision that $1 for first, 75c for second, and 50c for third prize be offered, and the judges appointed were Mrs. G. K. Tyler, Mrs. J. Fairbrother, and Mrs. A. B. Cunningham.

Announcement was made of the W.C.T.U. annual convention of Peterborough and Northumberland counties, to be held in Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church, Chemong road, on Wednesday, June 12th.

Splendid Program

A splendid programe has been arranged and the day promises to be both helpful and inspiring.

Reports of officers and superintendents of departments were an interesting feature of yesterday's meeting, when a resume of the year's activities was heard in brief accounts. These show that the Peterborough W.C.T.U. is a busy member of the temperance force and that good work has been done capably and efficiently in a quiet but determined manner.

Interesting Reports

The reports were given by recording, corresponding and press secretaries and the treasurer. The superintendents were for Evangelistic, Mrs. Bert Manning; Travellers' Aid and Soap Wrappers, Mrs. Walton; Temperance in Sunday Schools, Mrs. J. Fairbrother; Scientific Temperance, Mrs. J. H. Spencer, per Mrs. E. Wand; Anti-Narcotics, Mrs. Armstrong; Flowers, Mrs. E. Manning, per Mrs. Bert Manning; Exhibitions and Fairs, Mrs. E. Wand; "Y" Secretary, Mrs. G. K. Tyler; L.L.T. Secretary, Mrs. G. K. Tyler; Citizenship, Mrs. E. Lord; Methods of Work, Mrs. A. B. Cunningham.

Officers Elected

The report of the nominating committee brought in the following slate of officers:

President, Mrs. G. K. Tyler; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. H. P. L. Seymour, Springville; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. E. Wand; 3rd Vice-President, Mrs. L. A. Campbell; Recording Secretary, Miss E. Might; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. G. H. Rowe; Treasurer, Mrs. A. B. Cunningham.

This slate was unanimously accepted and will constitute the new executive which will later appoint the superintendents of departments.

The clip sheet, as usual, brought forth many interesting features of the work and stressed the need of temperance education. The exercise was led by Mrs. Manning assisted by Mesdames Armstrong, Walton, Lord, Johnson and Campbell.

A delightful sacred solo, "There is a Green Hill," was contributed by Master Frederick Fowler, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. E. W. Glover.

Tribute was paid by Mrs. Lord to the memory of Dr. Sara B. Detwiler of Kitchener, Ontario, a great temperance and welfare worker of the W.C.T.U., who passed away on April 3.

The Mizpah Benediction brought to a conclusion one of the best meetings of the union during the year.

$203,000,000 U.S. Cash Spent on Irish Sweeps in Five Years

EXPERT GIVES A FEW DETAILS ON INSIDE DOPE

Only 63 Cents of Every Dollar Distributed Among Contributors.

MOST TICKETS FORGERIES.

Two Smart Irishmen the Originators Get 10 Per Cent 3,500 to One Odds.

NEW YORK, June 6. (U.P.)—Hello sucker! How much did you lose on the Irish sweepstakes?

Seven Americans yesterday won top prizes of around $150,000 when Bahram won the English Derby, after gambling $2.50 or more. But let's look at the other side of the sweeps picture.

Almost two and a half millions of Americans (2,433,000 by the sweeps gamblers' own figures) were left holding the sack, minus the money they hopefully contributed on the 350,000 to 1 chance they would be one of the lucky seven.

If it's any comfort to the losers in the world's biggest sucker game, Uncle Same will bite off $57,000 from each top prize in income tax, smaller winners in proportion.

Incidentally, the sucker's chance to win even the smallest sweeps prize of $500 is 3,500 to 1 against the ticket purchaser.

A cold-eyed, thin-lipped man who knows so much about the sweepstakes business that he's never held a ticket in his life (he sells them for a luxurious living) gives a few details of the racket.

If you toss a dollar into a house crap game, some 90 cents will go to some winner. If you bet on the ponies, the pari-mutuel machines, taxes, purses and other rake-offs take from 6 to 15 per cent. A faro banker has a 3 per cent. advantage, and the proprietor of a gambling house figures to profit between 4 and 5 per cent. on his roulette wheels.

Irish Sweeps Different

But the sweeps lottery is something else again. When you toss a dollar into the sweeps pot, only 63 cents will ever be divided among the players. That figures a 37 per cent. house cut on anyone's abacus.

Who gets this? Well, the Irish hospitals, rapidly becoming the finest in the world, largely on American money, get some. The Irish Government takes a healthy slice in taxes. Almost 10 per cent. goes to the two smart Irishmen who thought it all up and who run the show.

They are R. J. Duggan, who used to be a bookie, and Joseph McGrath, a huge, florid Irish politician. Since 1930 Americans have poured $203,000,000 on sweepstakes up the rocky road to Dublin, transforming these genial sure-thing gamblers into country gentlemen who wear pink coats and ride to the hounds on palatial Irish estates.

And on top of that, most of the tickets sold in the United States are forgeries.

To us suckers, of course, all this doesn't mean a thing. The sweeps still is our only chance to win a fortune on a $2.50 bet, even though the chance is as remote as the stars.

Another drawing will be held in a few months. Sweeps ticket, mister?

Peterborough's Possibilities

By HOMER MOORE

ARTICLE 34

The city of Peterborough is the logical location for the establishment of a great emery manufacturing industry which could eventually supply all Canada, if the proper business management used the right methods.

Can you visualize what such an industry with its ultimate large payroll would mean to the continued expansion of our city? Can you appreciate the fact the name "Peterborough" would stand out prominently, in such a case, on the map of Canada?

A Dominion Government report states: "Commercial emery has not been found in Canada." Another report issued by the same government gives information which indicates there are approximately five hundred square miles of corundum bearing rocks in Ontario, part of which is in Peterborough County.

Where there are gold-bearing rocks there must be gold! Where there are corundum-bearing rocks there must be emery! Will it be found? I think so and it will be found throughout that five hundred square miles of unusual territory. The geological map which I have, has that area colored in such a manner as to indicate its importance.

"Emery is an intimate mixture of granular corundum and magnetite with some hematite. It takes its name from from Cape Emeri, on the island of Naxos in the Grecian archipelago, where it occurs in great abundance and from which it has been mined for several centuries," states a Canadian government report.

Corundum and magnetite are in close proximity in Peterborough County, so the combination of those in the one rock would be emery and should be there! Who will find it—those who stay at home or those who hunt for it? "The bee that gathers the honey doesn't stay around the hive" and the person who wants to find emery must go after it.

If an industry to make and sell emery products was started in Peterborough, the deposits which will be found in that five hundred square miles of corundum bearing rocks would be brought here for manufacture.

Did you ever buy an emery stone for sharpening the kitchen knives? Perhaps you didn't know it was emery. It must have been imported from some country for sale here. How many millions of these emery stones are sold each year in the five and ten cent stores and hardware stores of Canada? Priced low, they are bought by everybody and the sales are continuous. A low priced article with a large production and sale, can create a larger fortune than a higher priced article with consequent lower sales.

I believe the business men of the city of Peterborough could co-operatively establish such an industry which would be an impetus to the growth of our city, which in turn would increase business and make merchants and bankers smile. It has been said that "money makes a man laugh"—so does success.

I know of an American town which is progressive because the bankers, business men, doctors, lawyers and manufacturers there, all own the different stores and factories because they financed their erection and operation among themselves and divided the profits and kept up the work of bringing into action new industries. A director of one of the banks there (one which didn't fail) told me it was just wonderful how the money kept circulating and all were happy. The business men being of a co-operative nature saw the advantage in creating new industries, new stores, and owning and operating them so the dividends would be paid to them as owners. Why couldn't a similar development take place in our city? We have innumerable natural resources—raw materials at our door. We have so many in fact that if our business men co-operated in financing industries which could be started here— the city of Peterborough would fairly leap forward. The profits going back into the pockets of the business men here who co-operatively built them, would produce a circular movement for the original money and everybody in the city benefit in the process.

The numbers of our raw materials is so large, there could be dozens of new factories built here in Peterborough, if our business men used some of the money made in Peterborough to help finance such. Peterborough money should build and own these new factories. The profits then could build other things conducive to our welfare.

The inventive ability of some of some of our citizens could create many new ideas, basic of other factories. Thus it is easily seen that inventors, raw materials and money is a combination hard to beat in the establishment of factories. That combination could produce hundreds of factories!

And the present Security Act is so stringent, no one with any sense would intentionally try to go contrary to it. This act was designed to protect the public. I believe there are business men in Peterborough or interested in its advancement, who are wealthy enough to build any new industries with their own money without ever asking the public to invest in them. There are cities that have fairly leaped in advancement through the driving force and fortune of some one man. If some similar forward-looking man could be found here who had enough faith in "Peterborough's Possibilities," to use his own fortune for the upbuilding of this city, it would eventually create conditions which would make his name live forever!

A government report says: "The American Emery Wheel Works of Providence, Rhode Island are interested in, and large users of, Canadian corundum." Why doesn't that company build a factory in the city of Peterborough which is only a few miles from the raw material they need? Perhaps they will if we invite them to establish it here?

An investigator on corundum says: "Corundum is small fine grained aggregates is the chief constituent of emery." The corundum is known to be in Peterborough County, isn't it possible a large deposit of emery will also be found? In your grandfather's time they had whetstones — grindstones. Where did they come from? I have seen some in eastern and central Ontaro, which were crude in appearance as if of home manufacture. Those old grindstones were made of emery. Were they fashioned out of a block of emery secured "up north" which in that case would mean northern Peterborough or northern Hastings? It would be interesting to trace the location where the emery came from out of which those old grindstones were made.

In the early days of Ontario, deposits of various kinds were found, a little taken out for personal use and then the rest of it left in the keeping of nature. Company charters in those days were not so much in evidence as now. A judge—personal friend of mine—told me that he had in his home, a set of spoons fashioned out of pure silver found north, but no larger amount was ever taken out for spoons, so that silver deposit is still "up north." The emery from which those whetstones were made years ago, is also still "up north." On a map of Ontario is a lake called "Whetstone Lake." Who named that lake? It was named the same way on old maps and it is not very far from the city of Peterborough. Corundum is of such great importance that much research has been done on it and several government reports comprising hundreds of pages written about it. Owing to artificial abrasives being manufactured, the output of natural corundum has been nearly stopped. Can any other use be found for it? Yes! One of great value.

You who read this column titled "Peterborough's Possibilities" may also have read other city papers which carry news articles by renowned European correspondents and if so, you will have read in the last few months, statements by those correspondents with respect to "values" of some processes, gems to be worn during the jubilee, gems owned by the King and Queen and various other materials have been written about authentically I believe, and the values mentioned were fabulous. So, if in this column you sometimes read about fabulous values, they are based on facts. oFr instance: There is, not far from Peterborough, a material which I believe can be of very great value. It is not of much value in its present state and to my knowledge its greater value is not recognized by either private individuals or governments. When secured, it takes ten years to process it, after which it becomes fabulously valuable.

I think I will handle that process, myself, and then?

Balloonists Ready For Attempt To Soar 15 Miles Into Upper Air

Their goal the stratosphere 16 miles above the earth, Capt. Albert W. Stevens and Capt. Orville Anderson, United States army airmen, prepare their balloon and gondola for a June flight from the stratocamp near Rapid City, S.D. Weather conditions were to determine the date for takeoff. The airmen reached 11¾ miles in their flight last year, and had to resort to parachutes when balloon fabric ripped and the bag exploded. Most of the scientific instruments were wrecked in the crash.

Wilful Damage On Railway Must Stop

Insulators on railroad telegraph poles are again being used as targets for .22 rifles, catapults, and stone throwing, according to C.N.R. Constable Ray Morden of Lindsay.

The officer who was in the city told The Examiner he had rounded up a number of boys and youths in Jackson Park and had warned them that the breaking of telegraph insulators must stop. Eldest of the gang was seventeen years of age, it was stated.

While the officer does not intend issuing summonses in the present instance, he warns that he will be reluctantly compelled to hail offenders into court, if there is any further continuance of damage. Last year at about this time of the season, the officer issued similar warning here.

Up to now Constable Morden has treated offenders with every consideration, and he asks for the cooperation of parents of boys, in discouraging the mischievious damage that is being done, and to prevent him from taking extreme measures to stop the loss that is being suffered by the railway company, and which is considerable when damage at other points of the system is taken into consideration.

"I will appreciate any publicity that you can give to this matter," Constable Morden remarked to The Examiner, "and I caution parents and boys that this is the final warning. From now on I shall be obliged to take extreme measures and offenders will have only themselves to blame."

Painful Piles

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves

If you think an operation is always the only way to escape the misery of torturing Piles, it's because you haven't heard of Hem-Roid, the harmless internal medicine discovered by a western physician.

After years of study Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was convinced that the cause of Piles was internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel — the hemorrhoidal veins filled with stagnant blood—and that the right and safe way to get freedom from Pile agony was to remove the cause with an internal medicine. Immediately the doctor set to work to find the remedy. He succeeded and called his prescription HEM-ROID.

Pile sufferers everywhere are benefiting by Dr. Leonhardt's discovery, so why doubt or delay longer when McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store and all druggists say, "No matter what kind of Piles you have, one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must show you the safe, clean way to get rid of your pile misery or money-back."

40 P.C. IMPORTS FROM BRITAIN ENTERED CANADA FREE IN 1934

Increased Margin of Preference by Canada Greatly Benefited U.K. Exporters.

MANUFACTURERS RALLY

HAMILTON, June 6 (C.P.)—Approximately 40 per cent of the total importation of goods from the United Kingdom under the preferential tariff entered Canada free in 1934, according to the report of the tariff committee presented yesterday to the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

During the fiscal year of 1934 the value of the goods from the United Kingdom which entered Canada free and which would have been dutiable under intermediate or general tariffs if they had been imported from foreign countries, was $39,665,543 out of a total United Kingdom importation value of $165,100,764, according to the report.

Average ad valorem rate on dutiable imports from the United Kingdom in 1934 was 11.96 per cent against 16.63 per cent in 1929. "The increased margins of preference granted by Canada to the United Kingdom in recent years," said the report, "have greatly benefitted United Kingdom exporters generally and have been of outstanding assistance to leading lines of United Kingdom exports such as coal, iron and steel, and cottons."

Four Best Customer

With respect to total exports, Canada in 1934 was the fourth best customer of the United Kingdom, of all countries throughout the world, stated the report, and purchased more United Kingdom products than any single foreign country.

A greatly increased trade with the United Kingdom has been built up by exporters of Canadian primary products since the Ottawa Conference, stated the report. "For the 12 months ended Feb., 1935, the total value of Canadian exports to the United Kingdom was $275,000,000 compared with $175,000,000 during the 12 months ended Feb., 1932."

LARGE GATHERING AT GORE'S LANDING

School hildren and Grown-ups of Hamilton Township Observe Jubilee.

June 3rd was a gala day for the school children of Hamilton Township as well as the grown-ups. In spite of the unfavorable weather a large crowd attended the jubilee celebration on the grounds of Waldon's Valley Park, Gore's Landing. This was made possible by the Hamilton Township Council, the Public Library, Gore's Landing and Hamilton Township Public schools. The schools, headed by the Cobourg Salvation Army Band and Mrs. McKee Bingham, marched from the hall to the park. With Reeve Merwin Greer acting as chairman the program commenced with a massed chorus of the school children singing "Land of Hope and Glory", with Glen Cole and Ernest Menheniott taking the solos. A prayer of thanksgiving was offered by Rev. D. M. Smith. Gore's Landing choirs under direction of Rev. W. F. Payton chanted the twenty-third Psalm. An address of welcome followed by Rev. T. M. Wesley.

A pageant was presented which must have taken a great deal of preparation. With Miss Laura Smart dressed to represent Britannia, her court each in turn saluted her, then the audience. These children representing the different school sections were quaintly gowned as England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, John Bull, Soldier, Sailor, Nurse, Music and Labor. With Miss Ethel Harris as Canada, her court represented each province. Suitable selections of music were played for each member of the courts.

Master Robert Bell recited in memorial, "In Flanders Fields" and The Last Post was sounded. Major Balfour spoke for a short time. The May festival "In Merrie England" was a delightful scene. The Queen of May, Miss Dorothy Harris, followed by her Maids of Honor, Pages, Crown Bearer and Heralds, was crowned by Col. Odell. The Maypole Dance by Harwood school was another interesting feature. A minuet was very gracefully presented by Gore's Landing Y.P.U. also Sir Roger de Coverley and the Quadrille. The massed chorus of school children also sang Rule Britannia, The Maple Leaf and O Canada under the direction of Mrs. Orville McClelland, Mrs. H. A. Mellon and Mrs. R. J. Meggs, accompanied for all the numbers and Mrs. McKee Bingham was in charge of the dances.

A program of sports followed in which many heartily joined and a silver collection was taken in aid of the cancer fund.

Each family bought their lunch basket and tables and hot water were provided.

Much credit is due the committee in charge for the splendid program which was much enjoyed by all present.

RYLSTONE

On Wednesday evening the Burnbrae League were the guests of the Rylstone League. A splendid program was put on by the visitors. Contests were conducted by Vera Finch and Grant Meiklejohn from Rylstone League.

Recent guests at the homes of Herbert Spencer and Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Spencer and Beryl of Campbellford, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Husband of Napanee, Mr. and Mrs. Frank German and Beryl of Napanee.

MARKET DECISION REACHED BY HASTINGS AREA FARMERS

he has been severely criticized," said the speaker. Their average kill is 2000 hogs a week, 1200 of these come from Northumberland country. Every side which is suitable and ranges from 55 to 60 lbs. is shipped to England. Only 900 out of the 2000 are fit for export. 20 per cent. of the hogs are bruised, half of these are man-made bruises which need not happen. Bruised sides had been shipped to England up till quite recently but had to be discontinued on account of the large discount. Last year only 20,000 of the allotted 50,000 a week were shipped, the price would not be affected if the full quota went every week.

When 1937 comes around and the Ottawa agreement expires, if Canada has been shipping bacon equal to the other countries, whatever government is in power will be able to secure a good deal for the farmers.

Insure Safe Export

Regulations have lightened up on the Packers the past six months in regards to export bacon. Every side has the brand "Canada" on it that cannot be removed. Everything possible is being done to insure the bacon reaching England in the same condition as it leaves here.

Every country in the world that exports bacon buys on the dressed weight rail grade basis. Last year the government had thirty different grades. This was reduced to less than fifteen in January this year. Since then it has gradually been adopted by the farmers until now over 90 per cent. of the hogs bought at the Peterborough plant come in under the new system. Under this system the farmers get exact grade, something which was impossible under the other system.

In selling this way the farmers naturally want protection. The government man does all the grading, the Packers have nothing to say. In the course of the next two weeks a scale will be installed at the Peterborough plant which will automatically mark the farmer's ticket for his own protection.

The Hon. Mr. Stevens, who so severely criticized the Packers, is definitely for rail grade. In the opinion of Mr. Mathews it will eventually become law and farmers who are now marketing rail grade will gain by it.

Answering a question why prices that appear in The Examiner on hogs differ from other markets, the speaker stated that prices quoted in The Examiner are prices at shipping points not F.O.B. like other quotations.

Owing to the uncertainty of English prices hog prices here cannot be fixed any more than a week ahead.

Mr. Gordon, the next speaker, delivered a very interesting talk on the care of hogs. He also demonstrated the different types of bacon and their values.

The meeting proced to be of great value to the farmers.

At the close of the meeting bacon was given out to the seven who guessed it: Messrs. R. Walsh, T. J. Crowley, J. R. Chapman, W. A. Atkinson, A. Seeney, W. Keogan.

Walter M. Fowids also requested that any interested in having a ernment expert to get in touch with poultry discussion here by a gov- him before June 7th.

Because the price of gold is high potters of England will place silver instead of gold bands and designs on cups and saucers.

Old Dutch cleans quicker ... doesn't scratch because it's made with SEISMOTITE

There's a wonderful cleanser—"Old Dutch",
It's pure, and it doesn't cost much,
But it sure can work magic,
On pots that look tragic,
And on sinks, utensils, paint work and such.

Written by Mrs. F. N. Shearer, Peterboro, Ont.

Old Dutch saves surfaces... saves money, time and work because it is the only cleanser made with Seismotite—a scratchless cleaning and polishing material that is scientifically processed and compounded with other valuable ingredients. Date a package of Old Dutch when you open it. When it's empty, look at the calendar. The length of time the package lasts and the greater amount of cleaning prove its economy. Remember, you can't afford not to use the best when the best costs less to use!

TRAVEL CLUB CANDIDATES ARE TRYING TO BETTER POSITIONS

Vote Bonus Offer and every renewal or new subscription means partial assistance to the club member on a club of $12.00 for which she will receive 150,000 votes. Subscribers are urged to turn this special offer to the advantage of a favorite in the contest. Your co-operation is really necessary to make your favorite a winner. These votes count up fast and who knows but just "that one" may be the deciding factor in winning a trip for one of the girls. The candidates are working as they never worked before to hold their positions and several of the members who failed to get off to a flying start have been creeping up. The race is by no means over yet, a little better than a week remains and a lot can happen in that time.

The girls who have remained active throughout the campaign are to be congratulated for their perseverance and determination to work. It has been a hard-fought battle so far, with very little difference between many of the members, in their standing. These final days of course will decide the winners and it will not be very long before the announcement is made and the successful ones begin to prepare for the trip. The Examiner will be happy to present the awards to the leaders and it is not necessary to repeat that everything possible will be done to make the trip to New York and Bermuda a joyous one for every member of the party.

During these final days the subscribers can play an important role in bringing about success for the girls who call on them for their support. If a subscriber has no intention of voting for the lady that calls on him, the sporting thing to do is to say "No." Time is drawing to an end, and time is precious to the girls at this stage of the club when they have so many places to call on in such a limited amount of time. Many have asked the girls to "call back." This they have done repeatedly. It is discouraging to make a number of return trips and then meet with disappointment. We must say though, that it takes a lot to discourage the girls who have been plugging away ever since the commencement of the competition in their search for votes and subscriptions. Well, the question now is, "who will win the trips" and that can only be answered when the final count of votes is completed! We must leave it at that for the present.

SOCIETY WORK IS REVIEWED

Woman's Association of George St. Church Holds Final Meeting.

PRESENTATION MADE.

The closing meeting of the season of the Woman's Association of George Street United Church was held in the board room on Tuesday afternoon with a large attendance.

The room was beautifully decorated with quantities of lilacs and tulips. Mrs. T. Mark was in the chair, and opened the meeting by repeating a gem of poetry, "Live Day by Day," followed by the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison.

Mrs. W. P. Hetherington had charge of the devotional period, which consisted of a hymn, followed by a talk on Rest based on the 23rd Psalm, by Mrs. E. E. Harvey. Mrs. J. H. Rowe led in prayer. Very satisfactory reports of the first half of the year's activities were submitted by the secretary and treasurer, Mrs. G. C. Staples and Mrs. S. Oke, which included a report of the success of the layman's banquet served at the church during the recent conference.

Mrs. V. W. Harvey gave a paper entitled, "The Use of the Day," and Miss Loreen Wellwood contributed a piano solo.

At this time Mrs. J. E. J. Millyard, who is leaving in a short time to reside in London, was presented with a beautiful silver tea service on behalf of the W.A. Mrs. W. P. Hetherington, reading a very fine address expressing the regret felt at her departure and the appreciation of her kind, generous assistance during her residence at the parsonage. Mrs. Long made the presentation, and Mrs. Milliard graciously thanked the members, referring to the cordial relations existing between them. After singing, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," and the Mizpah Benediction, afternoon tea was served from a table very attractively decorated with a lace cloth, central silver basket of white lilacs and tulips and colored tapers. Mrs. Mark and Mrs. Kelley poured tea.

Bailieboro Services Are Largely Attended

BAILIEBORO, June 6. (Examiner Correspondence). — The annual United Church Sunday School anniversary services were largely attended on Sunday morning and evening when Rev. Fred Jobblin of Sterling conducted the morning service assisted by the superintendent of the Sunday School, Herbert Dean. The local male voice choir provided the special music at the morning service and led in the song service.

Rev. Fred Lane of Frankford United Church assisted by the pastor, Rev. E. M. Cook, were in charge of the evening service. The male voice choir from Baltimore United Church were present and provided the music which was a musical treat for the large congregation present.

The ladies of the Sunday School had the church beautifully decorated for the occasion with spring flowers, lilacs and apple blossoms.

Both services were most impressive and greatly enjoyed by the local congregations. A special offering was taken to carry on the work of the Sunday School.

At the conclusion of the evening service the members of the Baltimore choir were guests of the local ladies at the home of Mrs. W. Bateman where light refreshments were service to the visitors before their return trip to Baltimore.

Students Are Barred From Examinations For Not Paying For Collegiate Echoes

Students at the Collegiate and Vocational School who have refused to abide by their subscriptions for copies of the annual publication, "The Echoes," will be barred from writing local examinations and from promotion until they pay for their copies, Principal H. R. H. Kenner announced in the assembly hall this morning. The summary edict was heard with surprise by the student body.

Interviewed concerning the announcement, Mr. Kenner depreciated the significance of the matter. "The boys and girls must be taught to live up to their obligations," he said. "This is just a means of making them sit up and take notice."

Before The Echoes was printed, the school was canvased in order that the number of copies to be printed might be ascertained, it was explained. Many of the students who committed themselves with their signatures to buy copies are now refusing to pay for them. The price per copy is thirty-five cents.

Many of the offenders are students in the higher forms of the school, it was learned. While the ruling can not apply to the writing of departmental examinations, it will at least be binding for those defaulting students who are trying local examinations and seeking promotion in the Collegiate.

A number of students interviewed in the matter had no fault to find with the ruling, but others protested that the subscriptions for The Echoes were sold in a "high-pressure" campaign. Students felt obliged to sign up for a copy to escape a feeling among their fellow-students that they lacked school spirit, was the complaint of one.

PEAS 24 INCHES LONG

The growth this spring may have been backward but there is one garden in the south-end of the city where a plot of garden peas shows remarkable growth. Some time in April L. E. Emery, 179 Lock street, planted a row of American Wonder table peas and at the present time the strong, vigorous vines are more than 24 inches in length. Mr. Emery also grows very fine stock tomato plants.

ROBERTA'S CHAT

A column conducted by a reader of The Examiner for her other reader friends. Address all mail to Roberta in care of The Examiner.

"Home, home, sweet, sweet home,
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home."

Dear Friend:

Do you have a house or a home? A house nags at you all the time, like this, "I want my floors polished, to be made spic and span, to have you make your family and friends uncomfortable because of me."

But a home says "make me so comfortable, that your family want to stay with me, and your friends feel that they can drop in any time, and feel welcome."

Haven't you ever been in a house, which was so spotlessly clean, that you were afraid to move around? The woman had no time for the beauties of life, for real neighborliness, or a friendly visit.

I have in mind a home, which I hate to leave, when I go there. The furniture is a little shabby, the cushions were meant to be used, and I've seen a little dust around. But there was a lovely sense of serene hospitability, a feeling of being welcome.

A house can be very bossy, if we let it, but a home mingles with our personality, and warms the hearts of all who come there.

We all turn to dust some day, and if I don't chase someone else's dust too much, maybe, later on, someone will have mercy on mine. Think it over.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Be Beautiful

By GLADYS GLAD

In speaking of the Creator of humanity in one of his loveliest poems, Robert Burns say: "His 'prentice hand he tried on man, and then he made the lassies, Oh!" By this, it is obvious, Burns meant to imply that the Creator, having had man to practice on, was able to make woman a much lovelier and more perfect specimen. Of course, whether women are more pleasing to the eye than men is a debatable topic. Since members of both sexes are included among my readers, I refuse to commit myself. There is one thing that I will say, though, and that is, if the Creator made woman more perfect than man, some women certainly give His handiwork an awful lot of abuse.

There are three types of women in particular who refuse to believe in the value of self-improvement. In my opinion, all three are wrong. Take the first type. According to her, beauty is inherent, something one must be born with, which is certainly a fallacious idea. Even girls who are born beautiful must care for that loveliness, or they will lose it. And if a girl isn't born a Venus, she can at least achieve the semblance of beauty. There are plenty of examples of girls, even among our screen luminaries, who, while not basically beautiful, have made themselves into extremely charming and attractive individuals.

False Surmise

The second type of woman believes that nature cannot be improved upon and therefore she sees no sense of trying. But that old contention no longer holds water. Take a flower bed, for instance. Nature permits ugly weeds to grow up around choice blooms and overshadow their loveliness. But if these weeds are extracted, the beauty of the flower bed is greatly increased. In the same way if a woman eliminates the defects that overshadow her good points, she improves upon nature and greatly enhances her attractiveness.

The third type of damsel insists that she has neither the time nor the money to attempt to beautify herself. And she's wrong, too. If she neglects herself because she feels that she cannot spare time from her work or play, she'll work herself into old age long before her years warrant it. As for lack of funds—it does not entail much money for a woman to take proper care of herself. Cosmetics and beauty preparations are no longer costly items, you know. And with the proper booklets to guide her, any girl should find it simple to perform her own beauty rites.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Cosmetics

M. C.: I think that a soft ochre shade of powder, soft orange rouge, and light lipstick would blend harmoniously with your coloring. Use a mild astringent on your skin before applying your makeup.

Complexion

Freda: It would be impossible for me to print my method of eradicating blackheads and pimples in this limited space. However, the process is fully outlined in my 'Beauty Culture' booklet.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. Shepard
"Author of Bridge"

THE NEW LAWS

The international bridge laws were formulated by the Whist Club, New York; the Portland Club, London, and the Commission Francaise du Bridge, Paris. The committee acting for the Whist Club consisted of these six members: Walter Blenecke, Ernest B. Cooper, Leavelle McCampbell, Harold O. Richard, Charles B. Stevenson and Harold S. Vanderbilt, chairman. Great credit is due the members of the three committees which formulated the new code. The laws are admirable, clear and so arranged as to make each easy to find. The attractive book containing them sells for only 50 cents. Each player should have one at hand for easy reference.

We will mention a few of the important changes in laws, aside from the new and simplified scoring, which was published in this column on March 29. There must be a new deal, by the same dealer and with the same pack: If a player sees and can name a card dealt to another player, or if a player has looked at any of his cards during the deal.

If an opponent calls attention to an insufficient bid before it is corrected or overcalled, making the call barely sufficient in the same denomination (where one-heart has been bid over one-spade, then two-hearts are bid) bars the offender's partner from bidding when next it is his turn to call. If the insufficient bid is made more than sufficient in the same denomination or shifted to another denomination, the offender's partner cannot bid during that deal.

Unless overcalled a player, who in doubling or redoubling names an incorrect number of tricks or a wrong denomination, is deemed to have doubled or redoubled the proper bid, but his partner must pass when next it is his turn to call. The safest habit to acquire is not to name either number of tricks or the denomination when doubling or redoubling. Partner may inquire, if he does not know just how the auction stands.

The penalty for exposing an honor or two cards of any suit during the auction has been changed. A new deal cannot be demanded. Instead of this the offender's partner cannot bid, in addition to rendering the exposed card or cards subject to a penalty, if their holder becomes a defender.

The recommended formulae in calling are the simplest consistent with clarity, as: Pass, one-heart, two-clubs, one-no trump, six-spades, seven-spades, double, redouble. It is a violation of properties to alter the formulae used.

Volunteering information is barred (calling attention to the score, that a side is vulnerable, the number of tricks required to go game, who played a card, to whom a trick belongs, etc.). Partner may be warned against leading or playing out of turn, or bidding out of turn.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Parsons of Sherbrooke street wish to announce the engagement of their second eldest daughter, Lottie Lysbeth Irene, to Mr. Grenville Lathangue of this city, the wedding to take place the 29th of June.

On Saturday evening, June 1st, a delightful gathering was held at Lakeview Farm, Smith Township, when Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Mann received the congratulations of relatives and friends on the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. The guests, to the number of thirty-four, were seated at a beautifully-appointed table done in silver and rose, and were waited on by nieces of the host and hostess. The Rev. Ralph D. Wright, M.A., of Gilmour Memorial Church, was in the chair and called upon Mr. W. Rose, a lifetime friend of Mr. and Mrs. Mann, to propose the toast to their health. Mr. Rose included also in the toast Mr. and Mrs. Len Palmer of Shedden, Ontario, who were welcome guests and who were observing their fifteenth wedding anniversary. (The latter is a sister of Mr. Mann). Both Mr. Mann and Mr. Palmer responded in a delightfully reminiscent vein. Mr. A. B. Mann, who acted as groomsman a quarter of a century ago, spoke briefly, referring to the well-known leadership exercised by the host and hostess in the work of Gilmour Church. Later in the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Mann were presented with a number of beautiful and useful gifts and a brief program was much enjoyed, with Master John Lewis singing one of his quaintly-rendered little songs, John Edmison reciting, and Mrs. Harold Lewis and Mrs. Clarence Mann rendering a piano duet. Short speeches were also made by Mr. William Mann, uncle of the host, Mr. Herbert Jackson and Mr. Harry Jackson, brother and nephew respectively, of the hostess, and the Rev. Mr. Wright. The guests were: Mrs. T. R. Mann, mother of the host, Mr. Frederick Mann, Mrs. John Hammond and Miss Eunice Hammond, all of Lakeview Farm; Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon Mann, Mr. and Mrs. J. ALTHOUSE OPENS BEAUTY SALON NEW QUARTERS

Salon is Done in Most Artistic And Restful Colors.

VENETIAN MIRRORS

New Blinds Do Not Shut Out Light But Provide Effective Screens.

Foam green and warm ivory, black, silver and white....these are the very artistic colors which have been chosen for the new Beauty Salon just opened at 443 George street by Clare E. Althouse.

Colors, according to those expert people who study such things, have a greater effect on the nervous system than most of us imagine. For instance, a certain recent lecturer to the city, speaking on costumes of the Elizabethan period, mentioned a curious practice carried on long ago by those who were desirous of getting rid of an unwanted relative or enemy. They shut them up in a room lined from top to bottom with bright scarlet, and let them go slowly mad under the strain.

Most Restful Place

So the cool, pleasant tints that make this Beauty Salon a quiet and restful place, will probably add much to the comfort and peace of mind of the patrons.

The ceiling is pure white, as is the woodwork of the working equipment in the booths; the walls are in soft foam green with a dado of warm ivory, and warm ivory hangings form the curtains of the booths, of which there are seven, with two double booths for permanent waving work, at the rear, where there are three machines for permanent waving. The floor covering is in tiled effect, in subdued polychrome tints of rose, green and yellow. In the little waiting-room that meets one at the entrance is buried walnut furniture in dull finish, and the same warm-toned wood makes solid wall panels into which are set large mirrors.

Venetian Mirrors

The mirrors are remarkable throughout. They are of the Venetian type and extremely modern in their mode. The majority are unframed, of oval and circular shapes, and they are attached to the wall with modernistic holders in triangular lines, made of chrome metal.

This Royal chrome plated metal, as it is known to the trade, and that looks like softly shining silver, is prominent also. It makes the streamline holders and finishes of chairs that are upholstered in dull black leather, and a half hoop of the attractive metal forms the support for a magazine table and the standard for a tall floor lamp with black and silver shade.

Catching the eyes are the Venetian blinds that do not obscure the light and yet provide effective window-screens. They are on the front door and the large front show window, the dressing of which shows an effective use of soft and bright colors. Combined with the triangular side panels done in foam green, white and tangerine shades, are flowers in the same colors which make a border at the top in a conventionalized patterning. Pale green and silver picks out the title of "Beauty Salon" at the top, and a deep panel of black and silver tiling, to match the prevailing tints used inside, borders the window on the outside.

The whole effect is cool, reposeful and striking, with artistic colorings, gleaming mirrors, and the very latest ideas in permanent waving machines, Turbinator dryers and the miscellaneous items of equipment that go toward the task of beautifying the up-to-date woman.

An amazing statement about a refrigerator? Not if you know the Norge Rollator Refrigerator.

The surplus-powered Rollator cold-making mechanism is almost everlasting and it actually does improve with use! That's a proven fact. A Rollator Compressor on factory test, instead of becoming less efficient with use, became more efficient, used less current.

And that Rollator Compressor has been running for the equivalent of 33 years in your home. It's still running.

We say Rollator Refrigeration effects household savings up to $11 a month. Ask your Norge dealer to prove it. Ask him for actual facts and figures to prove every statement he makes. He can do it. For the Norge is that kind of a refrigerator—and Norge dealers are that kind of merchants.

Lawrence Completes His Survey of Arab Defeat

ARABS AFRAID OF ARTILLERY BUT TRIBES UNITED TO MAN IN SUPPRESSING THE TURKS

Tribals Differences Set Aside to Fight Common Enemy.

COMPLETES SURVEY

Lawrence Promises to Try And Get Help for Feisal.

(By T. E. Lawrence)

His movements were impetuous. He showed himself hot-tempered and sensitive, even unreasonable, and he ran off soon on tangents. Appetite and physical weakness were mated in him, with the spur of courage. His personal charm his imprudence, the pathetic hint of frailty as the sole reserve of this proud character made him the idol of his followers. One never asked if he were scrupulous; but later he showed that he could return trust for trust, suspicion for suspicion. He was fuller of wit than of humour.

His training in Abdul Hamid's entourage had made him pastmaster in diplomacy. His military service with the Turks had given him a working knowledge of tactics. His life in Constantinople and in the Turkish Parliament had made him familiar with European questions and manners. He was a careful judge of men. If he had the strength to realize his dreams he would go very far, for he was wrapped up in his work and lived for nothing else; but the fear was that he would wear himself out by trying to seem to aim always a little higher than the truth, or that he would die of too much action. His men told me how, after a long spell of fighting, in which he had to guard himself, and lead the charges, and control and encourage them, he had collapsed physically and was carried away from his victory, unconscious, with the foam flecking his lips.

Meanwhile, here, as it seemed, was offered to our hand, which had only to be big enough to take it, a prophet who, if veiled, would give cogent form to the idea behing the activity of the Arab revolt. It was all and more than we had hoped for, much more than our halting course deserved. The aim of my trip was fulfilled.

Returns to Egypt

My duty was now to take the shortest road to Egypt with the news and the knowledge gained that evening in the palm wood grew and blossomed in my mind into a thousand branches, laden with fruit and shady leaves, beneath which I sat and half-listened and saw visions, while the twilight deepened, and the night; until a line of slaves with lamps came down the winding paths between the palm trunks, and with Feisal and Maulud we walked back through the gardens to the little house, with its courts still full of waiting people, and to the hot inner room in which the familiars were assembled; and there we sat down together to the smoking bowl of rice and meat set upon the food-carpet for our supper by the slaves.

Interviewed Troops

Next morning I was up early and out among Feisal's troops towards the side of Kheif, by myself, trying to feel the pulse of their opinions in a moment. Time was of the essence of my effort, for it was necessary to gain in ten days the impressions which would ordinarily have been the fruit of weeks of observing in my crab-fashion, that sideways-slipping affair of the senses. Normally I would go along all days, with the sounds immediate, but blind to every detail, only generally aware that there were things red, or things grey, or clear things about me. To-day my eyes had to be switched straight to my brain, that I might note a thing or two the more clearly by contrast with the former mistiness. Such things were nearly always shapes: rocks and trees, or men's bodies in repose or movement: not small things like flowers, nor qualities like color.

Yet here was strong need of a lively reporter. In this drab war the least irregularity was a joy to all, and McMahon's strongest course was to exploit the latent imagination of the General Staff. I believed in the Arab movement, and was confident, before ever I came, that in it was the idea to tear Turkey into pieces; but others in Egypt lacked faith, and had been taught nothing intelligent of the Arabs in the field. By noting down something of the spirit of these romantics of the hills about the Holy Cities I might gain the sympathy of Cairo for the further measures necessary to help them.

The men received me cheerfully. Beneath every great rock or bush they sprawled like lazy scorpions, resting from the heat, and refreshing their brown limbs with the early coolness of the shaded stone. Because of my khaki they took me for a Turk-trained officer who had deserted to them, and were profuse in good-humored but ghastly suggestions of how they should treat me.

Might Last 10 Years

They were in wild spirits, shouting that the war might last ten years. It was the fattest time the hills had ever known. The Sherif was feeding not only the fighting men, but their families, and paying two pounds a month for a man, four for a camel. Nothing else would have performed the miracle of keeping a tribal army in the field for five months on end.

The actual contingents were continually shifting, in obedience to the rule of flesh. A family would own a rifle, and the sons serve in turn for a few days each. Married men alternated between camp and wife, and sometimes a whole clan would become bored and take a rest. Feisal's eight thousand men were one in ten camel-corps and the rest hill-men. They served only under their tribal sheikhs, and near home, arranging their own food and transportation.

Blood feuds were nominally healed, and really suspended in the Sheriffian area; Billi and Juheina, Ateiba and Ageyl living and fighting side by side in Feisal's army. All the same, the members of one tribe were shy of those of another, and within the tribe no man would quite trust his neighbor. Each might be, usually was, whole-hearted against the Turk, but perhaps not quite to the point of failing to work off a family grudge upon a family enemy in the field.

Keen on Booty

Their acquisitive recklessness made them keen on booty, and whetted them to tear up railways, plunder caravans, and steal camels, but they were too free-minded to endure command, or to fight in team. A man who could fight well by himself made generally a bad soldier, and these champions seemed to me no material for our drilling; but if we strengthened them by light automatic guns of the Lewis type, to be handled by themselves they might be capable of holding their hills.

The Hejaz war was the fight of a rocky, mountainous, barren country (reinforced by a wild horde of mountaineers) against an enemy so enriched in equipment by the Germans as almost to have lost virtue for rough-and-tumble war. The hill belt was a paradise for snipers. The valleys, which were the only practicable roads, for miles and miles were not so much valleys as chasms or gorges, sometimes two hundred yard across, but sometimes only twenty, full of twists and turns, one thousand or four thousand feet deep, barren of cover, and flanked each side by pitiless granite, basalt and porphyry, not in polished slopes, but serrated and split and piled up in thousands of jagged heaps of fragments as hard as metal and nearly as sharp.

It seemed to my unaccustomed eyes impossible that, without treachery on the part of the mountain tribes, the Turks could dare to break their way through.

Arabs Frightened

The sole disquieting feature was the very real success of the Turks in frightening the Arabs by artillery. The sound of a fired cannon sent every man within earshot behind cover. They thought weapons destructive in proportion to their noise. They were not afraid of bullets, nor indeed overmuch of dying; just the manner of death by shell-fire was unendurable. It seemed to me that their moral confidence was to be restored only by having guns, useful or useless, but noisy on their side. From the magnificent Feisal down to the most naked stripling in the army the theme was artillery, artillery, artillery.

At these close quarters the bigness of the revolt impressed me. This well-peopled province had suddenly changed its character from a rout of casual nomad pilferers to an eruption against Turkey, fighting her, not certainly in our manner, but fiercely enough, in spite of the religion which was to raise the East against us in a holy war. There was among the tribes in the fighting zone a nervous enthusiasm common. I suppose to all national risings, but strangely disquieting to one from a land so long delivered that national freedom had become like the water in our mouth, tasteless.

Later I saw Feisal again, and promised to do my best for him. My chiefs would arrange a base at Yenbo, where the stores and supplies he needed would be put ashore for his exclusive use. We would try to get him officer-volunteers from among the prisoners of war captured in Mesopotamia or on the Canal. We would form gun crews and machine-gun crews from the rank and file in the internment camps, and provide them with such mountain guns and light machine-guns as were obtainable in Egypt. Lastly, I would advise that British Army officers, professionals, be sent down to act as advisers and liaison officers with him in the field.

This time our talk was of the pleasantest, and ended in warm thanks from him, and an invitation to return as soon as might be. I explained that my duties in Cairo excluded field work, but perhaps my chiefs would let me pay a second visit later on, when his present wants were filled and his movement was going forward prosperously. Meanwhile I would ask him for facilities to return to the coast, for Egypt.

Provided Escort

Feisal's care gave me an escort of local Sherifs, who guided me to Yenbo, through other miles of stark hills, with the hair lines of irrigated valleys threading their barrenness. Yenbo, a village Jeddah, proved hospitable. Its governor, a Javanese from Mecca, fed me and lodged me for many days till the Suva. Captain Boyle, put in to harbor, and granted me passage down the coast. "Granted me": for I was in a very soiled condition after days of riding light, and I had a native head-cloth on my head: and to the Royal Navy all things seemed crapulous. Boyle, as the senior naval officer in the Red Sea, shoud have been the exemplar of his type, but he sat on the shadow side of his bridge, reading Bryce's American Constitution too intently to spare me more than fourteen words a day.

Inspiring Addresses Warsaw Anniversary

WARSAW, June 6 (Examiner Correspondence)—Rev. Mr. Preston attended the Presbyterian Sunday School on Sunday, June 2nd for the first time. He had quite a talk with the boys of the senior class, also addressed the whole school.

The church was prettily decorated for the anniversary services, which Mr. Preston conducted. His morning subject was an individual one, dealing with people as individuals and their responsibilities. Mr. Preston, a war veteran, has the knack of pressing home what he tells, and he made his hearers feel the necessity of opening the door to Christ and then doing the work in the world He would have them do. Mrs. Munro and Mrs. Frank Davis sang, "O, 'tis Wonderful," with the full choir in the chorus, and Mr. Preston and his daughter sang "Let Him In."

The church was filled at both services. Mr. Preston's evening theme was on conditions which exist at the present time. The text was from II Chronicles, chapter fifteen, verses three, five and six, and then four. The first three verses read described evils which had befallen Israel in their being without the true God and the fourth tells "when they did turn unto the Lord God of Israel and sought Him, He was found of them."

The choir sang "One of God's Days." Mrs. Davis and Mr. C. Watts sang "Anchored to the Rock," with full choir in choruses and Mr. and Miss Preston sang, "Nailed to the Cross."

Eight Nurses Graduate From St. Joseph's Hospital

GOOD NURSING IS DECIDING FACTOR CRITICAL CASES

Nurses Urged as They Go Out Earn Living Resolve It Into a Living Life.

PRIZES ARE PRESENTED.

Miss Margaret Flynn Delivered Very Pleasing Valedictory Address.

The Commencement Exercises of the Training School for Nurses of St. Joseph's General Hospital were held yesterday afternoon in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute, where, surrounded by friends and well-wishers, bowered in flowers and with music ringing in their ears, the graduates said good-bye to their training years and entered upon their lives of service.

It was a very pleasing function, attended by several hundreds of the relatives and friends of the class members, as well as His Excellency, Most Rev. Denis O'Connor, D.D., LL.D., Bishop of Peterborough, and clergymen from the Roman Catholic parishes of the city and the district.

Members of this year's class are as follows: Rev. Sister Scholastica; Rev. Sister Ida; Miss Christine Rivard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rivard of 197 Perry street, Peterborough; Miss Margaret Flynn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Flynn of Marmora; Miss Edith Phillips, daughter of Mrs. H. Phillips of Deloro and the late Mr. Phillips; Miss Mary McAuliffe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. McAuliffe of 358 Mark street; Miss Elemere Conlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Conlin of 567 Sherbrook street; Miss Teresa Walsh, daughter of Mr. Patrick Walsh of Coldwater and the late Mrs. Walsh.

All secular members of the graduating class received prizes: Miss Margaret Flynn for General Proficiency; Miss Mary McAuliffe for Practical Work; Miss Christine Rivard for Highest Marks in Theory; Miss Elemere Conlin for Loyalty to Rules; Miss Edith Phillips for Bandaging; Miss Teresa Walsh, for neatness. These were presented by the Rev. J. J. O'Brien, who confined his remarks to congratulations to the graduates.

Address by Bishop

The whole program was marked by a pleasing brevity and occupied less than an hour and a half; commencing at four-thirty and terminating before six o'clock.

The address to the graduates by His Excellency, Bishop O'Connor, was very brief. Speaking directly to the class members on the platform, from his seat in the front row, the Bishop congratulated the members of this year's class, for himself and the audience.

"This is a great day in your life," he said, quoting in Latin words, which, when translated, resolved themselves into: 'There is joy in labors that are completed'. We desire to associate ourselves with the joy that is yours, for joys are empty indeed when we have noone with whom to share them.

"We desire to convey to the Sisters in charge of the Hospital our appreciation of the work they are doing in this community. It is a most efficient and a most beneficient work, and occasions are indeed rare on which we may convey to them a word of appreciation and recognition. For the success of St. Joseph's Hospital, at least on the material side, is due in no small measure to the personal sacrifices of the Sisters in charge.

"We extend to you our congratulations and good wishes. As you go out of this hall, those good wishes ..... surround you, and our prayers will go with you across the years of your future, that you may be happy and successful always. May God bless you."

John E. Sullivan, acting as chairman in a most efficient manner, also congratulated the graduates on this successful termination of three years "of hard work and diligent study." Calling on each in turn, he introduced them to the audience in a pleasing little variation of the usual procedure. During the entire program, the graduates were seated on the stage, lovely in their crisp, white uniforms, caps and shoes, their arms filled with deep pink roses and lacy green fern.

The setting was most attractive and artistic. Against a velvet drape of deep red at the back sat, in graduated rows, the pupil nurses of the Hospital, in uniforms of midblue, white caps and aprons, forming, as it were, a supporting Guard of Honor for their associates who had reached the end of the training road.

Done in rich tones of red and green, the stage was decorated with a profusion of tall ferns and palms, many graceful baskets filled with deep crimson peonies, white lilac, ouejelia rose and bridal wreath, and two beautiful baskets of deep pink poppies. Ombre drapes in velvet on the tables added to the richly decorative effect, along with a huge central bowl of gleaming brass filled with glowing red peonies.

The Valedictory.

Miss Margaret Flynn was Valedictorian, delivering one of the poetically-worded and very pleasing farewell addresses which are a notable feature of the annual Graduation Exercises of the Hospital.

The presentation of diplomas and medals to each graduate, in turn, was done by His Worship, Mayor Denne, who said:

"I don't think that the average citizen of Peterborough realizes what St. Joseph's Hospital and Nicholls Hospital do in the way of good work. You have to be sick yourself, or have a sick friend, to realize the hard work accomplished by the nurses and Sisters in carrying out their good efforts. To stay up late at night and get up early in the morning, ministering to the infirm, is not always pleasant, but they have to take it with a smile. Don't think that your work is done now," he urged, turning to the graduates. "Try and go to the top. Go to the head of your profession."

The closing address was given by the president of the Hospital's Medical Board, Dr. H. V. Dobson, who reviewed in bird'z-eye view fashion some of the history of the nursing profession and its origin in the dim and distant past.

Addressing the graduates, he reminded them that now, having cast off the moorings of training service, they were about to embark on the business of earning a living, which should also resolve itself into living a life.

"You feel a sense of triumph in the completion of your training and in your equipment for your work. Try to realize the importance of maintaining your ideals even though they may tend toward destruction because of the difficulties and experiences of life.

Idealism and Realism

"A proper adjustment should be made between idealism and realistic or practical matters. Without ideals, your profession will recede from the high development it has attained."

Dr. Dobson sketched briefly the development of nursing, from the Babylonian times when the sick were brought to the public marketplace for consultation, through the Greek period when temples were set aside for the treatment of disease, and through the Roman military hospitals which extended over the then-known world.

"But the attitude of the ancients toward suffering was not one of compassion. The credit for that belongs to Christianity, and the basis and origin is in the teaching of Christ."

Overcrowded and unsanitary conditions were characterstic of mediaeval hospitals. It was the Englishwoman, Florence Nightingale, who first realized the importance of pure water, air and light in the treatment of disease, and the English Lister who, inspired by the scientific investigations of the Frenchman, Pasteur, set about looking for an antiseptic and discovered it first in carbolic acid which was so successful in making less the risk of surgery.

Dr. Dobson referred to the long and difficult course of training in nursing and said:

"Speaking as a physician, I want to stress the importance of good nursing care in the treatment of disease. Most medical men can recall cases in which the constant care of an efficient nurse has been the deciding factor in a critical case, after the benefits of medical science have been applied.

"You have a duty to the public, but they also have a duty to you, to see that they give you sympathetic consideration in your difficulties, a fair remuneration for your services, and sufficient time for rest and recreation."

Musical Program

Included in the afternoon's program was some very pleasing music. The very fine orchestra from St. Peter's School played some bright numbers; Mrs. Leo Picard sang in her attractive high, clear tones, two songs, "The Lass With the Delicate Air," and as its encore, "Be Still, Blackbird"; and Arthur Phillips, in his rich, sweet, sympathetic tenor, sang "Lay My Head Beneath a Rose," and its encore, "Brown Bird Singing." Miss Veronica Scollard, A.T.C.M., played both accompaniments.

Harry McDonald, one of the expert junior violinists of the city, displayed excellent memory powers and a fine, singing tone, in his rendition of a gay Hungarian Czardas (Monti) and an encore in the popular favorite, "Play, Fiddle, Play," with piano accompaniments by Russell Rowan.

And a young lady who pleased her listeners immensely with her quaint manner of reciting and her eager, happy little countenance, was Ann Overend, telling about "Seein' Things at Night," in a dainty blue frock and hair bow.

Mr. Sullivan expressed the appreciation of the graduates and the audience to all who had assisted in any way in the success of a pleasing program, and finished with the only humorous story of the afternoon.

Lindsay Teachers' Salaries Unchanged

LINDSAY, Ont., June 6 (Special to The Examiner).—Lindsay Board of Education has decided that teachers' salaries in the Public Schools and Collegiate Institute will remain as they are for the following year. The board is investigating the advisability of establishing vocational guidance classes in the public schools.

Approves Suggestion

Victoria Council Council concurred without a dissenting voice the resolution sent on by Elgin County Council to the effect the duties of the teachers in marking examination papers be included in their salaries and that fees now allowed under the act be struck off. A copy of the resolution will be sent to the Department of Education.

HEINZ "57" Popularity Contest

$5,000.00 in CASH PRIZES

for those who can select the 15 most popular varieties

THE famous Heinz 57 Varieties of foods are on sale throughout Canada. Naturally, some of these sell in larger quantities than others. Which do you think are the most popular? See the list below and select the fifteen which you think enjoy the largest sales. Then place a number in the square opposite each which will be your estimate as to the sales standing of that variety.

For instance if you think Heinz Tomato Juice is the largest seller put a "1" in the square opposite that variety. If you think Heinz Chili Sauce is the second largest seller, put the figure "2" in the square opposite that product. If you consider Heinz Bottled Cider Vinegar the third largest seller put the figure "3" in the square opposite its name, and so on until your 15 selections are numbered.

Remember, you don't have to place a number in the squares opposite the entire 57 varieties. Select fifteen only and number them in the order of their popularity according to your estimation.

Enter this contest—see the simple conditions below. You may earn a handsome cash prize.

Lindberg Retains Lead

Leader at Woodbine, Thorncliffe Likely Carry Off Honors at Long Branch.

BITS FROM MURRAY

WHEN THORNCLIFFE closed on Tuesday it marked the half way mark for spring racing on Toronto tracks. Long Branch opened the second half yesterday and then Dufferin winds it up until the fall campaigns. Of course the same horses will move on to Hamilton, Fort Erie, Niagara Falls, London and Windsor so we will still be able to follow our favorites around. Young Lindberg kept up his marvelous sad dle work by leading the jockeys at Thorncliffe the same as he done the week previous at Woodbine. Unless he meets with an accident he will probably carry off the honors again at Long Branch.

This horse called Yellow Metal is a plater of more than ordinary ability. He is rapidly reaching his best form and it won't be long now until he does the needful. Another one to bear in mind is Uvira, the bad acting Canadian bred who comes from the Province of Quebec. This fellow is very consistent when in shape and he is very close to top form now. We also look to Cudgeldoe to grab off a purse before many moons. His last race, when he finished a fast going second to Noble Spirit, was a dandy.

THE HARRY Hatch Stable should be the leading money winner at Long Branch. They have thirty horses, all in the best of shape and handled by two of the smartest trainers in the business, namely Lloyd Gentry and Billy Bringloe. Anything they send to the post will have to receive plenty of consideration. Long Branch is rapidly becoming one of the prettiest tracks in Canada. Of course being the latest track to be built, it is the most up-to-date and now that the trees and bushes and getting more matured, it seems better every year. The horsemen all claim the track proper is the safest in America to run horses over, and judging by the number of horses on hand they must be right. Every stall is filled and many applications for stabling accommodation had to be turned down. It also goes to show how popular Abe Orpen is with the horsemen. Bill Campbell's Caryldon has disappointed many times this year but do not sell him short just yet. He is bound to win and will always have the help of Dude Foden in the saddle.

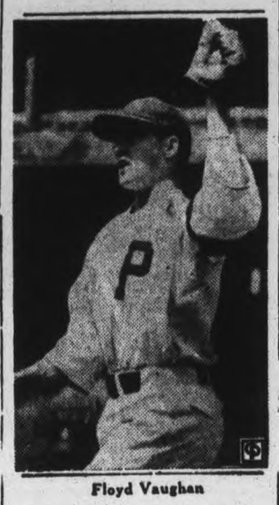
Eddie Legere the old Seagram jockey is plying his trade this year at Detroit with a fair measure of success. He always was a topnotcher in the saddle. Detroit is having a splendid meeting and very formful racing. A lot of the horses doing their stuff there will be seen at Billy Woollatt's coming Devonshire meeting at Windsor. Word comes from Rockingham that a horse called General Lejeune is burning up the track these days. A long race suits this fellow right down to the ground. Our old friend Angry Lass is also down there and will make her presence felt before long.

Roy Johnson, Red Sox — Pounded out four singles and stole base in losing battle with Senators.

Pirates Like Him



Floyd Vaughan

Crack Pittsburg Pirate infielder, who in addition to playing a stellar defensive role in aiding the Bucs with some timely hitting Vaughan is a sparkling, snappy player and his stickwork has him well up in the list of batting leaders.

MRS. MULQUEEN IS ELIMINATED

Star Toronto Golfer Falls Before Shooting of Mrs. Clifton Shuttleworth.

SEMI-FINALS.

HAMILTON, June 6. (CP).—Four of Ontario's star women golfers will do battle on the greens and on the fairyays here to-day as the Ontario ladies' golf championship enters the semi-finals after a day of upsets yesterday.

Highlight of the day was the defeat of Mrs. E. H. Gooderham, Toronto medalist in the qualifying round 4 and 2 at the hands of Miss Kay Bishop, Brantford.

Miss Bishop will meet Mrs. E. W. Whittington, Toronto, who yesterday defeated Miss Caroline Mitchell, Kingston, 4 and 3.

The other two left in the contest are Mrs. Clifton Shuttleworth, Hamilton, who yesterday provided another of the day's upsets by downing Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen, Toronto, and Mrs. C. R. Eddis, Rosedale.

Mrs. Eddis defeated Mrs. E. R. Close, Hamilton, 3 and 1 to enter the semi-finals.

Mrs. Gooderham was two down at the end of the first nine holes in her game with Miss Bishop. She rallied several times later, only to have the young Brantford star go ahead more strongly, to end the match on the 16th hole.

Two down at the turn, Mrs. Shuttleworth thereafter matched par holes with Mrs. Mulqueen and won out on the final green when the latter faltered.

Both Mrs. Whittington and Mrs. Eddis were expected to win their matches.

PRATHER'S HIT DE CIDES GAME IN FAVOR OF THE SENATORS

Six-run Barrage in 8th Gives Buffalo 9-7 Win Over Montreal.

LEAFS-WINGS RAINED OUT.

(By Associated Press.)

Albany Senators apparently have decided it is about time to do something about getting out of the International League cellar for their record to-day shows four straight victories, their longest winning streak of the season and the second time they have won as many as two games in a row.

The Senators put together their 16 victories of the year singly except during the middle of May when they whipped Newark Bears and Rochester Redwings in three successive games and the current streak, which reached four last night when they turned back Syracuse Chiefs 5-4.

Dutch Prather struck what proved to be the deciding blow, when he connected with a homer in the sixth with one mate aboard the bases. The Chiefs came back to tie the score in the seventh, driving Monte Weaver from the mound with a two-run rally. Jimmy Carithers stopped the attack, however, and the Senators put over the winning counter in the eighth.

Buffalo Bisons' bats again brought victory for the league leaders when they came from behind with a six-run barrage in the eighth inning to defeat Montreal Royals 9-7. The victory increased the Bisons' lead to 3½ games over the Royals and Baltimore Orioles. It was also the sixth straight triumph for Buffalo over Montreal this year.

Big Chad Kimsey held the league leaders at bay while his teammates piled up a lead until a heavy rainstorm interrupted the game for 15 minutes in the sixth frame. The Bisons came back strong, routing Kimsey from the box in the eighth. Before leaving the game, however, Kimsey drove in two runs with a homer. The other circuit blow of the game was hit by McGowan who drove in three of the Bisons' runs.

In the only day game played in the circuit, Newark Bears turned back the Orioles 6-3 behind the fine hurling of Marvin Duke. The Newark southpaw held the Birds to one run until the ninth, when he weakened and was taken out. Ted Kleinhans finished the game. Don Heffner led the Newark attack with a single, double and homer.

The Toronto-Rochester game was rained out.

Lakefield Nine Wins One-Sided Decision

LAKEFIELD, June 6 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Lakefield softball team walloped the Burleigh Falls nine in a one-sided fixture which was played on Monday evening with a good crowd of fans in attendance. FIRST INNING COUNTER WINS FOR KINGSTON Williams Gives Masterly Display on Mound in Limestone City Game.

ONE EXTRA BASE HIT.

KINGSTON, June 6—For the second time in a week 'Lefty' Jack Williams, veteran Belleville southpaw, shut out Kingston Ponies, winning 1-0 in the scheduled Central Ontario Baseball League game here yesterday. It was the same score as in Belleville last week, when Williams won.

It was in the first inning that the game was won. The first three men up, Gray, Kerr and Green scratched singles. R. Smith forced Gray at the plate, but Kerr scored the only run of the game after Weir's fly to centre.

Williams was master of the situation for seven innings, and not a Kingston man got as far as second. In the seventh, two singles and a walk filled the bases for the Ponies and Williams then bore down and struck out Stone for the third time in the game. Again in the ninth, the Ponies held a slight chance when Smith singled with two out, but he was thrown out stealing.

It was a great game all through, with clever hurling being seen and uncanny control being displayed. The only walk of the game was an intentional pass to Smith of Ponies in the seventh, while the only extra base hit was a double by Clancy in the eighth.

Gray was the leading hitter, getting three safe blows in five trips to the plate. Compeau and Scrutton each had two hits for Kingston, Smith and Clancy getting the others.

BAILIEBORO CLUB FIRST PLACE TIE

Climb Unto Top Rung With Westclox by Trouncing Keene 15-9.

Bailieboro girls jumped into a first-place tie with Westclox in the City and District League standing last night when they staged a surprise win, trouncing Keene, 15 to 9, in a home game. The winners trotted out a revamped line-up with B. Bullock in left, D. Kennedy at short and R. Wood formerly in short, doing the hurling. Bullock appears to be a real find, having a perfect night in the field with five put-outs.

Grace McCarthy, regular centre-fielder for Keene, took the mound in the first, but courted disaster right from the start, as she walked the first three to face her, and finally retired with one out in the second after Bailieboro had chased eleven counters across, on four hits, and a parade of loose fielding. Her sister, Marilyn, relieved her but the first batter to face her poled out a triple, scoring another run. This was the last hit that the winners got, as Marilyn tightened down, fanned seven, and walked three. The Bailieboro crew added three more counters on six errors. Roberta Wood made her debut on the mound for the homesters, and twirled a neat game, with her teammates playing great ball behind her. She fanned one and passed none. Keene went out in order in three out of the nine frames and were held scoreless in six. They scored two in the first, three in the third and four in the seventh, and in these three frames the opposition had eight out of their nine miscues.

The teams:

Keene: H. Nelson, 2b; E. Manley, ss; M. McCarthy, cf, p; Irene Short, c; Isobel Short, 1b; G. McCarthy, p, cf; J. Nelson, 3b; Gainor, rf; Isobel Nelson, lf.

Bailieboro: M. Wood, 1b; Kennedy, ss; Barnard, c; Whittington, cf; Bullock, lf; White, 3b; R. Wood, p; Carl, 2b; Dawson, rf.

Score by innings:

Keene	202 000 400— 9 10 8
Bailieboro	371 011 00x—15 5 9

SILENT JOHN BEATEN AFTER SEVEN STRAIGHT

Jack Knott Checks Whitehead's Streak to Give Browns 2-0 Victory.

ATHLETICS WIN 9-7.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer.)

The last members of the brigade of rookie pitchers who have been setting the batters of the two major leagues upon their respective ears this season have finally met defeat, but at least one of them, silent John Whitehead of the White Sox, has shown signs of greatness even while losing.

The 25-year-old recruit had won his first eight major league starts before he finally ran into the Browns yesterday and then he lost more because his teammates couldn't get him any runs than because of his own shortcomings.

Whitehead pitched a seven-hit game and granted only two walks and lost it 2-0 when Jack Knott came through with a two-hit masterpiece.

It was a different matter with Vito Tamulis, the little Lithuanian left-hander of the Yankees who had run up five straight victories. He was wild from the start and finally left the game in the fourth with the count 3-1 against him and the bases full.

Bob Johnson welcomed the arrival of Johnny Murphy by belting his 13th homer of the season to clear the sacks and decide the game even though the Yanks tallied four runs in their half of the fourth.

To round out a bad day for the leaders, the second-place Cleveland Indians came out on the short end of a 5-4 score against Detroit Tigers when Tomy Bridges' ninth-inning double won his own game. The teams tried to complete a doubleheader which had been delayed by rain, but darkness stopped them after the sixth with the count 4-4.

Washintgon went 10 innings to beat the Red Sox 5-4 and end an eight game losing streak when Lefty Grove walked in the deciding run.

The Cubs registered the only gain of the day in the National League, beating Cincinnati 5-2 as homers by Chuck Klein and Ken O'Dea helped decide a mound duel between Larry French and Gene Schott. That put them closer to the League leading Giants, who divided a bargain bill with the Phillies and to the Cardinals and Pirates, whose game was rained out.

Fred Fitzsimmons' bad start and Dolph Camilli's eighth homer gave the Phils enough runs in the first inning to take the opener from the Giants 4-3 but the League leaders had little difficulty pounding out a 7-4 decision in the second game.

Brooklyn and Boston also split a double-header, the Dodgers taking the opener 3-0 on Van Mungo's five-hit pitching and the Braves the afterpiece 10-2 on the combination of seven-hit flinging by Fred Frankhouse and a 15-hit assault on George Earnshaw and Johnny Babich.

CAMPBELLFORD

GRAFTON WINS BY SINGLE RUN

Warkworth, the Losers, Have Things Their Own Way Until Ninth Frame.

FINAL SCORE 11-10.

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, June 6. — In the Northumberland League, Grafton defeated Warkworth at Warkworth on Wednesday afternoon by the narrow margin of one run, the final score being 11-10. Up to the start of the ninth innings, Warkworth had things all their own way, the board reading 9-3 in their favor, when Grafton put on a spurt, slipped in six runs and tied the score. The tenth innings was the best frame of the game and both teams played real ball, but Grafton held the locals down to one run and departed victorious.

OUTLAWS SECURE 6 TO 4 VICTORY

McKee Holds Heavy Artillery of Hastings Tanners Down to Six Hits.

HASTINGS, June 6 (Examiner Correspondence). — Slipping three runs across the plate on two successive singles and a circuit drive by Bonds gave "Dit" Clapper's Outlaws a 6 to 4 win over the Tanners in a local softball fixture on Wednesday night. Bitter rivals ever since last year, both teams jammed the sidelines with supporters.

McKee, throwing them across for the winners, held the heavy artillery of the Tanners down to six hits. He was in a tough spot in the first when a double and a triple by the first two men up, along with a slip by his support, allowed two runs to cross; from then on he had the game well in hand. Hahn coasted along until the fatal ninth, when he blew long enough to lose his game.

Bond led the winners with the willow with a single and a homer out of four trips. Hahn, with a double and two singles, collected half the Tanners' hits.

U.C.C. Cricket Team Beats Trinity C.S.

Upper Canada College defeated Trinity College School in the Little Big Four series match played on the former's grounds yesterday by 102 runs. Although rain interfered with play, causing two periods of inactivity, the home side were able to dismiss their opponents from Port Hope within half an hour from the time agreed upon to draw stumps. The T.C.S. team, because of the inclement visitations, with commendable sportsmanship, consented to dispensing with the tea interval. This may or may not have decided the issue, but, in any event, there can be no doubt the stronger team, on the day's play, won. In both bowling and batting the visitors fell short of U.C.C.'s showing.

"DIZZY" DEAN ON THE "SPOT"

Frisch Threatens $5,000 Assessment if Dean Repeats Pittsburgh Actions.

TURNS ON TEAM MATES.

ST. LOUIS, June 6.—Officials of the St. Louis Carinals last night promise a "fine' cure for the temperament of their ace pitcher, Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, who threatened to disrupt the morale of the club in Pittsburg Tuesday.

After listening to reports of Dizzy's annual rampage, Sam Breadon, president, promised "100 per cent." support for anything Manager Frankie Frisch ordered.

Branch Rickey, vice-president of the club, raised him 100 per cent. and promised to double any punishment given Dean should he fight with his teammates again.

Frisch, Rickey was told, threatened to fine Dean $5,000 should he repeat his action of Tuesday, nearly leading to open warfare at Pittsburg.

It all started when Dizzy apparently lost interest in the game he was pitching. A Cardinal error allowing a runner to score with two out, followed by a double scoring three additional runs aroused Dizzy.

He called the Cardinals a "lousy" club and warfare was imminent within the dugout. Later Dizzy appeared to toss the balls over the plate instead of steaming them in.

That prompted a threat of a fine, "if it happens just once more."

Frisch (in Pittsburg) said: "I'll fine Dean $5,000."

Dean (in Pittsburg) said: "He didn't say $5,000, he said $10,000.

Taking Dizzy and Breadon at their word, it would appear that a renewal of Tuesday's tactics would just about take the pitcher off the gold standard. He receives $22,000 annually.

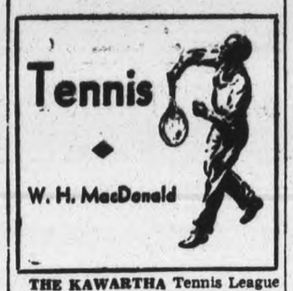
Tuesday's affair, however, had the "ear marks" of being Dean's annual display of temper

Dean's temperament record:

1934—Went on strike for more money for Paul, his brother. Went home instead of Detroit for an exhibition game.

1933—Went home instead of reporting to Elmira N.Y., for an exhibition game.

1932—Wasn't with the Cardinals long enough to get into trouble.



THE KAWARTHA Tennis League opens its schedule Saturday afternoon when the South Group of the league, comprising teams from the Peterborough Club, Kawartha Club, Lakefield and Port Hope, meet.

The Peterborough A team will journey to Lakefield while the Peterborough C squad will be entertaining Port Hope on the McDonnel St. courts.

KAWARTHA A team will get a bye this week as there are five clubs in this section but they will start their season next week when the Peterborough A team pays them a visit.

The North Group, with an even four teams, are idle th is week, but all four will see action on June 15th when their schedule opens. Clubs are reminded that all matches are to commence at 2 p.m. (standard time). .. ..

THE PETERBOROUGH Club has three entries in the league and as yet hasn't decided which team will be the A team for the year.

Last week Bob Maybee's team took four of six matches from Jack Kirkwood and last evening on the club courts they met Mac Cotton's outfit and took the same number from them. They give promise of being the strong team of the club and will likely be the A squad for the year.

The results of the matches were as follows (Cotton's team mentioned first):

Mac Cotton took two straight sets from Jack Cowling, the first after a hard fight 7-5 and the second 6-2.

In the ladies' singles Sadie Levine lost a hard first set to Muriel Donaldson by an 8-6 score. Miss Donaldson also took the second set 6-4.

IN THE MEN'S doubles, Geo. Scott and Henry Toole lost to Bob Maybee and Doug McPherson 6-1, 2-6, 4-6.

Ben Swartz and Max Clark won a well played match from Harry Marsh and Jim Orr 2-6, 6-3, 6-4.

In the mixed doubles Anna Franks and Howie Macdonald lost a see-saw battle to Alice Davis and Walter Perks 7-5, 6-2, 3-6.

Mrs. J. Dewart and Grace Caddy lost to Betsy Scott and Maisie Cowan 10-12, 4-6.

FRIDAY afternoon Mac Cotton's team will meet Jack Kirkwood's, and following this match, the A, B and C teams will be determined on a win and loss basis.

WE HAVE A LETTER from the treasurer of the Peterborough club advising all members of the club that the fees are to be in not later than June 15th. This rule is to be strictly enforced this year and those who are not in the good graces of the treasurer by the 15th will not be allowed the use of the courts. All fees are to be sent to Max Cotton, 208 Reid street, and if cheques are used, they are to be made payable to the Peterborough Tennis Club.

THIS AFTERNOON, starting at 4.30, the Grove School will meet the Peterborough club on the McDonnel street courts in an exhibition match. The Lakefield school team play a good game and they expect to give the locals plenty of opposition. Last week they visited the Kawartha club and took five out of six matches. Visitors are welcome at the courts to see these matches. .. ..

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(By C. J. P.)

Up in the Auburn Field tonight at 6.30, Dinty's Inn and Auburns meet in a Tri-County Lacrosse League fixture, their first meeting of the year. With the Woollens stepping high, wide and fairly handsome, it seems up to the Dinty crew to put a stop to this nonsense—if such it be. Shapes up like a swell struggle and a none too gentle one betwixt these outfits. Should get a crowd. You can get there by car, bus or shank's mare. The place is laid out in the field a hundred yards or so directly east of the Auburn plant.

Some of the followers of men's softball are laying dough on the Fashion-Crafts tonight to take Hood and Cummings for a ride at Central. The crew managed by Freddie Scates have been sailing merrily along taking everything in their stride while George Dormer's outfit has been having more reverses than the N.R.A. lately. Collison and Naish will likely start on the opposing mounds and we wouldn't be too surprised to see both managers in the lineups if necessary before all the votes are in. Lillico Motors play Hood and Cummings Friday night and Omemee plays Fashion-Crafts here Monday p.m.

Down in Bailieboro about twilight yesterday, the Keene girl softballers ran smack into a surprise and the wrong end of a 16-9 count. With Roberta Wood twirling steady ball and getting good support, Keene took it where the turkey gets the hatchet. Grace McCarthy had a lot of trouble with walks and hits on the other mound till she retired in the second and Marilyn McCarthy then held the opposition to one hit while fanning seven the rest of the way. Bailieboro got a total of just five hits while Keene got 10, yet they lost out by six runs—proving something or other, we suppose. Friday's game here between Bailieboro and Westclox in the Bowl should be nifty since the villagers are strengthened up and yearning for revenge on the Alarm Lassies.

And this from Kingston: "You've heard a lot of how hard the youngsters are to handle at the Fair Grounds, but they're not a patch to the way the youngsters are allowed to run riot in the Peterborough field. On Saturday, one of the favorite stunts was to heave dead fish at the Kingston players. And with the president of the league looking on!" Tush, tush, maybe the kids didn't know it was a dead fish—maybe they thought it was just another Kingston player who had passed out and they were tossing him back to his teammates! At that, we believe the youngsters who hang around the dugouts should be ejected if they don't behave.

Chappy Johnson's N'Yawk colored team, the Terriers, play Petes an exhibition tilt at three bells in Riverside Saturday afternoon. Ought to be an interesting contest as these negroes play fast ball. They also dish up a shadow-ball stunt during their infield workout. The locals play tonight in Belleville in the C.O.B.I. and in Kingston next Wednesday, with Belleville back here a week from tomorrow. This exhibition game ought to keep them in trim and maybe the boys will start to show their real fielding ability. To date this season, the locals—real strong last year defensively—have to depend on their hitting and pitching to break even in four games, as their fielding has been enough to make strong men weep. But they should be clicking okay shortly. Nothing lasts forever.

Shorty Moran, prexy of the Detroit Baseball Federation, has asked for an investigation into the "machinations" of the O.B.A.A. He charged that several Detroit players had been induced to desert to Ontario clubs. One federation manager said he could produce a telegram in which one of his players was offered $35 a week by an Ontario team. Bill Smith of Toronto, life member of the O.B.A.A., comes right back and states that the Ontario Association has no knowledge of any Detroit players being induced to desert to Ontario clubs. He added that the associations worked together and that the O.B.A.A. had Moran's O.K. on any player coming here from Detroit. And he offered to investigate the $35-a-week charge. As there have been a number of players from Detroit the past two years throughout Ontario, we wouldn't be surprised if the case proved interesting yet.

Church Softball League keeps running off a raft of games every fine evening. Last night, Murray St. kept up its fast pace in the senior section with a 14-12 nod over St. Paul's; All Saints' Juniors handed George St. its first setback in five starts, 9 to 4; Murray St. Juveniles walloped Mark St., 19-7; Park St. clinched a bantam playoff berth with a nice 25-24 squeeze over George St.; and St. John's took Knox Bantams, 8-4, in a neat tilt behind Clarke's smart twirling—he fanned a dozen. Account of some important legislation passed by the Church Loop executive last eve appears in tonight's paper elsewhere. Games this evening: Trinity Seniors vs. Mark St. at the Oval, umps from Murray and St. Paul's; Knox Juveniles vs. St. James at King Edward, umps from All Saints and Trinity.

On June 20th, which is two weeks from tonight, Auburns and Dinty's Inn tangle in a benefit lacrosse game in Auburn Field at seven bells (Daylight Saving). Proceeds go to Bernard (Bun) Hatton, classy player for Dinty's Inn, who had his right eye injured in a game in Lindsay May 28th. The sight is partially impaired, we understand, and he will never be able to see clearly again with that eye—just discern large objects, perhaps. A blood vessel in the eye was ruptured in the accident. His fellow-players are selling tickets for this game now and we hope all sports followers will take one for a good sport who had tough luck.

WEIGHT OF MONEY

WINDSOR, Ont., June 6 (CP)—One of things to be wary of to-day is the influence of "a group of millionaires" on the country's newspapers, Chancellor H. P. Whidden of McMaster University told the Western Association of Baptist Churches' Convention here. As an instance of influence on the press, he said Hon. H. H. Stevens' Mass Buying pamphlet had not been printed in an Eastern Canada newspaper because an advertiser asked its suppression.

Up And Down

TRINITY PROTEST IS NOT ALLOWED

No Request Made to Umpire to Stop the Game Through Bad Weather.

The Church Softball League executive met last night with a full turnout to consider protests and handle other business. Trinity Seniors' protest of their game with St. Paul's on May 27 was not allowed. Though the conditions that evening were not ideal, the teams had shown no great degree of unwillingness to play, and no request had been made to the umpire to stop the game by the captains. The executive felt the game might have been called, but since the teams seemed content to play in the rain, it was a game.

All Saints' Bantams' protest of St. John's using Player A. Morley was disallowed as special permission for his transfer by the league was given on May 9th. A protest from Mark Street regarding Player D. Crary of Murray Street, over his age, was left with W. Thirnbeck and D. Charlton to act upon. If he is over age, the game won by Murray Street over Mark Street last night will be forfeited

The St. John's-St. James' bantam game of May 13 was settled by giving each team a point. The game had finished a tie with a disputed winning run for St. James' proving a keen controversial point. This decision by the executive was taken not as a compromise or an easy way out, but appeared the best way to decide a game that had been poorly umpired and where spectators had interfered.

Awarded Default.

Another difficult decision was made giving the senior game of June 5 between Mark Street and Knox to the latter team by default. The Mark Street manager had tried to have this game called off by 'phoning the secretary. The latter claimed he had granted no postponement as the reasons given by Mark Street were not within his powers. The Knox team had appeared for the game, but had no adversaries. If the game had been called off on Mark St.'s reason of players working, Mark Street would have lost anyway by default if those supposedly working players took part that night in a South-end Softball League game.

The Church League has a very disappointing second half due to the senior section schedule being drawn up so as not to conflict with the South-end League schedule If the South-end League has postponed games allotted to nights that mean some Church League players must make a choice between leagues, it is not the Church League's fault—nor duty to avoid.

Approval was given to the altering of the Murray Street-Knox game May 31 to May 30 because of a class banquet. A request from George Street Seniors to postpone their game of June 7 with Murray Street was granted due to a class excursion by the former team. Final decisions were given in the cases of players' transfers. P. Martin was declared ineligible to play with George Street. D. Hendren may play with George Street, his transfer being granted from St. Andrew's. G. Watson, it was found, had attended Sunday School as late as April 4 at another church, and will be lost to St. James or other teams this season. Games he has played in as well as those Martin has must be replayed, but will stand as won or lost.

It was decided to take quick action regarding the fisticuffs in the junior game at the Oval last night. Players W. Wright of George Street and G. Pulford of All Saints', alleged combatants following a report from the umpires, may be suspended—either or both. Chairman L. Agnew will take care of it.

Changes in Schedule

Changes in the schedule authorized were: George Street Juveniles vs. Mark Street at the Oval June 7 (if both teams are willing); St. James' Bantams vs. George Street at Queen Mary June 7. The Park Street-All Saints' Bantam game of June 7 is postponed.

SECOND VICTORY WEST SEYMOUR

Westerners Take Commanding Lead For 7-4 Win Over Pethericks.

LEAGUE STANDINGS.

BURNBRAE, June 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—In a well-played Seymour League game on Tuesday evening, West Seymour took a commanding lead in the race by beating Petherick's 7 runs to 4. This gives the Westerners two straight wins and no losses.

While Anderson, in the box for the winners, did not register as many stirkeouts as in his last game, he fanned five and kept six hits well scattered. He issued three walks and each counted for a run, so that ePthericks had actually only one earned run.

Kerr pitched only the first stanza for the losers, striking out one, being nicked for three hits which, with one error, counted for there runs. Ewing hurled the next stanza, issuing one walk but no hits or runs and striking out one. Barnum, in his first appearance as a league pitcher finished the game and turned in a nice card. He fanned five, walked two and was touched for five hits. These, however, were bunched in the third and seventh stanzas together with a couple of errors, and this gave the West side the winning margin. Waddell upset a Western rally in the final frame by failing to touch third as he raced home on McKenzie's hit.

EXHIBITION GAME HERE ON SATURDAY

New York Terriers (Colored Team) to Meet Johnson Motors Outfit.

New York Terriers play an exhibition game with Johnson Motors at three o'clock in Riverside Park Saturday. This colored team is at present touring Eastern Ontario, playing in places like Kingston and Brockville, and has agreed to come here for one contest. Rated a first-class amateur squad, the Terriers are drawing big crowds on their tour. They dish up fast ball and introduce an amusing shadow-ball display for the fans during the infield workout preceding the game. They advertise their first-sacker, Jackson, as 'the greatest one-hand firstbaseman in the game." Chappy Johnson manages the negro outfit.

Knotty Lee expects to shakeup his team for Saturday owing to slipshod fielding by the locals in recent games. The outfield will likely be the same but one or two infield positions may be changed around, and the starting battery is uncertain yet. He is thinking of using three twirlers, Lefty Lepper, Spook Scriver and Gord (Big) Smoke, the Indian rookie. It promises to be a good exhibition tussle and should draw a large crowd Saturday afternoon, if the weather is all right.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

NUMBER 631

Use of misleading terms comes in epidemics. Just now we are suffering from a vogue of the terms "flat" and "upright." These terms are terribly misleading because they don't give the facts.

A swing may be called too flat or too upright. In either case it's obvious that the swing is not correct. The player who has been told his swing is too flat will try to make it more upright and vice versa. He hasn't one chance in a million of getting into the proper groove.

The proper groove finds the left arm in a certain relation to the body throughout the wind-up and the down-swing. The arm is kept close to the chest. Take care of this item and you'll not have to worry about swinging too flat or too upright.

Impressive Showing Is Made By Deyell

Archie Deyell made an impressive showing in a recent intermediate "A" ball game against Copper Cliff when pitching for Falconbridge, the former Petes' heaver shut out the Cliffites, 12-0, with only two hits. Deyell struck out 11 men, and the Sudbury Star says he "rose to great heights on the mound." Only 30 batters faced the big fellow during the nine innings. Ike Batten, Petes' third-sacker last year, played third for Falconbridge and had one hit for three with no fielding chances.

GYPSY GIRL

Willowby, who owned the breeding farm, desired to know more concerning the artist whose paintings he beheld in the gypsy camp.

"Ah, now," said Girtza, scenting business, "it is the Dummy you mean. Ah that lad, that lad, a clever one he is and always it is he is painting as if his fingers would never tire. Horses I know something about also, but painting—all I know is that there are times when I look at his work I am carried away and forget I am standing looking at something, but I think I also am part of what he has painted." He shook his head. "A portrait of me he has done that is like looking into a mirror. And of my little one, my daughter, he is always painting, yet she has gone away and it is like having her there in the camp—all but for her laughter—her dancing" he signed. "Ah, now it is only pictures he paints of her which I cannot take in my arms—" He turned away his head, emotion stirring him. After a moment he added: "Perhaps it is, you'd like a sight of his work—the youth is a deaf and dumb one, but he talks through his brushes—perhaps you'll come see?"

"I'd be inclined to say no if I hadn't seen that one small canvas," answered Willowby. "Time's not so valuable down here but what I can afford a bit of it—"but to himself he was thinking, "Sucker, that's right go along with the gypsy and see if he can cheat you over a picture." Aloud he called to one of his stable men that he'd be back shortly and following Girtza, remarked: "Your camp is the one to the west of my fences, on Gilman's property, isn't it?"

Girtza nodded.

The conversation languished as they went through the grazing fields and over to the road which led down to the gate. A half hour's walk brought them to the edge of the camp and Girtza turned the horses over to a gypsy lad and led the way through the clearing around to the far side, where, forming the head of a horseshoe, stood his own van and tent. On the shaded side the Dummy was working, the back of the easel to them.

As they came to the side of the van, Willowby stopped short and stared at the picture of Consuelo the Dummy had painted there.

"What a lovely dancing girl!" His eyes lighted and he stepped up to get a better view. "Why, of course, it is the Gypsy Dancer—how strange to find her likeness here." He turned to Girtza. "Is she one of your tribe "

"You mean," asked Girtza, his throat dry—"you know—the little one?" His hand trembled as he pointed at the picture.

Willowby nodded. "That is, I guess anyone who's been in New York this winter has either seen or heard of the Gypsy Dancer of Broadway. She is—?"

"Aye, my daughter," said Girtza. "She is the little bad one who used to dance with us. She has left us like dogs." His voice faltered. "You say you know her—you've seen her? Tell me, my friend, is she all right? She is well? She is happy?"

"Oh, I don't know her personally. I've gone to see her dance a number of times. Mighty clever dancer—something about her—" The Dummy was tugging at his sleeve.

Girtza answered the man's puzzled look.

"He cannot speak nor hear, but it is your lips he is reading. He has fought for her. He loved her. You understand? Tell us more, my friends, we are hungry for news."

"You know nothing of her success?" The other shook his head, "Why, she's one of the biggest stars in New York. Used to have one act in the Follies, but she was so good they put her on as headliner just before I left. She's a remarkable dancer. Consuelo, I think her name is. She's an artist's dream—now I can understand when you say the lad her is always painting her." He spoke to the Dummy, unconsciously his lips forming the words more clearly. "I see you've caught her beauty there—" pointing to the van—"remarkble on rough boards like that. But then, she's all color, no drabness, no sameness. You have other work on canvas of her?" The Dummy nodded, his eyes eager, his body tensed, breathless. Again Willowby turned to Girtza. "But surely you knew where she was, knew of this success she is making?"

"Ah, no, my friend," was the sad reply. "She ran away like a young colt that was afraid of the harness. Her feet were music and the camp was without fire when she left us." He was ashamed of the way his voice was trembling. "You are a friend of this old gypsy to bring these tidings. You think my daughter, this mad little one, is happy so far away and alone?"

"To see her dance one would say she could not help but be happy—but then, as I said, I do not know her."

"She is—married?" The question hesitated on his lips.

Willowby cleared his throat.

"There is talk—talk of it between her and a very wealthy man, a chap by the name of Blackmire."

"Of marriage?" Girtza repeated.

The other nodded and said no more of Blackmire.

He told them that he knew of Consuelo and answered eager questions and noted how the eyes of the Dummy glowed, and he thought, "How well he loved her!" And he looked at Girtza and the stern lines in the gypsy's face had relaxed and his lips were curved in a smile, and he thought, "He loved her too and she has broken both their hearts by her running away—" He suspected that there might be other hearts in this gypsy camp that the little dancer had carried ruthlessly in her arms and had dropped when her arms had become tired.

"I am going back to New York shortly," he found himself saying, "and I will make a point of meeting this dancer and telling her of today."

"She is the bad one and had better stay in New York in her gorgio clothes—"

Willowby wondered whether the old gypsy meant the stern words. However, he turned to the Dummy.

"The gypsy here brought me to see some of your work." He indicated the easel, the back of which faced them. "May I look?"

Quickly the Dummy shook his head and then wrote on a pad from his pocket. "Not yet. It is not finished."

"It's of her?" A nod. "When will you finish it?" A shrug of the shoulders, then six fingers held up carelessly. Six days?" A nod—and also a shake of the head. "You mean you don't quite know?" Another nod. "Let me see some of your finished work?" The Dummy hastened to his own tent and Willowby said to Girtza: "I can do the lad no end of good if his work holds as much promise as that picture on the side of your wagon." But Girtza made no answer—perhaps he was thinking of his little bad one.

As Willowby had said, he knew horses and he knew oils, and as he examined the Dummy's work, his enthusiasm grew. He saw genius there; he saw color work which he had seldom seen before, something so vivid, so alive, so vital as to catch and hold the eye, and he could understand why Girtza had said, in his crude way, that he became one with that which was painted before him. He was amazed at the depth of understanding he found and he was delighted with the subjects. Here was something to catch the eye of his clients. Money to be made introducing this gypsy's work—more than money, no less than fame for the Dummy, and for himself for discovering the work of a new artist and giving it forth to an appreciative public.

He complimented the boy. He discussed prices, the talk greatly hampered by the necessity of written replies from his questions. He found the youth did not bargain nor haggle on price and unconsciously he became more generous in his offers. He selected the best of the work. He noted how many there were of the dancing girl and he knew how readily the pictures of her would sell now that she was the rage in New York. He told the Dummy to bring the ones he had selected over to his farm and there he would pay him and make arrangements for him to send future work direct to his New York gallery. He had found a real artist. He wanted exclusive rights to his work. At a last minute examination he noted the pictures were unsigned. He questiond it. The Dummy wrote not answer, but took his brush and in the corner of one signed the words "The Dummy", and his lips twisted in a strange smile.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, June 7

The planetary configurations emphasize the leaning toward the personal and more private affairs of life rather than the business, unless the latter be affiliated with art, social activities, feminine or domestic avocations. All these should thrive and give much happiness, despite matters of trivial annoyance. Romantic or domestic concerns may relegate all else to the background. It is a most auspicious wedding day, in the gift of the Love Star.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a most happy year in the pursuit of pleasure or in those things furthering the progress, prosperity and enhancement of all relating to art, culture, romance and the domestic avocations. It is a time for friendship, courtship and marriage par excellence, since Venus, the Love Star, holds the field.

A child born on this day should have a lovely disposition and personality, with many graces, charms and talents which should be carefully cultured.

ATHLETE'S FOOT

Almost everybody complains, at one time or another, of this trouble with the feet. Whether the result of ill-fitting shoes or disease germs the result is keenest discomfort. There is redness, irritation and itching and burning of the skin which becomes discolored and peels off. By bathing in hot water and applying Dr. Chase's Ointment relief is soon obtained. Most golfers, swimmers, tennis and ball players know of the effectiveness of this time-proven medicinal treatment. It kills the disease germs and clings to the skin, soothing and healing it.

THE MACHINE AGE

(By F. F. Long, Mayor of Campbellford)

This is a machine age. To illustrate: In Spartanburg there is a knitting works where one girls sets in motion thirty-five machines, giving an output equal to five thousand persons knitting by hand. We go into a textile plant and see a weaver looking after a number of automatic looms, when the old style looms required a weaver for every loom.

We enter a candy factory and see an "enrober" coating goods with chocolate—doing as much work as fifty hand-dippers could do, and doing it well, but it means at least fifty choclate dippers out of work for each enrober used in the plant. Consider the modern bakery, with its power flour sifters, dough mixers, moulders and so on—how many men would be required in an old style bakery to get out the same production?

How many girls have been forced out of employment by the automatic switchboard, the machine telephone that is almost human in its actions? How many actors, actresses, and musicians have lost their regular employment through the invention of 'sound' pictures? Let us briefly survey in the great outdoor industrial world. We see steam shovels, each one taking the place of sixty laboring men. We see power driven cement mixers, road working machinery, farm machinery, stone crushers, and so on. It is true that some stone is still being broken with sledge hammers, by gentlemen attired in striped suits. It is also true that road work is still being done in Georgia, and probably in other States of the Union, by men in similar attire, (they are called chain gangs) but this sort of thing isn't universal enough to affect the main issue.

Tremendous Production

Surely, every thoughtful person must realize that if every factory was working at capacity, and every outdoor contract, or job, was rushed to completition at the rate of ten hours, or even eight or six hours of working time per day, the saturation point would soon be reached and in the factories we would have over-production, while the outdoor jobs would soon be finished, and in both cases the work people would be out of work. If every textile plant in the cities of Lawrence and Lowell, Mass. was running at capacity for ten hours per day the year round they could produce more than enough woollen and worsted cloth to supply the total needs of the entire United States. If every shoe factory in the state of Massachusetts were operated to capacity for ten hours per day they could keep the entire nation supplied with shoes. If every automobile manufacturing plant in the State of Michigan were running full blast ten hours per day throughout the year, used cars would be a "drug on the market" in two years time. Of course, I mean good used cars, the other kind are a "drug on the market now."

Plans For Employment

The unemployment situation could be relieved to a certain extent: By retiring some of the older workmen on a pension.

By cutting down the hours of labor per day, and dividing the work to be done amongst a greater number of workmen.

By letting married women who have husbands at work, remain at home, thus giving more work to single girls who are badly in need of it.

By having the government proceed with the erection of needed public buildings, the removal of grade crossings, the wiping out of slum districts, and the erection of decent homes for the submerged fourth" of humanity.

This plan would relieve conditions for a time, but the cure would not be permanent. Some day the public buildings would all be erected, the grade crossings would all be done away with, the main roads would all be paved, the people would all be well housed, and all that would be needed would be a comparatively small group of workers to look after repairs. What about the employment situation then? In the meantime let us proceed with this plan, and it will give us time to "set our house in order", and work out a suitable, and necessary change in our capitalistic system, to meet changed conditions in the world's work.

Canada May Aid Abyssinia As War Looms Again

Statement of Premier Mussolini that various European governments are shipping arms and munitions to Abyssinia seems to be borne out by this picture showin Ethiopian warriers carrying boxes of ammunitions at Addis-Ababa. Here the troops of Emperor Haile Selassie are concentrating for expected war with Italy's expeditionary force. It is now reported that Canada is to join in supplying Ethiopia with war materials.

Cyclist Sustains Painful Injuries

Suffering from a torn ligament and dislocated cartilage in his left knee, and severe shock and bruises, with possible internal injuries, Lorne O. Pearse was removed to his home at 435 Rogers Street, following an accident of which he was the victim at about 4.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Pearse was cycling west on Hunter Street, it is stated, when he was knocked from his bicycle by a motor car driven by E. W. Avery, 41 Hunter Street East, who was suddenly forced to turn out to avoid collision with another car.

The second car involved bore an American license plate, it is learned, and the driver unwittingly precipitated the condition which resulted in the accident when he suddenly signalled a left turn and attempted to swing up Sheridan Street.

The injured man was attended by Dr. J. M. O'Brien.

William Fisher, 289 Armour Road, was the victim of a second accident, in which he sustained minor injuries and damage to his machine when knocked from his motorcycle on McDonnel Street, near Rubidge Street. The car which is stated to have made a sudden and unexpected left turn was driven by Alex. Northey, 619 Aylmer Street.

YOU— AND YOUR CAR

BY

Frederick G. Russell

A Weekly Column Conducted by The Examiner for Drivers of Automobiles.

EIGHTY MILES AN HOUR IS A PERFECT SPEED TO TRAVEL IF YOUR DESTINATION IS THE HEREAFTER

When To Check Knees

To alter the caster of the front wheels of any car carrying independent front wheel suspension, if camber is adjustable, it is necessary to have the car at what is known as curb weight, on level ground and with the tires properly inflated. The spare tire, or any rear-end luggage equipment, must be taken into consideration. Camber measurements and changes should also be made under similar conditions.

Some cars have a permanent caster angle and some permanent camber built into the car by reason of the setting of the front end, the position of the spring in its channel in the frame or the wide separation of the upepr and lower control arms. However, it is important to check caster and camber angles to determine if they are correct or whether they have been altered through shock, strain or collision.

Have You Slow Eyes?

Among the things that are likely to be slow about a driver, especially as he grows older, is his eyesight. Slow eyes are also very often accompanied by a narrow range of vision which is just as dangerous as a blind spot caused by one of the body posts. Reaction time is said to have nothing to do with intelligence, since some of the most unenlightened truck drivers are as quick as a flash with the car controls. But if your reaction time is slow, or your eyes do not adjust themselves for quick focusing, it is a matter of wisdom to adjust your speed accordingly.

Spare Key Handy Aid

Where there is a likelihood of misplacing your key container it is an excellent idea to carry a spare ignition key somewhere in the car. One motorist tied the extra key to one of the wires up under the dash. Another inserted the spare key in the tool bag. But of course you will want to think of something original for the sake of the extra protection it will give you.

Want This New Wheel?

Do you like those new type steering wheels which are not only ornamental but which bend gracefully when you happen to lean against the rim? They are now obtainable for replacement on cars which carry the more conventional type wheel. If you have a birthday coming better mention this to the family.

Mechanic Joe Speaking:

"Customers sometimes are annoyed when I ask them to leave the car with me for a few hours or perhaps the whole day. Maybe they think I want to take a spin, but my idea is merely to study the situation after things cool off. A water leak in an exhaust manifold, for example, may not be visible when the engine is running, because heat evaporates the water.

"I always hesitate to have any work done to the brakes if they have just been put through a lot of hard service. When they cool off they will operate more normally and should be tested that way."

Is Steering Too Sluggish?

Sluggish steering is coming in for considerable attention these days. It may be due to the front tires being soggy, or to the steering assembly needing lubrication. If the front wheels are out of line there will be retarded steering sufficient to give the driver more to do than he can handle when occasion arises for swinging the car sharply to the right or left.

Signal By Slowing Down

When the driver behind seems to be trying to overtake you why not just slow down a little to give him the signal that you wish he would hurry? The usual habit is to run along for an annoying distance while he is trying to make up his mind whether to pass. A few drivers impatient wave for him to pass by. Somehow the idea of slowing down is a sure cue and certainly it makes a welcome contribution to safety.

QUERIES FROM CAR OWNERS

Q.—I am having trouble with the twin horns on my car. Often at night, and particularly when driving fast, the horns either fail completely or do not give sufficient warning. Changing the adjustment of the horns does not seem to help. All electrical connections are tight. —H.N.S.

A.—The battery may be weak or the generator may not charge high enough to take care of the horns when the lights are on. After checking over these points it would be well to have a horn booster attached. This is an inexpensive device that operates like a telegraph relay to provide a direct path for the current to travel from battery to the horns.

SIX CANDIDATES ARE CONFIRMED

Right Rev. A. R. Beverley Conducts Service at Mount Julian.

MOUNT JULIAN, June 6.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Confirmation service was held in Holy Trinity Church here at 3 o'clock on Monday afternoon, June 3, the Right Rev. A. R. Beverley officiating. Six candidates were presented to the bishop by the rector, Rev. E. C. Moore.

The bishop's address was a very helpful and inspiring one, not only to the new candidates, but also to those who had been confirmed in past years, stressing especially the need of forbearance and the strength derived by prayer.

The church was prettily decorated with orchids, lilacs and tulips, while the chancel floor and furnishings had been just newly covered, the whole giving forth a very fresh and inviting appearance.

Mr. Wilfred Farrant, of Hamilton, spent the week-end with friends here.

The Smiths, of Montreal, have opened their summer home on Boscobell Island, Stoney Lake, for the summer.

Mrs. Charles Lauder is spending a vacation at the home of her nephew, Mr. Oscar Church, in Peterborough.

Improvement Seen In Railway Situation

HAMILTON, Ont., June 6 (C.P.)—Slight improvement in the railway situation in Canada was seen in the report yesterday of the transportation committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in annual meeting here.

The improvement was shown through increases in gross and net revenues but the commission declared the country was still faced with annual contributions for equipment, construction, betterments and interest due on securities held by the public, which, it was estimated, would require $48,200,000 in 1935.

Two Prisoners Escape Cobourg Jail

DESPERATE PAIR FORCE CELL BAR AS POLICE EAT

Abandon Two Girl Companions in Next Cell and $4,000 Loot Nearby.

FLEE IN STOLEN CAR.

On Way to Toronto From Montreal For Part in North York Job.

TORONTO, June 7.—(CP).—While police searched city streets and provincial highways for Alex Cross and Fred Shaw, who escaped from Cobourg jail last night, the stolen car in which the pair fled was found six miles from downtown Toronto and echoes of the sensational break were heard in police court.

Alma House and Cora Brown, companions of Cross and Shaw, who were being brought from Montreal to Toronto for questioning in connection with the North York township robbery, were charged with theft of two rugs from an apartment building and remanded until June 14 ,on $3,000 bail.

COBOURG, June 7.—Fred Shaw and Alex Cross, wanted in Toronto for several recent robberies, including the sensational $60,000 raid on the offices of the North York Township tax collector, forced a steel door in the local lock-up last evening, climbed out of a rear window, stole a Chevrolet car from the street and vanished while their police custodians sat at supper in a nearby restaurant.

Up to this morning the fleeing pair had successfully evaded capture, despite the fact that police cars were scouring the immediate district, Toronto authorities had thrown a complete cordon of officers about their city and every provincial constable between Cobourg and the Quebec border, ordered on duty by Queen's Park headquarters, was maintaining special vigil over roads.

A report Cross and Shaw were seen in Morganston proved erroneous today, as Provincial Police raced over Northumberland and Campbellford counties in search of the fugitives.

The two men answering the description of Cross and Shaw were seen in Morgantown, 30 miles north of here, last night, but police who rushed to the spot were unable to locate the pair.

En Route To Toronto.

Shaw and Cross, who, with two girl companions, Elma Howes and Cora Hart, were arrested in Montreal on Tuesday, were en route to Toronto to stand trial, when they staged their electrifying "break for liberty." They had been travelling in a Toronto police car, in the custody of Inspector Arthur Parrish, Sergeant of Detectives Harold Watterhouse and Chief Roy Riseborough of North York, with P.C. Miles Sharp at the wheel of the vehicle.

On reaching Cobourg, the party had stopped to eat, the prisoners being turned over to the local police. Shaw and Cross were lodged in one steel cell and their companions in another. Half an hour later, when the officers prepared to resume the trip they found their "birds" had "flown the coop."

Loot Is Overlooked

In their mad dash for freedom the pair apparently made no effort to free the women. They also gave no heed to a suitcase containing some $4,000, which is alleged to have been taken from them when arrested in Montreal, and which, during the Cobourg halt, had been locked up in the police building.

Chief of Police Ruse of Cobourg said afterwards he didn't know what happened, and declined to answer questions as to whether the 'break' would bring suspension for any officials under his jurisdiction.

Examination of the cell from which Shaw and Cross made their get-away revealed that they had braced themselves against the door, shoving it sideways. The side of MONTREAL, June 7.—(AP).—A committee of five commissioners to the Presbyterian Assembly was named to-day by the Moderator, Rev. D. T. L. The committee will include Rev. William Barclay, of Hamilton, Rev. Dr. Stuart Parker, Rev. J. B. Skene, T. P. Geggie, William Milligan, all of Toronto.

Appointment of the committee was decided upon after the Assembly heard Rev. H. A. Berlis, of Toronto, chairman of the institution's board of management, and Miss Winifred Ferguson, principal, say the professors had declined to lecture next year to students of the home.

TORONTO OFFICERS HERE.

Tired out from an all-night search for the two prisoners who escaped from custody in the Cobourg lock-up while being transferred from Montreal to Toronto as suspects in the robbery from the offices of North York Township tax collector, four Toronto police officers brought their big 8-cylinder car to a brief halt here this morning.

At least two of the four officers are believed to have had responsibility for the custody of the two escaped men, and their two girl companions, and it is thought their search spread out into this area owing to the fact that Alexander Cross is a former resident of Norwood and might have sought refuge somewhere in this district.

Obtained Second Car

Latest word brought by the Toronto officers here was to the effect that Cross and his companion, Fred Shaw had succeeded in penetrating the police cordon which is drawn tightly around the City of Toronto, that the two suspects had abandoned the stolen car in which they made their get-away from Cobourg, and had obtained possession of a Cadillac car in the Queen City.

QUICK TRIGGER BOSTON KILLERS SENT TO CHAIR

Two Brothers and Pal Pay For Slaying of Officer, Ex-Canadian, in Hold-up.

FOUR WANTON KILLINGS.

(By A. Leo Taffe, Associated Press Staff Writer.)

BOSTON, June 7 (A.P.). — New England's most ruthless gang of killers, the Millen-Faber machine gun trio, paid for four wanton killings early to-day in the electric chair at State Prison.

Murton Millen, 25, his brother, Irving, 21, and their college graduate pal, Abraham Faber, died within a space of 30 minutes after midnight for their brief but bloody career of crime. They were sentenced for the machine gun slaying of Patrolman Forbes McLeod, former resident of Guysboro, N.S., during a $14,500 robbery and holdup of the Needham Trust Company on February 2, 1934.

Bride May Be Freed.

While they died, Murton's 20-year-old bride, Norma, was sleeping in her cell in Dedham Jail, where she has been confined since last September as an accessory. Now a widow, the pretty daughter of a former minister may be freed immediately. She was ordered confined by Judge Nelson P. Brown until such time as her husband's career "no longer was a matter of public interest."

A few hours before he died, Murton made a will, leaving his all to the girl who left her country home and her country friends to marry

OFFICER BACKS HALL REGARDING DAWSON REMARK

Repeated to Him When He Mentioned Baynes to Inspector, Says Megloughlin.

ASKED DAWSON TO TEA.

Details of Lengthy Interview With Hall Refused By Accused.

OTTAWA, June 7. —(CP)— Col. W. B. Megloughlin, former warden of Kingston penitentiary, said today Inspector J. D. Dawson of the penitentiaries branch had remarked to him in April 1934 that Miss Agnes MacPhail, House of Commons member for Southeast Grey, had "made a ——— fool of herself" in connection with the case of Convict Charles Baynes. Dr. A. G. Hall, former convict, charged in an Affidavit Dawson made a similar remark to him.

Miss MacPhail was granted an investigation of Hall's allegation Dawson had made the remark to him during a conversation. Megloughlin told the investigating Commissioner, Judge E. J. Daly, Dawson made a similar remark to him after he recalled that Miss MacPhail was interested in the case of Convict Charles Baynes.

Sent Dawson to Hall

Megloughlin said he had requested Dawson to see Hall in order to find out if it was true there was unrest in the prison. The interview between Dawson and Hall took place in the lecture hall of the administration building. It began some time after 11 o'clock and continued so long that he, the former warden, looked in twice while the conversation was in progress.

"Why did you go in?" asked Judge Daly.

"I couldn't understand why such an interview should last so long."

"But when you went in you asked nothing?"

"No."

"And heard nothing?" asked R. H. Greer, commission counsel.

"No," was the reply

It was brought out May 5, the day of a visit by the Governor-General, a riot occurred in the penitentiary. Hall was tried in Warden's Court, charged with participation, found guilty and sentenced to corporal punishment. This corporal punishment, however, was not administered. Also, there was a fire May 15.

In a letter to the superintendent of penitentiaries dated May 20, Megloughlin asked the tenor of the interview six weeks previously between Dawson and Hall. In that letter Megloughlin declared in the past he had found Hall to be a liar.

"I consider him to be one of the most dangerous agitators in the institution," Megloughlin said in that letter.

With regard to Hall's veracity, Megloughlin said when he wrote that letter he considered Hall had lied to him.

"Do you still consider that?" asked Judge Daly.

New Cabinet Post For Eden—Minister Without Portfolio For League Of Nations Affairs—Hoare Made Foreign Affairs Secretary Feature Reshuffle.

MINISTRY INCREASED TWO TO TWENTY-TWO; FIVE ARE NEW MEMBERS, MOSTLY YOUNG MEN

BY GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 7.—(AP)—Stanley Baldwin, twice Prime Minister of Great Britain, accepted that post again today from King George after Ramsay MacDonald, who has served as the head of the government for the last six years, resigned. Appointment of Sir Samuel Hoare, former Secretary for India, as the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and the creation of a new cabinet position for Anthony Eden—now minister without portfolio for League of Nations Affairs—were features of the reconstructed cabinet list approved today.

RT. HON. STANLEY BALDWIN

Announcement of the new cabinet line-up came not long after Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald had submitted his resignation, to be succeeded by the Conservative leader, Stanley Baldwin who became Prime Minister for the third time.

Mr. MacDonald's replacement by Mr. Baldwin was a foregone conclusion. The ailing Scot remains in the cabinet as Lord President of the Council, Mr. Baldwin's old portfolio.

The membership of the cabinet is increased from 20 to 22. Appointment of G. C. Trion as Postmaster-General was announced, but with this exception appointments to the ministry of those not holding cabinet rank are still incomplete and the full ministry will not be announced until next week.

There are altogether five new members in the cabinet, most of them young men. They are Captain Eden, raised to cabinet rank as minister without portfolio for League of Nations Affairs; the Marquess of Zetland, Secretary for Air; Malcomcom MacDonald, son of the former Prime Minister, who becomes Secretary for Colonies; Ernest William Brown, Minister of Labor; and Lord Eustace Percy, Minister without portfolio.

Three Dropped

The trio dropped from the cabinet are Sir Edward Hilton Young, retiring Minister of Health, who receives a barony and enters the House of Lords; Sir John Gilmour, retiring Home Secretary, and Lord Sankey, retiring Lord High Chancellor.

Cabinet Shuffle

The changes in portfolios follow: Sir John Simon Gilmour as Home Secretary.

Sir Samuel Hoare succeeds Sir John Simon as Foreign Secretary, and himself is succeeded as Secretary for India by the Marquess of Zetland.

Lord Hailsham succeeds the retiring Lord Sankey as Lord Chancellor and himself is succeeded as Minister for War by Viscount Halifax. The latter, as President of the Board of Education, is succeeded by Major Oliver Stanley.

Major Stanley's old post of Minister of Labor is taken by Ernest William Brown, formerly Minister of Mines and not in the cabinet.

Police Holding Ralph Portsmith In Cobourg Jail

Being Held Following Shooting Of Noel Blair, 28-Year-Old French-Canadian Transient, On Cavan Township Farm Thursday Morning.

BLAIR WHO HAD BEEN FIRED BY PORTSMITH FOUND SLEEPING IN WOODSHED BY CHILDREN

Is Alleged To Have Displayed An Ugly Temper When Ordered Off The Premises By Portsmith—Shooting Claimed Accidental.

BETHANY, June 7.—(By a Staff Reporter).—Requesting police not to handcuff him, because "I don't want the children to see me with them on," Ralph Portsmith, former resident of Peterborough, submitted quietly to arrest at his Cavan Township farm, following yesterday's shooting fatality which resulted from trouble with his hired man whom he recently had occasion to discharge from his service.

He is now under custody at Cobourg pending the outcome of the coroner's inquiry here on Monday evening next into the circumstances under which Noel Blair, otherwise known as Norman Blair, 28 - year - old French - Canadian transient farm laborer, met his death. He was transferred to the county seat by Provincial Constable William Carey and was formally remanded by Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell, on a charge of vagrancy until June 11.

Post Mortem Saturday.

Coroner Dr. Turner, of Millbrook, ordered the body of the dead man to be conveyed to Reynold's undertaking parlors here, but the mortician is under instructions, he stated, not to proceed with any preparations for burial until the body is released following a post mortem examination to be conducted on Saturday morning by Dr. Frankish, medico-legal expert from the Attorney-General's Department, assisted by Dr. Hamilton, a local practitioner. Whether or not any deep significance might be attached to the fact that Dr. Frankish has interested himself in the case, could not be determined by The Examiner.

Blair was shot while standing in the woodshed at the Portsmith home, the bullet from a .22 rifle striking the hapless man between the eyes and ploughing into his skull, causing instant death. The gun was discharged by accident, Portsmith claims.

Police Notified.

Immediately following the fatality Portsmith notified County Constable Walter Thompson, of Bethany, and the officer arrived at the farmhouse to find Portsmith and his wife in a deeply agitated state of mind. The body of Blair lay face downward in the woodshed, and Dr.

MOTHER AND SON HANG FOR CRIME

Go to Gallows Seven Years After Murder of Woman's Brother.

FOR $2,000 INSURANCE.

GEORGETOWN, Del., June 7 (A.P.). — First white woman to be hanged in Delaware went to her death at dawn to-day with a prayer for forgiveness on her lips.

For the seven-year-old "perfect crime" slaying of her brother, Mrs. May H. Carey paid with her life on the gallows in company with her eldest son, Howard, 27.

The mother was taken from her cell at 6.02 a.m. (E.D.T.), The trap was sprung at 6.07, and she was pronounced dead at 6.24.

Howard was taken from his cell at 6.31. The trap was sprung 10 minutes later, and he was pronounced dead at 7 a.m.

Mrs. Carey walked unfalteringly up the 13 steps, and before the cap was adjusted she turned to the witnesses and said in a trembling voice:

"My way is clear. I have nothing to say."

Howard mounted the platform and said: "What I did was against my will. I feel sure anyone in my place would have done the same. I hope to see my three little ones on the other side."

He mumbled a prayer as the cap was adjusted.

With an escort of Delaware state police, the bodies were taken to Frankford for immediate burial.

Just before she was taken from her cell Mrs. Carey requested that her body be taken through the town of Omar, past her mother's home.

The couple's crime was the slaying of Robert Hitchens, Mrs. Carey's brother, for the $2,000 insurance on his life.

Fog shrouded the Sussex county jail yard and the high board fence built to hide the gallows from view as the doomed mother and son were led from their cells to death.

As they marched the 100 paces from their cells with their spiritual advisors—the Rev. Richard K. White, Episcopal rector of Georgetown, and the Rev. J. C. Bolton, Methodist pastor of Frankford—they repeated the 23rd Psalm and the Apostles' Creed.

REBUILDING OF HOME FOR AGED IS HELD OVER

Council of United Counties Will Meet in Special Session.

COST $48,000.

Warden and Deputation Visit Minister of Welfare David Croll.

COBOURG, June 7.—Plans and specifications for new House of Refuge for Northumberland and Durham will be considered at a special meeting of the counties council to be called in the near future by Warden Stinson.

Delay in disposing of the tenders which the building committee had received and deliberated in preparation for the present sessions was necessitated by inconclusive information and result from their interview with the Hon. David Croll, Minister of Public Welfare, and M. A. Sorsoleil, Deputy Minister, in a hurriedly arranged interview yesterday afternoon.

Warden Stinson and his associate members of the committee motored to Toronto shortly after the noon hour, and sandwiched a compact conversation into a short interval befor Mr. Croll left at four o'clock for an appointment in Montreal.

From the information contained in the tenders, the committee has estimated that a new building will cost about $48,000. The council has slightly less than $30,000 of the $34,000 insurance they received for the loss of the old structure. The estimate of $48,000 does not include the cost of equipment such as furnishings, kitchen, laundry and other incidentals.

The differential of around $20,000 in the cost of the building was accentuated by the council's policy of avoiding the issue of new debentures. Aware of this attitude, the council turned to the Minister of Public Welfare in the hope that financial help in some form or other might be forthcoming from that quarter. As a condition to a definite expression in regard to relief labor that might be employed on the building, Hon. Mr. Croll asked for a list of structural tradesmen on relief, especially in Cobourg and Port Hope. Warden Stinson said the Minister considered such towns as Campbellford and Bowmanvile too far from the site

2 Deer Seen Grazing On Road Near Roslin

(Examiner Correspondence)

TWEED, June 7.—Browsing contentedly by the side of the highway two miles south of Roslin, two full grown deer were observed at six o'clock, Wednesday morning. While Mr. Fred Gray, resident of that section, enjoyed the unusual sight from the verandah of his home nearby, an automobile driving north along the road attracted the attention of the animals. Unhurriedly, both deer moved to the side of the road, gazed at the approaching machine for a moment or two then bounded lightly over wire fence and disappeared in a nearby thicket. Except for the appearance of a fawn near Cannifton some time ago, this is the first reported appearance of deer so far south in some time.

Although he has lived in that section for twenty-nine years, it is the first time Mr. Gray has seen deer in that district.

Young Frenchy Johnston, who subbed for Doc. Stuart in the first innings, got a three-bagger right off the bat, which with one for Blake, two for Don Holmes, two for Fred Ingram, two for Ed Runions (one of them a homer) made the count for the losers before they blew up. GARDEN PESTS NOW EVIDENT

Many a Fine Garden Has Been Destroyed by Pests This Time of Year.

TWO GROUPS

Many a highly satisfactory stand of vegetables has been partially or totally destroyed by attacks of insect posts which might easily have have been controlled. Roughly speaking, the insect enemies are divided into two groups,—those that eat holes in the foliage and those that suck out the juices. For the first-named, poison is usually applied, while the suckers are attacked with a burning spray which penetrates their hides. Often when both are present a combination of poison and something that burns such as lime sulphur and arsenate gives the best results. The damage from the biting insects is usually quite apparent, but the presence of the other kind is only shown at first by a wilting or withering of the foliage.

For eating insects, one may spray with paris green, arsenate of lead, hellebore, or some of the many patent poisonous preparations. Paris green is usually applied at the rate of one ounce dissolved in ten gallons of water. It is well to add a couple of ounces of freshly slacked lime to make the mixture stick and to prevent burning of the foliage. Arsenate of lead in powdered form is applied at the rate of one scant ounce to a full gallon of water. With hellebore, make sure that a fresh supply is secured, as it rapidly weakens when exposed to the air, and apply at the rate of one ounce to a gallon of warm water, or it may be dusted over plants damp with moisture. Cut worms, which eat through the stems of plants close to the surface and whose presence are indicated by the plants toppling over, require special treatment. These grubs are about three-quarters of an inch long, grey in color and about one-third of an inch in diameter. Cultivate thoroughly and sprinkle a little poisoned bran around the plants. Mix one quart of bran with on teaspoon of paris green and one tablespoon of molasses with enough water to moisten the bran. Larger quantities of course will be used in plantations of canning tomatoes and market gardens. In small gardens, or where particularly valuable plants have been used, paper collars loosely placed around the stem and sunk into the soil to a depth of about half an inch will ward off attacks.

For sucking insects, chief of which are the aphids or plant lice, spray with any of the popular brands of contact insecticides which may be secured from reliable seed stores or florists. Cold water from a fine nozzle under high pressure will sometimes wash off the pests.

Carrot Rust Fly Injury

The maggots of the carrot rust fly attack carrots, parsnips, celery and parsley, but are commonly most troublesome to carrots. The insect spends the winter in the soil as a pupa where susceptible plants grew the previous year, or in cellars where roots are stored. From these pupae, flies emerge in late May or the first week of June to lay eggs beside seedling carrot plants. From these develop maggots which destroy the tap roots of seedlings in early July. Flies again emerge in late August and September to lay eggs beside the nearly grown carrots and some of the maggots of this generation are in the roots when pulled. These continue to feed in the stored roots.

The Entomological Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture points out that late planting so that no seedlings are above ground before June 10th is one method of avoiding infestation by the spring generation. Harvesting by the 15th of September is a method by which infestation by the autumn generation may be avoided. Combined community effort in late planting for a few years should help reduce the numbers of this insect.

Early planted carrot seedlings may be, in a large measure, protected from injury to drenching the soil about them during the first ten days of June with corrosive sublimate solution, 1 ounce to 10 gallons of water to kill the eggs. The egg-laying period in autumn is generally extended over some weeks, so this method is not then generally effective and on account of the very poisonous nature of the material is not desirable.

In a recent matrimonial case in South Shields, England, court it was testified that a woman married her late husband's sister's son, and therefore was the aunt by marriage of her present mate.

TRADE CONTROL TO BE ASSISTED

compliance of distributors with such regulations. As an identification a new, national trademark, "Canada Standard" will officially come into use, and drastic penalties are provided for its misuse.

The Act, if passed, will come into operation on Oct. 1, 1935.

Wide powers are given the Commission to investigate and report on all complaints of unfair practice or violations of any of the numerous statutes which are designed to guarantee fair treatment of both producers and consumers. It is understood by the act to confer with representatives of industries for the purpose of considering prevailing commercial practices and determining what is fair and what is unfair.

An important function of the Commission will be to pass upon new stock and securities issues before they are offered to the public, when invited to do so by the Secretary of state, and drastic penalties are provided for offering such securities before the requirements of the Commission have been complied with. Nor may the issuer of such securities advertise the fact that thy have been either approved or dealt with by the Commision.

The Commission will be responsible only to the president of the King's Privy Council in Canada, (the Prime Minister).

Radio Board Given Life

In announcing the life of the Radio Commission would be extended for the balance of the present fiscal year Prime Minister R. B. Bennett warned the principle of public control of radio was being threatened by a powerful campaign. So far as he was concerned, he said, he would exert every effort to prevent radio being handed back to private control. The question of continuing, abolishing or altering the present structure will be left to the next parliament.

Mr. Bennett said the future of radio depended on whether parliament was willing to recognize that in a small country like Canada suitable radio facilities could not be established at once. They could be developed gradually over a period of years and he hoped they would. At the same time Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Marine, announced the Radio Commission had plans for erecting powerful broadcasting stations across Canada. They proposed to start building one at Vancouver at an early date to provide service for British Columbia.

Radio Interference.

Mr. Duranleau told A. W. Nell, Independent member for Comox-Alberni, the Government was considering empowering radio inspectors to compel people to stop radio interference, most of it, he said, came from eletcrical machines in doctors' offices.

Hon. W. D. Euler, Liberal member for Waterloo North, protested against the famous regulation nine of the Commission which forbids any radio speaker to criticize any existing law of Canada. He claimed this would stifle political speakers during the election or leave them open to fines and imprisonment.

The Minister said the regulation had never been used, but he would draw the protest to the attention of the Commission.

The regulation should not be there at all, insisted Mr. Euler, who was joined by Hon. James Malcolm, Liberal member for North Bruce, and Abraham Heaps, Winnipeg Labor member. The regulation should be repealed, they claimed.

Even if higher license fees were necessary, it would be wise to eliminate the objectionable advertising now flooding the air, said T. L. Church, Toronto East Conservative. He knew of nothing that was Americanizing Canada more than the radio, and as evidence of this, said Toronto newspapers printed two pages of American baseball scores and a half-column of news on the House of Commons.

Few Complaints.

Mr. Duranleau said the rule requiring submission of manuscripts of speeches to radio stations in advance of broadcasting had always been interpreted in a broad way. There had been some complaints about the character of speeches broadcast, but they had not been frequent.

In reply to further objections to the regulation prohibiting broadcasts contrary to the purpose of any legislation, Mr. Duranleau agreed to ask the Commission for an explanation of the regulation, and if no satisfactory explanation was offered to withdraw it. The radio vote then passed.

Vote Fails to Pass

The appropriation of some $500,000 for administration of the Natural Products Marketing Act precipitated another storm and was not approved when the House adjourned. Liberal members renewed their criticism of the principles of the act and objected to the expenditure of public money in developing schemes for regulation of marketing.

From the Government side Earl Rowe (Cons., Duffering-Simcoe) said the appropriation should be $5 000,000 instead of $500,000. He urged creation of an export board under the Marketing Act to remove the surplus of farm products from the domestic market and aid in a price rise.

The act might have its imperfections, said Mr. Rowe, but it was a step towards giving a square deal to the farmer. The Bennett Government was the first government in the history of the country to attempt to assist the farmer in this way. Other agricultural countries had developed their marketing methods, but under the rule of the former Liberal Government nothing had been done in Canada. The consequence was Canada had lost foreign markets, he said.

Two bills implementing the budget resolutions were passed through third reading last night. They amend the special War Revenue Act. Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, said all provincial liquor commissions were co-operating in passing on to the consumer the benefit of the reduction in liquor taxes. The taxes were reduced to prevent increasing loss of revenue through illegal sale.

To-day the house continues with government legislation and the marketing board vote.

DESPERATE PAIR FORCE CELL BAR

the cell is of sheet steel, and according to police, had given enough, under the pressure exerted, to displace the door sufficiently to permit the bar of the lock to clear its socket. With the door open the pair, it was found, had climbed out the window at the back of the building, dropped to the ground, and had picked up the first parked car at hand, a green Chevrolet roadster license number AJ-150, owned by a local druggist named Caldwell.

Just Vanish

Nobody, it appears, saw the direction in which they headed. The women could offer no information. Questioned closely by police, they declared that all they knew of the escape was when Shaw and Cross yelled to them: "Are you girls O.K.?" and ran out the cell door and disappeared.

The general alarm which was turned in brought immediate co-operation between local authorities, the Toronto police, under Chief Constable Draper, and the provincial force under Major-General Victor A. S. Williams.

WEEKLY LIVESTOCK REVIEW

TORONTO, June 7 (C.P.) — Offerings on all classes of livestock were lighter this week on the Toronto Livestock Market, but prices failed to make any gains. Cattle were steady on some grades to 50 cents lower on weighty steers and bulls. Good and choice calves recovered last week's loss. Hogs closed 10 cents below last week's average and Spring lambs were down 50 cents on the bulk.

Speculators took about 400 light cattle of plain to medium quality for exporting to the United States but there were no American buyers on the market.

Trade was very draggy in the cattle division on Monday, with some 1,200 head unsold at the close of the day. Handyweight butcher cattle sold steady at $6.25 to $6.50 for choice, with a top load of $6.75. Plain butchers sold downward to $4.50. Weighty steers did not sell to any extent until Tuesday when prices settled about 50 cents down from a week ago at $6.50 to $7 for choice, with mediums at $5.75 to $6.25.

Fed calves sold at a general top of $7.50 with one at $8 and with mediums downward to $5.50. Butcher cows held about steady at $4.50 to $5 for choice and down to $3 for plain grades. Canners and cutters brought $1.50 to $2.75 cwt. Bulls opened steady but dropped fully 50 to 60 cents by the close. Good butcher bulls closed at $3.50 to $3.85 after opening at a top of $4.50.

Bolognas closed with a weak tone at $2.90 to $3 cwt. Very light runs for Tuesday and Wednesday allowed a good cleanup by the close, with only a few thin stockers unsold. Stocker trade was dull at $3 to $4.50 for common to medium kinds with a few feeders at $5 to $5.25. Milkers and springers remained slow at around $5 for tops.

Good and choice calves recovered last week's decline, while common to medium calves held again unchanged. Tops were generally $7.80 cwt. with a few up to $7.50. Good calves sold at $6.80 to $6.50, with plain quality mostly $4.50 to $5.50. A few rough grassers sold at $3.50 to $4 cwt. One load of good calves was taken for export.

Hogs opened steady at last week's closing decline, at $8.75 f.o.b. for bacons; at $9.10 off trucks, and at $9.50 off cars. The close was 15 cents higher on small runs at $8.90 f.o.b., $9.25 off trucks, and $9.65 off cars. The discount on both grades of sows was announced as $4 cwt. below the bacon price. Selects brought the usual $1 per head premium.

There were no feed-lot lambs of any account included in the lamb receipts this week. Spring lambs were down 50 cents from last week's average at $9.50 for the majority of choice with a few outstanding lots making $10.

Culls sold at $6.50 to $7.80 and a few mediums brought $8 to $9 cwt. Sheep were down 50 cents at $3 cwt. for best light ewes and at $1 to $2.50 for culls and heavies.

FRIDAY, JUNE 7, 1935

THE CATERPILLAR THREAT.

Several citizens have urged The Examiner to call the attention of the public to the fact that a plague of tent caterpillars is threatened in the city and district unless energetic steps are taken to cope with this nuisance before the damage is done.

Nests are to be seen on many trees, particularly in the wild cherry trees and in some cases in fruit orchards, and if nothing is done to deal with the pest now, certainly trouble ahead is indicated for the caterpillars will spread to other trees, and we may expect a repetition of the conditions existing during earlier plagues when caterpillars were so numerous as to constitute themselves a destructive and loathesome nuisance.

If the public would declare war now and wipe out the existing nests by burning or other means, we can prevent the worst evils of the re-appearance of this pest; it is everybody's job to see that there is prompt action along that line.

AN EMPIRE LOSS.

Canadians shared with other citizens of the British Empire in the deep feeling of grief with which the announcement of the death of Viscount Byng was received.

Byng of Vimy had been intimately associated with Canada, both in war and in peace, and this country sincerely mourns the passing of one of the Empire's most famous fighters, who led the Canadian corps during the period of one of its greatest triumphs, the capture of Vimy Ridge, and who in the years that followed the war served the Dominion well in another and quite different capacity as Governor-General of Canada.

Up to the time he was called upon to represent His Majesty the King at Rideau Hall, Viscount Byng had been a soldier all his life, a hard-hitting, fearless type of leader who was always deservedly popular with all ranks under his command. His military career, particularly during the Great War, was studded with brilliant achievements, first as officer commanding the Canadian corps and in the later stages of the conflict as commander of the 3rd British army, whose part in the final rolling up of the German lines on the western front was a glorious one, and in the public services to which he was called, after the armistice, as Canada's Governor-General, and more recently as head of the famous Metropolitas Police, the hero of Vimy won fresh laurels.

The Empire has lost one of its greatest sons in the passing of this grand old warrior.

A DRASTIC POLICY.

In Detroit, where 50,000 more cars are in commission this year and where automobile killings have been claiming a victim a day since January 12, the authorities have been anxiously seeking a solution of the problem of making driving conditions safer, the casualty list of 136 persons killed and 4,597 injured providing a powerful incentive.

Like every other municipality, Detroit has found that police court fines are not very successful as a deterrent, and so another plan is being adopted, and one that The Examiner believes is likely to prove more effective than anything that has yet been tried.

The City of the Straits has decided that it is not enough merely to cancel the driving permit of a person convicted of reckless driving, for that course usually means that the offender's car remains in commission with some other person at the wheel and the convicted driver quite free to go along as a passenger.

Detroit has decided to go a step further and to confiscate the cars of motorists convicted of reckless driving for a period of three to six months.

That would seem to be a penalty likely to get results, for the driver who would face the prospect of a fine unmoved or who would not worry greatly over the loss of his driving license, provided that did not involve the tieing up of his car, would certainly not be anxious to run the risk of having his automobile impounded for months and his family and himself deprived of its use.

It will be interesting to watch the working out of this new and drastic policy.

PUBLIC ENEMY No. 1.

Ontario's present experience with forest fires shows the necessity of impressing the public with the vital importance of being careful in regard to fire hazards while in the wooded country.

In these days of rapid transportation and the extension of good roads far into the forest region, conditions have been materially changed.

Districts where summer visitors were unknown are now the mecca for hundreds of our own urban dwellers and tourists from across the border, for the automobile and good roads have resulted in thousands of campers where there were none a decade or two ago.

There never was a time when the natural resources for recreation were more open to the people's use, or as the Rotarian reminds us, to the people's abuse, than they are to-day, and consequently there never was more need for care in the matter of forest fires.

Those destructive conflagrations never start themselves, they originate from man's negligence or recklessness, and once started at a period when the woods are dry as tinder, the result is almost certain to be a widespread and destructive blaze, sweeping over many miles of wooded country.

It is true, too, as the Rotarian says, that the boy in a well-organized camp is not the chief offender, for he is taught how to build and care for fires. Enemy No. 1 of the forests is the thoughtless adult who leaves his camp-fire smoldering, ready to be spread by a gust of wind, or who carelessly flips a cigarette or cigar butt aside.

Evidently when Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion has anything to say he is quick to say it. Incidentally no one with anything to say could say it faster.

FOR MORE TRADE.

Of interest and importance is the report from Ottawa that trade reciprocity negotiations between Canada and the United States are entering their final phase and that departmental experts from this country will go to Washington shortly to discuss details with representatives of the United States Government. Later on, Cabinet Ministers are to visit the American capital for a final conference with President Roosevelt and his advisers.

* * * *

It is encouraging to know that progress is in prospect for this matter. Particularly helpful is the attitude of the present Government in Washington, an attitude for which, to a large extent, we can thank Secretary of State Hull, who has steadily and consistently campaigned for freer trade relations between the United States and the rest of the world. Only the other day, Mr. Hull again gave expression to his views when he said:

"To-day the whole world stands on the threshold of a great industrial and commercial revival. We have reached a point at which there is a firm technological basis for a strong, substantial recovery in the heavy capital goods industries. . . . In order to make progress we are compelled to remove the obstacles that stand in the way to rebuild the economic foundations and structures shattered and broken by the devastating depression.

"This expansion of foreign rade, by opening up new markets and developing purchasing power, will win us not only a marked expansion in quantity of exports and of total output, but is also the only means by which a sound balance can be secured both in our internal and in the international price structure."

Note the words: "We are compelled to remove the obstacles that stand in the way."

* * * *

Secretary of Commerce Roper, another member of Mr. Roosevelt's official family, was just as emphatic in an address he delivered to a gathering of manufacturers, exporters and importers in Boston. Here is an extract from Mr. Roper's statement:

"Barriers which obstruct trade between nations are more extensive to-day than ever before in modern history, and it is only by a process of gradual readjustment that corrective treatment can be applied.

"The present administration is endeavoring through specific activities to bring about this realignment. The United States already has a large equity in the economic future of other nations. We have invested in the four corners of the earth several billions of dollars. Much of this total, which many believe lost, can be regained over a period of years if our approach to the difficult task is directed with wisdom and discrimination.

"We cannot advance progressively along these lines if we are entirely nationalistic."

"We cannot advance progressively along these lines if we are entirely nationalistic," Mr. Roper emphasizes. That is exactly the point, and we hope that members of the Secretary's audience grasped it. So many persons either fail to see or quite ignore that nationalistic thinking is a deterrent to business. By nationalistic thinking, in this sense, we mean devotion to a tariff structure so high that practically no foreign product can get over it. It follows, of course, that if foreign products cannot get in, domestic products, intended for export, will eventually be unable to get out. That is where American difficulties have developed in recent years. That is the situation that Mr. Hull, particularly, is so desirous of changing.

* * * *

There can be no more important contribution to the program of restoring world trade normalcy than a reduction of tariff barriers and stabilization of the world's leading currencies. It is interesting, therefore, to note a recent suggestion that the United States may take the initiative in calling a new world conference to achieve these ends.

Reactions to this suggestion vary. The New York Times, for instance, while heartily endorsing the reforms mentioned, questions whether a world conference offers the best means of achieving them. Such a conference, it says, would be regarded with justifiable misgivings—"European nations could hardly be blamed if their first thought would be of the fiasco of the last world economic conference, and of President Roosevelt's tart message which torpedoed it." It would seem wiser, the Times adds, to approach the problem in a more modest way; it would be better for the United States to try quietly to reach at least a provisional agreement with Great Britain, either through the usual diplomatic channels or through special representatives. If Great Britain and the United States, in control of the world's two most important currencies, could reach such an agreement, they might then confidently invite other countries to help them to extend its scope. Then, says the New York paper:

"What would be most desirable would, of course, be an agreement for complete and permanent stabilization; but on any realistic view this does not seem immediately probable. The best that could be hoped for in the early future is perhaps an agreement providing for a de facto and temporary stabilization which could, after an experimental period, be adopted as final. To achieve even this it would be necessary to remove certain obstacles and fears in both countries. From the American side, the British will want some assurance of an early termination of our heavily unbalanced budget so that they can be confident of our ability to maintain permanently the currency level we agree to. They will want also to know whether our tariff barriers will be lowered sufficiently for us to take payment for our exports in future in goods rather than in continued imports of gold."—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The political situation in France is about as difficult to grasp as are the various theories in regard to social credit.

The Rotary Carnival next week is a community frolic with the proceeds devoted entirely to community purposes, and therefore most deserving of community support.

Premier Hepburn is on a fishing trip to the north, possibly as a bit of spring training in preparation for the federal election campaign.

Those who saw that remarkable picture, "Man of Aran," would undoubtedly say that if people could make a living under such conditions, a back-to-the-land movement in Canada offers glorious possibilities.

What's in the Name of Canadian Cities and Towns?

by FRANK H. WILLIAMS

YOHO, BRITISH COLUMBIA

This name is applied to a park, a peak, a glacier, a river, a lake, and a pass in the far-famed scenically beautiful Kootenay district in the Rocky Mountain area of British Columbia.

Comparatively close to Banff, it is reached by an indescribably gorgeous but exceedingly trick drive which leaves the tourist so aghast with wonder and admiration that he has little time to devote to the road's pitfalls.

The Cree Indians were responsible for naming this district. They had an eye for beauty and when they beheld the beauty of the district they said "Yoho", which, translated into English, means "how beautiful."

The white man has never been able to find another name which so aptly describes the district.

A Thought

Where would we stand were we judged by our ability to feel another's joy and sorrow?

Judging oneself from the viewpoint of others is a very good way.

Your Health

by DR LOGAN CLENDENING

The other evening I spent with a group of learned and literary gentlemen who were preening themselves on having discovered some new words. They make their living by words, so it is part of the game to titillate the public by springing unfamiliar results of research on them. The curious thing was they were nearly all medical words.

Mr. Alexander Woolicott has unearthed "estivate". He could hardly wait until the next night when, in his mellifluous tenor, he would float that morsel over the air into the ears of a million radio devotees.

Mr. Vincent Starrett had run across "borborygmi." He rolled it under his tongue. He called attention to its marvelous qualities as a pure piece of pronunciation. Yet "borborygmi" has been familiar to me since long before I can remember, and its connotations have robbed it of all sense of beauty.

Mr. Noel Coward was enthralled with "argyria." And one must admit that is a handsome word, either written or pronounced.

Medic Rattle Consonants

These epicures of words were so enchanted with these old familiar medical terms that I propose to write for you a paragraph to illustrate the sheer possibilities of the rattling of consonants in a technical medical sentence. Here it is:

"The estival form of the septicaemia is much more apt to be fulminating. The gastric syndrome invariably includes anorexia, and not uncommonly advances to hematemesis. Borborygmi are so pronounced as to have suggested to the French bourgeoise the name 'orage' for the condition. The etiocated appearance of the patients is due to a marked depression of erythropoiesis and even perhaps an added splenic erythrolysis. When petechiae make their appearance the prognosis is inevitably unfavorable."

You see how much I have the readers of this column. When writing for them, I have long since learned to write 'stomach' instead of 'gastric', 'intestinal movements' instead of 'peristaltic waves', 'ridges' 'instead of 'rugae', poisons' instead of 'toxins', and a thousand other things.

The paragraph above, translated into ordinary language is as follows. And it means exactly what the technical sentences means:

"The summer form of this blood infection is much more apt to be severe in its manifestations. The stomach symptoms invariably include loss of appetite, and many get bad enough so that the patient vomits blood. Intestinal rumblings are so pronounced that the French have a nickname for the condition, 'thunderstom.' The pallor is due to lack of red blood cell formation, and perhaps also increased red blood cell hemorrhages appear under the skin, it means the patient is certainly going to die."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: 'Indigestion and Constipation', 'Reducing and Gaining', 'Infant Feeding', 'Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes', 'Feminine Hygiene' and 'The Care of the Hair and Skin.'

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

WHEN A FUSE BLOWS OUT

Suddenly a fuse blows out and the lights go off....Sometimes it happens in a storm and the entire house is in darkness. Sometimes it occurs because too many accessories have been attached to one circuit and only one fuse is burned out. The kitchen, the dining room and one bedroom are without lights.

So somebody gets a flashlight or lights a candle and finds the extra fuses—they ought to be right alongside of the fuse box, but half the time they aren't—and stumbles down the cellar stairs to change the fuses....It's not much of a job. You fumble around until you find the fuse that's burned and then you replace it....and the lights go on again.

And you realize that this fuse that burns out is in fact a protection against greater inconvenience than a few lights gone out. By weakening under the pressure of too great load, it prevents your whole house from being destroyed by fire....A little strip of soft metal burns away and your home is safe.

But we are not so philosophical when a friend "blows up"....when someone we have known for years suddenly does something that surprises or disappoints us. We do not say to him: "Oh, well, it's just a small thing. The pressure was too great and he blew up temporarily. He's just the same old Bill that we've always known."

Instead we are more likely to say: "Well, I never knew Bill was like that. I though I was a pretty fair judge of human nature, but he's been fooling me all these years."

It doesn't occur to us that this "blow-up" of Bill's may have saved him from something much more disastrous and tragic....We are complicated structures, far more difficult than the electric wiring of any house to understand. We have difficulty understanding ourselves, but we make snap judgments of other human beings. And sometimes we taken even our own small puzzling "blow-ups" too seriously.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

A WELLAND CANAL JUNKET

On this date (June 7) in 1850 Lord Elgin, the Governor General of Canada, and the parliament of the Province of Canada paid an official visit to the Welland Canal which had just been completed, the legislative bodies having suspended their sittings in order to cross the lake and see the wonder performed by William Hamilton Merritt. They travelled from Toronto in the steamer Chief Justice Robinson and on arrival at St Catharines the government was presented with a loyal address amidst the cheers of the assembled citizens. The party then proceeded to Thorold in carriages and there took the steamer Britannia for the rest of the trip.

The day was a delightful one, a glorious sunshine lending a charm to the excursion which all seemed to enjoy so well, especially as there was "an ample supply of refreshments on board" and it is needless to say (in the language of the biographer of Mr. Merritt, who probably paid for said refreshments) "the were well attended to. 'At Merriton' a sumptuous dinner was prepared and to say that full justice was done to the noble spread would be superfluous." Here Lord Elgin left the party and went to the Falls.

The rest proceeded to Gravelly Bay, whereupon, "in consequence of insufficient hotel accommodation for such a large number, they encamped for the night and amused themselves with songs, jokes, and boisterous merriment, stimulated occasionally by copious libations so that many were determined to make a night of it," and did not attempt to sleep. Consequently when the party got to Buffalo some of them were no credit to Canada's legislature, but, as a chronicler of the times said, inasmuch as they were no differen from the average American congressman, nobody took any notice of the condition of the Canadians. Thus was a strange Sunday for some of the legislators from rural Canada, especially from Lower Canada, who were staggered at the frivolity on the Lord's Day, but did their share in disposing of the refreshments provided by their Buffalo hosts. It was a very tired and headachy body of "statesmen" who returned to Toronto on Monday to resume their duties.

GENERAL TONE SLIGHTLY SOFT IN THE MINES

400,000 Shares Change Hands To-day in Drab Session at Toronto.

BASE METALS STEADY.

TORONTO, June 7 (C.P.). — Trading lapsed into a very drab condition to-day on the mining section of the Toronto Exchange with total volume under 400,000 shares. The fgeneral price tone was a bit soft, but there were no breaks of importance except for Braylorne's swing downward to a new low for the year on the anouncement that the current dividend had been passed. Base metal and silver stocks were steadier than the golds and the oils displayed little action.

Braylorne sagged to 4.55 for a loss of 70 cents. Both Lakeshore and McIntyre closed about 50 cents up and Hollinger 10.

Noranda gained about 25 cents and Mining Corporation 10 to 12 cents. Pend Orielle sold off a few cents to 57.

The close was under the previous close for Eldorado, Silver Bear, and Castle.

Moderate gains were registered for Sylvanite and Buffalo-Ankerite A, while Bradian lost about 20 cents.

NORTHERN PROBE STORMY SCENE

South Cochrane M.L.A. Quits Court When Commissioner Bars Discussion.

OF ALEGED SCANDAL.

MATHESON, Ont., June 7 (C.P.) —A stormy scene again interrupted proceedings of the Royal Commission inquiring into alleged favoritism and misconduct on part of Northern Development officials here, when John Rowlandson, M.L.A. for South Cochrane, jumped to his feet and shouted he was through with it all.

The member's outburst followed Commissioner W. B. Common's refusal to consent to a discussion of the Frederick House Dam collapse and alleged purchase of useless materials by the department.

Mr. Rowlandson had sought to have the issue brought before the commission and when it was refused he strode from the court room declaring he would telephone Queen's Park for a ruling.

Commissioner Joseph Sedgwick, who favored the hearing, said he would press for authority to bring the question under the scope of the inquiry. He maintained the inquiry should include the hearing of these alleged scandals as it related to other charges made against the department.

Thomas Ryan, South Porcupine, foreman on the Timmins-South Porcupine construction, against whom various charges were made, explained he dismissed Nathanson, Bois and Andrews because "They were useless and a hindrance to other employees."

LITTLE TRADING IN INDUSTRIALS

TORONTO, June 7. (CP).—Lacking news of a stimulating nature, trading got down to summer volume to-day with prices at the close showing more losses than gains. The day's turnover was little better than 10,000 shares and centred mainly in two oils, Imperial and British American along with Nickel, Weston's Fanny Farmer and Moore Corporation. Liquors, foods and steels were off while utilities and miscellaneous shares were fairly firm at the close.

Weston's continued its drop to 27 but an advance of two points, Canada Bread 'A' and Canners 'A' ruled righer against small recessions for Fanny Farmer, Lake of the Woods and International Milling pfd. Implement stocks firmed slightly.

Price changes were narrow in the oils and mainly on the down side. In the liquors the tone was weak for Walkers Common and Brewers and Distillers. Canada Malting was higher.

Ford 'A' was off a fraction to 25 while Brazilian C.P. and Nickel closed on the up side.

STEADY SHOWER BENEFITS CROPS

Improves Prospects of Good Strawberry Crop—Grain Grows Fast.

CISTERNS REPLENISHED.

(By The Canadian Press)

Heavy rain fell throughout Southern Ontario to-day, bringing benefit to all crops and in some sections climaxing a week of precipitation.

Prospects for a good strawberry crop in Lambton County were greatly improved by the rainfall. Despite nearly a week of steady rain, farmers in the Stratford district were not complaining except those in a few low-lying sections. Cisterns in the district have all been replenished.

Crop prospects at Kitchener were improved by the rain which at Galt Spring grains have grown rapidly under the steady rainfall. Clover and timothy have been helped by the cool weather accompanying the rain and good yields are expected.

At Brantford some seeding was delayed by the rain, but farmers were glad of the assurance of sufficient moisture for some time.

Field crops in the Niagara district were helped by the downpour as were fruits and vegetables. At Peterborough heavy rain fell throughout the night.

ONTARIO HOG PRICES.

TORONTO, June 7 (C.P.).—Gains of five to 25 cents were registered on bacon hog prices at three reporting market points to-day, while five others held unchanged. Chatham was up 25 cents. Stratford 15 and Barrie five. To-day's prices:

Even Japan Has May Day Trouble

May day presents certain difficulties in Tokio, just as it does in the capitals of the western world. The left-wing laborers will have nothing to do with the right wingers and vice versa. Separate parades and mass meetings were held while police kept vigilant watch over each. Here is a group of leftists carrying banners on the 16th celebration of May day in Japan.

OFFICER BACKS HALL REGARDING DAWSON REMARK

"No, Your Honor."

Found Stories False

Megloughlin said he had investigated Hall's activities in Toronto and had found "the so-called fair tales" about him were false.

After the interview Dawson had gone to Megloughlin's office.

Megloughlin arranged to take Dawson to his house for tea. Although it was Dawson's duty to tell him what had happened, the inspector gave him no intimation of what took place.

"Did you not ask him?"

"I did," the witness replied. "He told me it would be forwarded from Ottawa and that he had made a fool of himself."

Megloughlin said he had asked Dawson to investigate Bayne's charge against him (Megloughlin) about mal-administration.

"Yet," said the ex-Warden, "although I had instigated the investigation, I was not allowed to appear in it nor was I asked for a statement."

Col. Greer produced a letter written by Superintendent D. M. Ormond to Col. Megloughlin on May 21. The document showed initials of the ex-Warden, indicating its receipt, but Megloughlin did not remember having received it.

In that letter General Ormond declared Megloughlin, in a conversation the previous night, had stated he (the ex-Warden) had not informed Dawson Hall was a "dangerous convict."

Warned Inspector.

He had warned Dawson to be careful of statements he made before Hall and Baynes, said the ex-Warden.

"But I told General Ormond," said Megloughlin, "that I had closed up on Dawson on account of his remarks that he had interviewed 500 convicts and there weren't any ——— bozos in Kingston he could not handle."

Megloughlin had left the institution on June 12, 1934.

Cross-examined by J. C. McRuer, counsel for Miss MacPhail, the ex-Warden was taken back to the visit Dawson paid the Penitentiary on April 5, 1934. The visit was in response to a request by Megloughlin that the inspector clear up the matter of complaints made by Convict Charles Baynes regarding his medical treatment and also charges by Baynes of maladministration against the Warden.

Dawson had arrived with Baynes' files, including those covering the convict's previous incarceration in Stony Mountain.

When Dawson was leaving the Warden's office, said Megloughlin, Miss MacPhail's name was brought up. Megloughlin had reminded Dawson Baynes was the man Miss MacPhail had discussed in the House of Commons.

Dawson said he knew that, the ex-Warden declared, and added: "Aggie made a ——— fool of herself."

MOSCOW, June 7.—(CP-Havas).—The Soviet Bluebeard, M. Stepanovich, engineer, convicted of killing 20 wives in the space of 20 months, to-day was executed at Kharkov, in the Ukraine.

ASSUMES REINS

Lord Londonderry, former Air Minister, becomes Lord Privy Seal and Leader of the House of Lords; Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, former Secretary for Colonies, becomes Air Minister, and in turn is succeeded by Malcolm MacDonald.

The eight remaining positions in the cabinet are as they were before: Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer; J. H. Thomas, Secretary for Dominions; Sir Godfrey Collins, Scotland; Walter Runciman, Board of Trade; W. G. Omsby-Gore, Commissioner of Work; Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, Admiralty; Sir Kingsley Wood, takes the Ministry of Health instead of the Post Office, and Major Elliot remains Minister of Agriculture.

Mr. MacDonald, then Mr. Baldwin, by royal summons, conferred with the King in turn at Buckingham Palace.

The retiring Prime Minister, leaving his high post because of failing health, handed over his portfolio to the King in His Majesty's private apartment. Their audience lasted almost an hour.

He recommended to the King Mr. Baldwin succeed him and Baldwin, Lord President of the Council and Leader of the Conservative majority party, was summoned as soon as Mr. MacDonald had left the royal presence.

A group of ten women which watched MacDonald go forth from No. 10 Downing Street to resign, swelled to a large crowd by the time Baldwin had started out, and when Mr. MacDonald returned, they were waiting for him.

He raised his hat in acknowledgment of their interest.

Mr. Baldwin's interview with the King lasted only ten minutes, and then he returned to Downing Street where the cabinet ministers were assembling to set his new cabinet in motion.

The arrangements were carried through in such rapid order the country was without a Prime Minister for just four minutes.

During this brief time, Mr. MacDonald was returning to Downing Street and Mr. Baldwin was en route to the palace their autos passed each other on The Mall.

The outgoing and incoming Prime Ministers greeted each other by solemnly raising their top hats.

Baldwin arrived back at Downing Street at 5.15 p.m., and the outgoing cabinet members departed for the Palace to turn in their seals of office.

Mr. MacDonald returned to the King's chambers in the early evening, accompanied by his son, Malcolm.

Baldwin Cheered

Mr. Baldwin was cheered by a huge crowd as his car passed through St. James' Park.

Mr. MacDonald looked as though relieved at casting off the heavy responsibilities of the government leadership and his usually grave face was brightened by a broad smile as he paused on the steps of No. 19 before entering his car.

His resignation has been forced by continued eye trouble and the fact reconstruction of the cabinet for purposes of a general election fight, perhaps in October, was considered desirable.

Norbert Millar Has Spent 2,500 Hours In The Air

Piloting Planes For Eight Years Only One Crash

First Real Test in Flying Came in 1928 New York-Oshawa Flight.

MANY TAXI FLIGHTS

Recently Formed the Millar Mineral Exploration Company.

To most persons it would seem a glamorous adventure, but to Norbert Millar, flying under all sorts of conditions and on all kinds of missions is just an every-day job.

Norb. Millar, known widely through his sensational victory in the Tip Top Air Derby from Toronto to Windsor and back in 1931, got his commercial pilot's license in Peterborough in 1927. More than eight years of barnstorming, commercial flying and air prospecting have followed. He has spent a total of 2,500 hours in the air. And the story of those 2,500 hours is a fascinating one.

Millar was born in Lindsay but got his schooling in this city. In the days he attended South Central School and the Collegiate here, he already had the ambition to fly. Others of his friends also had that ambition but diverse interests were eventually to distract them.

"I would have been flying much earlier if circumstances had permitted," Millar relates, telling of his first real contact with the game when he went to take instruction at the Jack Elliott flying school in Hamilton in 1926. At the time, Elliott's outfit was about the only organized aviation school in Canada. In 1926 and 1927 he continued his instruction under Captain H. P. Ayres, one of the Dominion's most widely-reputed pilots, who organized a flying school at a field on the Keene road, just south of the city. The flying school was doomed to a short existence but, nevertheless, Millar successfully passed the tests and examinations of the Department of National Defence that year and gained his commercial ticket.

First Initiation

It was not long after he became an accredited pilot that Millar was to receive a real introduction to the hazards and difficulties of the game. To get his license, part of his demonstration was a cross-country hop from Peterborough to Camp Borden and back, but his first real experience in cross-country flying came in the spring of 1928. He was given the job of flying an old Curtiss Standard from New York up to Oshawa.

The elements, motor failure and plain hard luck conspired to force him down five times during the hop. Underestimating the headwinds which he found himself battling and overestimating the speed of the unwieldy old craft, he found his gas supply running out and made his first forced landing near Albany, New York. Once again under way, a heavy rain drenched the plane and shorted the exposed spark plugs to force a landing at Little Falls, New York.

Plane Carried Backwards

A loosened water connection was the cause of another dead-stick landing and then came an unnerving experience as he turned the machine eastward toward his destination from Niagara Falls. A heavy easterly gale was blowing and when he got "up-stairs" he found the lumbering plane was being carried backwards despite a wide-open throttle. With difficulty he grounded the plane rather than attempt a dangerous tack over the waters of Lake Ontario.

The radiator of the plane was without the shutters a more modern machine would have boasted and wintry air froze up the cooling system to force the fifth forced landing between Niagara and St. Catharines. But the remainder of the hop to Oshawa was completed without mishap.

Many and varied were the experiences which were Millar's lot during two years of barnstorming which followed. It was in the fall of 1928 that he had the only real crash in his more than 200,000 miles of flying. He was landing the Moth which he was piloting at that time at Warkworth with a passenger aboard. Misjudging the boundaries of the small field on which he had planned to set the machine down, he overshot the field and piled up when the machine failed to gain enough altitude to clear. He and the passenger climbed out of the badly damaged plane uninjured.

Taxi Flights.

Many taxi flights in both Southern and Northern Ontario contributed to his flying hours total and other assignments included a bit of air photography in the north. A particularly fine air view of the International Nickel property taken by Millar now graces High Commission Ferguson's office in London, England.

Newspapers throughout Canada printed the story of the young pilot's flight from Peterborough to the aid of the storm-bound residents of Warsaw in 1929. A very heavy fall of snow had closed all roads to the village, cutting it off from the daily load of bread trucked from Peterborough. Even sleighs were of no avail. In a ski-equipped Moth, Millar took off from the icy surface of Little Lake and unloaded several hundred pounds of bread at Warsaw fourteen minutes later.

In 1930 Millar made his first real acquaintance with the aerial end of northern prospecting. This taste was eventually to lead to the formation of the Millar Mineral Exploration Limited last summer which is now conducting an aggressive prospecting campaign in the north.

He became associated with Tom Montgomery, one of the discoverers of the Waite-Ackerman mine, for piloting and prospecting work. Illustrative of the manner in which the airplane has revolutionized the prospecting game, was one of the typical incidents which occurred during this period. Millar and a companion were camping by the side of a small lake in the Swayze area one night, the plane moored out on the water ready for any need. A trapper told them of the passage of two canoeists on an all-night paddle up a nearby river the previous evening. Knowing that canoeists do not paddle all night without good reason, Millar and his companion took off at daybreak the next morning and, fifty miles away, sighted the camp of the two canoeists.

As they had expected, the camp was located on the scene of a new gold discovery — the discovery of Jack and Jay Kenty of prospecting fame. Landing close-by, Millar lost no time in staking a claim alongside the original. Unfortunately, however, the story lacks the perfect romantic ending for the claim eventually proved of no value. Yet it serves to indicate the tremendous advantage the modern prospector has over the prospector who would have found necessary a canoe trip and hike of several days to cover the same distance.

Tip-Top Derby

The story of the thrilling Tip-Top air derby in which thirty machines took part is known to all. Millar was handicapped by the fact he had never been over the course before. Nevertheless he finished the 450 mile flight in 4 hours and 22 minutes, about one minute ahead of the runner-up, for the $2,500 prize. He had moved into the lead only in the last few miles of the race.

The winter of 1931-1932 found Millar operating commercially on his own account. Then, during the summer, he joined with George Byles, a widely-known figure in the north, in an air hunt for radium ore along the northern shores of Lake Superior. The search, it turned out, was in vain. Later in 1932 and during part of 1933 he did a further independent commercial business. In the summer of 1933 he turned his attention to prospecting in the Chibougamau area in northern Quebec with Bert Ashley, the noted miner, prospector and pilot who disappeared mysteriously in his plane over Lake Ontario last fall. The two arrived just a few days after the Bourbeau Lake discovery of Noranda had been made and managed to stake out some likely-looking claims nearby during the rush.

More than 200,000 miles flown on missions of a hundred different natures and Millar still looks casually upon his flying as an every-day job!

Typical of the many unexpected incidents in which Millar has had a part in his adventurous calling is one which occurred at Bancroft in 1929. A passenger was aboard his machine waiting to be taken up on a hop. Millar, standing on the ground in front, gave the "prop" a whirl. Through some oversight, the throttle had been left wide open and the motor started with a roar, dragging the plane over Millar and on down the field in a mad runaway with the helpless passenger in the cockpit. Paralysed with fright, the passenger made no motion to close the throttle and the plane crashed into a fence and some brush at the other end of the field. The passenger escaped injury but the plane didn't.

Close Call

On one occasion when Millar was barnstorming for a living, he was attracted to a municipal celebration being held in a little town on the west side of Lake Scugog. A bright moon was shining that night and one of the local lads suggested it would be fun to take an air ride over the town in the moonlight.

Millar agreed and the take-off was accomplished in fine style. They hovered about the town until the passenger was satified and then decided to land. But there trouble loomed. The moon had gone behind some clouds and, while visible from an altitude, cast no light on the ground. The plane had no landing lights.

Getting as far forward as possible, the passenger shone the weak rays of a 25-cent flashlight ahead of the plane as Millar levelled off for a landing in the total darkness. With several severe shocks, the machine finally came to rest and two greatly-relieved humans climbed out to discover that they had landed luckily in the middle of a big plowed field.

On another occasion he was told that he would find a good passenger business if he went to Maynooth, a small centre north of Bancroft, so he took to the air and headed toward the village. From the air, the field which had been designated to him as the most likely landing base, didn't look so good but he dipped his machine down for a closer look. Then, when he attempted to pull his plane up again, he found that, instead of gaining altitude, he was steadily sinking. A big ridge stood nearby and a strong wind coming over the ridge caused a severe downdraft.

Opening his throttle wide, he made a desperate attempt to climb out of the fix he was in but the machine continued to sink faster than it could climb. A forced landing could not be avoided. He picked a large barley field and was just complimenting himself on a successful landing when he crashed into a large rock hidden by the barley. The rock, he discovered on investigation, was the only one in the field!

New Company

Ending up a winter of barnstorming in the north country one season Millar headed down to New Liskeard. It was well into the spring and the break-up was on so he going to change the skiis on his plane for wheels. But, on his arrival over New Liskeard, he found he already needed wheels. There was no ice on the lake and the fields were bare!

Deciding to make a try at negotiating a safe landing on a field despite the lack of wheels, he swooped low to pick the best field. He hovered over one field in indecision and a doctor on the ground realized the serious plight he was in. When he flew away away from that field to look over another promising field, the doctor hurried after him on the ground knowing that his services might be needed. Fortunately he finally made a safe contact with the ground for it was in a field which the doctor had not yet reached.

Millar looks to the newly-formed Millar Mineral Exploration Limited as the most promising development in his career. The company is now backed by forty shareholders among whom are some of the most prominent mining men in Ontario. To mention a few: Tom Johnson, the discoverer of Little Long Lac, Bankfield and Dik Dik; Charlie St. Paul, co-staker of Eldorado and president of Red Lake Gold Shore Mine; Bill Garvey, co-staker of the Ashley Mine; Joe Errington, president of Little Long Lac and associated with numerous other mines; Tom Brown and Jack Woods, stakers of Sturgeon River Gold Mine. Millar will contribute his wide experience in prospecting in the north as the company's president.

The company will conduct an intensive campaign of prospecting from a base at Orient Bay on Lake Nippigon throughout this summer. For use in the work, a powerful four-passenger waco cabin seaplane has been secured. The machine is fitted specially for prospecting work. Discovereries and claims staked on the scenes of discoveries will be the property of the company.

TENSE OUTLOOK IN NORTH CHINA

Japanese Army Ordered to Apply Pressure Until Demands Met.

DENY ULTIMATUM.

(Copyright, 1935, by The Associated Press)

TOKYO, June 7.—A crisis in the tense North China situation appeared to be impending to-day as Japanese troops were on the move and the army received the Government's authorization to apply pressure to the region south of the Great Wall.

Army transports were sailing from Japanese ports. It was officially denied, however, these military activities were directly connected with the Japanese military authorities' objectives in Chinese territory.

A Foreign Office spokesman denied the demands the Japanese military authorities have presented to the Chinese Government constituted an ultimatum.

"There is no time limit in the usual sense of an ultimatum," he said, "but the Japanese Government hopes China will accept the demands and settle the matter as soon as possible.

"In the unfortunate event that the Chinese fail to comply," he added, "we must consider the situation anew. It is impossible to say then what steps will be taken.

"Japan intends to respect China's sovereignty and Chinese integrity," the spokesman asserted. "We have no territorial ambitions in China."

New Government Needed

TIENTSIN, China, June 7 (AP)—Major General Rensuke Isoagi, Japanese military attache here, was quoted to-day by the Rengo (Japanese News Agency) as saying it was necessary for China to establish a new government "capable of co-operating with Japan in maintaining peace in the Far East."

The Japanese officers reported statement was made at a time when Chinese observers were foreseeing the possibility of a Japanese occupation of Peiping and Tientsin to enforce its demands for administration of governmental affairs in North China.

"The Japanese army is fully prepared to carry out this objective," General Isogai was quoted as saying, with reference to reorganization of the Chinese government.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE

HAMILTON, Ont., June 7 (CP).—When Sam Sing lay in pain, his leg torn off at the knee, two small boys placed a newspaper over his face to shelter it from the hot Sun. In hospital, Sing said to a friend: "Thank little boys for me."

him, whose chief claim to fame at that time was that he frequently had participated in local automobile races. His estate was said to be valued at between $1,000 and $2,000.

Murton and Faber went to their doom without a word. Irving, whose unexpected retorts during his trial and during his confinement evoked considerable comment, stopped before the chair to speak.

Parting Salute

With a slight gesture of one hand, he addressed the witnesses:

"I salute my brother, Murton."

All three were unshaken for the final chapter of a career that changed them almost overnight from obscure radio store and repair shop owners to the most-widely hunted men in many years.

Rabbi Moses L. Sedar, who gave spiritual comrort to the three men since they were placed in death cells, preceded each to the chair. As he walked he intoned the 23rd Psalm.

Faber, in keeping with Jewish custom, sat in the chair with a prison hat on his head. The hat was removed as the electrodes were applied and, as he died, it hung on the back of the chair. The others were bareheaded.

Rabbi Sedar said the three men parted with a final handshake. Since before their trial, the Millens shunned Faber, believing it was largely through him that they were apprehended.

As Murton was released from his cell for his final walk, he shook hands with his brother and with Faber. Irving likewise parted with the graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Murton, leader of the gang, slouched to the chair. His eyes roamed around the brilliantly-lighted room. Then the mask was adjusted. Faber walked like a man in a trance. Irving alone, showed a sign of animation. He alone had anything to say.

Faber Bitter Against Girl

While Murton Millen died with a friendly feeling toward his wife, Faber went to his doom with bitterness to the girl he had planned to marry just a year ago, Rose Kneller. In a biting statement he chided her for "deserting" him in his "hour of need." It was Miss Kneller who turned over a bundle of cash to state detectives, after Faber's arrest. It was part of the Needham loot. Her whereabouts as her former fiance died was concealed from the public.

The Needham robbery also led to the killing of Patrolman Frank O. Haddock of the Needham police.

CHILDREN'S AID SEEN FOR WHITBY

May Be Result of Dispute Between Oshawa Society and Ontario County.

DISCUSSION CONTINUES.

WHITBY, June 7 (Special).—A threat to establish their own Children's Aid Society home here in place of the present one in Oshawa, was made yesterday by the Ontario County Council during a heated debate on the matter.

The discussion arose from a communication received from the Oshawa Children's Aid Society, billing the county for the education of the wards of the county at present living in the shelter at Oshawa. It was pointed out that the Council has a five-year agreement with the society that terminates this year.

In an effort to reach an amicable agreement a special committee, composed of Reeve G. B. Johnston of Cannington, William Parrot, R. D. Ruddy, County Solicitor, and Fred T. Rowe, County Warden, was appointed to meet the society.

The Council appointed Reeve C. Doherty of Beaverton to the Cemetery Board to succeed His Honor Judge R. Ruddy of Whitby, who has resigned.

FREE SPEECH OR TROUBLE.

WINDSOR, Ont., June 7 (C.P.).—Refused permission to hold a meeting in Lanspeary Park in the interests of the Windsor hunger-marchers, Communists of this city have declared their intention to conduct the meeting to-night without the permit. Charles Newbury said the Windsor Park Board would be held responsible "for anything that happens" during the rally. He declared, "If we are not able to have free speech, there will be a fight."

CHEAP SOAP-CHIPS ARE DANGEROUS

NOTE LUMPS . . SPECKS . . STRONG SMELL . . THIN SUDS

Look out for spotted, smelly clothes . . . faded colors . . . weakened threads

LOOK BEYOND the price tag on your soap if you want to save money on washday. Look at your clothes. Think what they cost and consider: Is it safe to risk them with cheap soap-chips?

Do cheap soap-chips smell safe? That strong, unpleasant odor warns you of rancid fats and strong bleaching alkalies. When your clothes fade and weak spots appear—you will say with thousands of other women: "Cheap soap-chips are no bargain."

Poor suds mean hard rubbing

Remember, it takes good, rich soap to make the kind of suds that dissolve grease and dirt quickly. Cheap watery soap makes thin suds. They flatten down into a gray scum instead of flushing the dirt away. You have to rub and RUB. Hard rubbing wears cottons thin . . . shrinks woolens. It's cheaper to buy good safe Chipso and save your clothes!

IDENTICAL APRONS ONLY 5 WASHDAYS AGO

LOOK OUT FOR HARSH BLEACHING ALKALIES! Even the best of printed washable materials can't be guaranteed against crude, harsh soap. Patterns fade out gradually. Materials lose their life and strength. Better use Chipso!

"For REAL ECONOMY stick to CHIPSO'S real suds and safety," women say . . . "CHIPSO saves hard rubbing"

"We flip up a big thick suds with Chipso," says Mrs. B. McKnight. "Dirt soaks loose in 10 to 15 minutes. Even the towels come white as snow without hard rubbing."

"Chipso Protects Colors"

"There's no smell of anything harsh in Chipso," says Mrs. John Boyle, Jr. "After a year's wear to school, my daughter's wash dresses look as bright as new."

You can see that Chipso is finer, richer soap. It feels soft and silky . . . smells fresh . . . makes marvelous suds.

THIS BOY'S MOTHER tries to save money with cheap soap-chips.

He has ragged knees because . . Cheap chips give poor suds. She has to scrub dirt out.

THIS MOTHER KNOWS "it's cheaper to buy good soap than new clothes."

Rich Chipso suds loosen dirt without hard rubbing. Chipso is safe—keeps materials and colors like new.

VIGOR, VITALITY, STAMINA, THROUGH NEW NERVE FORCE

Your nerves control every function of your body and brain. When your nerves have weakened, your stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, cease functioning properly, robbing you of body strength and mental vigor. You lack "pep", your mind becomes sluggish, you are easily depressed.

Kola Astier, wonderful stimulant-tonic developed by Dr. P. Astier of Paris, contains ingredients that act directly on the nerve centers and promote new nerve force which speeds up the functions of every organ. Your blood circulation is increased, your liver and kidneys activated, your digestion improved. Mental sluggishness disappears. Vim, vigor, cheerfulness, soon return.

"Kola Astier restores lost strength," writes one doctor. Another doctor writes, "I have obtained most satisfactory results with Kola Astier in cases of physical and mental overstrain, nervous exhaustion and general breakdown conditions."

Get a bottle of Kola Astier from your druggist TO-DAY without risk. Your money back if that first bottle doesn't help you.

Kola Astier is harmless and not habit forming. More than 10,000,000 bottles have been used during the past few years, mostly as a result of doctors' recommendations.

Relief In City Has Cost $80,031 This Year

RELIEF COSTS ARE GOING UP BOARD IS TOLD

Cost of Relief in City to Date This Year Amounted to $80,031.33.

546 FAMILIES ON LIST

23 Families Have Returned to Old Country in Past Two Months.

Relief costs are going up. Relief Officer Arthur Metheral told the Central Relief Board as he reported that the cost per capita for persons on relief in Peterborough has advanced from $5.12 in May, 1924, to $5.49 in May, 1935. The cost of relief here last month was $13,532.05, bringing the total cost up to date this year to the figure $80,031.33.

The costs during the month itemized were as follows: Groceries, $7,031.04; milk, $1,208.63; fuel, $1,370.96; rent and taxes, $2,517.04; clothing, $469.48; medicine, $10.78; doctors, $601.75; homes, $148.50; and sundries, $173.87.

The relief lists last month had 161 more names than in May, 1934, Mr. Metheral reported. Last month there were 546 families on the list compared with 533 in May, 1934. There were 1,803 individuals compared with 1,664. A total of 31 single men and 27 single women on the lists last month compared with 24 and 25 in 1934. Sixteen new names were added last month.

The lack of the ditch-filling work which was carried on by the Ontario Department of Highways last summer and the inactivity of the road camps were suggested as causes of the increase in the lists last month by members of the Board.

Asked if he found it necessary to watch for dishonesty on the part of relief recipients, Mr. Metheral cited several incidents. He told of one man reported to him by a doctor as having offered a bribe for a medical certificate showing him in too poor health to work. Another case of which he told was that of a family on relief that decided to buy a $55 radio. They paid $5 down on the instrument in a local store and the store checked up with Mr. Metheral with the result that the sale was stopped and the $5 returned to the family.

23 Families Left City

Twenty-three families have left Peterborough and returned to the Old Country during April and May, James Garside reported to the Board during general discussion. "I know of twenty-three and there may be more. And friends the parts to which they went have written to me that they wish they had never taken their feet off Canadian soil." He said, despite the rosy reports on employment conditions in the British Isles, they are being disappointed in looking for jobs.

A. B. Cunningham, in charge of relief gardens work, reported an offer by H. B. Rye of the loan of five acres of land just beyond the city limits west of th C.G.E. property for two years. He urged that the land be plowed and seeded with a crop this spring in order that it might be fertile and ready for use next year. Extensive fertilization at considerable cost will be necessary on the present relief plots next year unless some such provision is made, he said. He suggested that most of the relief garden activities of the south end peoples could be transferred to Mr. Rye's plot.

Mr. Cunningham was asked to act with Alderman Fred Ellis in the matter.

"The time is coming when we must do something for the man over 45 years of age who is out of a job and can not get work in the factories," Mr. Cunningham declared, urging the need for the institution of a municipal farm for Peterborough. At present the municipality is getting no return whatever on the monies it is spending for relief of these men whereas a municipal farm would return at least 50 per cent of its cost.

"I know this Board can't do anything about it but we could start the ball rolling." He urged the Board to think over the proposal and make a recommendation to the council in the matter.

Treasure Lure Keeps Man Digging

"CHUB" LAPIERRE

OWEN SOUND.—Two months ago, "Chub" Lapierre, who says he has nothing much else to do, started digging for buried treasure.

He's still digging, prodding his way between the rocks on the land of the late Joseph Ashash.

'Tis said that Ashash buried coins to the value of over $9,000 somewhere on his estate, and Lapierre says the only place he could have buried it is where he is digging, since it is the only spot where there is enough soil to dig, most of the land being solid rock.

The property now belongs to John Ashash, friend of the persistent digger.

"Sometimes I think it's here and sometimes I think it ain't. Oh, well, just a chance," is "Chub" Lapierre's philosophy on treasure hunting.

Criticizes Book On Cecil Rhodes

CAPE TOWN, June 7 (C.P.)—Sharp criticism of Mrs. Sarah Gertrude Millin's best-seller, "Rhodes," was made in an address broadcast from Cape Town—the 33rd anniversary of his death—by C. J. Sibbett, at one time his assistant political secretary.

Mr. Sibbett deplored the lack of an adequate "Life" of Rhodes, and commented: "Most recent, and, alas, most widely-read of all books dealing with Rhodes, we have had the volume by Sarah Gertrude Millin—a most readable book, as one would expect from such an accomplished novelist, and one which must make an instant appeal to those who knew nothing about Rhodes. Readers of Mrs. Millin's book, "The South African," in its original form, will have noticed that she had an entire misconception of Rhodes and of English characters generally. The real Rhodes escapes her. In spite of this, you will find that the bigness of her subject carries her away, and she becomes almost lyrical at times, and you can picture her realizing this and drawing herself up and saying 'This won't do. I am not writing a eulogy' and then she proceeds to 'knock' him, and attribute motives to his actions which were so foreign to his nature as to astound those who were familiar with him in his daily life.

Hastinge

The engagement is announced of Harriett Catherine Muriel, elder daughter of William and the late Mrs. McGee of Percy Township, to Arthur Borden, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Campbell of Dartford, the marriage to take place in June.

Mrs. Harold Stewart and son Jack are spending a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Dainard.

Miss Flora Metcalfe of Peterborough was a week-end guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cavano and Mr Hugh Gillespie of Bethany spent several days as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will Gillespie.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Armour and two daughters of Niagara Falls were recent guests of friends and relatives.

ENNISMORE.

The entertainment supervised by the Catholic Women's League was well patronized on Monday evening in the hall here. The music was furnished by Leahy's orchestra of Douro. Mr. Gerald Cavanagh was the winner for the door prize. Messrs. Vincent Murphy and P. J. Cadigan took the tickets at the door.

REBUILDING OF HOME FOR AGED

of the House of Refuge to warrant the cost of their transportation.

Reeve R. O. Jones, Bowmanville, a member of the building committee said last night: 'We can't go further until we determine where we stand with the government."

Counties' Present Wards

In reporting to the council the outcome of the afternoon's mission, Warden Stinson said that more than thirty men are housed at present in the remnant wing of the House of Refuge, temporary quarters. Twelve to fifteen are at Whitby, eight or nine at Lakefield, and two or three are hospital cases.

Incidentally Ontario county's bill for the care of Northumberland and Durham wards from December 26 to May 23 for $1,406.25 was read last night, and Peterborough's bill for thirty-one days was $165.43.

The council discussed last night the possibility of resorting to the boarding plan, but it was emphasized the regualtions of the Department required a county to provide a House of Refuge for its aged poor. Moreover, the most of the members seemed to be definitely opposed to that alternative. Warden Stinson said there might be some financial assistance from the government, depending to some extent upon the effect of the list of building tradesmen on relief that is to be forwarded to Hon. Mr. Croll early next week.

Opposed to Debt.

Reeve Hooton—I am not in favor of the counties going into debt. I don't think we will get any more old age pensioners. They will be taken care of at home on the consideration of getting the pension.

Reeve G. Annis, Darlington — I agree with Mr. Hooton. I know of one home in my neighborhood who is willing to board three or four old people as a means of supporting their own family.

Reeve MacColl, Campbellford, expressed doubt that a new House of Refuge could be built for $30,000. He said that at a cost of $4 a week it might be worth while considering the boarding plan on some scale.

Deputy-reeve E. C. McKeel, Campbellford, said that a Refuge built on a smaller plan than the old one might serve as clearing house for a number of inmates who might stay there only until suitable boarding homes could be obtained for them.

Reeve R. R. Mallory, Percy township— One thing against the boarding plan is that as soon as any one our wards became sick they would be immediately sent to a hospital. One man from our township was sent to hospital after being removed from here to the Lakefield House of Refuge after the fire. And the hospital cost to the municipality is $1.75 a day.

Reeve R. O. Jones, Bowmanville —We can't go further at this stage until we know definitely where we stand with the government. We can't expect anything definite before Monday.

Deputy-reeve R. Innis, Seymour —I don't want to see these counties assume any more debt, but we must have a respectable place for the old people who become dependent on the counties. I can't see how the boarding plan would work satisfactorily.

Deputy-reeve U. E. Waterman, Percy, doubted the feasibility of boarding House of Refuge inmates in private homes. He believed that various dissatisfactions would arise from time to time from possible neglect of the wards. Irritations of that kind could be avoided by building an institution adequate to the needs of the united counties.

Comments on Conversion.

Reeve Roy Mallory of Percy township drew an outburst of applause from the council by his remark, directed at the members who had supported the paving program of a few years ago, that they had apparently thought lightly of committing the ratepayers of the counties to $640,000 expenditure, all of which except $80,000 or $90,000 had been borrowed on debenture issues.

"They must have undergone a great change of heart," Reeve Mallory said, "for now they disposed to be afraid of an $18,000 or $20,000 issue. And we all know that normally the House of Refuge lasts a great many years longer than the ordinary paved road."

Deputy-reeve Cummiskey, Manvers—It may be a case of the burnt child fears the fire.

Reeve Mallory—We've got a lot to pay for what they did.

Referring to the Warden information that the architect and various builders had estimated the value of the old walls at easily $15,000 and in excellent condition, Reeve Currie, Seymour, said he could not see any economy in one of the proposals that the walls be torn down and a smaller building planned.

Warden Stinson—It would mean a smaller floor space.

Equalizing Assessment.

Last night's meeting was preceded by a session of the Equalization of Assessment committee, with Reeve Green, Cartwright, chairman. They recommended to the council that Darlington township's assessment be reduced $400,000 and that this amount be prorated among the rest of the minor municipalities.

An amendment in committee that the towis and villages be omitted from this distribution of assessment was defeated by the rural majority.

Get rid of the purgative habit at once!

No man or woman should be blamed for trying to get rid of constipation. Incomplete elimination is dangerous. It causes about 90 per cent. of all human ailments.

Churchmen Deplore Girls' Shorts Fad In Outdoor Sports

BRAND BEHAVIOR AS IMITATION OF WILD INDIANS

Hit at Tendency in University Training to Stress Practise of Self-expression.

Need Respect For Church.

TORONTO, June 7 — "Young women half-naked playing games on the church grounds" was frankly deplored by Dr J. A. Evans, a lay delegate to the Toronto Conference of the United Church, at yesterday afternoon's Lay Association session in Trinity Church Respect Needed.

"It is high time something was done to bring respect for the Church among the young people," he declared, calling attention to the young women "you catch playing games in shorts, smoking cigarettes and behaving like wild Indians," and referring to the tendency today to stress in the university training of youth the practice of self-expression.

Commenting that the blame did not rest entirely on the young people, W. J. Spence, another lay delegate, claimed that if the moving-picture houses in the city were visited one would find many 'fathers and mothers in Israel worshipping at the shrine of Hollywood.'

The situation for some parents was heart-breaking, he said, with many of the youth of to-day wanting to leave the home and have an apartment of their own with more liberty and where they could do as they pleased.

Parents Discouraged.

L. A. Neelands, president of the association, said that he had discovered parents discouraged because their children had lost interest in the Church. The lure of the world, he felt was stronger in holding the interest of young people.

Urging that the sanctity of the Sabbath should be upheld, the president dwelt upon the influence of laymen going to summer resorts.

"I wish they would conduct themselves at a summer resort as they would at home," and he told of a complaint made by a farmer in the country who said that an elder from the city had built his summer cottage on the Sabbath Day, working as he would have any other day. When taken to task for this labor, the elder remarked that he had never thought about it being wrong.

"Jesus Christ is being ignored in business and legislation and we are worshipping Him too often with our lips only," said Mr. Neeland.

KEPT AWAKE BY BACKACHE

She Was Always Tired

TRIED KRUSCHEN—NOW FULL OF LIFE

Only those who have experienced backache can understand how painful it can be. Only they can understand the disappointment of this woman as she tried one remedy after another—only to find that they failed. And they will appreciate her delight at now being able to write the following letter:—

"I was always feeling tired, never had any energy, and could get no sleep at night, for the pain in my back. So after trying several different so-called remedies (which did me no good at all), I decided to try Kruschen Salts. I am delighted to be able to say that I am now a different woman, full of life and energy, and free from the pain in the back."—(Mrs.) M. A.

Backache is commonly caused by the kidneys becoming inactive, and allowing impurities to accumulate in the blood-stream. The six salts in Kruschen will coax your kidneys back to healthy, normal action so that they will rid your blood-stream of every particle of poisonous waste matter. As an immediate result you will experience joyous relief from those old, dragging pains. And as you persevere with the "little daily dose" of Kruschen, the twinges will become less and less frequent until finally your backache will be no more than the memory of a bad dream.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

A new apparatus for artificial respiration, invented by a physician in Sweden, includes an adjustable table on which the patient is placed, and a dome-shaped hood of aluminum and rubber, fitted over the chest and operated by an air pump.

WANTED MAN IS FROM NORWOOD

throughout the province the men are still at large.

All-Night Patrol

After the escape was discovered last evening, Provincial Constable David Silvester and Highway Traffic Officer A. E. Hornick were ordered out on patrol duty by their district inspector, and they spent fruitless effort throughout the night in combing the highways of this district in their watch for the stolen car. Their patrol took them over sections of Highways 28 and 7, and on the Peterborough-Campbellford road.

Cross, it is learned, is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cross, formerly of Norwood, his father having been the first casualty to be killed-in-action with the 93rd Battalion.

When, only 19 years of age, Alex Cross was convicted here of five charges, which included burglary of Percy Kempt's store in Norwood; two thefts of cars; theft of a motor rug; and theft of a car wheel, tire and tube. He was stenenced to two years in Kingston Penitentiary when he appeared before Magistrate Langley here on November 26, 1931, while his companion of that time, John Hill of Toronto, received two years less one day in Ontario Reformatory.

She calls it a

Cook's Tour

Nobody thought Katherine would make a very good wife. She seemed too frivolous. Always made a game out of everything. Hadn't a practical thought in her head—so it seemed.

Maybe that's why she does make Ed such a good wife. You still wouldn't think she was serious about a thing. Yet she must be. Because you've never seen a house kept better in your life. Or a budget balanced more neatly.

Most women come home from shopping all tired out. Not Katherine! She makes a grand game of it . . . calls it her weekly "Cook's Tour." She pores over her newspaper like a travel map . . . charts a course that takes her to bargain ports . . . and gets there without one wasted step.

How? She follows the advertisements. Watches them as closely as a sailor watches his compass. And she gets fun out of it all. . . . But who wouldn't, with a happy home like hers and her knack for saving up money?

ASSEMBLY AIMS TO SWING STAND

to. During the past year, he said, it had added 14 new languages to the list of 692 in which the Bible was printed. He said there were 968 languages into which it was translated. Since the society was organized it had distributed 463,000,000 copies of the Bible, said Mr. Armour.

Overtures Report.

Reporting for the committee on overtures, Rev. G. P. Duncan of Stratford, Ont., recommended consideration of an overture by the presbytery of Lanark and Renfrew respecting regulations of the General Board of Missions concerning self-sustaining charges.

The committee also recommended consideration of overtures, urging the Assembly initiate a national peace movement, stricter moving picture censorship, and one from London Presbytery urging the Mission Board not to give a grant to any charge from mission funds to bring the salary of a minister higher than $1,600 a year. Present minimum is $1,800.

The Church Extension Board found it impossible to meet demands made upon it, and very few loans have been repaid, said Rev. James Wilson of Toronto in the fund's report.

The report showed expenditures of $61,983.84 for the year ending Jan. 31, 1935, receipts of $14,933.40, and an overdraft of $47,050.44.

Reporting in the Church and Manse Fund, he said the share assigned to the Presbyterian Church in 1927, after Union, constituted chiefly of loans to congregations before Church Union in 1925.

"Repayment of these loans has, for the most part, been very slow and unsatisfactory, partly due to the fact many of them had been outstanding for years before the division took place and partly because of recent economic conditions," he said.

The fund had a balance of $5,286.32 for the year ending Jan. 31, 1935. Receipts were $9,568.78, and expenditures $5,286.32.

Revenues Falling.

The Presbyterian Church, like others in Canada and throughout the world, still faced the problem of falling revenues for budget purposes, said the report of the Board of Administration submitted by James Dutton of Peterborough, Ont., but it hoped with gradual improvement in business conditions and stimulus of the Church's Diamond Jubilee, this year would show definite improvement.

Financial position of the body was set forth at conferences in September and February with representatives of the spending boards, and all, except the colleges, said the report, expressed their readiness to attempt to keep 1935 expenditures within the 1934 limit.

The Presbyterian College, Montreal, made a definite request for an annual grant of $20,000. At the last Assembly the grant was increased $2,000 to $13,000, while Knox College, Toronto, received a similar increase to make its total grant $12,000.

"The treasurer's statement will show a deficit of $57,578.42 on the year's operations," said the report. "It will be seen, however, that owing to special efforts for the reduction of the accumulated deficit, the actual financial position of the Church at January 31, 1935, is improved from that of the previous year. It will be noted also the deficit of $27,138 reported on the operations for 1933 has been wiped out by special efforts."

$57,578 Deficit.

"The treasurer's statement will show a deficit of $57,578.42 on the year's operations," said the report. "It will be seen, however, that owing to special efforts for the reduction of the accumulated deficit, the actual financial position of the Church at Jan. 31, 1935, is improved from that of the previous year. It will be noted also the deficit of $27,138 reported on the operations for 1933 has been wiped out by special efforts."

Noting the Supreme Court of Canada had dismissed the appeal of the United Church of Canada and confirmed the judgment of the Nova Scotia Supreme Court in the Jessie Gray will case of Hopewell, N.S., the report declared: "This decision is of the utmost importance for it declares, contrary to the contention of the United Church, that the Presbyterian Church in Canada did not go into the United Church without loss of identity, and further denies the claim of the United Church of Canada that it is entitled under the United Church of Canada Act to legacies designated for the Presbyterian Church in Canada."

Due to the appointment of a separate budget and stewardship committee, the report recommended the reduction of the board of administration from 35 to 25 members, exclusive of those appointed by the general board of missions.

TAXI BY-LAW TO BE CONSIDERED

Chief Constable Tells Police Commission of Intent to Enforce Traffic By-laws.

MENZIES APPOINTED.

The proposed by-law for the regulation of taxicab operators within the City of Peterborough, was again urged upon the Police Commission at a meeting held last evening under chairmanship of Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.

Mayor Roland Denne reopened the question which was originally suggested about twelve months ago, and again urged the need of regulations governing the operation of taxi-cabs, including the zoning of the city, and also making it compulsory of taxi-cab proprietors to take out public liability insurance.

The suggested by-law is to be fully considered at a future meeting of the Commission during the course of the present month.

Acting-Constable Archibald Menzies was appointed as a member of the City Police Department for a 3-months' probationary period, to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Constable George Carey. The new appointee, who for the past six weeks had been acting in place of another officer now reinstated to duty, was highly praised by Chief Constable Samuel Newhall for his work thus far.

Commenting on the campaign which is being waged by his department against violators of city traffic by-laws, Chief Newhall told the commission he had issued 3,700 warnings and had also summoned several offenders in an effort to prevent motorists from angle parking and double parking their cars in restricted areas. He intimated that while the campaign would be continued, with the determination to see enforcement of the traffic by-laws, no further warnings would be given offenders.

A request for a second-hand store license from Nathan Fine, Charlotte street was refused, following a report on the matter from the Chief Constable.

Tenders for eleven summer uniforms and two suits of civilian clothes for the plainclothesmen were opened, and the Chief was instructed to accept the lowest tender.

The Chief was further instructed to secure immediate tenders for coal supplies for the Police Department.

Floor Show To-Night At Summer Gardens

Last Night's Attraction Held Over by Request—Smart Artists.

The singing and dancing attraction at the Summer Gardens last night provided by the All Coloured Floor Show proved a great hit. The singing of Helen Moxley was much appreciated and the dancing by Teddy Braithwaite, the juvenile dancer, was sensational. Frank Brown added some intricate steps which rounded out a fine program.

To-night, in order to give our Friday night patrons an opportunity to see the show, gentlemen only admission 10c, dancing 5c, tax included.

Monday and Tuesday nights Kathleen Stokes, Canadian Debutantes, the finest girls' band in the Dominion.

B.C. RELIEF GANG NEARS CALGARY

Body of 700 Expected Into City on Freight With 600 More Following.

WILL ASK CITY FOOD.

CALGARY, June 7. (CP).—With the advance guard already here, Calgary to-day awaited the arrival of between 1,000 and 1,300 striking relief camp workers from British Columbia, enroute to Ottawa to lay protests against camp conditions before the Federal Government.

After spending yesterday at Golden, BC., the main body of the strikers hopped aboard an eastbound Canadian Pacific Railway freight train early this morning and are due to reach Calgary this afternoon. About 700 men were in the contingent.

Behind them trekked another two groups of approximately 300 men each. They are due to join the main body here before moving eastward into prairie cities, across Ontario and into Ottawa where they will seek a conference with Federal Government members.

The advance committee said it would attempt to see Mayor Andrew Davidson of Calgary with a view to having the city provide food and lodging for the marchers during their stay here, probably three or four days.

Plan Organizing

During the Calgary stop-over, delegates will be sent to all Alberta relief camps to 'organize' the men for the march.

The demands are:

1.—Abolition of unemployed relief camps.

2.—Substitution of a system of "work and wages" with a minimum wage of 50 cents an hour, a five day week, a six-hour day and a minimum of 20 shifts a month.

3.—The franchise for all unemployed.

4.—Abolition of section 98 of the criminal code.

5.—Abolition of sections 41 and 42 of the Immigration Act.

6.—A system of adequate first-aid and compensation for all relief camps; and 7.—Non-contributory unemployment insurance.

BLAIR WAS AT HOSTEL HERE

Police Records Show Shooting Victim Twice Registered at Red Cross.

COOK AT CAMP 3.

Noel Blair, otherwise Norman Blair, transient farm-laborer, whose remains are resting at Reynold's undertaking parlors at Bethany, awaiting burial pending an autopsy to be undertaken by Dr. Frankish, medico-legal expert, sought refuge at the Red Cross Hostel on Hunter Street on at least two recent occasions.

Police records disclose that "Norman Blair, 25, Hull, Quebec," was registered in the transient book on March 30 last, and again as "Norman Blair, Douro," on April 23 last. On both occasions he was given shelter at the Red Cross Hostel for unemployed men.

It is also stated that prior to hiring for employment with Ralph Portsmith, now in custody at Cobourg in connection with the death of Blair, the latter had worked in Camp 3, Department of Northern Development, as a cook. He is further believed to have worked for a few days with a farmer in Apsley district, and with another farmer in Cavan Township, before going to the Portsmith place to work.

William Driver, local taxi proprietor, who drove Mrs. Portsmith to Cobourg jail yesterday afternoon to see her husband, who is held on a charge of vagrancy in connection with the fatal shooting, which Portsmith claims was an accident, quoted the woman as saying that both she and her husband had been terrified by Blair. He also verified other reports that the trouble had arisen when Blair had sought to force unwelcome attention on Mrs. Portsmith.

Driver stated he had known Portsmith and his wife for fourteen years, and he described him as being a quiet, inoffensive and hard-working fellow. Before he entered the employment of Quaker Oats, Limited, five years ago, Portsmith worked for James Juby, grocer, and Porter S. White, Driver stated.

The Examiner viewed Blair's remains at Reynold's undertaking establishment at Bethany yesterday afternoon, and they were those of a short but heavy set man of powerful physique.

Five thousand needy school children in Johannesburg, South Africa, are being fed by the city.

NORWOOD BOARD DISCUSSES FAIR

East Peterborough Directors Accept A. J. R. Eckardt Challenge Trophy.

REVISE PRIZE LIST

NORWOOD, June 7.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A meeting of the directors of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society was held in Norwood June 4. There was a good attendance, with President G. J. Elmhurst in the chair.

The prize list was gone over and several changes made. Some sections were added in different classes. The society is sponsoring a boys' calf club again this year, also a class for yearling heifers.

A letter was received from J. A. Carroll, superintendent of agricultural societies, advising that the A. J. R. Eckardt donation in district No. 4 has been awarded to the society for competition at the 1935 exhibition. This donation consists of a four-piece silver tea service with an appropriate oblong 2-inch silver tray, stamped and fully guaranteed, and will be awarded to the winner of the greatest number of points in all classes. A contestant must compete in at least 2 breeds of livestock other than poultry and at least in three kinds of farm products other than livestock and poultry. All exhibits other than livestock must be produced on farm of the exhibitor. Grain to qualify must be from a field of not less than 3 acres of one kind of crop. All livestock must be owned for a period of six months previous to date of fair by exhibitor competing. Competition is open to counties of Durham, Ontario, Peterborough and Victoria. The winner before donation is received must sign a declaration that all regulations have been observed..

The donation was accepted on motion of J. F. Elliott and Col. A. E. Birdsall.

It was decided to exhibit all grain in 8-quart sap buckets.

In class 4, the name, "general purpose horses," will be changed to "light agricultural horses."

Senior and junior calves will be included in all cattle classes.

The question of regional fairs came in for considerable discussion. District Representative A. D. Runions read several letters giving information on the subject. It was finally decided to leave fair open as in former years. Exhibitors in all classes of sheep and swine will be limited to one entry in each section.

Committees were named to canvass for special prizes in the different districts.

A committee was appointed to place the several special prizes in prize list after canvass is made.

Mrs. P. M. Grover and Mrs. F. E. Birdsall were named to revise prize list in classes 38 and 39 (ladies' and children's work).

POLICE HOLDING RALPH PORTSMITH

Hamilton, after a cursory examination, pronounced the man dead and notified the coroner.

Portsmith, a lifelong resident of Peterborough and district, had lately resided on River road, where he had a small market garden. Since September, 1930, and until May 29 last, he had been employed by Quaker Oats, Limited, and until a year ago he had resided at 478 Elm street, being described by neighbors and others as a quiet and industrious man.

Recently Rented Farm.

According to his brother, Roy Portsmith, he had found his work in a factory uncongenial to his health, and being a man fond of outdoor life, had rented the farm located at lot 1, concession 12, in Cavan Township, where yesterday's tragic happening was enacted.

With his wife and family of seven children, the eldest of whom is 9 years, Portsmith entered into possession of the farm about two months ago, and while still continuing with his other employment at the Quaker Oats plant, had found it necessary to engage hired help.

Meeting up with Blair, an unemployed transient, who stated that he came from Montreal, he hired him to help with spring planting operations some few weeks ago, and recently Portsmith had reason to make certain complaints about Blair's conduct to provincial police.

Unwelcome Attention.

It was learned from Constable Thompson that Blair had been trying to force his unwelcome attention on Portsmith's wife. She reported the matter to her husband, and as a result Blair was discharged from service on the farm.

Constable Carey, of Cobourg, with whom a complaint about Blair had been lodged by Portsmith, is stated to have seen Blair in the county town after he had been "fired" at the latter part of last week, and to have warned him to keep away from the Portsmith home.

By arrangement, Portsmith is stated to have met Blair in Peterborough on Wednesday evening after he had drawn his final pay from the Quaker Oats Company for the purpose of paying Blair the sum of $7.50 owing to him as wages. Portsmith then returned to his home.

Asleep Under Woodshed.

At about seven o'clock yesterday morning, it is stated, Portsmith's children heard the sound of a man's snoring, and Blair was found asleep under the woodshed. Whether he had walked the 14 or more miles from Peterborough to the farm or had hired a taxi or come by some other means is not known.

He was aroused from his sleep by Portsmith, however, according to Constable Thompson, and was ordered off the premises by his former employer. Refusing to leave the place, Blair is said to have displayed an ugly temper and to have threatened Portsmith and his wife, with the words, "I'll get you both."

Borrowed Rifle.

Johnnie Bryce, a neighbor's boy, had just arrived at the farm to help dig up potatoes ready for planting and had brought a .22 rifle with him which Portsmith had previously arranged to borrow for the purpose of shooting groundhogs, it was said.

According to a statement, which the Bryce boy is said to have given the police, Portsmith remarked, "I'll fire this in the air, it might scare him." He had reference to Blair, who was then stated to be crouched in the woodshed in a threatening attitude as if about to spring to attack Portsmith.

Portsmith, it is said, did not have the gun to his shoulder when it went off, but even had the rifle been aimed at Blair it could not have resulted with more telling effect. The bullet struck Blair square in the forehead, and he died almost instantly.

Scene of Tragedy.

The scene of the tragedy is about 8 miles due west of Scott's Corners on the boundary of Manvers and Cavan Townships. The farm is 200 acres in extent and commands a fine sweep of wooded hill country to the north-west.

When The Examiner visited the farmstead yesterday afternoon, Roy Portsmith, a brother of the tenant, was in charge. With him on the farm was a neighbor woman and two or three of the Portsmith children. The younger children were being cared for by neighbors, it was said, while Mrs. Portsmith, formerly Dorothy Townsend, journeyed into Peterborough by taxi to inform her mother-in-law, Mrs. M. J. Portsmith, 161 Antrim street, of the tragedy, which had upset the even tenor of their lives.

Visiting Husband.

Later Mrs. Portsmith proceeded to Cobourg to visit with her husband, who is held in custody there.

Roy Portsmith, who had recently arrived at the farm after word of the affair had been received in Peterborough, was unable to discuss any details in connection with the matter. He stated the children of Mr. and Mrs. Portsmith are Donald, Howard, Allan, Gilbert, Gordon, Gloria and June, the eldest being nine years and the youngest little more than a baby in arms.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Gardiner will be delighted to know that their son, Freddie, aged thirteen years, who has been confined to bed with illness for the past two and one-half years, has so far recovered that he was able to be at the agricultural grounds on Monday, June 3, for the big King's jubilee celebration. Freddie is up a little while each day, and there is good hope of permanent recovery. His illness grew out of an attack of infantile paralysis when he was seven, followed by whooping-ough.

Colonel J. W. Odell, P.S.I. for East Durham, was among the many visitors in town on Monday for the King's jubilee celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Hill, of Toronto, with their two boys, spent Monday, June 3, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thorndyke, and attended the jubilee celebration at the Agricultural Park.

The annual street dance, sponsored by the Agricultural Society, will be on Thursday, June 20, with "The Country Gentlemen," a Toronto orchestra of nine pieces, providing music. Soloists, snappy costumes and dancing will be other features adding to the enjoyment of the occasion.

Miss B. M. Turner, B.A., supplied at the Continuation School during the absence of the principal, Miss C. M. Duncanson, B.A., who was writing on university examinations.

On Thursday the remains of the late C.Q.M.S. John Abbott were interred in St. Paul's Cemetery, Cavan. Rev. William Simpson, B.A., conducted the service, and comrades of the deceased who took some part included Colonel A. V. Thorne, Corporal J. Todd, C.Q.M.S. George Freelove, Corporal Albert Muspratt, Corporal Hugh Blair, Corporal J. W. Hilton and R.S.M. William Theobald, M.M.

Saturday, June 8, at 8 p.m., at the home of Mrs. T. H. Aiken, is the date and place for the next meeting of the Women's Institute. Report of the recent district annual will be given by the secretary, Mrs. G. Fallis, and the roll call is picnic suggestions.

The many friends of Councillor J. R. Eakins will be glad to know of the improvement in his health which permitted attendance at the King's jubilee celebration at the Agricultural Park on Monday, June 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Vesper and little son, of Los Angeles, California, are visiting her mother and aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Armstrong, and Mrs. L. H. Read, King street.

The local Cadet Corps attended divine worship on Sunday, June 2, at 7.30 p.m., in St. Andrew's Church. The minister, Rev. A. L. Sisco, preached on "Opportunity," and the young people's choir provided music. The cadets were over forty strong and under direction of Cadet Captain Owen McCarthy, Cadet Sergeant Reg. McKnight and their instructor, Lieutenant B. B. Dawson.

The annual banquet, which closes the Y.P.S. meetings for the current season, will be held in the basement of St. Andrew's Church on Friday at 6.30 p.m., with Rev. Franklin Bannister, of Canton, as guest speaker. Tickets are available from Dorothy McDowell, Gordon Muspratt or Oliver Brock.

Obituary

Funeral services for Mrs. Johanna Sullivan who passed away on Tuesday, took place on Thursday morning from the residence, 109 Sophia street, to the Church of the Immaculate Conception for Requiem Mass at 9.00 o'clock, offered by the pastor, Very Reverend Dean O'Sullivan. Present in the sanctuary were Reverend C. J. Carroll and Reverend C. J. Begley.

Deceased was the last member of the family of the late John O'Brien and Mary Fitzgerald and had spent her entire life in Peterborough county and city. Born in Douro seventy-four years ago on the farm on which St. Joseph's cemetery is now located, as a young woman she became the bride of the late Dennis Sullivan, who passed away about fourteen years ago after an active life on the railroad.

Mrs. Sullivan spent the remainder of her life in this city and took a very deep interest in all matters pertaining to her church, particularly charity, and the abundance of spiritual and floral tokens offered as well as the very large gathering of friends who assembled at the church for the services gave silent testimony of the love and affection she had enjoyed from her long and useful life spent among them.

Reverend Dean O'Sullivan in delivering his address to the congregation spoke of the loss which the community and church had suffered by her passing and the beautiful example of the life of a Christian mother and valiant woman which deceased had practiced in the church, her home and among the acquaintances where she centered her chief interests during life. The cortege proceeded to St. Joseph's cemetery where her remains were laid to rest in the family plot by her five sons, John, Richard, Leo, Vincent and William Sullivan, and son-in-law, Alex Murdock.

Reverend Edward Welsh conducted the services at the grave assisted by Reverend C. J. Begley.

Besides her five sons, she leaves to mourn her loss two daughters, Mrs. Alex Murdock of this city and Mrs. E. Dunlay of Campbellford.

MRS. ANNIE KINGSCOTT

Mrs. Kingscott, widow of the late Alfred Kingscott who conducted a tent and awning business on water street here twenty years ago, died at her home in Mimico yesterday. She was in her 78th year.

The deceased was born in England and spent a number of years in this city. Her husband, who died in Toronto, June 8, 1929, was for a period employed with J. J. Turner and Sons here before opening his own business. Three sons, Charles, Harry and Allan and one daughter, Marie, all in Toronto, survive.

The remains are resting in Toronto until Saturday morning when they will be forwarded to Peterborough. A service will be held at the funeral home of A. Comstock and Son Saturday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock and interment will be made in Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. G. J. Bousfield of St. Luke's Anglican Church will officiate.

E. P. JENKINS LAID TO REST

DETROIT, June 7.—(CP)—Funeral services for Edmund P. Jenkins will be held here today with interments in Evergreen cemetery. The Rev. C. B. Allen of Metropolitan M. E. Church will officiate.

Mr. Jenkins died at his home in Highland Park Tuesday after an illness of four months. He was born in Port Hope, Ont., 73 years ago and had lived in Detroit 10 years. Before coming to Detroit he was a merchant in Kingston, Ont., and was an active member of the Sydenham M.E. Church and Kingston Lodge, A.F.&A.M. there.

JAMES R. YOUNG

The death of James Richard Young occurred at the home of his son, James R. Young, Jr., in Toronto yesterday in his 62nd year. He was husband of the late Mary Ann Young and father of James and Eric Young, both of Toronto.

The funeral will be held from the son's home, 276 Brookdale avenue, Toronto, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in Park Lawn Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM.

RONCO. — In loving memory of Joseph Ronco, who passed away June 7, 1931.

Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind;
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.

Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days;
Sincere and true in heart
and mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind.

I have lost my soul's companion,
A life linked with my own;
And day by day I miss him more
As I walk through life alone.

Peaceful be thy rest,
dear father,
It is sweet to breathe
thy name;
In life we loved you
dearly,
In death we do the same.

May Be Millions In Buried Plate

SHAFTESBURY, Eng., June 7 (C.P.) — One of England's great lost treasures, jeweled plate believed to be worth millions of dollars, may be on the point of recovery with the excavation of a long-sought arch on the site of the ancient Abbey here.

The arch, found about 16 feet below the original level of the Abbey, is thought to be the entrance to a tunnel under the old structure in which, tradition has it, the valuable treasures of the Abbey, once the second wealthiest religious house in England, were stored upon its dissolution.

The ruins of Shaftsbury Abbey are all that remain of the Benedictine house founded by Alfred the Great more than 1,000 years ago. It was for many centuries a house of great sanctity and it is believed the body of King Edward the Martyr was buried there.

The tomb was founded in 1861, but there was no sign of any remains because, according to historians, they were removed at the time of the dissolution of the Abbey in the 16th century.

Less Than Two Weeks Remain In Travel Club Contest

CHANGES IN STANDING SPUR TRAVEL CLUB MEMBERS

The time is growing short. The Peterborough Examiner Travel Club Contest is going to end on Saturday, June 15th. Since the contest opened the candidates have been working hard and conscientiously. It is not the man who starts out on a long race, leading the field, who always wins; it is the man who puts every ounce of effort into the sprint home that usually comes out victorious. After all, there is the old fable of the tortoise and the hare. Depending on his speed, the hare snatched a nap, believing that the lead he had ahead of the tortoise would easily win the race for him. Much to his chagrin, he found that the tortoise had plodded steadily on and had passed him, gaining such a lead for himself, with the goal in sight, that the hare was unable to overcome the handicap. So it is in a contest. Candidates might feel sure of their positions in the race, but they would do well to be governed by the foregoing story, because, after all, slow and sure usually results in victory and not always to the swift comes first place. We would urge all candidates to bear in mind that only a few days remain in which they might realize on the efforts they have already put forth in their canvass, and would suggest that, either by telephone or personal call, that they get in touch with those prospects who have promised to either renew or subscribe to The Examiner. These prospects mean votes, and votes count.

NOW IS THE TIME TO CLEAN UP YOUR BACK CALLS! DON'T DELAY! TIME IS PRECIOUS!

BALLOT BOX WILL BE SEALED NEXT WEEK ALL COUPONS DEPOSITED WILL REMAIN IN SEALED BALLOT BOX UNTIL CLOSE of CONTEST

At the beginning of the final week of the contest, the Travel Club Manager will seal the ballot box, and there will be no possible chance of any member of the staff or any Club member knowing what coupons have been deposited to the credit of the Club members. This has been our policy, to conduct these campaigns in a clean manner, that is to say, that we endeavor to treat all candidates fairly and impartially, and we would like to say at this juncture that there is not one candidate in the field who knows, outside of the standings which have appeared in the columns of The Examiner, any more about the relative positions of their competitors than we do. Coupons which are deposited in the ballot box by supporters will remain there until the end of the contest, when the final results will be compiled and auditors will be engaged to check findings. Subscribers will do well to gather up all the coupons at their command and deposit these coupons in the ballot box, or see that they are placed in the hands of their favorite. Still, coupons which at the present time count fifty votes each are mere bagatelle as far as piling up votes for your favorite is concerned. Subscriptions count, and during this week a yearly subscription or renewal would give your favorite 22,000 votes and next week 20,000, with an additional bonus of 5,000 votes should the subscription be a new one. Subscriber, we would suggest that you ponder this in your mind: sell yourself the idea that the candidate in your district should be a representative of the community spirit that you would foster in the respect that you would very much like to see someone from your own community win a trip to New York and Bermuda.

LESS THAN TWO WEEKS REMAIN---YOUR DISTRICT CANDIDATE IS DEPENDING ON YOU--SUPPORT HER NOW!

Mrs. P. Black of Black's Store has returned home after a very pleasant trip, during which she was a guest at two big birthday parties. On Sunday last, she attended the fiftieth birthday party, held at the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, of Mrs. Archibald Jacob (Lillian) Frieman, O.B.E., president for Canada of the Hadassah Society of Jewish women. On that occasion, over twelve hundred people from Ottawa and all over Canada helped to celebrate the occasion and also contributed $53,500 toward the Palestine Fund. On Sunday afternoon, busses and cars transported the guests to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frieman, on the beach, where they were greeted by the latter, and dainty refreshments were served. In the evening, a gathering was held at the Chateau Laurier, with Rev. Dr. Herman Abramovitch as toastmaster. The ceremony of lighting fifty candles on a cake weighing six hundred pounds and centered by the words, "Canadian Hadassah" was followed by greetings from many Jewish organizations in Canada and also from the Histadruth in Palestine. The toast to Mrs. Frieman was tendered by Mr. Louis Fitch, K. C. In reply, the guest of honor, with tears in her eyes, expressed her appreciation of the honor, also for the presentation of a Golden Book in oak covers, with members' names written in gold ink. (A page was sent to every Hadassah society in Canada and inscribed with the names of the members, of which Peterborough's list included thirty). At the close of the program, the guests adjourned to the ballroom which was beautifully decorated with flowers. On each individual table was placed a gold-painted horseshoe filled with lily of the valley and ferns. The six - hundred pound cake was brought in on a float by eighteen children dressed in filmy organdie frocks. As the cake was brought in, two dozen live white doves were released and flew in over the float. Then the lighting of the fifty candles took place, by members of working committees of offices of the Hadassah throughout Canada. Community singing led by the Montreal Hadassah Society included songs of Palestine, of a spiritual and national type. Plays of a similar trend were also presented by the Toronto Hadassah Society, and the Hatikvah (Jewish National Anthem) was sung. On Monday, June 3, the Hadassah organization for the Dominion invited all to the ceremony of placing a wreath in the Memorial Chamber of the House of Commons. The second gala occasion attended by Mrs. Black during her absence was also in Ottawa, when the city celebrated the birthday of the King with fitting ceremony. Mrs. Black was one of the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frieman, who attended, with their party, a Garden Tea held at Government House from four to six o'clock in the afternoon, when over two thousand people were present. Mrs. Black met there Miss Alla Sats of Toronto, secretary of the Ontario Hadassah. She was greatly impressed by the beautiful appointments of the rooms, the Rose room, done in rose hues, the Ivory room, decorated with orchid and pink sweet peas, and the drawing-room, filled with roses and chrysanthemums and ferns extending from ceiling to floor, in one corner. Many large painted portraits of Their Majesties and of Queen Victoria were also remarked. Outdoors, tables were placed on the lawns, where ice cream, drinks of all kinds, sandwiches, and strawberries with whipped cream, were served by uniformed attendants. A military band of fifty pieces played steadily throughout the afternoon, and Lord and Lady Bessborough received during part of the time. Mrs. Black noted with interest the beautiful dresses of the ladies and many men in uniform and full dress, "mostly middle-aged and elderly".

Several pleasant hours were spent in examining the many lovely antiques with which the house is filled, in strolling around the pretty lawns and gardens, and enjoying tea within doors. (Among the old books of interest in a large collection of ancient volumes was a Mercantile Agency and Reference Book published in 1872, "containing names and ratings of principal merchants, traders and manufacturers," in which the wealthy and prosperous firm of the T. Eaton Company (in this day) was jotted down in the Dry Goods section, and rated as worth between $2,000 and $5,000, with a General Credit of "Fair"!). Arrangements for tea were in charge of Mrs. H. Exceeding their greatest expectations in the financial success of the affair, the opening social event of the recently-formed Junior Welfare League, held yesterday afternoon in the form of a Garden Tea at the residence on Dublin Street of the present, Mrs. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, was a huge success. The members realized from their initial effort the handsome sum of nearly one hundred and seventy dollars. About seventy-five people came during the afternoon hours to patronize the various prettily-arranged booths placed on the lawns, which, with the flowers and shrubbery, made a lovely setting for the affair, while the quaint house (formerly the residence of Dr. and Mrs. N. H. Sutton), provided the setting for the tea, served in the attractive dining-room and also in the living-room. The tables were done with cloths of filet and cutwork and huge bowls filled with mauve iris, white lilacs and crimson peonies. Tea was poured by the honorary president, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. H. A. Morrow, Miss Laura Davidson and Miss Emma Morrow. Miss Helen Munro had charge of arrangements for tea, and assistants were the Misses Louise Lundy, Betsy Scott, Jean Howson, Alicia Langley, Elizabeth Mackay, Jacqueline Graham and Phyllis Cruthers. Out of doors, at the various tables, many pretty things were sold: fancy work, knitted pieces, candy and flowers, and fortunes were told by Miss Claire Mason, the secretary-treasurer of the League. The sales were in charge of club members: Mrs. Hicks-Lyne, Mrs. J. W. Stevenson, Mrs. Gordon Munro, Mrs. D. B. Falkner, Mrs. D. MacTavish, Mrs. H. Hill's, Mrs. Herbert Bradburn, Mrs. James Blaiklock, Mrs. Walter Perks, Mrs. C. G. Colling, Miss Helen Munro, Miss Elizabeth Mulholland, Miss Claire Mason. Charming little assistants at the hedge entrance to the garden were little Rosemary Blaiklock and the small son of the house, Timmy Hicks-Lyne. During the tea hour, draws took place for three articles made and donated by League members. A child's dress was won by Mrs. H. A. Morrow and two knitted bed-jackets went to Mrs. J. W. McDermid and Miss Abbie Robinson.

Weddings

DeNOBLE—GIARDINO

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at eight o'clock yesterday morning at the Church of the Sacred Heart, by the Rev. J. J. O'Brien, when Mary Elvera, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Giardino of 502 Parnell street, became the bride of Mr. William Alphonse DeNoble, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. DeNoble of 508 Parnell street.

During the progress of the Nuptial Mass, Miss Stella Brady sang very sweetly.

The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of white silk net over satin, cut on princess lines. Her veil of fine tulle was caught in cap fashion with a wreath of orange blossoms. She wore white satin slippers and matching hose and gloves, and carried a bouquet of white roses, sweet peas and maidenhair fern.

The bridesmaid, Miss Loretta Giardino, sister of the bride, wore pink silk net over-satin with a pink net picture hat and matching accessories. Her bouquet was of Briarcliff roses and maidenhair fern.

Mr. John DeNoble acted as groomsman for his brother.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous repast was served to seventy-five guests, including the Rev. J. J. O'Brien and the Rev. C. Maloney. The table was prettily decorated with white and pink roses, streamers and bells, and was centered by the bride's cake.

Later, Mr. DeNoble and his bride left on a short honeymoon trip, the bride travelling in a white crepe swagged suit with white hat and accessories. The young people, who received many beautiful gifts from a large circle of friends, will live at 508 Parnell street.

KANSAS FLOOD JOINS MISSOURI

Kaw River Rampage Costs 124 Lives, Does Millions of Dollars Damage.

400,000 ACRES COVERED.

KANSAS CITY, June 7. (AP).—Last link in a path of desolation early 1,090 miles long was completed- to-day as the flood crest of the Kaw River began pouring into the already overflowing Missouri.

hTe loss of more than a 100 lives and millions of dollars in damage marked the passing of the flood waters down the Kaw and its tributary, the Repblican. Starting in eastern Colorado, flood waters swept into southern Nebraska and down into Kansas leaving a desolate slit and debris laden path in some places as wide as four and five miles.

Red Cross reports disclosed 124 persons had met death in the disaster. hTe report also showed 536 homes were totally destroyed, 2,423 homes seriously damaged and 4,293 families affected.

Near the mouth of the iMssouri there was a different picture. From Rocheport to the mouth at St. Charles, a distance o more than 200 miles, the river is out of its banks and in many places is five miles wide.

In the area where a "bumper" crop was expected two weeks ago, cattle are huddled on high knolls; only the tops of houses and farm buildings are visible; roads are inundated, and here and there tops of abandoned motor cars may be seen.

H. H. Krusekopf, professor of soils at the University of Missouri, estimated 400,000 acres of farmland was under water from Kansas City to St. Charles.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

Be Beautiful

By GLADYS GLAD

A New York skin specialist recently made the statement that he considers a beautiful hand as rare as a perfect face. But he also added that one seldom sees a hand so ugly that it cannot be improved upon and given a semblance of beauty. He is correct. Take Gladys George, for instance, whose talented acting in "Personal Appearance" has drawn "raves" from the critics. Gladys has been endowed with a shapely figure and lovely features. Yet this same lass also possesses correspondingly lovely hands. She says that it is chiefly because she knows how to care for and groom her hands properly.

Proper care and grooming of the hands do have a great deal to do with their attractiveness. One of the chief points in nail care that Gladys is particular about is that she preserves the delicate lines of the half-moons that grace her fingernails. When the half-moons on the fingernails are clearly defined and properly shaped, they add to the beauty of the fingertips. Yet it sometimes proves a difficult task to keep the half-moons perfectly exposed, for the cuticle, if neglected, tends to adhere to the nails and to conceal the half-moon.

Daily Care Is Trick

The trick in preserving attractive half-moons lies in giving them proper care. The nails must not be neglected, and the cuticle must not be given an opportunity to adhere to the nails. Any girl who desires attractive fingertips should not be content merely with a weekly manicure, but she must give her fingernails daily care, too.

If you are trying to develop or preserve perfect half-moons on your fingernails, you should give your cuticle a daily massage. The cuticle is sensitive and tender, you know, but when neglected, often tends to become thick and horny. A bit of cotton should be wrapped around the end of an orangewood stick, to massage the cuticle, and then dipped in cuticle oil or warmed olive oil. Then each nail should be gone over wit hthe oiled tip, working from the nail tip up to the cuticle. Next the orangewood stick should be passed over the base of each nail and the cuticle pushed back. This should be repeated over each fingertip every day, in order to keep the cuticle supple and in good condition.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Weight

Johnny: I think that a man 5 feet 9 inches tall and 25 years of age should weigh about 153 pounds.

Sunburn

Jean: Protect your face as much as possible from the sun's rays if you do not wish to become sunburned. And always apply a coating of cold cream and powder before going out of doors.

Standard Weight

H. C.: As you neglected to state your age, it is impossible for me to tell you your correct weight. I shall be glad to reply to your inquiry if you will forward this information.

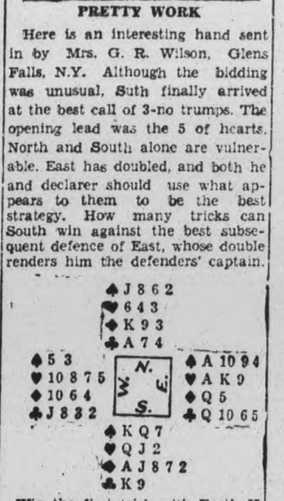
CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. Shepard

"Teacher of Teachers"

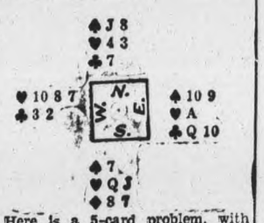
PRETTY WORK

Here is an interesting hand sent in by Mrs. G. R. Wilson, Glens Falls, N.Y. Although the bidding was unusual, Suth finally arrived at the best call of 3-no trumps. The opening lead was the 5 of hearts. North and South alone are vulnerable. East has doubled, and both he and declarer should use what appears to them to be the best strategy. How many tricks can South win against the best subsequent defence of East, whose double renders him the defenders' captain.



Win the first trick with East's K of hearts. His best chance to defeat the contract is to employ his high honors to establish clubs. Have him lead back his lowest club. South's K will win. To go game South must win two tricks in each black suit and five diamonds, or the substitution of a heart trick for one of the spade tricks. Play the hand any way you like. Leading a high spade from the short end of that suit is the most normal method of offence. Naturally East will not win the first spade trick, but when the K is followed by the Q it is probable that East will take his ace of spades, as he has that suit stopped again. If East refuses the second spade trick, waiting for South to lead a third round of spades, South can force East into the lead with the ace of hearts, by leading the Q of hearts. Suppose that East puts up his ace of spades when South leads the second high honor from his hand. He will clear clubs by leading the 6 of that suit. West's J will force dummy's ace, leaving the suit established for East, who still has entry in his ace of hearts.

Still running off five diamond tricks. At the end of the third round of that suit the players will hold as shown below.



Here is a 5-card problem, with South in the lead and bound to win two tricks in diamonds and the J of spades, let East do what he likes. Lead next to the last diamond and let go one of dummy's hearts. East must let go a club, to prevent dummy's spades from both becoming good. Lead the last diamond and let go dummy's last heart. If East lets go his ace of hearts both declarer's hearts become good and 5-odd will be made. East can assure himself a single trick in clubs, by letting go one of his spades, or he can make certain of a single spade trick, by letting go his good club. In any event the declarer should win 4-odd.

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

Spaghetti and Tomatoes
Spinach or Young Beets Greens
Lettuce and Watercress Salad
Baking Powder Biscuits
Bananas and Oranges Sliced
Tea

A friend asked me the other day why her baking powder biscuits did not rise. I could only guess what her trouble was, but this is how I make my biscuits, and I have no trouble. This recipe may be used for shortcakes as well as for the tea biscuits.

Today's Recipes

Baking Powder Biscuits—Measure and sift two cups flour, four teaspoons (level) baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt and one teaspoon sugar. Add four tablespoons of lard, butter or half of each. Mix thoroughly with the dry ingredients, using either your fingers or a fork. Then add sweet milk gradually until you have a soft dough, but one that can be handled. Turn out on floured board and knead gently for two or three minutes. Then cut, place on greased tin and put into hot oven—375 to 400 degrees. Some cooks advocate melting butter in the dripping pan, putting the biscuits in, turning them over so both sides are coated with butter, and then baking. This gives them a crisp crust, so do as you please, or as your time or the quantity of butter you wish to use allows. If you want to make the biscuits particularly small and dainty, and have no small cutter, use a cream or milk bottle to cut them.

Spaghetti and Tomato—Boil the required amount of spaghetti in salted water until tender. Run seven piece of bacon through the food grinder, brown in frying pan, add one large onion which has also been put through the grinder, and one green pepper—if you have it—and brown lightly in bacon fat. Add one large cup tomatoes, cook all together for five minutes. Put spaghetti into casserole, add tomato mixture, top with buttered crumbs and bake for 15 minutes or so in oven. Serves six.

Children Make For New Women

MONTREAL, June 7 (C.P.)—"You can't turn back the clock!" was Lady Baden-Powell's reply when questioned on her attitude toward woman being forced back into the home. Lord and Lady Baden-Powell and party were in Montreal in the course of their tour around the world in the interests of the Scout and Guide movements.

The ideal, however, Lady Baden-Powell declared, was to go according to the laws of nature. If a woman had children they should be her first consideration. "But, unfortunately," she said, "the sexes are too unevenly matched for every woman to become a wife and mother. In England alone there are 1,000,000 surplus women, but it is often these very women who do the most wonderful work."

Lady Baden-Powell spoke of the opportunities to be found in the Guide movement for such women to express their mother instinct in caring for children who greatly need their help and guidance. "I have seen hard, dried-up twigs of women blossom out into brand new people full of life and bubbling over with enthusiasm when children were given into their care," she said.

Oh wad some power the giftie gie us,
To see oorsel's as ithers see us.
It wad frae mony a blunder free us,
And foolish notion.

Burns.

Dear Friend:

I've often thought, it we could see ourselves under certain conditions, we would be brought to a full stop.

If a drunk person could see a moving picture of himself, I think it would do more to deter them than all the talk in the world.

If the angry one could see themselves raging around, they would curb their temper.

Even in dress one can see sion unbecoming colors, and combinations that it makes one wonder, if some of them even looked into a mirror.

If the elderly woman who dresses like a girl, could really see herself, she would dress befitting her age. If the old or middle-aged man could see how ridiculous he looks, when trying to flirt with a young girl, he would surely alter his ways.

If the gossip could see the trouble she causes, she would put a brake on her tongue. If we could only see and hear ourselves, how much better our manners would be, how much more kind. Before we criticise or condemn, let us look well at ourselves, and we shall be so busy correcting our faults, we wont have time to see the faults of others.

Your Friend.
ROBERTA.

LAWRENCE ORDERED TO RETURN TO FEISAL'S CAMP

HATED RESPONSIBILITY, SOUGHT TO BE RELIEVED OF MAKING SECOND TRIP

Lawrence by Series of Hard Rides Arrives at Feisal's Camp.

TURKS REPULSED

(By T. E. Lawrence)

After I had been a few days in Cairo, my chief, General Clayton, told me to return to Arabia and Feisal. This being much against my grain I urged my complete unfitness for the job; said I hated responsibility—and that in all my life objects had been gladder to me than persons and ideas than objects. So the duty of succeeding with men, of disposing them to any purpose, would be doubly hard to me. I was unlike a soldier: hated soldiering: whereas the Sirdar had telegraphed to London for certain regular officers competent to direct the Arab war.

Col Lawrence

Clayton replied that they might be months arriving, and meanwhile Feisal must be linked to us, and his needs promptly notified to Egypt. So I had to go; leaving to others the Arab Bulletin I had founded, the maps I wished to draw, and the file of the war-changes of the Turkish Army, all fascinating activities in which my training helped me; to take up a role for which I felt no inclination. As our revolt succeeded, onlookers have praised its leadership: but behind the scenes lay all the vices of amateur control, experimental councils, divisions whimsicality.

Journey Was To Yembo

My journey was to Yembo, now the special base of Feisal's army. As I was starting thence up country to visit Feisal again, news came in of a Turkish repulse. A reconnaissance of their cavalry and camel corps had been pushed too far into the hills, and the Arabs had caught it and scattered it. So I made a happy start with my sponsor for the journey, Sherif Abdel Kerim. With him were three or four of his men, all well mounted; and we had a rapid journey, for Abd el Kerim was a famous rider who took pride in covering his stages at three times the normal speed. It was not my camel, and the weather was cool and clouded, with a taste of rain. So I had no objection.

After starting, we cantered for three unbroken hours. That had shaken down our bellies far enough for us to hold more food, and we stopped and ate bread and drank coffee till sunset, while Abd el Kerim rolled about his carpet in a dog-fight with one of the men. When he was exhausted he sat up; and they told stories and jaded, till they were breathed enough to get up and dance. Everything was very free, very good-tempered, and not at all dignified.

When we re-started, an hour's mad race in the dusk brought us to the foot of a low range. We crossed it, going up a narrow, winding, sandy valley. Because this had run in flood a few days earlier, the going was firm for our panting camels; but the ascent was steep and we had to take it at walking pace. This pleased me, but so angered Abd el Kerim, that when, in a short hour we reached the water-shed he thrust his mount forward again and led us at break-neck speed down hill in the yielding night (a fair road, fortunately, with sand and pebbles underfoot) for half an hour, when the land flattened out, and we came to the outlying plantations of Nakhl Mubarag, chief date-gardens of the southern Juheina.

Something Strange

As we got near we saw through the palm trees flame, and the flame-lit smoke of many fires, while the hollow ground re-echoed with the roaring of thousands of excited camels, and volleying of shots or shoutings in the darkness of lost men, who sought through the crowd to rejoin their friends. As we had heard in Yembo that the Nekhl were deserted, this tumult meant something strange, perhaps hostile. We crept quietly past an end of the grove and along a narrow street between man-high mud walls, to a silent group of houses. Abd el Kerim forced the courtyard door of the first on our left, led the camels within, and hobbled them down by the walls that they might remain unseen. Then he slipped a cartridge into the breech of his rifle and stole off on tiptoe down the street towards the noise to find out what was happening. We waited for him, the sweat of the ride slowly drying in our clothes as we sat there in the chill night, watching.

He came back after half an hour to say that Feisal with his camel corps had just arrived, and we were to go down and join him. So we led the camels out and mounted; and rode in file down another lane on a bank between houses, with a sunk-garden of palms on our right. Its end was filled with a solid crowd of Arabs and camels, mixed together in the wildest confusion, and all crying aloud. We pressed through them, and down a ramp suddenly into the bed of the Wadi Yembo, a broad, open space: how broad could only be guessed from the irregular lines of watchfires glimmering over it to a great distance. Also it was very damp; with slime, the relic of a shallow flood two days before, yet covering its stones. Our camels found it slippery under foot and began to move timidly.

We had no opportunity to notice this, or indeed anything, just now, except the mass of Feisal's army, filling the valley from side to side. There were hundreds of fires of thornwood, and round them were Arabs making coffee or eating, or sleeping muffled like dead men in their cloaks, packed together closely in the confusion of camels. So many camels in company made a mess indescribable, couched as they were or tied down all over the camping ground, with more ever coming in, and the old ones leaping up on three legs to join them, roaring with hunger and agitation. Patrols were going out, caravans being unloaded, and dozens of Egyptian mules bucking angrily over the middle of the scene.

We ploughed our way through this din, and in an island of calm at the very centre of the valley-bed found Sherif Feisal. We halted our camels by his side. On his carpet, spread barely over the stones, he was sitting between Sherif Sharraf, the Kaimmakam both of the Imaret and of Taif, his cousin, and Maulud, the rugged, slashing old Mesopotamian patriot, now acting as his A.D.C. In front of him knelt a secretary taking down an order and beyond him another reading reports aloud by the light of a silvered lamp which a slave was holding. The night was windless the air heavy, and the unshielded flame poised there stiff and straight.

Welcomed by Feisal

Feisal, quiet as ever, welcomed me with a smile until he could finish his dictation. After it he apologized for my disorderly reception, and waved the slaves back to give us privacy. As they retired with the onlookers, a wild camel leaped into the open space in front of us, plunging and trumpeting. Maulud dashed at its head to drag it away; but it dragged him instead; and, its load of grass ropes for camel fodder coming untied, there poured down over the taciturn Sharaff, the lamp, and myself, an avalanche of hay. "God be praised," said Feisal gravely, "that it was neither butter nor bags of gold." Then he explained to me what unexpected things had happened in the last twenty-four hours on the battle front.

The Turks had slipped round the head of the Arab barrier forces in Wadi Safra by a side road in the hills, and had cut their retreat. The Harb, in a panic, had melted into the ravines on each side, and escaped through them in parties of twos and threes. The Turkish mounted men poured down the empty valley and over the Dhiffran Pass to Bir Said, where Emir Zeid, Feisal's young half-brother was camped with a Harb contingent. The Turks took Zeid by surprise and routed him. His force melted into a loose mob of fugitives riding wildly through the night towards Yenbo.

Situation Serious

Thereby the road to Yenbo was laid open to the Turks, and Feisal had rushed down here only an hour before our arrival, with five thousand men, to protect his base until something properly defensive could be arranged. The situation was serious; but Feisal's presence here might attract the enemy, and cause them to lose more days trying to catch his field army while we strengthened Yenbo. Meanwhile, he was doing all he could, quite cheerfully; so I sat down and listened to the news; or to the petitions, complaints and difficulties being brought in and settled by him summarily.

This lasted till half-past four in the morning. It grew ver ycold as the damp of the valley rose through the carpet and soaked our clothes. The camp gradually stilled as the tired men and animals went one by one to sleep; a white mist collected softly over them and in it the fires became slow pillars of smoke.

Feisal at last finished the urgent work. We ate half-a-dozen dates, a frigid comfort, and curled up on the wet carpet. As I lay there in a shiver, I saw the Biasha guards creep up and spread their cloaks gently over Feisal, when they were sure that he was sleeping.

An hour later we got up stiffly in the false dawn (too cold to go on pretending and lying down) and the slaves lit a fire of palm-ribs to warm us, while Sharraf and myself searched for food and fuel enough for the moment. Messengers were still coming in from all sides with evil rumours of an immediate attack; and the camp was not far off panic. So Feisal decided to move to another position, partly because we should be washed out of this one if it rained anywhere in the hills, and partly to occupy his men's minds.

Feisal in the Van

When his drums began to beat, the camels were loaded hurriedly. After the second signal every one leaped into the saddle and drew off to left or right, leaving a broad lane up which Feisal rode, on his mare, with Sharraf a pace behind him, and then Ali, the standard-bearer, a splendid wild man from Nejd, with his hawk's face framed in long plaits of jet-black hair falling downward from his temples. Ali was dressed garishly, and rode a tall camel. Behind him were all the mob of Sherifs and sheikhs and slaves — and myself — pell mell. There were eight hundred in the bodyguard that morning.

YOU— AND YOUR CAR

BY Frederick G. Russell

A Weekly Column Conducted by The Examiner for Drivers of Automobiles.

Less Idling in Traffic

Switching off the motor for long delays in traffic is one way of saving gas which may or may not be inconvenient, depending on how the motor behaves. Some engines will hold up and stall during prolonged idling; others will be hard to restart after being switched off. In a test one owner found that he could save five minutes idling of the motor on his trip home each night. To guard against any difficulty in re-starting he opened the throttle wide when touching the starter-button.

One Foot For Both

On cars which do not have a convenient hand control of the throttle it is a good plan to try pressing on the accelerator pedal with the heel of the right foot while lifting the toe of the foot from the brake pedal, assuming the car is starting off on an upgrade.

Use Wipers With Care

To avoid having a scratched windshield remember that the better your windshield wiper cleans the surface the more careful you should be to avoid using it when there is dirt on the glass. Be especially careful when driving in a light rain where the tires of cars ahead toss up a fine spray of dirty water. There is considerable abrasive in this.

Why Pedal Slack Varies

Motorists who know that there should be some slack in the clutch pedal before the plates actually start to disengage may be puzzled to note that in some of the newer cars the amount of slack varies in accordance with the speed of the car. This is due to centrifugal action of the new-type clutch which grips more as speed increases. There is about three times as much slack when the car idles as when the car is running full speed.

Omit Second For Getaway

Tests show that some cars get away better if they are shifted from low to high, omitting second altogether. Try out your car and see if it is among those which have a slow second gearing. It may be one of those cars that accelerate faster from ten miles per hour in high than from the same speed if driven first in second and then shifted to high.

QUERIES FROM CAR OWNERS

Q.—Whenever I take my car on a trip I notice that it is easier to steer than when I am merely using it around town. Even when I stop en route and must park the car it is easier to handle than when I am making short runs around the city. What's the answer?—G.L.

A.—Tire pressure increases with heat. Modern tires will "pick up" considerable air when the car is travelling at road speed. This accounts for the greater ease of steering.

Q.—Will my car accelerate faster if I lift my foot from the accelerator pedal and then press down on it again—as if pumping it?—J.D.

A.—Yes. This action serves to operate the acceleration pump of the carburetor.

That broadcasting in South Africa should be done by a public corporation rather than the Government, is the recommendation of Sir John C. W. Reith, English radio expert, who was asked by the Union Government to investigate the matter.

Place Offenders On Report Basis

MONTREAL, June 7 (C.P.)— A novel way of treating youthful first offenders is in operation in Montreal's juvenile court with great success in minor crimes such as petty theft, joy riding in other people's automobiles and fraudulent attempts to boost unemployment relief allowances.

Offenders are placed on suspended sentence in this unofficial probation system inaugurated by Judge Maurice Tetreault of the Court of Sessions. Judge Tetreault believes five years of depression idleness caused young men to drift to petty crime. Instead of sentencing the juvenile delinquents to prison terms where they will associate with hardened criminals, Judge Tetreault orders the youth to report to him each month.

In most cases the young men return to normal living and success of the system is shown by the fact that only one per cent of the offenders to date have appeared a second time to be sentenced to prison terms.

SMALL FIELDS AT LONG BRANCH DUE TO ILLNESS

Coughing Epidemic Has Followed Horses From Woodbine and Thorncliffe.

ED. ALLEN AS STEWART

LONG BRANCH is going along in nice style these days taking up just where Thorncliffe left off. The only drawback is the coughing epidemic among the horses which first showed at the Woodbine and followed up to Thorncliffe and now is really spreading at Long Branch. It is thought that some horses shipped in from Baltimore are responsible for bringing it along . . . For the first time in the history of mutuel betting at a Canadian track, the payoffs are computed and posted to the dollar instead of the two dollar unit and it has made it a little confusing to the wagering public but they are getting used to it and are also getting the break of the odd nickel which they were deprived of under the other system.

Harry Giddings has saddled exactly two winners since our season opened and needless to say he is not in the best of humor these days. But he will make amends before the season is over. Ed. Allen, sports editor of the Mail and Empire has been appointed a steward at Long Branch. He has been identified with the racing game for over twenty years and fills the bill to the satisfaction of everybody.

STAND PAT, Eddie Seagram's famous four-year-old has been top weight of 124 for the revival of the Great Western handicap which will be decided over a mile and a furlong at Washington Park tomorrow. He will be a dangerous factor although he is up against the cream of America's turf world. It will take a real horse to keep the famous yellow and black Seagram colors in the background.

Sea Kale has won a number of races this season and has been in about every third day. Should be given a well deserved rest. This Centremarch has developed into a real sprinter and does not have to fear any of them in the plater ranks. Beefsteak from the Hatch barn is a former E. R. Bradly colorbearer and has a lot of class. He suffered a lot of interference on opening day and on his next trip should do the trick. This horse Bill Kennedy has a preference for the Long Branch racing strip and it would not surprise us greatly if he won a race very shortly. Omareen has taken on a new lease of life this year and is winning consistently. He is a well bred horse and if his legs stand up he will gather in a lot more purses this year.

PITCHING COUNTS.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Pittsburgh Pirates, considered as a team to be feared this season because of the hitting power in the lineup, have at last begun to make their presence felt in the pennant race. But their latest spurt, which had carried them into second place to-day, has resulted more from pitching than from heavy stickwork.

Since they blugeoned their way to a three-game triumph over the Phillies at the end of their last eastern tour, the Bucs have won 16 out of 22 games, ringing up 10 victories in their last 12 starts. This winning streak has carried them from fifth place on May 29 past Brooklyn, Chicago and St. Louis into second and in only one of those five games have they gathered more than 10 hits. In the meantime Red Lucas and Bill Swift turned in six-hit mound performances, Jim Weaver a five-hit shutout, Cy Blanton outsteadied Dizzy Dean though touched for nine blows and finally Guy Bush, the veteran Mississippian, came through with a brilliant four-hit game yesterday to beat the Cardinals 2-1 and move his club up another notch.

Jitney Tournament On Madoc Greens

MADOC, June 7 (Examiner Correspondence).—The opening of the Madoc Lawn Bowling Club for the season of 1935 was celebrated on the afternoon of Wednesday, the first half holiday of the summer season, by a jitney tournament in which 20 members took part. A beautiful June afternoon favored the players and all enjoyed this first game of the season, which was not marred by a short sharp shower just before five o'clock. The first draw was made shortly after two o'clock, and three games of eight ends each were played.

The prizes were won by the following: Ladies, first prize, a white kid purse, by Mrs. T. L. Nickle, with the highest score on the grounds; second prize, a china plate, Mrs. W. Rupert. Gentlemen, first prize, a picnic kit, by M. Caverly; second prize, leather belt, by Dr. W. A. Wiper.

ART CALHOUN HOLDS PETES TO 3 CLOUTS

Belated Batting Rally in Eighth Clinches Victory For Belleville.

SCRIVER WILD AT TIMES.

(Special To The Examiner)

BELLEVILLE, June 7.—Inability to solve the deliveries of Art Calhoun, local speedball artist, cost the Peterborough "Sea Horses" a C.O.B.L. victory here last evening when the local Stewart Warners downed Knotty Lee's charges by the score of 3 to 0 in a regular League fixture.

Until a belated Belleville batting rally in the eighth, that netted them two runs, "Spooks" Scriver was repeatedly called upon to bear down and pitch himself out of tanglements, he found himself in due to wildness. Scriver developed a wild streak as the game progressed, walking three local batters and hitting four to place runners in potential scoring position. Only smart fielding and spurts of mid season pitching form on the part of Scriver, saved him from a worse defeat.

The "Sea Horses" opened purely on the offensive as they started to clout the offerings of Calhoun in the initial frame, getting two of their three hits in that stanza. With one out Calladine screeched a hit past third, Foley hit a slow roller over second that went for a hit and two were safe. Kearns rifled one at the pitcher, who tossed Foley out at second, while Kearns was called out at first to complete the double and pull the Radios out of a bad hole. Kearns objected strenuously to the call at first, without avail however.

The only other inning when the Petes threatened was in the fourth when Foley, the first batter, was hit. Kearns sacrificed while Foley advanced to third on Murphy's infield out. Burton struck out to end all chances of Peterborough scoring, as Calhoun retired the Sea Horses in order from then until the final out. An oddity appeared in the box score—only 28 batters officially faced Calhoun while only 27 officially faced Scriver.

Hitting Sensations

The hitting sensations of the day were supplied by the homesters with triples in the eighth by Alex Weir and Ossie McIlroy, local third sacker. Roy Smith lead all hitters with a double and a single to drive in two local runs. Calhoun and Barclay got the other two local bingles. After Foley and Calladine hit safely in the first inning, Cy Whatley was the only other Peterborough batter to be credited with a safe hit, a single in the third. On two walks, a hit batter and a single by R. Smith the homesters scored in the fourth frame. Scriver was wild for the remainder of the game, the locals getting three aboard, but no runs, in the fifth following two hit batters and a walk. Two triples and a double gave the Radios two more counters in the eighth.

Tommy Foley's running catch of R. Smith's line drive in the second inning was one fielding feature, while Murphy, at short threw out McIroy while in a sitting position in the third, Murphy slipping as he fielded the ball. He also completed six nice fielding chances without a bobble. Starr also starred. Only one error was committed, that being Ash's muff of Murphy's low peg in the eighth.

The game proved most hectic and many verbal exchanges were in evidence between the players and more particularly between Coaches Mills and Lee, over the question of base runners. Feeling ran high throughout with the result that a spirited game kept some 900 fans keenly interested. The home town victory elevates the Radios into sole possession of first place in the C.O.B.L., while the Peterborough loss drops them into third place, one game behind the second place Oshawa crew. Jimmie Barclay, local catcher, was badly injured when hit under the heart by one of Scriver's fast balls. Barclay continued to finish the pastime, but was removed to the Belleville General Hospital directly following the game.

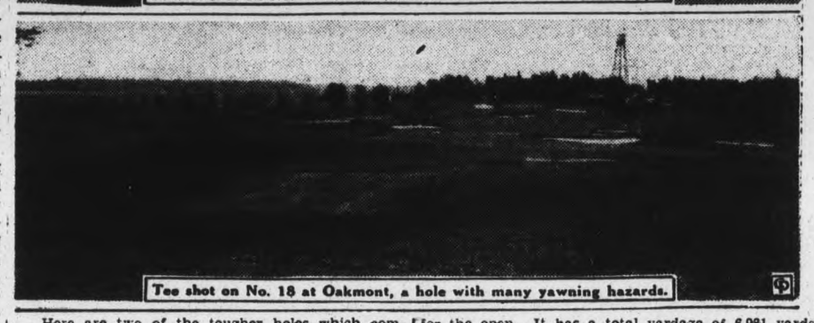
Two Of Worst 'Giant-Killers' At Oakmont

Second shot on No. 11 at Oakmont. Note the cross ditch and traps.



Tee shot on No. 18 at Oakmont, a hole with many yawning hazards.

Here are two of the tougher holes which competitors in the U.S. open golf championship will meet on the Oakmount, Penn., course as they start out for the title now held by Olin Dutra, starting June 6. The course is rated one of the toughest yet produced for the open. It has a total yardage of 6,981 yards and par is 72. Willie MacFarlane holds the course record at 294, but added hazards have been supplied since that was made. As can be seen, these two holes will supply plenty of trouble. Sarazen is favored.

TIGERS BEAT INDIANS 1-0 EXTRA INNING

Schoolboy Rowe Batted Out of Box After Hurling Six Hitless Frames.

RAIN HALTS NIGHTCAP.

Mickey Cochrane's Detroit Tigers, who have been moving up in the American League almost as steadily as Pittsburgh, took another forward step by moving into a third-place tie with the Cleveland Indians as they won a 10-inning struggle 10-9 then saw the second half of a scheduled doubleheader washed out. This decision and Chicago's enforced idleness, returned the White Sox to second place as the Indians fell back.

The Tigers were all set for a walkover when they built up a 7-0 lead while Schoolboy Rowe pitched six hitless innings. But in the seventh Rowe blew up with a big bang and Cleveland scored six runs before Elon Hogsett finally checked the rally. The Indians forged ahead in the eighth only to have the Tigers knot the score and finally win when Goose Goslin made his fourth hit and drove in his fifth run in the 10th after Charley Gehringer had opened with a double.

Henry Coppola, making his first mound start for Washington, baffled the Boston hitters with five hits to give the Senators a 3-0 victory over the Red Sox in yesterday's other major league game. Rain halted two other contests in each league while the Braves and Brooklyn had an open date.

JUNIE BARNES, TORONTO STAR IN 1-0 TRIUMPH

Barnes Wins His Own Game With Single in 5th, Sending in Deciding Run.

SYRACUSE ON TOP 5-1.

(By the Associated Press)

If Joe Cascarella, formerly of Philadelphia Athletics, keeps up his good hurling with Syracuse Chiefs of the International League, it won't be surprising to find the silver-voiced tenor of baseball back in the livery of Connie Mack's ball club soon.

A good seven innings pitcher in the American League, Joe was at least sure of winning the shortened nightcaps of double-headers in the International League. He started in three games for the Athletics but after losing a tough game to the Yankees and Lefty Gomez early in the season he didn't finish a game thereafter.

Starting in his second game for the Chiefs last night against Albany Senators, "Smiling" Joe fanned 12 batters and kept the Senators' eight hits well scattered, allowing no more than two in one inning as his mates made the most of their seven to win 5-1. The Chiefs scored three times in the first and twice in the fourth to give Cascarella all the edge he needed.

Toronto Maple Leafs moved into a virtual tie for second place with Montreal Royals and Baltimore Orioles as Junie Barnes, Leaf hurler pitched and batted his way to a 1-0 victory over Rochester.

Barnes held the Wings to six hits and fanned seven as he hooked up with Norbert Kleinke in a neat pitching duel. Kleinke, just back from the Wings parents organization, St. Louis Cardinals, was relieved in the fifth inning by Pearce after snapping a ligament in his arm. Barnes won his own game as he singled in the fifth after Pete Morrissey had doubled, sending Morrissey home with the deciding run.

Newark Bears and Baltimore were not scheduled while the Buffalo-Montreal game was postponed because of wet grounds.

FORDS SUFFER FIRST DEFEAT NEW SEASON

V-8's Fall Before Hard-hitting Fashion Craft Outfit by 9-2 Count.

LEAD FROM START.

Hood and Cummings lost their first game of the season last night at Central when they fell before the hard-hitting Fashion Craft outfit by a 9-2 count. The winners piled up all their runs in the first four frames, scoring five in the first, two in the second and one in each of the next two stanzas. They blasted the combined offerings of three opposing hurlers for a total of fifteen hits and looked to have the game in the bag at all times.

Collison did the elbowing for the Craftsmen and turned in a smell effort, allowing five hits and two runs while he breezed a third strike by fifteen of the opposition to win just as he pleased. He had a shutout up to the seventh when two hits, a walk and an error paved the way for the only two scores made by the Fords. The losers used three pitchers in an attempt to stem the stream of hits. Cavanaugh started, was yanked in the second in favor of Naish who lasted till the sixth when Manager Scates himself went to the mound and finished up the affair.

The slugging for the Fashions was supplied by Currie and Collison with three blows each while H. Dormer, playing his first game after an injury, connected for a circuit clout in his first trip to the plate. The five bingles garnered by the boys in white were notched by Dorrington, Gillespie and each of the three moundsmen who grabbed off one apiece.

The fielding was rather loose, 12 errors being made and many unearned runs came in as a result of this. The only highlight was a smart two-ply killing in the seventh by the losers going from Dorrington-to-McCarroll-to-Board to end that inning.

The teams:

Hood and Cummings: Dorrington, 3b; McCarroll, 2b; Board, 1b; Gillespie, cf; Caccavella, rf; Goodson, rf; O'Leary, lf; Hartley, ss; McGee, c; Cavanaugh, p; Naish, p; Scates, p.

Fashion-Craft: H. Dormer, 3b; Smith, 1b; Montgomery, lf; Playford, cf; Collison, p; Currie, rf; Gainey, ss; Stanger, 2b; Walsh, c.

Rotary Juniors Open Season On Saturday

The opening game of the Junior Lakeshore Baseball League in Peterborough takes place tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock in the Exhibition Grounds with Cobourg clashing with the local Rotarians, managed by Herb Ralph. This is a strong junior circuit made up of Oshawa, Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville and Peterborough. The first scheduled game was in Cobourg a few days ago and saw the homesters batter out an 11-1 win over Port Hope. They hope to repeat here tomorrow, but are likely to be stopped cold by Lefty Lesurf's slants. The former local juvenile mound star, who shone in Toronto junior ball last summer, is in top form and due to pitch a great game. It should be a fine struggle between two classy outfits.

Herb Ralph has brought his team along from bantams, keeping them together. On his lineup are several players about ready for senior company. He has Bun Kingdon, Al and Grant Clark, McKinley, Mowry, Thorburn, Giardina, Vitarelli, Lesurf, and half a dozen other well-known former juveniles. They have been practising for a month now and should be ready. The diamond at the Exhibition Grounds is in perfect shape, the admission low and the game promising. With good weather the townsters should draw a real crowd for the league fixture.

BRAHAM ADAMANT IN RULING ON PITTS

Ex-Convict Has Offers From Several Semi-professional Clubs.

ALBANY, N.Y., June 7.—(AP)—"Alabama" Pitts tucked an unconditional release from the Sing Sing baseball club in his pocket yesterday, and reported to Albany Senators in the midst of a controversy over his professional eligibility.

As he left the shadows of prison, the star of Sing Sing's athletic team cupped an ear to the high howl of debate over the question:

"Is an ex-convict eligible to play professional baseball?"

W. C. Bramham, president of the National Association of Minor Professional Baseball Leagues, said 'No.' He said it twice, the last time to Warden Lawes at Sing Sing, who appealed to him.

"It is not a question of the individual, Edwin Pitts," said Bramham, in a telegram to Lawes, "but his case presents this question: "Shall the ranks of organized baseball be opened to ex-convicts." I construe it my duty to answer in the negative. If my judgment is erroneous, I am glad the Executive Committee and the High Commissioner have the power to reverse me."

DINTY'S INN, 4TH VICTIMS OF WOOLLENS

Northerners Score Six Counters in Final Frame to Clinch Victory.

TIGHT EARLY PLAY.

Auburns ran their Tri-County Lacrosse League victories to four straight with a 7-1 win over Dinty's Inn before a fair crowd last night in Auburn Field. Breaking loose in the final frame, the Northerners ran in six goals without a comeback to win going away. Up till the third period, it was a close gruelling contest but the Dinty crew—shy on substitutes—weakened in the last session before a hard Auburn offensive.

Both sides tallied once early in the opening stanza and they battled it out from then till the final chapter before another goal was scored. Close-checking had the ball going back and forth with not so many dangerous thrusts at either net. While the checking was rough, play was fairly clean and only four penalties were drawn, Auburns getting three.

Dallin, Dundas and King supplied the scoring punch for Bob Townley's outfit, the three shining especially in the last period. The whole team looked good from the goal out but this trio carried off the honors. While all the Dinty team put up a game fight, Jones, Vitarelli and Hope were most effective. J. Dundas in goal turned aside some hot ones and had little chance on those that beat him. The teams agreed to play three 17-minute periods instead of the usual four quarters.

Dallin notched the first counter early in the initial chukker on a pass from Heard. Jones got it back a minute later circling the net fast to fool Meyette. Play shifted back and forth and both goalies blocked some hard tries but there was no more scoring. Jackson drew a penalty for slashing and play was fast, even and marked by close checking which became, at times, rough.

All through the bruising second frame, the Dinty and Auburn players battled it out with comparatively few hard shots being laid at the goalie. Ball-carriers were bumped around and checked hard on all sides. Auburns pressed toward the end and had the Inn defence and goalie busy keeping them off the score-sheet. The Southenders tired rapidly from lack of alternates but managed to hold their opponents and mix it just as hard till the whistle.

The last canto had no sooner opened than King took Dallin's pass in close and scored. Dinty's claimed he was in the crease but this goal was allowed. Goodfellow and Vitarelli were chased for roughing it and Dallin tallied on some nice combination with Dundas and King in close. Dundas tore in fast right away to blast in another goal, and he slipped a pass to King right away for one more when Pete backhanded it in at point-blank range. They kept pressing hard and King notched the sixth on a smart assist from Dundas. Jackson was gated for slashing and King threw Dundas a long pass with Ira picking a corner for the final tally. Dinty's kept trying but were outplayed completely in this period.

The teams:

Dinty's Inn: Goal, J. Dundas; defence, Gerow and Hope; centre, Jones; rover, Vitarelli; wings, Corbett and Bowen; alternates, Martineau and Sloan.

Auburns: Goal, Meyette; defence, Goodfellow and Reynolds; centre, Dallin; rover, I. Dundas; wings, Jackson and Heard; alternates, King, Munden, Hunt, Vinette and O'Keefe.

Referees—G. Ellis and R. Creighton.

SPORTS
Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two DAY BY DAY

(By C. J. P.)

Showing more finish than a high-powered limousine, ye Auburns clicked in with another Tri-County Lacrosse League win last eve, putting the boots to Dinty's Inn this time in the Auburn Field, 7 to 1. That's four straight wins if you're an Auburn fan or three wins and a protest if you come from down Norwood way. Too few substitutes for the Dinty crew and too much King, Dundas and Dallin for Auburn accounts for the rather one-sided verdict. And it practically all happened in the last period. The score was 1-1 in the first and no more nor less as the second passed into history. The blowoff came in the windup frame with six straight goals for the Northenders.

• • • • • • •

Dinty's had only two alternates, Staunt, Olaveson and J. Creighton being absentees—with Bun Hatton on the injured list. Auburns had five spares and this means a big difference in a gruelling lacrosse game. No kidding, it was a gruelling game though not too rough. Two St. John's Ambulance Corps men were on hand but had nothing to do. However, the rival players kept up a sizzling pace and the checking was hard and close most of the way. Had the Dinty gang been at full strength and their condition as good—which we doubt—it would have been a mighty close score either way. But Auburns had it all their own way in the last. They'll be mighty tough to take as Norwood, Dinty's and Lindsay all realize now.

Pete King, the old maestro of the gutted stick, showed his wizardry repeatedly with lovely stickhandling, perfect passing and receiving and deadly shooting. He's been starring for a long time and may not be as fast or active as some of the punks breaking in, but King is still a terrific headache to the opposition in any tussle. Ira Dundas, too, is bad news. Both these veterans demonstrated to the fans and other players last night just what experience and teamwork means. With Red Dallin—who is playing smart lacrosse this season—they put the old game in the gunny sack for the Woollens in that final frame.

• • • • • • •

We liked the tireless efforts of Jones, Hope, Sloan and Vitarelli for the losers. They never quit trying, but then the others on that team gave all they had, too. And Ned Vitarelli picked himself a big enough guy to rough up when he mixed with Goodfellow. Both got the trumb. Only four penalties were drawn, although there could easily have been a few more. We don't want to see the game softened up but we don't like having players hurt, either. Good rugged checking with the body or the stick upon the stick is okay but when it comes to slashing high with the stick or charging a guy hard into the boards, you're flirting with injury. Referees should watch for this sort of thing and give the offender the air.

• • • • • • •

Behind Collison's swell hurling last night at Central, the Fashion-Crafts returned to form and abruptly halted Hood and Cummings' winning streak with a 9-2 brake. The Clothiers' heaver fanned 15 and gave but five hits while his teammates clouted out 15 safe bingles off three rival pitchers. Both sides booted the ball six times which isn't so good but the score was not too high. Manager Scates of the Fordmen went to the rescue on the mound in the sixth and didn't do so badly at all. Currie and Collison had three hits each with H. Dormer cuffing the big apple for a four-bagger. Smart money rode on the Craftsmen who were overdue.

• • • • • • •

Belleville's Radiomen blanked the Petes, 3-0, on the Quinte diamond last eve, Calhoun having a slight edge on Scriver in a nifty mound duel. The ex-Toronto tosser was nipped for just three hits while Spook gave only six. They were about even on strikeouts but the local righthander had streaks of wildness and had to hurl himself out of some tough spots. The fielding was good, too, and the game marked by arguments and insults tossed about with abandon. A torrid tussle and tough luck for the Johnson Motors who can't seem to win on the road this season. They are in third place now, a game back of Oshawa and a game and a half behind Belleville. Kingston is in the cellar half a contest behind the locals.

• • • • • • •

The Stewart-Warners are sure having some fine games this year. Of their four games to date, all have ended in shutouts—three of them 1-0 affairs of which they won two. In Williams and Calhoun they seem to be getting fine flinging but whether it'll last or not remains to be seen. Scriver is pitching swell ball, also, but you can't win without hits. At least the Petes' fielding yesterday was a decided improvement with Murphy going great guns at shortstop. A questionable decision on a double play at first by Umpire Woodley which went against the Petes spoiled their best chance to score. Oh, well, maybe the Lee crew will get sweet revenge here a week from tomorrow.

Chappy Johnson's colored stars from N'Yawk are here tomorrow in Riverside at three for an exhibition game with the Petes. The negroes defeated Kingston Ponies yesterday, 5 to 2, with some timely hitting and should put up a real scrap here. Whitehouse, Smoke and Kitchen are all slated for a turn on the slab in this game. Down at the Exhibition Grounds tomorrow at three bells, Herb Ralph's Rotary Juniors open their Lakeshore Baseball League schedule against the classy Cobourg crew—which hammered Port Hope for an 11-1 win the other day. Lefty Lesurf will likely pitch for the locals and Ralph has a bunch of smart juniors. Sounds like a nifty battle and rates some support.

McLARNIN SIGNED FOR ANOTHER BOUT

Will Meet Canzoneri or Brouillard Late in Summer, Says N. Y. Mirror.

NEW YORK, June 7.—(CP)—The New York Mirror said last night in its early Friday edition that Jimmy McLarnin has been signed to box either Tony Canzoneri or Lou Brouillard late this summer.

The paper said 'Pop' Foster, manager of the former welterweight champion from Vancouver, signed articles with Madison Square Garden.

At the Upper Broadway hotel where Foster and Jimmy had been staying since Barney Ross outdecisioned the Canadian Celt on May 26, it was said they checked out today and left no forwarding address. Matchmaker James Johnston of the Garden was not immediately available for comment.

Brouillard, a middleweight who briefly held the championship in that class after ruling the welterweights, is, like McLarnin, a Canadian. He was born at St. Eugene, Que. now lives in New Haven.

Canzoneri, Italian veteran from New Orleans, recently tumbled Lou Ambers of Herkimer, N.Y., to win New York State recognition as successor to the lightweight throne which Ross abdicated two months ago.

McLarnin and Brouillard met in August, 1932, and the broad-shouldered French-Canadian earned a 10-round decision with his slashing left.

Game Boots Costly To Knox Juveniles

St. James' Juveniles took a 14-9 decision over Knox in their Church softball fixture last evening. Knox booted the ball around in two frames and this cost them the tilt. Ridley and Graham on the mounds both showed a lot of speed but, taking advantage of errors and hard slugging sent St. James home on top. Berwick and Ridley hit homers, while Whatman and Laing led the Knox knockers. Both outfits showed good fielding. The teams:

Knox.—Crowe, ss; Smythe, 2b; Graham, p; Barnes, lf; Whatman, c; Laing, 1b; Andrews, 3b; Todd, cf; Doughty, rf.

St. James'.—Stinson, cf; Henwood, ss; Lawson, 2b; Castle, c; Wood, 1b; Sexsmith, rf; Berwick, 3b; Self, lf; Ridley, p.

HAMILTONIAN IN GOLF FINAL

Mrs. Clifton Shuttleworth Will Oppose Mrs. E. W. Whittington.

FOR LADIES' TITLE.

HAMILTON, Ont., June 7 (C.P.).—Hamilton's bid to retain the Ontario women's golf championship was carried into the final to-day at Ancaster by Mrs Clifton Shuttleworth of the Glendale Club against Toronto's Mrs. E. W. Whittington. The title was won in 1934 by Mary Hunter of Glendale.

While Mrs. Shuttleworth was keeping home hopes alive in yesterday's semi-finals by defeating Mrs. C. R. Eddis of Toronto Rosedale, Mrs. Whittington was eliminating Katherine Bishop of Brantford in a hard-fought battle, one up. Mrs. Shuttleworth's margin of victory was 2 and 1.

The Glendale player had a narrow escape from defeat when she developed a cramp in one foot after building up a two-hole lead in the first nine holes. She lost the 10th and 11th to Mrs. Eddis before striking a winning stride again. A birdie at the 15th put her ahead again and she made it two with another birdie at the 17th.

Mrs. Whittington's reliable putter provided her margin over Miss Bishop. The Toronto star made the turn one up and sank a 15-footer at the 11th to go two up. Miss Bishop holed out with her mashie at the 15th for an eagle, but she was unable to further cut down Mrs. Whittington's lead, the last three holes being halved.

Mark St. Seniors Turn Back Trinity

Mark Street Seniors turned back Trinity, 17-2, in a Church Softball League game last night, with Roy Hunter twirling fine ball. The losers were minus their regular catcher and first baseman and kicked in some poor fielding. Ferguson, M. Hunter and Townsend hit well for the victors with Nicholls best for Trinity. The teams:

Trinity.—Morrow, c; Nicholls, p; Wolstenholme, 2b; McFadden, 3b; Sage, cf; M. Gadd, lf; Clarke, 1b; K. Gadd, ss; Rehill, rf.

Mark Street.—Ferguson, c; Parsons, ss; Brady, 3b; M. Hunter, 1b; R. Hunter, p; Townsend, lf; Darwin, rf; Sager, 2b; G. Hunter, cf.

Dominion Lawn Bowling Tournament

The Dominion Lawn Bowling Tournament that has been held in Toronto for the past forty-two consecutive years will be run this year, August 19 to 23, under a new name, The Provincial Lawn Bowling Tournament and Championships. An amalgamation of the older organization and the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association has taken place, and the entire resources of both organizations are being utilized to give the bowlers of Ontario the finest bowling meet yet held in Canada.

There will be five distinct competitions, two major rink events, two doubles, and one singles. One fee entitles a bowler to play in all five. All contests are to be on the elimination basis but are distinct units. Contestants remain in each competition until eliminated, and thus it is possible for any rink to carry off both rink trophies and the doubles and singles as well, that is, theoretically possible.

As players lose out in the rinks, they are automatically drawn in doubles in whatever round is then being played, it being stipulated that such players may not be placed in a more advanced position than the sixteens. The round for the sixteens will be timed late enough to include the losers in the rink semi-final games. These same rules will apply to losers of the doubles entering the singles. Any players not playing in the rinks will be required to start at scratch in the doubles and in the singles.

During the same week the winners in the sixteen districts of Ontario will meet in Toronto in the final play-offs in rinks, doubles and singles of the Provincial Championships. These games will be conducted under the auspices of the tournament committee and are being arranged in such a way as to permit the district winners to play as well in all departments of the tournament.

On the opening night a banquet will be tendered by the Toronto bowlers to the visiting bowlers and other forms of entertainment including dancing are being arranged. On Tuesday evening an All-Comers' match will be held.

PETES DETERMINED TO GAIN HOME WIN

Johnson's New York Terriers Will Provide Opposition on Saturday.

An exhibition baseball game has been arranged for tomorrow at three o'clock in Riverside Park between Chappy Johnson's New York colored team, the Terriers, and Johnson Motors. Fresh from a victory in Kingston yesterday, the negroes will come here expecting to hang up another win over a Central League team. The locals are smarting under their 3-0 defeat in Belleville last evening and ought to hammer out a verdict at home. The batting, pitching and fielding practise should benefit them for future C.O.B.L. contests. It shapes up as a tidy exhibition tilt and should draw a good crowd of rooters, provided the weather is right.

Knotty Lee figures on working three hurlers against the Terriers. Frank Whitehouse will get a turn, the local lefthander having only appeared in one game to date for an inning in Oshawa some time ago. Russ Kitchen, big righthander who has been out of the game sick so far this season, will be back on the mound for a few frames. And Gord (Big) Smoke, Alderville Indian rookie flinger, will get a chance to show his stuff here for the first time. The locals will be at full strength and should chalk up a victory, though the New York team is considered strong.

QUASHED SCORES ASCOT SURPRISE

Lord Stanley's Entry Leads Field of 17 Three-year-olds to Post.

EPSOM DOWNS, Eng., June 7. (C. P. Cable).—An upset resulted in the running of the Oaks Stakes, historic classic for three-year-old fillies this afternoon, when Quashed romped in ahead of Ankaret with the favorite Sea third in the field.

Lord Stanley's Quashed, a brown filly by Obliterate out of Verdict, became the 17th winner of the long roll of the Oaks, first run in 1779—the year before the Derby.

Ankaret raced in the silks of Mrs. G. B. Miller and Mesa for the French owner, Pierre Wertheimer. Mesa won the one thousand Guineas, the only other classic for fillies on the English turf at Newmarket last month, but was unable to repeat at Epsom as the Aga Khans Bahram had done in the two open classics—the two thousand guineas and the derby.

Quashed had barely a head margin over Ankaret at the end of the journey over the derby course of a mile and a half. Mesa was another length to the rear.

Quashed started at odds of 33 to 1, Ankaret at 100 to 1, and Mesa at 5 to 4. Mesa was the same short odds as Bahram, only this time the Newmarket winner did not come through as Bahram had two days ago.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

McDONALD & CADER

CHAPTER 45

The Dummy and Willowby talked longer and it was sundown before Willowby made a move to go. As they turned back through the camp it was no longer deserted, but stirred with life, hungry gypsies, hovering around the campfire waiting for supper.

"Tell the lad to paint this for me," he said to Girtza, his hand indicating the camp, his eyes drinking in the lusty colorfulness of it.

While he hesitated the gypsies looked at him questioningly. Seldom that a gorgio was guest in their camp. They heard Girtza ask him to eat with them and then Girtza spoke out in his great loud voice and told them that this man had seen his daughter, that bad Consuelo, and that she was a great and famous dancer in New York—how proud were the words. For an instant there was quiet, then a babble of voices. The gypsies crowded around him asking questions, all talking at once, and it was after dusk before he was allowed to continue on his way.

"I will walk back with you." It was a voice he had not heard before. He looked at a tall gypsy with a handsome, unsmiling face, who had stood in the background listening, eyes narrowed.

"This is Marcu," Girtza said.

Willowby glanced at Girtza.

"He is only a bitter disappointed one and wears his heart on his face. She was to be his bride."

There were friendly goodnights and the two left. Down the dark trail they went, Marcu leading the way. They did not speak until the lights of Willowby's farm were sighted, then Marcu placed his hand on the man's shoulder.

"Tell me, is the little one in love with some white man?"

Willowby did not like the feel of the strong fingers.

"Oh, I don't know about that. She might and again she might not be. She's all the thing, invitations everywhere. Plenty of men in love with her, all right, but how she feels about them I don't know."

"If I thought that she loved them, I'd go to New York and put my hands around her throat and—oh, she is not worth bothering with! I am crazy mad! I will get me a wife and forget how smooth were her arms and how soft were her lips!" For a moment he did not speak. "I am a fool, a whimpering dog! But when a gypsy loves he does not forget easily. No, that is a lie. It is revenge I am waiting for. Tell her if she were here I'd cut her throat and laugh at the blood on my hands! I would beat her until she cried out that she loved me! If any white dog has touched her, I will kill him! Tell her I get me a wife and then she will know that I do not care what she does! Tell her she is less than dust beneath my feet!" He spat on the ground.

"Very well, gypsy, I'll tell her you still love her, if that's what you're trying to say."

"You—you—" Marcu stammered, and then was speechless. "Tell her nothing!" He turned on his heel and vanished in the gathering darkness.

Willowby gazed after him.

"Another heart she carried too lightly," he murmured.

It was nearly time for spring when winter came and dropped her soft cotton flakes on the tops of the tall buildings of New York and their whiteness covered up the heavy-coated dust that rested there. Through the great narrow alleyways the little cotton flakes danced merrily down to death. Brave little soldiers to be trodden under hurrying feet, no glory assigned them; lucky little soldiers if they retained their purity and virtue for more than a moment, and luckier still if they could find a furry collar to hide under, or a warm rosy cheek to brush against, or settle down on a sheer silk stocking—then it was fun to die.

Because the Old Lady of Winter was late she came in reckless bad humor and would not pass on indifferently. With cruel abandon she sent her soldiers down in mass attack and cared not for the consequences. She bribed her allies into working overtime and pipes were frozen solid and burst like pop guns and fires would not burn and coal was scarce and people went around shivering in their fur coats and saying that they had never seen such a severe winter. That made the Old Lady's sides rock with laughter and dislodged all the soldiers hiding in her fat bosom and they tumbled down in disorder and died. It was a pity, too, for they were far too young and should have been put in training for the next winter.

The coming of sleet and snow brought to the Gypsy Consuelo utter bewilderment. She had never seen snow. She had never imagined that cold could be so cold. She knew that the grass in the parks might die, but she had never visioned it covered with white until it presented a toneless study in browns and white. She did not know that icicles could hang by hoary fingers around the once laughing fountains or that the sidewalks could be so slippery.

At first the beauty of winter thrilled her. She would stand in the snow and turn up her face so that the flakes might fall gently like cold soft velvet against it—lucky little soldiers there! She would catch them in her hand and marvel at their pure loveliness and then they were gone—lucky little soldiers there!

But the novelty of the snow wore off and her gypsy warmth and passion was chilled by the lost colorfulness and she could not help but shiver inside. She hated the slush and the sight of dirty snow—an insult it was to the beauty of it, and her heart cried out within her for a little greenness. Even the flowers that came now, and flowers were dearer than gold, were like lost orphans and only made her sad. Their fragile scent was as artificial as if the florist had dipped them in costly perfume too well diluted.

And where had the sun gone? Would it never return? Hiding from the Old Lady of Winter it must be.

It was only when Consuelo danced that she forgot the snow, and life and warmth rushed back to her. All the passion of her tempestuous emotional self went into her work and truly it was that Broadway had never seen a dancer like her. Star of the Follies. A knock-out. Producers bidding for her. Talking pictures offering high prices to win her from the stage. Advertising agencies paying unbelievable sums for her to pose for this or that. Men crowding around her. Dinners and parties in her honor. Presentations to visiting celebrities.

Once New York had reached out and caught the girl in its arms, but now the situation was reversed and the gypsy held New York in her arms and dictated what she wanted. But attachment of this kind is a subtly dangerous one and for everything that Consuelo demanded New York demanded twice as much, and the girl paid and did not realize the price.

She told herself that she was happy; that the marble palace was complete; that now the hill was crowded with people who stood in adoration. She had attained her goal. The thing she had set out to do was accomplished. She was satisfied now, eh? Ah, satisfied as a lioness in a cage!

For Saturday, June 8

A lively and eventful day is forecast from the prevailing lunar and mutual figures. A sudden event may be precipitated with whirlwind velocity and may change the entire course of current events and have the effect of recasting the future destiny. It may be concerned with writings, travel, sports, youth, or their interests, but in all there is a menace of intrigue, subtlety, duplicity. Likewise, there will be tenacious obstacles to be removed before these tremendous operations may bear fruit.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for an event of major importance coming into their lives during the year, suddenly and with the force of a whirlwind. This abrupt visitation may change the entire future plans and activities, although tenacious obstacles must first be disposed of and treachery and intrigue vanquished.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!
By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Number 632

Courtesy is the password in golf. Yet many a man who is most courteous in other things often shows too little consideration for his companions on the golf course.

One of the most common oversights is the habit of shouting to other players who are some distance away. At the moment members of your foursome may not be playing a shot, but invariably others within hearing are. Your shout upsets them. You may never learn that you spoiled some fellow's game.

It's best to be on the safe side and confine your remarks to those in your immediate party. Even in this you should be careful about jangling your clubs or making any noise while others are trying ot play. Nothing can wreck a swing more quickly than an unexpected sound. On some courses it would help to play with cotton stuffed in your ears.

Magistrate's Court

John Bingham appeared on remand for sentence to-day, having formerly pleaded guilty to theft of a diamond ring from his former employer at Norwood, and was given three months determinate and three months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., stated the accused youth was convicted here in May of breaking and entering, and had also been in trouble in the United States, although never convicted of an offence in that country.

R. Bruce Bolton of Douro township was remanded without election or plea, on a charge of obtaining a set of license markers from the office of the local auto license issuer, by issuing a cheque on a bank at which he had no account. Bail was set in the sum of $1,000.

KEENE GIRLS GET REVENGE

Smarting Under Bailieboro Defeat, Rurals Swamp Electrics 23-8.

MANY ERRORS.

Keene Girls made up for the licking they received at Bailieboro on Wednesday when they took it out on the C.G.E. last evening on their home diamond, hammering the wobbly Electrics for a 23-8 win. The Electrics gave a disappointing performance, especially after their neat game on Tuesday last when they lost to the same team 8-5. They ran up a total of 19 miscues which was a conservative count, and hurled the ball around the diamond for a flock of overthrows.

Marilyn McCarthy pitched the whole game for the winners, adding eight strike-outs to run her total for four games up to forty-five. Her team-mates played the usual heads-up style of ball and seldom showed any signs of becoming erratic. McCarthy walked nine. Mary McCarthy started for the C.G.E. but retired in the fourth in favor of Newson who finished. The former fanned two, walked two and allowed six hits. Newson walked one and was nicked for ten safeties.

Irene Short, hit a homer for the winners as well as two singles; while Kay Nelson clouted a triple and two singles. Grace McCarthy had a three bagger and one single. Winnie Snowden pasted a circuit blow and a triple for C.G.E. Dot Ryan had two clean hits and aMry McCarthy also. DeCarlo bunted for a hit in her only appearance at the plate. Marg English was the pick of the fielders for the losers, with a perfect night on flies.

The teams:

C.G.E—Martin, of; English, lf; P. Sanderson, rf; W. Snowden, ss; Byers, 2b; Ryan, c; M. McCarthy, p; M. Sanderson, 1b; Thompson, 3b; Newson, p; Foster, rf.

Keene—H. Nelson, 2b; Manley, ss; J. Nelson, 3b; Irene Short, c; Marilyn McCarthy, rf; Isobel Short, 1b; Gainor, rf; K. Nelson, lf; G. McCarthy, cf.

Score by innings:

C.G.E.	010 122 200— 8 9 19
Keene	124 217 42x—23 16 4

Umpires—Dick Galbraith at the plate, Ab Frick on the bases.

King George Takes 12-5 Softball Win

King George took a 12-5 victory over Central on the latter's diamond in their School Softball League contest last evening. Pounding the ball hard the last three frames, the Aushburnham crew piled up a safe lead after being held in subjection the first four innings. Northcott and Millen both turned in fair twirling jobs and their support was good for the most part. Some hard timely hitting late in the game made for the King George margin. The teams:

King George: Hawkes, 3b; Partington, cf; Scriver, c; Robinson, rf; Northcott, p; Gandy, ss; Nichols, 1b; Eason, 2b; Clark, lf.

Central: R. Clarke, 3b; L. Clarke, ss; Copperthwaite, c; Lomax, rf; Millen, p; Currie, lf; Duggan, 2b; McKinnon, 1b; Preston, cf.

King George	001 044 3—12
Central	001 040 0— 5

Umpires—A. Weir and J. Currie.

THE CANADIAN DEPARTMENT STORES LIMITED

CONCERT GIVEN BY ORCHESTRA OF ST. PAUL'S

Orchestra Provided Very Delightful Entertainment in School Auditorium.

STRING TRIO

(By Jeanette)

A fine demonstration of the excellence of junior musicians was afforded the very appreciative audience that listened to the second annual concert of the Sunday School Orchestra of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, presented in the Sunday School auditorium last evening, with O. M. Steer in the chair, and M. B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O. directing the efforts of the orchestra, which is composed entirely of boys, some of whom are very young, all are imbued with an interest and enthusiasm which makes their playing extremely good. They combine with this attractive attribute of enthusiasm, a fine quality of melodious bright tone, a rhythmic swing and even, smooth attack and release, the whole making for outstanding excellence and worth.

The orchestra had a most attractive setting in a banked screen of tall palms and ferns, the music issuing from among the green fronds.

Vocal Solos

Senior members of the choir contributed vocal solos and there were also some pleasing repetitions of solos and duets from the recent success of St. Paul's choir, "San Toy," as well as instrumental solo numbers from several youthful musicians who were encored with great enthusiasm.

These youthful soloists were extremely fine. Quite unusual is the cornet playing of Miss May Birchard, whose clear, pleasing tone and attractive manner of playing her difficult instrument were demonstrated in "The End of a Perfect Day" and its encore, "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton." Horace Steer, making his first public appearance in the role of solo performer, covered himself with glory and received loud applause for his clarinet rendering in pure, silvery tonal effect, of "Neapolitan Nights" and its encore. And the third youthful presentation was by a very entertaining harmonica trio in assorted sizes, who played manfully and well several popular favorites and an encore in "My Wild Irish Rose." These were all from Nassau: Neil McNaughton and Allan and Stuart Lockington.

String Trio

A particularly well-rendered trio by three stringed instruments, two violins and a violincello, played by William Barr, Ferguson Barr and Noel Barr, displayed combined talent and skilful musicianship, in the playing of Brahms' Hungarian Dance No. 5, and an encore, a portion of the "Barcarolle" from "Tales of Hoffman."

The assisting vocalists included several of the prominent members of the cast of "San Toy," repeating some of the song hits of that pretty light opera, also Miss Helen Veitch and Miss Isobel Duthie.

Miss Veitch, whose high, pure-toned soprano gives promise of exceptional excellence in the future years of this young vocalist, sang two pretty numbers: "With the Swallow," and "It's Only a Tiny Garden."

Miss Duthie's dainty, fine-fibred voice was pleasing in two songs: "I Love Thee" and "I Know a Lovely Garden."

The "San Toy" excerpts were Miss Mary Sedgewick's solo, "Somebody," rendered in her attractive expressive tones; John Fowler's impressive number, "I Mean to Introduce it Into China," given in his fine, rich bass with all the dignity that marked his delineation of the stately Mikado; Miss Jessie Pattison's principal solo, the lively number, "Rhoda and her Pagoda," with her effective contralto at its best; and two duets, both very pleasingly rendered: "When You are Wed to Me," by Miss Sedgewick and Horace Hope, tenor, and "China Doll," by Miss Pattison and Adam Sands, basso.

The orchestral selections, rendered with all the verve and energy of youth and the characteristics mentioned above, included a bright opening March "W.M.B.", the colorful and descriptive selection, "Children's Toy Symphony," which was an interlude in the "San Toy" presentation, and includes so many novelties in its makeup: the softly gay, pleasing music of the old favorite, "Sobre las Olas" (Over the Waves), a very fine delineation of various clock voices, in the descriptive Fantasia, "In the Clock Store," and a closing march "Indepentia."

Mr. Chenhall played accompaniments for the entire program with the exception of the "Toy Symphony" when the piano was played by Don Ross and Russell Rowan.
